EVANS' ANTISEPTIC THROAT PASTILLES

THE SINGER'S FRIEND

FOR YOUR THROAT AND VOICE.

These world-famous Pastilles are prepared to a formula of the Liverpool Throat Hospital, and are wonderfully efficacious in strengthening the voice and imparting that silvery clearness and tone so much desired by every vocalist.

Madame Tetrizzini writes:

"I thank you for the boxes of Evans' Pastilles sent me, which I find excellent and efficacious."

Signor G. Sammarco

writes:

"I have been using your Evans' Antiseptic Throat Pastilles for some time past, and I can vouch for their surprising efficacy."

Signor Carlo Walter

writes:

"Having used your Antiseptic Pastilles for some time, I have great pleasure in testifying to their excellent quality and in recommending them without hesitation to my colleagues."

Can be obtained of all Chemists and Stores at 1s. and 2s. 6d. per box.

Sample will gladly be sent if a 1d. stamp is enclosed to cover postage, by Sole Manufacturers, Evans Sons Lescher & Webb, Ltd., Hanover St., Liverpool.

Ask for "EVANS'" Pastilles, and see that you get them. Beware of numerous imitations.

THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

TENTERDEN STREET, HANOVER SQUARE.

INSTITUTED 1822. INCORPORATED BY ROYAL CHARTER 1830.

Patron — HIS MOST GRACIOUS MAJESTY THE KING.

President—H.R.H. THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT AND STRATHFARN, K.G.

Principal—SIR ALEXANDER CAMPBELL MACKENZIE, Mus.D., LL.D., D.C.L., F.R.A.M.

THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC offers to students of both sexes (whether amateur or professional) a thorough training in all branches of music under the most able and distinguished Professors. In addition to receiving individual lessons in the various branches of the Curriculum, students have the advantage of attending the Orchestral, Choral, and Chamber Music Classes, and the weekly lectures on music and musicians. Evidence of their progress is given at the Fortnightly and Public Concerts and by periodical Operatic and Dramatic Performances.

There are three Terms in the Academic year—viz., the Michaelmas Term, from Michaelmas to Christmas; the Lent Term, from early in January to Easter; and the Midsummer Term, from early in May until the end of July.

The Fee for the ordinary curriculum is 11 Guineas per Term.

A large number of Scholarships and Prizes are founded and are competed for periodically.

Students who show special merit and ability receive the distinction of being elected by the Directors Associates of the Institution, and are thereby entitled to the use after their names of the initials A.R.A.M. Students who distinguish themselves in the musical profession after quitting the Institution may be elected by the Directors Fellows of the Royal Academy of Music, and are thereupon entitled to the use after their names of the initials F.R.A.M.

Subscribers have the privilege of attending the Lectures and Public Concerts and of introducing friends in proportion to the amount of their subscriptions.

An examination of persons trained independently of the Academy is held twice a year—viz., during the Summer and Christmas vacations—successful candidates at which are elected Licentiates of the Academy, and are thereupon entitled to the use after their names of the initials L.R.A.M.

An examination of persons engaged in the Training of Children's Voices is held annually in September and during the Christmas vacation and a certificate is granted to successful candidates.

Prospectus, entry form, and all further information may be obtained on application.

The "Swastika" is the oldest and most widely recognised symbol of good luck in the world. Every where and always it has been regarded as a talisman of good luck, long life, prosperity, and the fulfilment of heart's desire. It girdles the globe from east to west; it spans the ages from the present back into remotest antiquity, where its origin is lost in the dim twilight of human beginnings. Archaeologists have long speculated on its origin, and a most fascinating theory has recently been put forth by Mr. H. Powell Rees that it was the ensign of Atlantis, the submerged continent, the legendary birthplace of civilisation.

THE DRAMA OF THE YEAR.

BY J. T. GREIN.

AS I was looking over my files to refresh my memory and to strike the balance of the year, a tragic-comic idea forced itself upon me. I counted the hours spent at the playhouse, the hours spent in the study hard at work at the desk; I saw the myriads of letters which had flown from my pen, and then all of a sudden I saw before me a vision of a black Niagara, the torrent of articles spread across the land, and all of them devoted to that love-child of ours, "the drama." And when the vision had waned I seemed to stare into blankness, for all this toil, all this energy, all this power of a thousand brains, all this criticism—what did it mean in proportion to the yield of a year's crop? In this spirit I began to sift as gingerly, as gently, as carefully as it behoved one who desires to be lenient in order not to be destructive. And when all the chaff was cast aside and formed a little mountain of oblivion, I looked up the ripe fruit of the harvest, and it was oh, so little! Just a handful of good strong grain, with one single particle of superior excellence, and all the rest good fair average quality, as they say in business—not much to boast of, but just enough to stifle the cry of the wolf.

SIR A. W. PINERO.

Now let us particularise and allot the foremost place to the distinguished author who yet remains acclaimed as the leading dramatist of this country. I refer to Pinero—him in whom a branch of art was honoured by the knighthood conferred upon him. True, Sir Arthur Pinero's latest play, "Mid-Channel," has but enjoyed a short life, and not even a merry one. I cannot get away from the conviction that my brethren have not meted out that justice to "Mid-Channel" which is their wont. Granted the play is unpleasant, its hue is sombre, its length abnormal, its characters do not appeal to our sympathy—and to the average Englishman the idea of unhappiness engendered by enforced childlessness is one that leaves a nasty taste behind; granted all this, but then when you take the book in hand, or when you remember the production, you cannot help being struck by the unity of purpose by which this work was created, by the veracity of the picture of the seamy side of life, by the stern moral which it teaches, above all by the mastery of craft with which it is constructed. There are failures which are better than successes; "Mid-Channel" is one of those. It is worthy to rank as intellectual drama among the finest; for this very reason, alas! it probably failed to attract the public enslaved by "Merry Widows" and "Dollar Princesses."

Henry Arthur Jones has been silent so far as regular theatres are concerned. At the Palace, however, a strong and absorbing little playlet from his pen, "The Knife," was produced in December, and served to introduce to the music halls Mr. Arthur Bouchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh.

R. C. CARTON.

Mr. Carton, whose charming little comedy, "Mr. Preedy and the Countess," enjoyed prosperity at the Criterion, mainly through the personal efforts of Miss Compton and Mr. Weedon Grossmith, shares with Sir Arthur Pinero the glory of having failed with a brilliant play. "Lorrimer Sabiston, Dramatist," succumbed after a fortnight's career, despite a decidedly encouraging first night. Why did this play fail, which, next to "Lord and Lady Algy," is Mr. Carton's best, and literally scintillates with humour? The reason is not far to seek. We live in days of inflated interest in the actor and his doings, and the dramatist lags so far behind that the average man or woman of the suburbs who goes to the theatre, and knows and worships the actress, does not care a rap for the name of the man whose work he enjoys. Now, "Sabiston" dealt with dramatists, their workings, their tribulations, their position, and the dialogue was full of theatrical terminology. To the first-nighters all this meant delight. To the ordinary playgoer it meant caviare. If the play had been named "Lorrimer Sabiston, Actor," it might have been a huge success.

ALFRED SUTRO: H. H. DAVIES.

Alfred Sutro has increased his record, but not his reputation, by his comedy "Making a Gentleman," which was produced by Mr. Arthur Bouchier. To be quite frank, it is shoddy work, vieux jeu in conception, and not redeemed by Sutro's usual grace of dialogue, because the attentive listener soon discovered that there was no heart in it. By this time Mr. Sutro will have learned that since the French methods of painstaking construction we have made headway, and that there is some risk in producing theatricality without the inwardness of real life.

Something of the same nature applies to H. H. Davies's play "Bevis." Mr. Davies is a charming writer, but he loves honey and treacle—two sweets which do not at all times suit the digestion of the playgoer. It is all very well to take a roseate view of life, but in doing so we must remember that the days of Gilbert's girl of fifteen are past, and that at least a fraction of our playgoing public is not afraid of the truth, nor disinclined to think in the theatre.

SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle seemed to be alive to the march of the times, for in "The Fires of Fate" he gave us a drama which was not only strong to a degree, but had a most interesting psychological basis. The scene in the doctor's study, where the Major learns that his days are numbered, is a great scene in the true sense of the word. And the scene in the desert, where the Dervishes attack the European travellers, succeeded as a theatrical tour de force, because a hair-breadth of exaggeration would have rendered the picture a caricature, whereas, on the contrary, it held the hearers spellbound.

BERNARD SHAW TRIFLES.

Bernard Shaw, usually the most fertile of our playwrights, gave two inconsiderable trifles, "The Admirable Bashville" and "Press Cuttings," both of which were not quite worthy of him. On the other hand, it was with real pleasure that one renewed acquaintance with Shaw's firstling, "Widowers' Houses"—produced in 1891 by the Independent Theatre—which, now under the excellent guidance of Miss Horniman's repertory company, showed no trace of antiquity, and revived our interest in the problem of the great housing question which is still rampant in submerged London. Mr. Fagan tried to follow in the vein of Shakespeare when he wrote "The Merry Devil," and although he has caught something of the master's spirit and wields a graceful pen, it was not a particularly exhilarating production. On the other hand, his journalistic play, "The Earth," was one of the most momentous of the year. It was witty, it was dramatic, and without fear or favour it exposed the machinations of the Yellow Press. It had a foil in Arnold Bennett's "What the Public Wants," which was promoted after production by the Stage Society to the Royalty. Mr. Bennett is equipped, but the technique of the drama is not yet quite familiar to him; for this reason the play, full of wit and caustic humour as it was, appealed to the elect rather than to the crowd. Mr. Coleby's "Truants," his third play, was interesting, and contained some very realistic scenes, but somehow it did not realise the great expectations raised by the first night. It is one of those plays which dimly linger in one's memory, but the action of which was not important enough to render it unforgettable.

NOVELISTS AS DRAMATISTS.

Mr. Robert Hichens, that exquisite novelist, has not yet conquered the stage. His "Real Woman," written with charm and emotion, showed great progress when compared with "The Medicine Man," but there was no grip in the play. It was diffuse, and somehow not quite credible nor fanciful enough to be accepted as a fairy tale. Mr. Anstey's "Brass Bottle," although of humbler humour than his famous comedy "The Man from Blankley's," scored a very great success, which seems far from exhausted. It is full of scenes and touches of which Anstey alone possesses the secret, and the first act is an admirable castle in the air, conceived by an imaginative man. The rest is agreeable tomfoolery.

PRODUCTIVENESS OF W. S. MAUGHAM.

W. S. Maugham remains the spoilt child of the dramatic Muse. His "Penelope," with a magnificent scene for Miss Marie Tempest in the second act, introduced Parisian esprit into an English mould; his "Noble Spaniard" was a little incursion into adaptation, and had some charm because the first act gave a faithful picture of home life in the early Victorian days. His "Smith" is, in many ways, the best of his plays, and although the fact that his central figure is a servant in my eyes somewhat lowers the standard of the comedy, it cannot be gainsaid that in dialogue and construction it reveals the infinite resource and the uncommon power of observation of this successful author.

OTHER AUTHORS AND THEIR PLAYS.

Mr. Besier's "Olive Latimer's Husband" was a play in the Ibsenite vein, yet lacking the great powers of characterisation of Ibsen. His "Don," on the other hand, which brought success to Mr. Herbert Trench's repertory venture at the Haymarket, after a worthy if somewhat academic beginning with "King Lear," is a play of some importance. It pictures a Don Quixote of modern time, and without ever becoming tragic it illustrates how people full of ideals are apt to come into grievous conflict with the convictions of the world. A neat little comedy on Paris models was "A Sense of Humour," by Beryl Faber and Cosmo Hamilton, and the faulty construction of the play was redeemed by powerful characterisation and fine local colour. A failure from the critic's point of view was "His Borrowed Plumes," by Mrs. George Cornwallis West. "The Servant in the House," by Rann Kennedy, came to us heralded by the trumpets and covered with the glories of an American triumph. It proved a worthy but preachy effort to introduce the supernatural element; it ruled itself out of court by the ungenerous and unjust spirit in which the clergyman by profession was portrayed. Mr. Lewis Waller found popularity again in Mr. Devereux's "Sir Walter Raleigh," a melodramatic caricature of history.

PRODUCING SOCIETIES.

The Stage Society did admirable work; indeed the season was a great success. It gave "The Fountain," a clever comedy by George Calderon; it gave Arnold Bennett's play already named; it brought Hamilton Fyfe to the fore. His "Modern Aspasia," dealing frankly and sympathetically with the question of the cher ami, raised great expectations for the future. It is significant that whereas several Continental countries immediately secured the right to produce this clever work, not one English manager showed the courage to include it in the regular bill.

The Afternoon Theatre did excellent work in making our public further acquainted with Hauptmann's masterpiece, "Hannele," and with Schnitzler's "Liebele" ("Light of Love"), which is almost a classic on the Continent, but did not prove to the taste of our public, partly because the interpretation was not wholly adequate. The Afternoon Theatre also re-produced "Admiral Guinea," by Henley and Stevenson, which proved out of date; "The House of Bondage," by Obermer, which had quality of dialogue but an uninteresting action; and "The High Bid," by Henry James, which confirmed the conviction that however distinguished the style of a novelist may be, he will fail in the theatre if the gift of dramatic instinct be not vouchsafed to him.

HIS MAJESTY'S.

At His Majesty's Theatre, the leader of which (Sir Herbert Tree) was deservedly honoured by the King, the two most interesting productions were "False Gods," a play which, in spite of its earnest intention, seems out of place in England, and "Beethoven," the central figure of which, without exaggeration, may be termed the finest characterisation ever attempted by our leading actor.

CHILDREN'S PLAYS.

At His Majesty's the Christmas season brought also a highly successful revival of "Plinkie and the Fairies," and at the Duke of York's the evergreen "Peter Pan" made its sixth triumphant annual entry. The constant revivals of fairy plays of literary merits in competition with the time-honoured pantomimes (of which there still will be twenty in the West End and Greater London) have a certain importance, as they indicate educational progress. And the fact that Mr. Trench has ventured much and won more by his sumptuous production of Maeterlinck's "Blue Bird"—in which grace of style and fancy are combined with spectacular effect—seems to forecast that ere long Christmas entertainments will no longer be synonymous with doggerel and facile humour venerated by scenic splendour.

TRANSLATIONS AND IMPORTATIONS.

The year brought us translations and American importations galore, the latter, such as "The Chorus Girl," mostly stand beyond the pale of serious criticism. Among the translations there was meritorious work, such as Bernstein's "Samson," Bisson's "Madame X," the latter excellently adapted by John Raphael and splendidly acted by Miss Lena Ashwell; "El Gran Galeoto," by Echegaray, in which Mr. Martin Harvey scored a personal success, and Bergstrom's "Head of the Firm," which Mr. Leslie Faber produced for a short season at the Vaudeville.

It is in the fitness of things that at the close of a year's review one should seek the joyful note, and thus I have left to the last two plays which fill us with hope in the future, with pride at the achievement, and with conviction that if the intellectual drama is only supported by the managers the public will not fail to follow suit. I refer to "The Little Damozel," by a very young author, Monckton Hoffe, a play which has all the charm of youth and imagination, which has the piquant flavour of exoticism yet is entirely original, and which besides bringing a new author to the front has revealed a comparatively new actress in the person of Miss May Blayney.

"STRIFE."

Last, but not least, I refer to the work which put the Finis coronat opus upon the year 1909, namely, John Galsworthy's "Strife." In summary, "Strife" is a vehement indictment of the old-fangled methods of the limited company: "All for the shareholders, next to nothing for the men, and the iron rod to rule them."

Mr. Galsworthy has driven his theme home with relentless directness. He never swerves from his purpose, and dulcify as he may, we feel that his heart is with the men, that he pleads for the labourer and accuses capital. Nor are his figures mouthpieces of a theorist. Some, indeed, are the incarnation of principles; such is Old Anthony, the idealist Edgar, the fanatic Roberts—but they are human beings as they stand before us; even without the aid of scenic representation we see the outline of their personality; they are characters of our time strong in vitality, individual in thought. It would be churlish to hunt for flaws in a work of so mighty a conception, so sincere in execution. It is such drama that we want, such drama that will lift our stage as well as our national reputation. For whereas it entertains us to the pitch of excitement, it impels reflection on that paramount question—the question of uniting Capital and Labour in fair play on both sides.

I leave it to readers to judge what manner of year 1909 has been for our drama, nor would I be accused of being a pessimist because I began with scoffing and ended with praise. The truth is that according to my lights it is the critic's duty not always to say that all's well in the best of all possible worlds, but to put plainly before the eyes of the public a true diagnosis of the situation. And at the close of the year that is waning the diagnosis is: That so far the output is not commensurate with the travail of the mountain, but that there is reason to maintain one's belief in slow but sure advance.

THE BADDELEY CAKE.

The time-honoured custom of cutting the Baddeley Cake at Drury Lane on Twelfth Night still remains in force, though the occasion is not now made the excuse for a social function, as was the case when the late Sir Augustus Harris directed the fortunes of Drury Lane. The practice was the outcome of a bequest on the part of Richard Baddeley, a comedian at the theatre, who, by his will, left the sum of £100 to the Drury Lane Fund, to be invested in Consols, in order to provide cake and punch for the members of the Drury Lane company to partake of on Twelfth Night of every year. The first recorded occasion of this having taken place was in 1796, and the custom has been continued without a break every year since. In 1909 Mr. Harry Nicholls, the Master of the Drury Lane Fund, performed the ceremony for the fifth year in succession.

THE DRAMA'S DEATH-RATE.

BY MOSTYN T. PIGOTT.

I MARKED distinguished persons go
 About the town in haggard bands,
 And saw them in the direst woe
 Put sackcloth on and wring their hands ;
 And I confess this dismal sight
 Filled me with pity infinite.

And as they dirged a requiem
 Of gloom surpassing all belief
 I ventured to go up to them
 And ask the cause of all this grief,
 Feeling they would not take amiss
 A well-meant action such as this.

They gazed on me with some surprise,
 As if they could not make me out,
 And then, as tears welled from their eyes,
 They told me what they wept about :
 In deep, funereal tones they said,
 " Alas ! The British Drama's dead ! "

This answer did not seem to make
 Precisely the desired effect ;
 My heart was not disposed to break,
 Nor was my brow in sable decked ;
 Responding to their sad refrain
 I simply said, " What ! Dead again ? "

I saw each worthy's trembling hand
 In anguish at his bosom clutch,
 And could not fail to understand
 That I had shocked them very much ;
 Apparently they thought to see Me whelmed in unplumbed misery.

Quoth they, " This devastating news
 Appears somehow to leave you cold ;
 You do not seem to share the views
 Which we so passionately hold :
 You're even moved to merriment
 By this lugubrious event ! "

Said I, " To tell the honest truth,
 Myself to tears I cannot bring ;
 Right upwards from my callow youth
 This always has been happening ;
 I've noticed once at least each year
 The Drama laid out on its bier.

" I understand that thrice three lives
Have been awarded to the cat;
The Drama by some means contrives
To easily out-distance that,
For its allowance, I should guess,
Is nine and ninety, more or less.

" And ev'ry single time it dies,
Felled by some fresh assassin's hand,
The direful tale of its demise
Sheds shadows over all the land—
And yet it seems, you must admit,
To be no whit the worse for it.

" Its enemies each day embark
On some new method of attack;
They dog its footsteps in the dark
And stick a dagger in its back—
And ev'ry time that it is slain
It bobs serenely up again.

" The Censor works his wicked will;
The weather's ever on the watch;
The critic, if he cannot kill,
Will always do his best to scotch;
And Comedy called 'musical'
Prepares the Drama's funeral.

" And yet in spite of countless foes
Who do not stick at anything,
The final death which they propose
Seems somehow to have lost its sting;
The Drama when all's done and said
Insists in not remaining dead.

" Good money's always found to build
New theatres all o'er the place,
And these are adequately filled
In practically ev'ry case;
And after every decease
The salaries all round increase.

" The Public avidly devours
Most of the fare that's offered it,
And stands in queues for hours and hours
To gain admission to the pit:
Even the Budget can't assuage
The People's passion for the Stage.

" And consequently when you come
To tackle me with bated breath,
And in a tone intensely glum
Tell me of yet another death,
You mustn't quite rely on me
To grieve to any great degree."

And as they passed from out my ken,
Although the sackcloth still they wore,
I saw the mien of these good men
Was less perturbed than heretofore,
And Ether echoed with the shout,
"The 'House Full' boards each night are out!"

MUSIC OF THE YEAR.

By B. W. FINDON.

IF one is not astonished one can at all events be impressed by the remarkable activity which has prevailed in musical circles during the past year. For multiplicity of concerts, for diversity of taste and for the broad range of art covered, no other country or capital in the world can show its equal. London is the Mecca of the foreign instrumentalist, although he does not hold sway as he did a couple of decades ago. We have changed all that, although it is not a fact that is generally acknowledged.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRAS.

We have, for example, at least three permanent orchestras, the Queen's Hall, the London Symphony, and the New, and during both the spring and autumn seasons they have been significantly in evidence.

The premier organisation—that controlled by Mr. H. J. Wood—fully maintains its position, and it has been responsible for a number of concerts of remarkable excellence. During the "Promenade" season at Queen's Hall it again succeeded in drawing large houses night after night to assist at the performance of works which even a decade ago would have been far beyond the assimilative capabilities of popular audiences. The London Symphony Orchestra is no whit behind its elder brother, and, as in former seasons, its prefers to serve under different commanders. Richter and Nikisch each conducted several concerts, and it also engaged the services of the Russian Safonoff and Sergei Kusseswitz. Mr. Thomas Beecham, who founded the New Orchestra, was responsible for another organisation which bore his own name, while the principal conductorship of the New passed into the hands of Mr. Landon Ronald. For Sunday evening purposes at the Coliseum a body of capable instrumentalists formed themselves into the British Orchestra, and the work accomplished by each of these organisations is splendid testimony to the advancement of taste and the appreciation of all that is best in music among the people.

Still more remarkable is it to record that these bands are engaged every Sunday in giving high-class instrumental concerts at well-recognised institutions. Mr. H. J. Wood continues his excellent series at Queen's Hall; the London Symphony has chosen Covent Garden as its sphere of operations; the New Symphony is the centre of attraction at the Albert Hall, and the British, as I have already pointed out, has successfully held possession of the Coliseum. Each band has religiously eschewed the clap-trap in art, and has presented to the public all that represents the truest and best in musical literature.

OPERA.

If the year contained no other achievements we might still be proud of such a record, and considering the almost astounding advance in public patronage in the sphere of abstract music since the early 'nineties, it should afford us sanguine hopes for the future of a National Opera. Here we lag far behind Continental nations. In this respect London and New York are much on a par. In the main both cities rely on foreign composers and alien artists. But there are signs that we are awakening to a sounder and a healthier state of things. In the beginning of the year there was brought to trial during the German season at Covent Garden the opera that had been declared victor in the £500 competition instituted by Messrs. Ricordi. But, unfortunately, "The Angelus," by E. W. Naylor, proved a severe disappointment. The libretto was weak, and the music was deficient in inspiration and originality. If it was, in truth, the pick of the bunch, then the remainder must have been very bad. That such was the case, however, I have very grave doubts, much as I am disinclined to challenge the judgment of the committee of selection, who, as Antony would probably have said, were all "honourable men."

A more praiseworthy attempt was made by Miss Ethel Smyth, under the auspices of the Afternoon Theatre, with "The Wreckers," one of the performances of which was honoured by the presence of the King and Queen. It may be that Miss Smyth's work is not destined to make any permanent impression on the operatic annals of the country, but it is an opera that no country might be ashamed of having produced, although there may be shame to the country in which such works can only be brought forward through the efforts of a semi-private enterprise. The same society was also responsible for the representation of Mr. Joseph Holbrooke's "Pierrot and Pierrette," a light and dainty work that indicates that in Mr. Holbrooke we have a writer for the stage who, given a good book, will one day, with favourable conditions, establish himself in the front rank of operatic composers. It is something, however, to have to record the production of three native operas, represented by native artists, and sung in the vernacular, within the space of nine months.

We have two well-organised travelling companies, the Moody-Manners and the Carl Rosa, who tour the provinces with opera for many months in the year. The latter gave a highly creditable season in the autumn at Covent Garden, and the former held possession of the Lyric Theatre for a few weeks in August. Their respective repertoires consisted of works which had to be sung through the medium of more or less inadequate translations. Signor Castellano brought a troupe, who gave a few weeks' season at the Coronet, Bayswater, and then migrated for a month to Drury Lane. He is continuing his enterprise by visiting the principal provincial cities. It was during his stay at the Coronet that Signor Castellano gave the first representation in England of Leoncavallo's "Zara," which achieved only a success de curiosité. So far as this country is concerned neither Leoncavallo nor Mascagni has advanced his reputation since the initial productions of the two comparatively speaking short works which brought them fame and fortune.

NEW WORKS AT COVENT GARDEN.

Signora Tetrazini was once again the "star" of the season at Covent Garden during the fashionable months of summer, and the Italian prima donna scored familiar successes in rôles familiar to her admirers. But the Covent Garden Syndicate were more adventurous so far as regards the presentation of new works. In all they mounted four novelties, which, considering the short time at their disposal, the number of works they have to crowd into the space of three months, and the inevitable difficulties of rehearsal, is much to their credit.

Saint-Saëns's "Samson and Delilah" came on early in the season, and at once achieved a remarkable success, due in part to the magnificent performance which Mme. Kirkby Lunn gave of the rôle of the seductive temptress. We have long been familiar with Saint-Saëns's works on the concert platform, but it needed the dramatic setting to make us appreciate it at its full worth. All who heard it must have felt intensely gratified that the religious prejudice that had previously stood in the way of its stage performance had been overcome. Considerable curiosity attended the first representation of Debussy's "Pelleas and Melisande." Such music as we had heard in this country by the French composer had taught us to expect something uncommon, something altogether differing from the accepted traditions of opera. And we were not disappointed. In the weaving together of mysterious sounds Debussy is a master hand, and this to the imaginative person who wishes his thoughts to travel in that direction certainly suggests what is known as "atmosphere." There are people, however, who do not care for sitting in the dark at a séance vainly striving to grasp the invisible, and who much prefer that the music shall be such as will appeal to their ears as well as to their sense of the mysterious, and to such Debussy can make no appeal.

For some years past there had been rumours of the English production of Charpentier's "Louise," which has been one of the greatest successes in Paris of modern times, and has also made a frank appeal to other countries. It is a work so racy of the "City of Light" that one might well entertain serious doubts of its cordial reception in London. But succeed it did, and it will certainly have a vogue for a few seasons, if not longer. The final novelty was the Baron d'Erlanger's setting of a version of Thomas Hardy's "Tess," which was given the customary three performances that precede the general consignment to oblivion.

ONCOMING ARTISTS : FESTIVALS.

Among the debutantes of the season was the Russian soprano Mme. Kousnietzoff, who created a very favourable impression. It was a satisfactory sign of the times to note the number of English-speaking artists who were engaged in the various representations. It is true they did not all appear in conspicuous rôles, but it is something to see their names figuring on the programme, and to realise that they are receiving a valuable training in operatic art. The stepping stones towards the realisation of a genuine English opera may be as yet small, but they are sufficiently large for progress, and in time they will lead us to the goal of our aspirations.

The Crystal Palace has fallen on troublous times of late, but the well-established Handel Triennial Festival found a large and enthusiastic band of supporters. The festival was once again under the direction of Dr. Frederick Cowen, who had brought the vast vocal and instrumental machine into wonderful working order. Such fine effects of pianissimo, crescendo, and diminuendo have never been excelled in the huge concert room at Sydenham. A deviation from the ordinary rule was made this year by combining Mendelssohn with our great master of oratorio, and this assuredly gave a variety to the three days' programme that was by no means unacceptable, albeit it may have somewhat destroyed the characteristic feature of the occasion.

CONCERTS AND RECITALS.

It is impossible to deal with the innumerable concerts and recitals that have been given at the various concert halls in the metropolis during the year. Their name is legion. In the height of the season it was no uncommon thing for something like fifty concerts to be announced. Many, the great majority, were given by those of whom we shall hear no more, for whose presence there was no pressing demand, and who simply played or sang to a small audience composed of friends and sympathisers and tired-out critics. A few brief critiques of a negative character were their sole reward.

Among the more distinguished artists who have appeared were Paderewski, who brought with him a new symphony of his own composition; Vladimir de Pachmann, who gave his customary performances of Chopin; Frederick Dawson, Frederick Lamond, Miss Ethel Leginska, Godowsky, and Busoni; while the list of violinists include Miss Marie Hall, Kubelik, Kreisler, Phillip Cathie, and Frances Macmillan. Mme. Calvé made one appearance at a concert, and Mme. Nordica gave her farewell concert. Brief as the above review is, it at all events gives some indication of the musical activity that has prevailed during the past twelve months, and one is inclined to think that if it were less marked it would be all the better for the ultimate good of the "divine art."

IRVING MEMORIAL.

The site for the Irving statue was in January, 1908, granted by the Westminster City Council. The statue is to be erected in the centre of the broad pavement to the north of the National Portrait Gallery, in the Charing Cross Road. The work is in the hands of Mr. Thomas Brock, R.A. The three years in which Mr. Brock undertook to complete the work expired in December, 1909, and in November Mr. Brock notified the Committee of the Memorial that the statue was nearly completed, and invited them to visit his studio and inspect it. We understand from Sir John Hare, the President of the Committee, that the statue will be erected in the spring of 1910.

On Friday, November 26, 1909, the Italian Ambassador, the Marquis of San Giuliano, unveiled a Memorial on the wall of the main staircase in Drury Lane. The Memorial was presented by Tomasso Salvini and the leading members of the dramatic profession in Italy.

SIDELIGHTS ON LIMELIGHTS.

BY R. A. ROBERTS.

THE progressive theatre manager of to-day who is desirous of acquiring all the latest improvements considers it of the first importance to avail himself of the best designed and equipped apparatus for stage illumination and scenic effects. A perfectly illuminated scene is pleasing to the eyes of critical, or for that matter uncritical, playgoers, and will call forth applause on the rising of the curtain, and it is a prime factor in contributing to the success. Inadequate illuminations of stage scenes and indifferent scenic productions will, in themselves, contribute to disappointment and failure, notwithstanding the best efforts of the most popular performers or stage managers.

Unfortunately, a little word conveying such a great deal is omitted from the dictionary of many stage managers, and just as many performers. That word is "Thought."

On the legitimate stage, with exceptions such as His Majesty's and one or two other theatres, all lighting details are left to the stage manager and the electrician. Presuming one or both of these gentlemen have the eye for colour, the artistic touch, the quick power to grasp an idea, and furthermore to grip on to a trifle so that it may be made into something effective, not necessarily big or gorgeous—if one has these sort of men around one, then the actor or performer may rest his soul in comfort. But how many theatres and music halls can be named where one may safely send in one's plots and have them carried out?

AN ACCIDENT AND A GOOD EFFECT.

I obtained my first lesson from a limelight man who was instructed to put an amber lime on Little Eva in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and to change to a white focus when she died. (Little Eva was played by the manager's son, aged nine—looked fourteen—but that did not matter; it was in the "palmy days.") The limelight man, who was a pork butcher by daylight, forgot his cue—of course, some people will marvel at that—and instead of putting a searching white focus on the boy—I mean Little Eva—he popped in a green medium in front of his amber, and obtained a very realistic and natural effect, for the combination of green and amber—blended—produced the discolouration and fuller's-earth complexion of a dying person, whereas the white focus would have obtained a "searching discovery," exhibiting the make-up. But the blend of amber and green destroyed all traces of paint and powder, made the eyes recede, hollowed the cheeks, and, best of all, turned the painted lips ashen-hued.

Well, observation, the father of thought, urged me to experiment with combinations, and possibly, in a simple if occasionally flippant way meant only in the spirit of kindness and camaraderie, I may be able to give a little useful and valuable information on the lighting department to my brothers and sisters in the allied professions of the theatre and music hall. (I will include the "fit-ups" and "portables," if the Editor permits.)

SOME "HORRIBLE EXAMPLES."

Standing in the "prompt" entrance of a first-class West End music hall one night, I watched a "turn"—a lady. She was dressed in a very pretty Lincoln green costume, a sort of "Robin Hood" make-up. She had been to the "Hunt," and had returned with her "shoot," but her dear old mother was dying in the Kennington Road (her costume was of 300 or 400 years ago—I mean it represented that period), and the landlord of the dwelling in Kennington Road was clamouring for his rent—landlords always clamour—and she, I refer to the Lincoln-green-

Robin-Hood-lady, had brought her child on to the Embankment. She stepped on it—not the child—and was about to leap into the gurgling waters (they worked a thunder sheet here; that was their idea of gurgling waters—it was a first-class music hall, of course), and this was the cue for red limes. Result: her beautiful Lincoln green costume became a dirty grey mouse colour. Red on green produces that colour, so beware!

Now, to reverse these colours. A gentleman—he said he was—strolled on in a front cloth representing “The Angel” at Islington, and sang a descriptive song. With a daring disregard for thought in colour he was attired in a bright red swallow-tail coat and vest and black breeches and stockings. At one point in his song he sang of the days of “Good Queen Bess” (outside “The Angel” at Islington!). And when the dramatic fourth verse was reached he drew his sword! (I have already detailed his costume, but forgot to say that he wore an opera hat—and he drew his sword!!) This was the cue for the green limes focussed on his red coat—“And on my brilliant coat of red, no spot of blood shall ere be shed!” He sang this (I feel sure he was singing) and the green limes turned a brilliant red to a very dark brown. Probably my readers, who are versed in the complete alteration of certain colours when thrown one upon the other, will not doubt my assertion that green limes thrown on to red material are productive of a catastrophe.

LIGHTING IN AMERICA.

In America I find the lighting effects are greatly superior to those in the English theatres. In one theatre I discovered a means by which I could let the fire die out in the scene in which I play “Dick Turpin.” It occurred to me that to be genuinely natural on the stage a fire would not remain brightly glowing for a supposed period of four hours—which is enacted in a period of thirty minutes—so by a little device, and a simple one, on the resistance principle (it is perfect over there), I allowed the fire almost to die out, and as the ashen embers appeared so came the “strangers” on the bars of the firegrate, and the firebars turned to a steely blue. The whole thing was so simple, and yet wonderfully successful in pleasing the audience, and I obtained a fine round of applause when I took an old bellows and brought the embers into life and gradually the fire burned up again—and this is how I did it.

First, the resistance effect on the lamps was used, and they were gradually reduced to blood orange colour. I changed the red medium in the lime box at the back of the fire first to amber, then to blue, putting one in front of the other and gradually removing the red medium. As the red lights disappeared from the “O.P. perch” I put a small blue spot lime on to the firegrate from the same perch, and with some bits of loose black linen glued on to the bars, and the bars painted aluminium colour, the blue spot lime on the aluminium produced the steely blue of white heat, and as I took the bellows to blow it into life the “strangers” on the bars could be seen by those with opera glasses gently blowing (I refer to the “strangers”). It was a very simple device, but greatly appreciated by an American audience because it represented thought. I regret to say that in an English music hall this would not be allowed, because it took exactly fifty seconds to accomplish.

Though I have only quoted a very few instances of the dangers to be avoided in the placing of wrong mediums in the lime boxes, I think my readers will, by thinking a little for themselves, realise the many risks they run when telling the electrician to put reds, greens, or ambers on just for the sake of obtaining a change in the light; just for the sake of bringing one special verse in a song into prominence; just to show the corpse is really dead; just to obtain the proofs from the safe and pop them in the hero’s pocket.

Now stop and think, and, best of all, rehearse your colours on the actual clothes you intend to wear at night.

If I talked for ever I could not give better advice than conveyed in the last dozen words. I have seen a blue focus thrown on to a man wearing a suit of oil-skins (yellow); they became dead white. I know, because I was the idiot who had omitted to put on the dress at rehearsal, and instead of looking like the coxswain of a life boat, I conveyed the charming illusion that I was a jolly miller. Had it not been for the sou’-wester I wore, I had the right appearance for a grill room chef.

So that blue on yellow means: result, white. It is perfectly rational, and perfectly easy to try these effects yourselves, and then you will avoid clashing of colours, and best of all not destroy the real value of your costumes.

COPYRIGHT.

INTERNATIONAL AND ENGLISH COPYRIGHT.

WITH a view to examining the various points in which the revised International Copyright Convention, signed at Berlin on November 13, 1908, is not in accordance with the law of the United Kingdom, and to consider whether the law should be altered so as to enable His Majesty's Government to give effect to the revised Convention, the President of the Board of Trade, in March, 1909, appointed the following Committee:—Lord Gorell (chairman), Sir L. Alma-Tadema, Mr. George Ranken Askwith, K.C., Mr. H. Granville Barker, Mr. C. W. Bowerman, M.P., Mr. H. R. Clayton, Mr. Henry J. C. Cust, Mr. Edward Cutler, K.C., Mr. Anthony Hope Hawkins, Mr. W. Joynson Hicks, M.P., Mr. W. Algernon Law, C.B., Mr. Fredk. Macmillan, Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., Professor Walter Raleigh, Mr. T. E. Scrutton, K.C., and Mr. E. Trevor L. Williams. Mr. T. W. Phillips was appointed secretary to the Committee.

The Committee held sixteen sittings, and amongst the forty-five witnesses examined were Mr. J. Comyns Carr, Mr. G. Bernard Shaw, Mr. E. J. MacGillivray, and Sir A. C. Mackenzie, representing the Society of Authors; Mr. William Wallace, representing the Society of British Composers; Mr. Arthur Boosey, Mr. W. A. Elkin, and Mr. Frank Standfeld, representing the Music Publishers' Association; Mr. D. G. Day, of the firm of Francis, Day, and Hunter; Mr. Hermann Löhr, Mr. Lionel Monckton, and Mr. Charles Wilmott, song writers and composers; Mr. John Murray, Mr. William Heinemann, and Mr. Reginald J. Smith, K.C., representing the Copyright Association and the Publishers' Association, and various witnesses representing phonograph, gramophone, and perforated music firms.

PROTECTION EXTENDED TO LIFE AND FIFTY YEARS.

The Committee recommended acceptance of practically the whole of the Convention, and that the English law should be altered accordingly. One of the most important alterations which will be brought about if the Committee's recommendations become law will be the extension of the period of protection to life of the author and fifty years. At present copyright extends to life and seven years, or forty-two years from the date of publication, whichever be the longer period. With life and fifty years as the period it is obvious that date of publication will in no way affect, as it does at present, the period for which the work is protected. All works published during an author's lifetime will be secured the same period of protection after his death, and will eventually fall into the public domain together. In cases where a work is the production of joint authors the life of the author who lives the longest, it is suggested, shall count as the life of the author. The difficulties of applying the proposal retroactively in the cases where the author has assigned his rights or granted a license to exercise his rights, it is suggested, can be met with a provision giving the assignee or licensee the right to come in and secure the benefit of continuing to exercise his rights during the extended period on terms to be agreed upon, or to be settled by an arbitrator to be nominated by the Board of Trade.

For posthumous works, that is to say, works first published, represented, or performed after the death of the author, a term of fifty years, to run from the date of first publication, representation, or performance, is suggested.

PRIOR PERFORMANCE IN AMERICA.—A MUCH-NEEDED REFORM.

Another very necessary improvement on the existing law will be that an author will not lose his rights in this country should his play be presented—i.e., performed—in a country outside the Union. This will have the very important effect of altering the copyright conditions which at present exist between England and America, one of the countries which are outside the Union. According to the present law should a play be first performed in America the author loses his exclusive rights in this country. At present authors endeavour to defend themselves by giving a reading—generally referred to as a copyright performance—of the play in England immediately prior to or simultaneously with the production in America. It is doubtful, if the law were tested, whether such reading would be held to constitute the public performance required by the Act of 1842; but the matter has never been challenged. The Committee recommend that performance shall not be recognised as publication in a country outside the Union. Consequently a play produced but not printed in America will be regarded as unpublished.

REGISTRATION ABOLISHED.—TRANSLATIONS.—KINEMATOGRAPHIC RIGHTS.

The present obligation to register the proprietorship of copyright as a preliminary to legal proceedings will be abolished. Authors will have exclusive rights of making or authorising translations of their works, such rights being extended to the full period of the home rights—i.e., life and fifty years. (The Committee do not agree to the paragraph in the Convention which allows a translation or adaptation which, with essential alterations, additions, or abridgments, presents the character of a new original work.) Musicians and others will have their works protected against pirated reproduction on instruments, such as perforated rolls, which reproduce the work mechanically. Authors will have their works protected against unauthorised reproduction by means of kinematography, and kinematograph productions will be regarded as literary or artistic works, and protected as such, while without prejudice to the rights of the author of an original work the reproduction by kinematography of a literary or artistic work will be protected as an original work. The Committee also expressed a hope that the colonies, as parts of the British Empire, should come into line with Great Britain, and that as far as possible there should be one law throughout the Empire.

The full text of the Convention, to which by these recommendations the United Kingdom may be said practically to agree, was printed in THE STAGE YEAR-BOOK, 1909.

AMERICAN COPYRIGHT.

The new Copyright Law of the United States of America, replacing the Revised Statutes, Title Co., Chapter 3 (1873), and subsequent Amendatory Acts, came into force on July 1, 1909. Its provisions are dealt with in a contributed article on another page.

ACTRESSES' FRANCHISE LEAGUE.

This League was founded by Mrs. Forbes Robertson, Miss Winifred Mayo, Miss Sime Seruya, and Miss Adeline Bourne. The League now numbers over 300 members. During 1909, in May, it gave seven performances daily for three days at Caxton Hall to help the Women's Freedom League. The League also gave five performances daily for a fortnight at Prince's in the same month, and raised £260 for the W.S.P.U. In addition, the League has given numerous performances in the country. On November 12 it joined the Women Writers' Suffrage Society in giving a benefit matinee for their joint funds at the Scala.

Mrs. Kendal is the President of the League, and the Vice-Presidents are Miss Violet Vanbrugh, Miss Gertrude Elliott, Mrs. Langtry, Miss Irene Vanbrugh, Miss Eva Moore, Mme. Marie Brema, and Mrs. Lucette Ryley. The Committee are as follow:—Miss Granville, Miss Edith Craig, Miss Winifred Mayo, Miss Bessie Hatton, Miss Sime Seruya, Miss Tita Brand, Miss Mary Martyn, Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson, and Miss Adeline Bourne. Among the members are Miss Ellen Terry, Miss Fanny Brough, Miss Decima Moore, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Miss Compton, Miss Mouillot, Miss Violet Hunt, Miss Cicely Hamilton, and Miss Christine Silver. The Hon. Secretary is Miss Adeline Bourne, of 19, Overstrand Mansions, Battersea Park, S.W. Green and pink are the colours of the League.

DRURY LANE STAGE

ITS MACHINERY AND MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT.

THE name Drury Lane carries, with its host of memories, suggestions of wonderful stage settings, of mechanical effects such as are seldom attempted elsewhere, and of remarkable ingenuity applied to the production of startling and unique scenic displays. This record may be primarily attributed to the ability and enterprise of those responsible for its productions, ability and enterprise which have been strikingly manifested under the present régime by Mr. Arthur Collins, the able managing director. Without detracting in any way from the credit due to the enterprising management, it will none the less be understood that many of the results achieved have only been made possible by the great area of the stage and the complicated mechanical and electrical appliances with which it is equipped. Some description of this latter feature should be of much interest.

THE STAGE: ITS BRIDGES, RISING AND TILTING.

The most striking features of the machinery, and the ones which are likely first to attract the attention of a visitor below the stage, are the rising and tilting bridges which are shown in two of the illustrations accompanying this article. There are four bridges, each of which is about 40 ft. long and 6 ft. wide, and in their lowest position they are flush with the stage, and form part of its surface. As the bridges are situated one immediately next to another, they form an area of the stage of about 24 ft. by 40 ft., which is capable of being lifted vertically through a height of about 8 ft., carrying properties or people with it. Further, any of the four bridges may be raised or lowered independently of the others, while, in addition to the direct rising and falling, the two front bridges are capable of being tilted from either end, as shown in one of the illustrations. The possibility of combining these various movements in any way, each of the bridges being quite independent of any of the others, gives great flexibility for the arrangement of set-pieces or the production of effects. A very successful setting of some few years ago, in which canal boats rose and fell in their locks, was produced by means of these bridges. Such sensational scenes as the sinking of the Beachy Head in "Sins of Society" and the Alpine Pass scene in "The Marriages of Mayfair" are other examples of the possibilities they present. In "The Whip" their utility was not, perhaps, so strikingly illustrated, as the stage had to be made exceptionally firm. But in the first act one of the bridges was raised to permit of the motor-car accident, in which the hero obtained the mental oblivion which is the key to the drama.

The methods by which the various movements of the bridges are obtained are shown in some of the illustrations. The two back non-tilting bridges are lifted by electric power. They are provided with feet below the stage, and when in their lowest position—that is, when the top surface is level with the stage—these feet rest on foundations, so that a very steady and solid surface is obtained, on which heavy properties may be placed or moved about. When these two bridges are lifted they are hung by steel-wire ropes and counterbalanced by heavy weights, in exactly the same way that an ordinary window is balanced by weights inside the casement. These weights are situated against the walls of the building well out of the way, and the ropes connecting the bridges to them are guided by carrying them round suitable pulleys. Owing to this system of balancing the weights of the bridges, the electric motors which work them have only to lift the weight of any properties or people which they may be carrying, which enables much smaller motors, using less current, to be used than would be necessary if the balance weights were done away with and the motors had to lift the actual weights of the bridges. This point would also be of great importance if the electric motors broke down and the bridges had to be wound up by hand, as the balancing, of course, greatly reduces the effort that would be required.

THE LIFTING MOTORS.

The lifting motors are situated in a motor-room, which is a fireproof brick building situated below the back of the stage. The interior of this room is shown in one of the illustrations, in which the two electric motors which serve to wind up the bridges will be seen at the right-hand side. There are two main spindles in the room, each of which has two drums, or barrels, fixed on to it, and on these barrels the wire ropes which lift the bridges are wound. The ropes wound on the barrels and leading away, through holes in the sides of the motor-room, to the bridges, can be seen in the illustration. It will be understood that as the main spindles, with their barrels, turn round, in one direction or the other, the wire ropes will either be wound up or let off, so that the ropes will either be pulled in or let out, and the bridges hauled up or lowered down. The spindles of the motors are fixed at right angles to the main spindles, and drive them round by means of toothed wheels. These wheels are made so that they will not drive backwards—that is, when the bridges have been lifted to any height their weight pulling on the ropes is not able to pull the main spindle round and turn the motors, so that the bridges will stop in any position to which they are lifted, and cannot be moved unless the motor switches are operated. Handles are fixed at the back of the barrels, so that if the electric motors break down men may be employed to wind up the bridges by hand. This method would be neither so quick nor so cheap as electric power, and is, of course, only intended to be used in case of an electric breakdown. The motors are started and stopped by switches and gear placed outside the motor-room, and close to the handles which control the two front bridges. The gear is arranged so that the motors may be driven in either direction. The motors are each of ten horse-power.

THE HYDRAULIC POWER.

The two front lifting and tilting bridges are driven by water power. Each bridge is carried at the top ends of two large plungers, or rams, which fit into iron cylinders standing vertically in pits dug in the foundations. High-pressure water pipes are connected to the bottoms of the cylinders, and arranged with taps or valves, so that when the taps are opened water flows into the bottoms of the cylinders and, being at high pressure, pushes the rams, or plungers, upwards, which rise and carry the bridges with them. As each of the two rams, carrying one bridge, are able to be worked independently of the other, it is possible to raise one end of the bridge without the other, or to raise the two ends to different heights, so that the bridge may be tilted in either direction. One of the illustrations shows the two bridges tilted in opposite directions, while another shows them lifted without tilting. These two views together show the great flexibility of the arrangement. One of the half-page illustrations shows the massive plungers below the stage. It will be understood that the bridges are fixed directly to the top of these plungers, and are not otherwise supported, and that the plungers carry the whole weight of the bridges, with any properties that may be placed on them.

The amount of lift of the plungers—that is, the amount of tilt of the bridges—is determined by the amount of water admitted to the cylinders. The amount of water is controlled by opening or closing the valves or taps which regulate the supply. The valves for each of the bridges are worked by two long handles, like the handles in a railway signal cabin, and a man can perfectly control the tilting or lifting of one of the bridges by holding these two handles, one in each hand, and moving them backwards and forwards as required. There are, of course, four of these handles in all, two for each bridge, and they may be clearly seen in one of the half-page illustrations. The lower illustration on the same page shows the taps or valves which control the water supply to the cylinders, and which are opened or closed by the handles. The valves are situated directly under the platform on which the man stands when working the handles, so that the relative positions of the valves and the handles are correctly shown by the relative positions of the two illustrations. In the lower picture the rods which come through the platform and connect the valves to the handles may be clearly seen. The water which is used to lift the plungers is taken from the mains of the London Hydraulic Supply Company at a pressure of 800 lbs. to a square inch.

In the illustration which shows the operating handles an indicator may be seen on the right-hand side, immediately facing the man who is working the handles. This indicator is arranged to show to what height the two ends of a bridge have been lifted. It is much the same sort of thing as the indicators which are frequently fixed in office buildings to show the position of the lift cages to anyone waiting at any of the floors, and consists of small blocks or marks which travel up and down over numbered scales, one block corresponding to each end of a bridge, so that the position of the blocks at once shows the position of the bridges. Although the man who is working the handles can actually see the underside of the bridges, these indicators allow him to judge the amount of tilt more accurately, and to be sure that any bridge always takes up exactly the same position during every performance, for any scenic arrangement in which it may be used.

"THE WHIP" PRODUCTION.

The apparatus shown in the small illustration which accompanies the view of the motor-room was specially installed for the performances of "The Whip," the autumn production of 1909. This apparatus was of a heavy and expensive character, and was designed and installed as carefully as if it were to form part of the permanent equipment. It illustrates the care and thoroughness with which all the mechanical arrangements at this theatre are carried out. The apparatus consists of electric motors and spindles, and was used in connection with the great Racecourse scene in act four. There are two motors, which can be seen at the left-hand side of the picture. The right-hand side one of the two, which is of 15 horse-power, drove the big panorama which served as background for the scene. The panorama was an endless one built up on a framework and carried by two vertical rollers the full height of the cloth. One of the rollers had a projecting spindle, which came through a hole in the stage, and was driven by the motor below. The motor on the extreme left, of 10 horse-power, drove the horizontal spindle which can be seen in the right-hand side of the picture, carried in bearings secured to the underside of the stage. The spindle, in turn, drove the horizontal bands which represented the grass in the scene, and between which the horses ran. In addition to the main panorama, forming the background, there were smaller side panoramas which were driven by electric motors fixed actually inside them. As evidence of the amount of work that is carried out for the adequate presentment of these productions, it may be mentioned that the whole of the stage was raised about one foot for this production in order to arrange for the horizontal travelling bands.

THE SWITCHBOARD.

The motors for this Racecourse scene were started from the switchboard which controls the lighting of the whole of the stage, which is shown in one of the half-page illustrations. It is conveniently situated on the Prompt side of the stage. The switchboard contains three horizontal rows of switch handles, which correspond to the circuits for the red, white, and green lights respectively. All circuits are led through dimmers, so arranged that the lamps forming any circuit may be turned to any height from a mere red glow to full on. The dimmers consist of vessels containing water into which metal plates dip in such a way that as the plates are lifted out or lowered farther into the vessels, more or less of the current is absorbed by the water, so that the lamps are dimmed or brightened. The rows of handles controlling the dimmers can be seen in the illustration in the centre of the switchboard, directly behind Mr. Mather, the engineer.

At the right-hand side of the illustration of the switchboard the signal board may be seen, one of the switches of which is being operated by Mr. Ernest D'Auban, Drury Lane's well-known and popular stage manager. All signalling to the men controlling the lifting and tilting bridges, the men in the flies, etc., is done from this board by means of lamps. The electrical wiring is arranged so that as any of the signal switches is closed a small lamp lights up in the flies, or at any other point to which the signal is being sent, and at the same time a small lamp lights up on the signal board. It is impossible for a signal lamp at a distance to light up without the corresponding indicating lamp on the signal board also lighting, so that all signals sent out are immediately checked before the eyes of Mr. D'Auban, or whoever else may be at the switchboard, and mistakes are avoided. The positions of some of the signal lamps may be seen in the illustrations showing the motor-room, the flies, and the bridge operating gear. Metallic filament lamps are used throughout for the main lights, and there are twelve battens, each with 260 thirty-candle-power lamps. The square boxes at the extreme right of the illustration of the switchboard are the starters for the panorama motors. Current at 200 volts is used for all motors and at 100 volts for lighting, and the supply is taken from the Charing Cross, West End, and City Supply Company. There are two services installed, to prevent trouble in case of a breakdown on the mains, one current being taken from the special theatre mains and the other from the ordinary town supply.

THE FLIES.

The arrangement of the flies in this theatre is very convenient and excellent. There are two tiers of galleries. The upper of these galleries, which is used by the scene-shifters, is shown in one of the full-page illustrations. The lower gallery is reserved for the lime-light men, and it will be clear that this two-gallery arrangement allows great freedom of operation for the lime-light men, as they are not interfered with by other workmen, and have great freedom of movement in carrying on their work.

OXYGEN AND HYDROGEN GAS PIPES.

The lime-light system is very interesting. Instead of the lamps being supplied from the heavy and awkward gas cylinders generally used, there are oxygen and hydrogen gas pipes laid throughout the stage and up to the galleries. These pipes are supplied from large gas holders placed in the basement, and which are periodically filled from the ordinary gas cylinders. A system is in use by which a steady pressure of about 2 lbs. to a square inch is maintained in the gas pipes by running water into the holders as required. The result of this is that very steady-burning flames are obtained in the lamps, with a complete absence of the flickering and spurting which is sometimes seen. The gas pipes are run in various directions under the stage and up to the galleries in the flies. A number of small traps are arranged in the stage leading to taps, to which connection can be made by a small piece of indiarubber tube, so that lamps may be temporarily placed in any convenient position. In order to minimise the likelihood of fires, all lamps are lit by means of portable electric gas-lighters, which does away with the necessity of using matches.

VENTILATING AND HEATING.

All air entering the building is drawn in at the basement by means of a fan, driven by a 10 horse-power electric motor. It is taken in at the basement in order to avoid smoke and other impurities which are more prevalent in the air near the roof. Before entering the building the air is drawn through a large cylinder or roller which is covered with cloth, and is continually being turned round on its spindle. The lower part of the roller dips into a large bath containing an antiseptic solution, so that the cloth covering it is always wet. The result is that as all air entering the building must pass through this cloth covering the roller, it is filtered and disinfected, and enters the theatre in an absolutely pure state. After passing to the inside of the roller the air is warmed by being passed over pipes which are heated by steam from a special boiler. By varying the steam in the pipes any degree of heat may be given to the air, and the result of the whole arrangement is that absolutely pure air, heated to suit the weather at the time, is supplied to the theatre. The air finally passes into the building by ducts placed in the front of the stage. There are two installations, as described above, one supplying the stage and the other the auditorium. Foul air is extracted from the building by means of a fan driven by a $8\frac{1}{2}$ horse-power motor placed above a grille in the auditorium immediately above the centre electrolier, so that there is a continual circulation of warm, pure air throughout the theatre.

Of the remaining two illustrations, one shows one of the property rooms, in which are some of the figures prepared for the Madame Tussaud's scene in act three of "The Whip." The other is from a photograph of Mr. Ernest D'Auban, the stage manager, in his room. Thanks are due to Mr. D'Auban for facilities and assistance given in the preparation of this description of the stage machinery of this famous theatre. Much assistance was also given by Mr. Mather, the engineer, who can be seen standing in the centre of the picture of the switchboard.

SHAKESPEARE MEMORIAL.

THE movement for a memorial to Shakespeare first arose out of an offer of £1,000 made by Mr. Richard Badger to the London County Council. Some meetings were held, and in July, 1905, the Advisory Committee of the Shakespeare Memorial Committee, including Sir E. Poynter, Sir W. Richmond, Sir Aston Webb, Mr. Belcher, Mr. Brock, Mr. Sidney Colvin, and Mr. Hugh Chisholm, met at the Mansion House, and made a report, proposing an architectural memorial, including a statue, and suggesting a site on the south side of the Thames. The matter was then apparently forgotten for a considerable time, but eventually in March of 1908 a meeting was held at the Mansion House, Lord Reay presiding. The Committee then announced that a site in Park Crescent, looking up Portland Place from Crescent Gardens, had been settled upon, with the consent of the Commissioners of Woods and Forests. The Committee proposed to remove the statue of the Duke of Kent from the Portland Place site to "an adjoining spot of equal prominence."

This project was strongly opposed, and long newspaper correspondence culminated in a meeting held at the Lyceum on May 19, 1908, with Lord Lytton presiding, when the following motion was unanimously carried:—

That this meeting is in favour of the establishment of a national theatre as a memorial to Shakespeare.

MERGING TWO SCHEMES.

A letter was read at this meeting from the Mansion House Committee proposing that there should be a conference between the Committees of the two movements.

A meeting was in consequence held at the House of Lords on May 28, 1908, between representatives of the two Committees, and it was resolved "that the two general Committees as they stand at present shall be amalgamated, and that an Executive Committee shall be elected by the Committee thus formed." This resolution was passed on the statement made by Lord Plymouth that the Shakespeare Memorial Committee was prepared to unite with the National Theatre Committee on the understanding that the proposed architectural and sculptural monument should take the form of a Shakespeare Memorial Theatre. On July 23 a meeting was held of the two Committees at the Mansion House. The Lord Mayor was in the chair. It was decided (1) that the Shakespeare Memorial Committee consist of the members of the Shakespeare Memorial Committee and the members of the National Theatre Shakespeare Memorial Committee, and (2) that an Executive Committee be elected, consisting of 21 members, with the addition of an honorary secretary and a secretary, and with power to add to their number. The following were elected members of the Executive Committee: The Lord Mayor (chairman), the Earl of Plymouth, the Earl of Lytton, Viscount Esher, Sir John Hare, Dr. Furnivall, Mr. William Archer, Mr. H. Granville Barker, Mr. S. H. Butcher, M.P., Mr. J. Comyns Carr, Mr. Sidney Colvin, Mr. W. L. Courtney, Mr. Robert Donald, Mrs. G. L. Gomme, Mr. Edmund Gosse, Mr. Sidney Lee, Mr. H. W. Massingham, the Hon. Mrs. Alfred Lyttelton, Mr. A. W. Pinero, Mr. G. Bernard Shaw, Mr. Beerbohm Tree, and Mr. Forbes Robertson, Mr. I. Gallanez, hon. secretary, and Mr. Philip Carr, secretary. Two sub-committees, one under the chairmanship of Lord Esher, and the other under that of Lord Lytton, held numerous meetings during the autumn of 1908.

COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

The result of these was disclosed at the Mansion House on March 23, 1909, when the General Committee met to receive the report of the Executive Committee, to whom the task of drawing up a scheme was relegated.

The Executive Committee, in their report, defined the objects of the National Shakespeare Theatre, as they termed it, as follows:—

- To keep the plays of Shakespeare in its repertory;
- To revive whatever else is vital in English classical drama;
- To prevent recent plays of great merit from falling into the oblivion to which the present theatrical system is apt to consign them;
- To produce new plays and to further the development of the modern drama;
- To produce translations of representative works of foreign drama, ancient and modern;

To stimulate the art of acting through the varied opportunities which it will offer to the members of its company.

The cost they estimated at about £500,000, allotted in the following manner:—Site, £100,000; building, £100,000; stage and equipment, £50,000; endowment, £250,000.

For controlling body they recommended that five governors should be appointed by the Crown; one each by the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, London, Edinburgh, Dublin, and Wales; one each by the Royal and the British Academies, and one each by the London County Council, the Corporation of London, and the municipalities of Manchester, Birmingham, Liverpool, Leeds, Bristol, Edinburgh, Glasgow, and Dublin; also that the representatives of the High Commissioners for Canada, Australia, and any other federated colonies be ex-officio governors, and the following also be ex-officio governors:—The Ambassador of the United States, the President of the Board of Education, the Minister of Fine Arts (in the event of such an office being created), the Chairman of the Shakespeare Memorial Association, Stratford-on-Avon, and the President of the Academy of Dramatic Art.

For the administrative staff they recommended that:—

(a) The managing staff should consist of a director, a treasurer, and a literary manager, all of whom should be nominated by the Standing Committee, subject to confirmation by the governors.

(b) That each member of the managing staff should present a monthly report to the Standing Committee;

(c) That the director should select, engage, and dismiss all artists and other employes, except the treasurer and the literary manager, and be empowered, after consulting with the treasurer, to make contracts on behalf of the theatre;

(d) And that all appointments, whether to the company or the staff, and all dismissals should be reported by the director to the Standing Committee and confirmed by them.

They considered that the arrangement of the programme should rest with the director, who should submit it for approval to the Standing Committee; and that all new plays should be reported upon by the director and the literary manager before being finally dealt with by the Standing Committee.

They suggested that the director, if an actor, should in no case practise his art for fee or reward during his term of office; that the Standing Committee should decide, by fixed regulation or otherwise, on what exceptional occasions (and in no case for personal profit) he should be authorised to appear, or otherwise co-operate, in performances at other theatres; and that he should in no event be cast for any part on the stage of the National Shakespeare Theatre.

SOME AMENDMENTS.

The meeting approved of the financial estimate. The Shakespeare National Theatre was recommended to the Executive for the title. It was also agreed to recommend that in the governing body Belfast should be added to the municipalities having representation, and that the Crown Colonies should be represented. The Executive were asked to define more clearly the relationship of the director and the committee, and on the subject of the omission of a representative of the actors a revision of the report was requested. A resolution was moved empowering the Executive Committee to give effect to the recommendations in the report.

A GENEROUS DONATION: FURTHER MEETINGS.

It was announced at this meeting that £70,000 had been promised by an anonymous donor.

On June 18 a petition on behalf of the Committee appealing to the London County Council to grant a site for the erection of a theatre was presented by Lord Elcho. The petition was referred to the General Purposes Committee for consideration and report.

On July 5 a deputation, headed by the Right Hon. Alfred Lyttelton, M.P., waited on the General Purposes Committee of the London County Council, and placed before the Committee a proposal for the granting of a free site by the Council for the purpose of the erection of a Shakespeare Memorial Theatre. The proceedings were in private, but it was disclosed that the Committee commented favourably on the scheme.

On October 23 a meeting of the Memorial Committee and others interested was held at the Mansion House, under the chairmanship of the Lord Mayor, for the purpose of securing the support of the provincial mayors.

THE LICENSING OF AGENTS.

THE question of licensing agents is one that has been before the theatrical world in England and in America during 1909. In America nearly all the organised bodies of those employed in theatres and music halls united in supporting what was known as the Voss Bill, which, after passing Congress, the Senate, and being signed by the Mayor of New York, was practically annulled by the Mayor of Buffalo refusing his sanction. The history of this unfortunate Bill is told on another page of this book, and it is referred to here mainly to show that English and American actors have been working to the same end. The idea of agents being under some control and being responsible to the London and other County Councils is by no means new, but whenever it has been brought forward it has always been opposed by the agents themselves. This is an opposition in which it is difficult to discern good reasoning. No respectable agent should object to being licensed; on the other hand, he should be only too willing to assist in bringing about the desired legislation which is aimed, not at himself, but at the extirpation of the person who is a disgrace to the calling he practices. There is the so-called agent who preys upon the hopes and premiums of the unwary and unsophisticated amateur, and through whom a continual stream of uneducated people, totally unequipped for the calling to which they aspire, flows into the dramatic profession. There is the more sinister side of so-called agency work through which young and inexperienced girls are sent abroad and on to the Continent, where possibly from work at some ill-famed music hall or café chantant they drift to something worse. Respectable agents should welcome licensing as a means to rid their ranks of these impostors and pests. There seems to be an idea of something derogatory in being licensed—some implied stigma; but this argument is controverted by the agents having an example in that all theatrical managers have to apply for a license annually, and in addition have to enter into a bond with two sureties.

MR. HAY'S BILL.

In April, Mr. Claude Hay, then Unionist member for Hoxton, introduced a Bill into the House of Commons which provided that foreign employment agencies which professed to obtain employment abroad for women and girls should take out a license from the Commissioners of Inland Revenue to carry on their business. Such licenses should not be granted except on the production of a certificate granted by the magistrate, and twenty-one days' notice had to be given by the applicant to the police, so that the police might have an opportunity of opposing. In order not to interfere with business, the Bill provided that the certificate should not be refused by the magistrate unless he were satisfied the applicant had failed to produce satisfactory evidence as to character. Another provision was that such agents should keep books containing the names and addresses of young people, the places of amusement in which they might be employed, the nature of the employment, the duration of contract, wages, and other particulars.

Mr. Hay, in introducing the Bill, said it had been known for some years that English girls had been engaged in this country for the purpose of dancing or performing on the Continent and in other places, and many of these girls had had no chance of protecting themselves from their surroundings in the theatres and music halls at which they had performed abroad. In other cases they had been deserted and left to starve or to take to immorality so as to be able to live. Many young children were employed in places of entertainment on the Continent who, under the laws of this country, could not be so employed, and they worked longer hours than they would be allowed to do in this country. Unfortunately, in the majority of Continental countries there was no legislation appropriate to these circumstances, and therefore the perpetrators of offences who would be punished here could not be touched abroad. The Home Secretary could bear out the facts and the necessity for legislation, as he (Mr. Hay) was informed that the officials of Scotland Yard had presented to him a voluminous report containing full information of some very grave cases of what had befallen those of tender years sent abroad by these foreign theatrical agents.

Mr. Hay's Bill, however, in the stress of Government business, made little progress beyond its first reading (April 6).

THE LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL.

The question of licensing of employment agencies generally was dealt with by the London County Council a few years ago, but when the Council's proposals were considered by the Police and Sanitary Regulations Committee of the House of Commons, considerable opposition was offered by the theatrical and music hall agents, and to meet these objections a proviso was inserted by the Committee, which, when the proposals became law in the London County Council (General Powers) Act, 1905, had the effect of exempting all theatrical and music hall agencies from registration, unless they received preliminary fees. It must be borne in mind that the Act applied only to the County of London, and the person who desired to carry on an agency business with preliminary fees without being registered had only to remove beyond the border into, say, Middlesex. How ineffective and inoperative this proviso made the Act in so far as theatrical and music hall agencies are concerned may be judged from the fact that only one agent was registered on March 31, 1908, when a table dealing with the number of registered agents generally was drawn up.

On May 18, or rather in the early hours of May 19, 1909, the Council adopted a report presented by the Public Control Committee. The Committee reported that during the preceding three years various representations had been made to the Council by numerous societies and others by means of deputations, petitions, or resolutions urging that steps should be taken by the Council to secure an amendment of the law in several respects, so as more effectually to obviate fraud and to prevent immorality. These societies included the National Vigilance Association, the Actors' Association, the Actors' Union, the Society of West End Theatre Managers, and the Variety Artists' Federation, and various other societies. Almost without exception these societies expressed themselves as being strongly in favour of action being taken with a view to the licensing (instead of registration) of agencies both for male and female employment, and the only objections to any amendment of the existing law were by the Variety Agents' Association. In connection with the question of the employment of English girls abroad, the Committee reported that they had also had the advantage of the assistance and advice of one of the chief constables of the Metropolitan Police.

A STRONG REPORT.

The Committee, in their report, also stated :—

A deputation from the Variety Artists' Federation has attended before us, and the three principal points submitted by them were the fees charged by the agents, which they alleged were exorbitant, the deduction of such fees by music hall managers, and the conduct of agents towards their clients.

The regulation of such fees and the action of the managers do not appear to us to be matters in which a public authority should interfere. We think, however, that action should be taken with regard to persons who obtain fees under the guise of giving tuition and supplying songs preparatory to obtaining engagements for applicants for employment.

As regards female artists seeking employment at home and abroad, it has been conclusively proved to us that further drastic powers are necessary if such artists are to be adequately protected and prevented from entering into invalid and doubtful contracts.

It is to be anticipated that any attempt to license or register all theatrical agents will be again strenuously opposed by them, but we consider that this should not deter the Council from now moving in the matter.

When the Council's Bill was before Parliament in 1905 the licensing of variety agents was opposed by the Variety Concert and Music Hall Agents' Association on the grounds stated in the following extract from this Association's petition :—“ Your petitioners are actively engaged in forming an association of theatrical and music hall agents, and propose that only persons of unquestionable integrity and character shall be admitted to membership thereof. By this means your petitioners will be enabled to raise the character of those legitimately engaged in their business and to secure for the community a class of persons well qualified to be employed in the responsible duties devolving on them."

Mr. George Ashton, the chairman of the Association, also stated in his evidence that some one body must start the criminal law in respect of any agent who imposes upon any man or woman, and that his Association should be the body to do so. It was admitted that the Association came into existence as the result of the Council's Bill. Undoubtedly the evidence relating to the constitution of the Association greatly weighed with the Committee of the House of Commons when they came to their decision with regard to the Council's proposals.

The variety agents, however, did not take any effective action until quite recently, for the Variety Agents' Association (the successor of the former association) in a letter, dated December 16, 1908, stated that, although the Association was a combination of the leading variety agents in the United Kingdom, it had at present no corporate existence, but that steps were being taken with that object in view. Moreover, a deputation which has attended before us from the Association was not able to indicate any instances in which the Association had formulated legal proceedings against bogus or other agents.

The variety agents would strongly object to the inspection of their books and to rules being made prescribing the books to be kept and the method of keeping them, and we do not consider that any really useful purpose would be served by the Council obtaining powers in this respect.

Some agents may form their businesses into limited liability companies, and special steps should be taken in order that it may not be possible for them to evade any regulations which may hereafter be made with regard to other agents.

We think it desirable that provision should also be made, as far as possible, on the lines of Section 2 of the Money Lenders Act, 1900, to require agents to be licensed in their own or usual trade names, and at all their addresses, and to carry on business in those names only.

In all the circumstances, therefore, we think that there is a strong case for the Council to proceed at once with an application to Parliament for powers to regulate theatrical and music hall agencies in the same manner as we suggest with regard to other employment agencies, but that as regards the former class of agencies the powers sought for should not include the inspection and prescription of books.

THE L.C.C. RECOMMENDATIONS.

The Committee accordingly recommended :—

(a) That in the opinion of the Council—

(i) Licensing instead of registration is essential if employment agencies are to be properly regulated.

(ii.) All agents, for male or female employment, or both (other than labour bureaux of public authorities or trade union organisations), should be annually licensed by the Council, with a discretion to the Council to refuse a license on evidence of misconduct in the business of the agency, or to minors.

(iii.) Agents not accepting preliminary fees should not be exempted from the necessity of obtaining a license.

(iv.) In the case of theatrical, music hall, and variety agencies, powers should not be sought to inspect the agents' books or to prescribe the form in which the books should be kept.

(v.) Provision should be made for dealing with any agents who form themselves into limited liability companies.

(vi.) Agents should be licensed under their own or usual trade names, and with all the addresses at which they carry on business, and they should carry on business in those names only.

(vii.) The licensing of agents would afford material protection for girls seeking employment abroad, but the question of interfering with the terms of their contracts is not one with which the Council should concern itself.

(viii.) No action should be taken by the Council with regard to agencies professing to provide paying guests, etc.

(b) That the Secretary of State for the Home Department be asked to receive a deputation from the Council on the subject of the promotion by His Majesty's Government, in the session of Parliament of 1909, of further legislation dealing with the regulation of employment agencies on the lines indicated in the foregoing resolution (a); and that the members of the Public Control Committee be appointed to form the deputation, if the Secretary of State consents to receive it.

(c) That, in the event of the Secretary of State for the Home Department not seeing his way to adopt the Council's suggestions, as indicated in the foregoing resolution (b), application be made to Parliament, in the session of 1910, to give effect to the proposals contained in the foregoing resolution (a).

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER'S VIGOROUS SUPPORT.

At this meeting Mr. George Alexander spoke on the subject. Mr. Alexander said:—I wish to support the recommendations of the Committee, especially when they deal with the dramatic and musical agent. There are many honourable men engaged in that calling, and the best of them must welcome the recommendations of the Committee that they shall be licensed by the London County Council; and I am sure all those who have the welfare of the stage at heart are of opinion that it is desirable and necessary. The movement has the support of the Actors' Association, the Society of West-End Managers, the Actors' Union, and, I am privileged to add, Mr. A. W. Pinero, the chairman of the Dramatic Sub-Committee of the Authors' Association, and Sir William S. Gilbert.

I could paint painful and sensational pictures of the misery and degradation brought upon young men and women by the conduct of the disreputable agent, and the evidence at the disposal of the Committee is more than sufficient to bear out my statement. Hundreds of young men and women are tempted to leave employments in which they are living useful, if uninteresting, lives, to embark upon a career for which they are entirely unsuited, and, after adopting it, and failing in it, find it difficult, nay, impossible, to regain the confidence of their former employers, who believe—sometimes rightly, and often wrongly—that even a casual contact with the stage in its worst aspect means that they return to them “with their robes—shall we say?—a little dusty at the hem.” They part with their money to these agents, and the only refuge left to them is starvation and the streets. From my own observation the greatest sufferers are the shop girls and domestic servants; the stage seems to have a particular attraction for them. I am continually receiving letters from London and all parts of the country asking for help and advice, and telling me sad stories of the folly in answering the advertisements of these disreputable agents—of parting with their hard-earned savings on the promise of tuition, with lucrative engagements to follow, and finally being stranded alone in our great city, often after cruel and dastardly treatment. The license should be granted only to applicants who are willing and able to give at least two sureties of respectability and honesty—just as the lessee of a theatre under the control of the Lord Chamberlain is obliged to do. If the recommendations of the Committee are adopted by this Council, it will go far to do away with a very serious evil.

APPLICATION TO PARLIAMENT.

On the Council's adopting the report, the Committee proceeded under Section B of the recommendations. On July 27-28 the Committee reported to the Council that the Secretary of State for the Home Department had intimated that, owing to the position of public business, no useful purpose would be served by the attendance before him of a deputation from the Council on the subject of the promotion by His Majesty's Government in 1909 of legislation relating to employment agencies. We are informed by Mr. G. L. Gomme, Clerk to the Council, that in these circumstances the Council's application to Parliament in 1910 is being proceeded with, in pursuance of the decision of the Council of May 18-19 (Section C of the approved recommendations set out in the foregoing).

DOGGETT'S COAT AND BADGE.

This race was rowed on Friday, July 29, between London Bridge and Chelsea. For the origin of this competition it is necessary to go back so far as 1715, when the then famous comedian, Thomas Doggett, presented the livery and badge to be competed for by six “young watermen.” Doggett left enough money to provide for the coat and badge annually. The Fishmongers' Company, who took over the trust from the Admiralty, have seen that the event is in no way allowed to languish, or to diminish in interest among the watermen, for whose benefit it was started, for they have themselves provided an annual prize of £10 10s., in addition to which there is Sir William Jolliffe's prize of £7 3s. 4d. The race in 1509 was won by G. R. Luck, T. C. Wingate coming in second.

BOOKS OF THE YEAR

THE literary output for 1909 that bore any direct relation to stage matters contained a fair number of books of interest and value to our readers; and such works, large and small, as came under our purview, may be grouped under the main heads of reminiscences, history, and biography, works of fancy and fiction, and treatises dealing with various technical aspects of theatrical work.

REMINISCENCES.

The section of reminiscences, in which field various old stage friends and others seem to have found especially fertile ground, may appropriately be taken first. At the head of this category should unquestionably be placed the second Bancroft book, "The Bancrofts; Recollections of Sixty Years," a fascinating work, which may be regarded rather as a complement of, than as a supplement to, the equally delightful storehouse of stage memories and piquantly expressed reflections, "Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft, On and Off the Stage, Written by Themselves." In their later work Sir Squire Bancroft and the incomparable Marie Wilton of old had naturally, to a large extent, to retrace their steps over familiar ground; but the book contained, also, much important new matter, notably with regard to Henry Irving, to the economic causes that led to the leaving first of the Prince of Wales's and then of the Haymarket, and to a suggested combination with Hare and the Kendals at the latter house. These illuminating pages, in particular, will be found of service by the future historian of the stage. More gossipy, and indeed avowedly made up largely of "experiences, impressions, and personal opinions," was Sir Charles Santley's volume, "Reminiscences of My Life," in which the veteran baritone, like some of the artists whose books were noted here last year, showed himself to be both somewhat sensitive of criticism, and rather inclined to play the candid friend to those with whom he mixed. A frank and most interesting work was "An Actor's Story," by Bransby Williams, in which this able impersonator and versatile artist narrated with much freedom his varied professional experiences. Another absorbing volume, useful as well as entertainingly anecdotic, was "The Ramblings of an Old Mummer," by Russell Craufurd, in which that much-travelled actor showed how globe-trotting, judiciously followed, can sharpen the intellect and broaden the philosophic outlook upon life. In the same department might be included a brightly written and thoroughly good book of travels, "We Two in West Africa," composed by Miss Decima Moore in collaboration with her husband, Major Guggisberg.

HISTORY AND BIOGRAPHY.

This section should begin presumably with some reference to "A Short History of the English Stage," by R. Farquharson Sharp, a work, which, though commendable enough in the respects of arrangements and sense of proportion, was marred by an unliterary style and many bad mistakes in matters of fact and also of opinion, which might easily be corrected in the event of a second edition being called for. The incorrigible love of paradox possessed by both subject and author caused one to find exasperatingly "too clever by half" G. K. Chesterton's brilliantly impudent monograph on George Bernard Shaw, the combination of these two intellects proving as overwhelming as that of their six initials. Professor Walter Raleigh's equally debatable treatise on Shaw's sorely maltreated predecessor, William Shakespeare, was re-printed in a slightly altered form; and so was Mrs.

A. Kennard's little volume on Siddons, which is chiefly noteworthy for extracts from the tragedienne's letters. A much more important work on the same theme was "The Incomparable Siddons," by Mrs. Clement Parsons, authoress of "Garrick and His Circle," who surveyed the whole Siddons period in a very interesting and suggestive manner. A tendency to depreciate Siddons in favour of actresses contemporary with her was the chief fault of "Tragedy Queens of the Georgian Era," by John Fyvie, who, like Mrs. Parsons, is an acute and intelligent critic of the stage. Books on Richard Mansfield and Mme. Melba have also appeared.

THE TECHNICAL ASPECT.

Here, besides a revised edition of Mrs. Emil Behnke's useful work on "The Speaking Voice: Its Development and Preservation," is to be noted Cavendish Morton's most valuable and finely illustrated volume of "The Art of Theatrical Make-up," which for its skilful application of self-photography to the representation of the building up of an impersonation in its outward phases has gained golden opinions from Sir Herbert Tree, Mr. George Alexander, and other authorities. A companion work depicting the various stages in the make-up of an actress might also have technical interest. Of little importance was "The Power of Speech," a well-intentioned treatise, by Edwin Gordon Laurence.

FICTION AND FANCY.

A pretty play of fancy was found in Miss Ella Erskine's little volume of sketches and fables with the Omarian title of "Shadow-Shapes"; other works of fiction came from some more known in stage-land, Miss Peggy Webling, with "The Story of Virginia Perfect," and Rathmell Wilson with "Re-Birth"; and mention may also be made of novels by E. Nesbit (Mrs. Hubert Bland), Mme. Albanesi, Newman Harding, and Mrs. R. S. Garnett.

THE COPYRIGHT-PLAY PROTECTION ASSOCIATION.

The Copyright-Play Protection Association was established in January, 1907. Its objects are to prevent the representation of its members' dramatic property without fee or license; to stop the sale of piratical manuscripts of members' plays, etc.; to advise upon any question of dramatic copyright; to watch over and protect the interests of authors and play proprietors generally; to represent rights in and protect the works of deceased members when authorised so to do. The method the Association adopts is to obtain provincial bills every week, and as these bills come in it first warns those who may be acting the members' pieces without permission. If the offence is persisted in the Association then takes out summonses. During the past year the Association has continued to do much good work. It is only right to state that a marked improvement has taken place in Portable Theatre bills, brought under the Secretary's notice, as, since the members of the Travelling Theatre Managers' Association have taken to perform such dramas as can be hired or are notoriously "free," there only remain those travelling theatre proprietors outside its membership to look after and, where found necessary, to prosecute. Three licenses were opposed during the year, and not one of these was granted.

The following is the roll of members:—Messrs. George R. Sims, Wm. Greet, Brandon Thomas, E. Hill-Mitchelson, Walter Howard, W. W. Kelly, W. Lestock, Harry Nicholls, F. Sutton-Vane, Walter Melville, Fredk. Melville, Chas. Frohman, Arthur Shirley, E. Graham-Falcon, Benjamin Landeck, George Gray, H. A. Saintsbury, Eric Hudson, Herbert C. Sargent, W. Muskerry-Tilson, W. W. Jacobs, Arthur Morrison, Ernest Carpenter, F. Llewellyn, Ernest Martin, J. B. Mulholland, C. Watson Mill, Wentworth Croke, Henry Chattell, Chas Macdonna, G. M. Polini, A. Clifton Alderson, Henry Bedford, Herbert Leonard, and Miss Harriet Jay, Frank Harvey (Exors.), Geo. Conquest (Exors.), "French's, Limited," and Chairman, Mr. A. Shirley; Secretary, Mr. S. Clare. THE VARIETY YEAR.

THE last three months of the year 1908 saw the artists and agents engaged in a struggle for supremacy, the former fighting for industrial freedom, while the latter were combating the forces which would destroy them. On the very last day of the old year, when all seemed plain sailing towards arbitration, the agents desired the inclusion among the terms of reference for arbitration of a new clause forbidding artists to act as agents. It was generally recognised that the new clause was aimed directly at Mr. Joe O'Gorman, who, at this time, was in charge of the Grand Order of Water Rats' Agency. The Executive Committee of the Federation called a mass meeting for January 10 at Terry's. Mr. Joe O'Gorman, as chairman of the Federation, occupied the chair, and created something of a sensation by resigning from his official position in the Federation on the ground that he was the stumbling-block to arbitration, and that so soon as he resigned, Clause 5—the new "artist-agent" clause—could be considered with the others. Regretfully the meeting accepted the resignation of Mr. O'Gorman, and they subsequently passed a vote of confidence in the Committee.

Negotiations for peace were resumed on January 18 at 29, Leicester Square. George Ranken Askwith, K.C., was held at the Board of Trade Offices on January 22. The proceedings were adjourned until February 10, when Mr. G. R. Askwith, K.C., presided as Arbitrator. Messrs. Walter Payne, Woodhouse, George Barclay, Hugh J. Didcott, Will Oliver, and Emanuel Warner were the Agents' representatives, and Messrs. Charles Doughty, Joe Elvin, William Lee, Fred Russell, and W. H. Clemart appeared on behalf of the V.A.F. Mr. Philip Rutland held a watching brief for the Entertainments' Protection Association; and Mr. Dickinson attended for Moss's Empires, Limited.

(a) The maximum amount of commission an agent shall be entitled to charge an artist for engagements made.

(b) Whether agents' commission notes may contain a provision that the artist authorises the proprietor or manager to deduct the agents' commission from their salary weekly, and pay it to the agent.

(c) Whether agents may stipulate with artists that they shall pay commission on re-engagements, and, if so, to define the time limits thereof, if any.

(d) No artist shall act as an agent directly or indirectly, and no agent shall also act as an artist.

A preliminary meeting between the representatives of the two societies and Mr. George Ranken Askwith, K.C., was held at the Board of Trade Offices on January 22. The proceedings were adjourned until February 10, when Mr. G. R. Askwith presided as Arbitrator. Messrs. Walter Payne, Woodhouse, George Barclay, Hugh J. Didcott, Will Oliver, and Emanuel Warner were the Agents' representatives, and Messrs. Charles Doughty, Joe Elvin, William Lee, Fred Russell, and W. H. Clemart appeared on behalf of the V.A.F. Mr. Philip Rutland held a watching brief for the Entertainments' Protection Association; and Mr. Dickinson attended for Moss's Empires, Limited.

The following artists gave evidence on the first day:—W. H. Clemart, Sidney James, Marie Kendall, Eugene Stratton, James Howard, Fred Woellhaff, and J. P. Ling. On the following day (February 11) Messrs. Percy Hannan, Fred Russell, George Foster, and Emanuel Warner appeared, and on the last day of the proceedings (February 12) Mr. George Barclay was the principal witness called. At the conclusion of the evidence Mr. Charles Doughty and Mr. Walter Payne, the counsel representing the two associations, retired with the Arbitrator to consider the terms of the Award. The Award was issued on February 15, and took the following form:—

THE AWARD.

"Certain disputes having arisen between variety artists and variety agents, and the Board of Trade having been requested to appoint an Arbitrator to decide the disputes, I, the undersigned, George Ranken Askwith, one of His Majesty's Counsel, the duly appointed Arbitrator, award and declare upon the matters in dispute :—

"(a) That the maximum amount of commission an agent shall be entitled to charge an artist for engagements made is 10 per cent.

"(b) That agents' commission notes may contain a provision that the artist authorises the proprietor or manager to deduct the agent's commission from their salary weekly and pay it to the agent.

"(c) That clauses in future agency contracts granting to the agent a commission on salaries on re-engagements are abolished except in the following cases (1) where the agent procures engagements for artists from abroad; (2) where an artist has received through an agent a first engagement with a management lasting not more than eight weeks, and the artist receives a re-engagement from the same management within a period of three months from the end of such first engagement. In these cases an agent may insert a clause and claim commission on the re-engagement.

"(d) I make no rule preventing an artist acting as an agent or an agent as an artist.

"This award to continue in force till January 1st, 1912, and thereafter subject to six months' notice on either side.

"Signed and published this 15th day of February, 1909,

"G. R. ASKWITH."

Thus ended a struggle which at one time threatened to plunge the music hall industry into a turmoil similar to that of the music hall strike, but happily this latter state of affairs did not come about, thanks to the efforts of the more restrained members of both parties.

PEACE AND THE FEDERATION.

The result of the election of the Executive Committee of the V.A.F. had been announced at the beginning of February. This had proved conclusively that the Executive had had the full and thorough support of the members, for the retiring members who had sought re-election were returned to office. Application for nominations for the positions of Chairman, Vice-Chairman, and Treasurer brought forth several names, the choice falling eventually upon Messrs. Fred Russell, James Allison, and William Lee for the three positions named. Immediately upon his election to the position of Chairman, Mr. Fred Russell issued an address to the members of the Federation—an address temperate in wording, sound in advice, and advocating certain reforms. It was obvious that Mr. Russell's election was the result of a general desire on the part of members for peace—not "peace at any price" (this was farthest from Mr. Russell's ideas), but the desire to promote industrial peace and progress by amicable methods. Subsequent events proved that full advantage was taken of the opportunity for the introduction of the spirit of peace in a greater measure than before.

THE CHARITY MATINEES.

The charity matinée question, however, remained perhaps the chief stumbling block between manager and artist, so that it was not surprising to find the matter coming up before the V.A.F. Executive for further consideration. The Committee decided eventually to vary their rules regarding charity performances so as to permit their members to appear without permission at performances in aid of charities when the whole of the proceeds of the entertainment were given to charity, and mention of this fact was made on the bills.

PROFESSIONAL CHARITIES.

The mention of charity naturally brings one to the consideration of the question of those charitable organisations in which the variety profession have a special interest. The annual dinner given by the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association on behalf of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund was held at the Criterion Restaurant on Sunday, April 25, with Mr. George H. Chirgwin, the President of the latter fund, in the chair. The list of subscriptions totalled about £450, and there was a small profit on the dinner, but the occasion was chiefly noticeable by reason of the fact that Mr. Joe Elvin, always to the fore in the good causes of the music halls, expounded a scheme for the formation of a Music Hall Benevolent Institution, which had for its object the amalgamation of the various music hall charities and the building of an institution on lines similar to those of the Licensed Victuallers' Institution. The idea met with the unanimous support of those present, and it was arranged to hold a special meeting to consider the scheme on some future date. This duly took place at the Empire, Camberwell, on August 5, when representatives from the various music hall organisations attended and promised their support to Mr. Elvin's scheme. It should be mentioned that Mr. Joe Elvin has guaranteed the cost of the site, approximately £500, on promise of subscriptions or donations to the value of £3,000. The sum specified as necessary for building and equipping the institution is £10,000, and it is hoped that it will be possible to raise the sum by means of collections, matinées, etc. A matinée, jointly in aid of the V.A.B.F. and the Institution, was held at the London Coliseum (by permission of Mr. Stoll) on Tuesday, December 21, which realised the sum of about £300.

The other charities—the Music Hall Home Fund and the Music Hall Ladies' Guild—continue to perform those many acts of kindness which have made both societies such powers for good in the profession, and although, naturally, the request for money is perpetual, the more money that is obtained the more good is done to deserving cases. Subscribers can rest assured that the working expenses of the various music hall charities are kept at the lowest possible figure, and that no waste or extravagance is tolerated. It should be mentioned, en passant, that the annual sports in aid of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund were held at Stamford Bridge on August 31, when mainly through the instrumentality of Mr. Alfred Le Fre, who was responsible for the organisation, a sum of over £100 was handed over to the Fund.

THE CO-OPERATIVE SCHEME.

During April quite an epidemic of closing halls was prevalent, and various members of the V.A.F. Executive felt that something should be done to minimise the hardship to artists. Consequent upon this, Mr. C. C. Bartram evolved a scheme whereby halls in danger of closing should be taken and run on co-operative principles. The artists, through a co-operative limited liability company, were to enter into an agreement with music hall proprietors to supply a company with a salary list agreed upon. The first charge on the receipts was an amount for the working expenses of the hall, following which the artists' salaries, according to the agreed list, were to be paid. In the event of a surplus 50 per cent. was to be paid over to the proprietor of the hall, and the remainder was to be divided between the artists, pro rata with their salaries, and the co-operative company. Halls were taken in various towns, and were worked on this principle with success, the Hippodrome, Colchester, being run for several months.

THE "COMBINE."

At frequent intervals during the year there have been revivals of the rumours regarding the formation of a huge music hall trust, which would embrace the various companies and circuits. The avowed object of this trust was to reduce the working expenses of the companies interested by minimising or abolishing competition. It was proposed to send artists over a tour consisting of practically all the halls of any importance in the United Kingdom, thus, it was argued, reducing their expenses by reason of the fact that long journeys would be unknown. Mr. Oswald Stoll had long been looked upon as the prime mover in this enterprise, but the fact that Mr. Walter de Frece was booking with Mr. Stoll, while on the other hand Messrs. Walter Gibbons and Thomas Barrasford had merged their interests, certainly lent colour to the statement that there were likely to be two combines instead of one. However, nothing definite arrived, and during August the rumours became even more persistent, and details of the proposed combine began to be given, prior, it was said, to a final meeting of the managers upon Mr. Stoll's return from a Continental tour. It was now felt that something would be done, but apparently Mr. Stoll's absence from this country encouraged the other managers to become only lukewarm, and shortly after Mr. Stoll's return he announced in effect in an interview that the combine was "off." During this time the V.A.F. had not been negligent of their duty in the matter. They called meetings throughout the country endeavouring to bring into the Federation those members of the profession who were outside its influence, by this means hoping, should the combine ever arrive, to be able to present a bold and united front to the attack of the proprietors. It was obvious to most people that the first thing such a managerial combine as that proposed would do would be to reduce salaries, and on this score alone it was necessary for the artists to organise. Meetings were held in London, Leeds, Birmingham, Manchester, Liverpool, Newcastle, and Glasgow during September and October, and these were well attended and enthusiastic in character. Opportunity was also taken at this time to consider the claims of the sketch artists, who were specially invited to these meetings.

FREE TRADE AND AMUSEMENT.

Mr. R. V. Harcourt's Bill in the House of Commons dealing with the Censorship and the licensing of places of amusement was opposed by the V.A.F., although later they supported the idea of the single license. When the Joint Committee appointed to inquire into these matters was sitting, Mr. W. H. Clemart, the General Secretary, gave evidence before the Committee, and strongly advocated a single license. On the other hand, the music hall managers were almost all opposed to the single license, this in spite of the fact that what are known as sketch prosecutions—i.e., prosecutions for presenting stage plays in music halls—were again being undertaken by the theatrical managers.

THE WORK OF THE FEDERATION.

After the former stormy periods through which the Federation had passed, its work, owing to the fact that it was not so much in the public eye, might not receive that amount of recognition which is justly its due. From week to week there are so many matters of minor importance to the profession as a whole perhaps, but of pressing need to the individual which the V.A.F. undertakes, that it more than justifies its existence on these counts alone. But its sphere of influence is much greater. Having secured two Awards it is determined that the terms of these Awards shall be kept by all parties, and it is in dealing with the non-adherence to the terms of the Award by certain managers as regards, particularly, barring and payment for matinées, that so much good is done by the Federation. The option clause has also engaged the attention of the Executive during the past year, and the publication by Moss's Empires of their counsel's opinion as to the option clause in the contracts led to a counterblast from the Federation's counsel. During the year the Federation secured affiliation with L'Union Syndicale des Artistes Lyrique de France.

LEGITIMATE AND VARIETY.

In such an article as this it is necessary that some reference should be made to the growing popularity of sketches and scenas. This is to be largely accounted for by the advent of so many prominent actors and actresses who have come from the regular theatres, tempted by the charm of variety and the large salaries, during the year. Mr. Arthur Bouchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh, Mr. Allen Aynesworth, Mr. Charles Hawtrey, Miss Constance Collier and Mr. Julian L'Estrange, Mr. Hayden Coffin, Mr. Herbert Sleath and Miss Ellis Jefferys, Mr. Pope Stamper and Miss Valli Valli, Mr. H. V. Esmond, Miss Fannie Ward, and Mr. Henry Ainley and Miss Suzanne Sheldon have all appeared in sketches, while Mr. Cyril Maude and Mr. Huntley Wright have signed contracts for early appearances in the New Year. The line of demarkation between theatre and music hall is becoming more and more obscure, and more actresses and actors are fulfilling engagements "on the halls," returning the visits which the music hall artists periodically pay to the theatre for pantomime.

PANTOMIMES IN MUSIC HALLS.

A noteworthy feature of the Christmas (1909) season was the number of outlying London halls the stages of which were given up to the presentation of pantomime twice nightly. The productions referred to included "Puss in Boots" at the Walthamstow Palace, "The Babes in the Wood" at the East Ham Palace, "The Babes in the Wood" at the Empire, Croydon, "Robinson Crusoe" at the Camberwell Empire, and "Dick Whittington" at the Ilford Hippodrome. At all these halls, with the exception of one (Camberwell Empire) the production of a pantomime is made possible by reason of the fact that the halls possess what is known as a "double license"—i.e., licenses for stage plays and for music and dancing.

THE END OF THE YEAR.

At the close of 1909 it is apparent that there are changes impending in the music hall business, more especially in the managerial circles. What these changes may be time alone will prove, but it is reasonably certain that early in 1910 certain variety syndicates will undergo considerable alteration, and "booking in conjunction" gives promise of becoming a fine art. The opposition of skating rinks and electric theatres has been felt keenly in certain quarters during the year, but the rivalry of these forms of amusement to the variety business is hardly likely to be permanent, and the dawn of 1910 brings with it the prospect of more settled conditions.

THE DRAMATIC YEAR IN PARIS.

BY THE PARIS CORRESPONDENT OF "THE STAGE."

IT is not so much by the number of the plays produced in the course of a year that one correctly estimates the dramatic output as the quality of the pieces presented. I will therefore refrain, as much as possible, from giving lengthy statistics respecting the three-act, four-act, or five-act plays that have had their first hearing in Paris since January last. Dealing only with the leading theatres, which number more than thirty, the critics have certainly been called upon to notice something like a hundred plays of three acts or more, whilst the one-act trifles must have exceeded that figure. I regret to say, however, that the literary merit of the plays produced has shown a downward instead of an upward tendency. To refer to them en bloc, they have only been of average merit, and there is absolutely nothing to note of an epoch-marking nature.

THE BETTER-KNOWN WRITERS.

Strange to say, too, that whatever falling-off is to be noted has been on the side of the better-known writers, several of whom have not maintained their ordinary standard. There is Henri Lavedan, for instance, whose "Sire," produced at the end of the year at the Comédie Française, is not at all likely to bear such frequent revival as his "Duel" has had. Then Edmond Rostand, again, whose "Cyrano de Bergerac" will probably remain his magnum opus, has not yet produced his much-talked-of "Chantecler," though we hear of it every now and again as being in rehearsal. Rostand's name has consequently been absent from the list of producing dramatists for three whole years. Emile Bergerat has also, as in 1908, been missing from the ranks; but Hermant, Richepin, and Hervieu, whose names were associated with revivals in the previous year, have once more come to the front again. The prolific Capus secured at the end of the year a success with "Un Ange" at the Variétés, just as he did in 1908 with "L'Oiseau Blessé" at the Renaissance; and very creditable work has been done by Romain Coölus, Henry Bataille, Paul Gavault, Hennequin, Pierre Veber, Gabriel Trarieux, Flers and de Caillavet, Benière and Nozière, and Charles Muller. But amongst the dramatists to whom one looked for greater success than they attained were Emile Moreau, Georges Feydeau, Paul Ferrier, Jean Richepin, Léon Hennique, Gaston Devore, and the late Catulle Mendès.

NEW AUTHORS.

It has happened, on the other hand, that several of the most popular productions of the year have emanated either from men of comparatively small reputation or from young and unknown authors. In this connection I may mention René Fauchois, with his "Beethoven"; Giacosa's play, given with the French title of "Comme les Feuilles"; Benière's "Papillon dit Lyonnais le Juste"; and Nozière and Muller's "Maison de Danses," produced early in November at the Vaudeville.

Another circumstance that is not without its significance is that the greatest acting successes have not been obtained by the best artists. To begin with the ladies. Mme. Bartet, it is true, has triumphed in each new rôle she has undertaken, but the same cannot be said either of Sarah Bernhardt or Mme. Réjane, and there is no actress in Paris who for the past few years has deserved more of the public than Mme. Réjane. She strives hard to obtain good plays, and often succeeds, as with Nicodemi's "Réfuge" and Moreau and Clairville's "Madame Margot," and she acts as it is given to few artists to act. But so far ill-luck has pursued her in Paris since she left the Vaudeville; and yet she seems to have her fingers always on the public pulse with a view to providing what is wanted. Turning to the lighter form of entertainment, one notices that operette of the Lecocq, Planquette, or Varney style no longer exists. In its place we find revues of a more or less commonplace, not to say vulgar, type, dependent mainly for their vogue upon the talent or peculiarities of some special performer.

To the credit, however, of Parisians, be it said, there is no falling-off in public appreciation of good music. The two subventioned Opera Houses have played to good audiences all the year; the Municipal Gaité has numbered "Quo Vadis?" amongst its many successes, and the Russian season, given at the Chatelet in May, was a very notable event of the year, and a complete triumph for all concerned.

ENGLISH AND FOREIGN PLAYS.

Various rumours are in the air respecting the English plays to be produced in Paris during the coming spring, but what we had in 1909 consisted chiefly of adaptations of "Lady Windermere's Fan" at the Théâtre des Arts and "The Merry Widow" at the Apollo, the last-named of which proved a great hit as regards both acting and mounting. Of the German adaptations given little need be said, for even under Sarah Bernhardt's fostering care Wildenbruch's "Fille des Rabenstein" only kept the bill's for a few nights, and Reinert's "Guerre," at the Antoine, was an indigestible, wordy, declamatory production. Besides according their patronage to the Russian troupe at the Chatelet, Parisians supported the Sicilian players, headed by Signora Aguglia, at the Réjane Théâtre, and the Disseldorf troupe, who were lodged at the Marigny Théâtre, which goes to show that it is at last recognised Paris has not the exclusive monopoly of all histrionic talent. The public taste for drama of the kind familiar for long years at the Ambigu and the Porte-Saint-Martin has dwindled almost to vanishing point.

A few revivals of such plays as Zola's "Assommoir," Dumas and Maquet's "Jeunesse des Mousquetaires," and Erkmann-Chatrion's "Juif Polonais" have served the managerial purpose occasionally as stop-gaps, but the directors who look ahead, such as M. Antoine, of the Odéon, and M. Gémier, of the Antoine Théâtre, have increased their reputation by the production of plays like René Fauchois' "Beethoven," Hirsch's "Emigrants," and "Papillon dit Lyonnais le Juste," by M. Benière. It is, indeed, to the Odéon and the Antoine theatres the public look for drama to its taste, which differs considerably from the melodrama of our youth.

THE COMEDIE-FRANCAISE.

M. Jules Claretie, who for twenty years has with such tact and talent presided over the historic House of Molière, has fully manifested his fitness for the high position he holds by the nature of the plays he has chosen, and the merit of the reproductions he has given, which latter have included several classical and modern pieces. The new plays have included Jules Bois's "Furie," Paul Hervieu's "Connais-toi," Pierre Berton's "Rencontre," and Henri Lavedan's "Sire." What mitigated against the success of "La Furie" was that the characters indulge in an abundance of fine phrases, and yet, in spite of all they say, their meaning is not always clear. I make no complaint of the dramatist having dealt with the Heraklean myth in his own way, nor need objection be lodged against the complete suppression of Dejanira. The imperfections will perhaps serve the author as an indication in the future. We have to admit that there are subjects which require the genius of a Shakespeare or a Goethe, and if M. Bois will only turn from metaphysics to psychology he will find ample scope for the analytical talent which characterises him. Coming to Paul Hervieu's "Connais-toi," what strikes one agreeably is that he has followed the Unities. Indeed, he does not use the whole of the time at his disposal, for beginning at eleven a.m. the play ends at nine o'clock in the evening. I am not intending to pronounce an opinion for or against a return to the Unities, so lauded by Diderot and Voltaire, who in their day were revolutionaries, for the question is one that will be eternally discussed. Each man solves the problem for himself according to his own temperament. Hervieu's characteristic is clearness and order. He is, moreover, a practical moralist, for he thinks less of a doctrine than of its application or of the consequences, and from the truths that he expounds some small lesson can generally be learnt. In short, "Connais-toi" is a classic, in which not one single useless word is pronounced. What acting, too, it inspired on the part of Mesdames Bartet and Leconte! I cannot include M. le Bargy with them, for I took exception to his violent interpretation of the rôle of the husband. Whilst dealing with the best-known dramatists I must return to Henri Lavedan's "Sire," produced late in November, and which contains three acts of comedy, one of drama, and a fifth of tragedy. This proved disconcerting, for the playgoer who has laughed through three acts is not inclined to take too seriously the characters that have diverted him. Very fine acting opportunities are afforded in this play to Mlle. Leconte and M. Huguenet, and both artists took advantage of them. A bare mention will suffice for Pierre Berton's "Rencontre," produced in June, and acted by the younger members of the company. Through having interpreted Dumas and Sardou M. Berton has grown to know what the public wants, and he, involuntarily no doubt, in "La Rencontre," took inspiration from his eminent predecessors.

Where M. Claretie deserves the highest commendation possible is in the selection made of plays for reproduction. He began the year with Henry Becque's "Parisienne," originally produced in 1885, and which will always be quoted as that dramatist's best play. It bears reproduction for the reason that it owes nothing to fashion, the characters being living types. They are all egoists, it is true, which makes the chef d'œuvre, for chef d'œuvre it is, remain a monument of pessimism and bitterness. Another interesting revival was that of Paul Hervieu's "Tenailles." The sincerity of its psychology and the perfect analysis it contains of the two leading characters will always render the presentation of this play acceptable to an intelligent audience like that of the Comédie-Française. From the old repertory M. Claretie selected for reproduction quite a number of plays, including Ponsard's "Honneur et Argent," Marivaux's "Fausses Confidences," Beaumarchais's "Mariage de Figaro," and Regnard's "Legataire Universel" and "Les Folies Amoureuses." Regnard, as we all know, was a master of style in his time, and it is to this that he owes his present reputation. It was fitting, therefore, that the 200th anniversary of his death should be marked in such a manner at the subventioned theatre. Marivaux's "Fausses Confidences" gave Mlle. Cerny a fine opportunity of being witty in the first act, dainty in the second, and emotional in the third, and its reproduction was right. But the comedy is not one likely to attract for long.

The most important reproduction of all given by M. Claretie was the transference effected by him from the Vaudeville to the Rue Richelieu of Eugène Brieux's "La Robe Rouge." This play remains, after many years, among the best work of its author, and to renew acquaintance with it only confirms one in the opinion that whenever Brieux seeks to solve a difficult problem of conscience he adopts at once the most liberal and at the same time the firmest solution. He goes in for courage, disinterestedness, loyalty, and probity, and he believes in all progress and reforms. He is not perhaps to be compared either as a writer, an artist, or a philosopher with Diderot, but he possesses in an eminent degree what Diderot had not, namely, a perfect gift of stage perspective.

In his "Suzette," produced at the Vaudeville in September, M. Brieux pleads the cause of the children born of parents whose marriage has been a misfortune. The play does not contain the beauties, the logic, and the truth of "La Robe Rouge," but its author compels our esteem always, for he has the true dramatic instinct, and knows thoroughly how to excite curiosity without ever being wearisome.

The limits of space prevent me doing more than briefly refer to a small number of the one-act plays produced at the Comédie-Française in 1909. These include "Modestie," by Paul Hervieu; "La Veille du Bonheur," by MM. François de Nion and G. de Buysieux; M. Millot's "Trois Sonnets," written specially for the Corneille anniversary in June; and "Le Stradivarius," by Max Maurey, a writer endowed with a keen sense of humour, a great power of observation, and an aptitude for bringing into relief the comic side of human nature. And he accomplishes this without any spite or bitterness. His little play is an amusing satire on collectors of curios.

M. Claretie has fortunately gone through his year's labour without having any repetition of the annoyance that the law suit respecting "Le Foyer" in 1908 caused him, but the discussion that took place on the death of Constant Coquelin between Edmond Rostand and M. Le Bargy involved the director of the Comédie-Française in considerable unpleasantness, for, with the rules of the house laid down as plainly as they are in the famous Moscow Decree, M. Claretie had no alternative but to refuse to sanction M. Le Bargy's appearance in another theatre. He notified his willingness to produce "Chantecler" at the Comédie-Française if the dramatist should think fit to transfer it, but this was not what M. Rostand wanted. The difficulty was finally solved by Messrs. Hertz and Coquelin getting M. Guityry to accept a five years' engagement with them at the Porte-St.-Martin in order to appear in the rôle written for Coquelin—an event we are all waiting to see fulfilled.

THE SUBVENTIONED ODEON.

Working with his customary energy and enterprise, M. Antoine has, if they come to be enumerated, produced even a longer list of plays than that set down to the credit of the Comédie-Française, and I think I may say that his efforts have met with more substantial reward than he had during the previous year. Beginning in January with a three-act play by Saint-Georges de Bouhéliier, entitled "La Tragédie Royale," M. Antoine's next important production was MM. Pierre Veber and Serge Basset's four-act play "Les Grands," which has something of the Cornelian tragedy about it. The other Odéon novelties included René Fauchois's "Beethoven," M. Hirsch's three-act realistic drama "Les Emigrants," MM. Léon Hennique and Johannes Gravier's "Jarnac," and the Italian dramatist Giacosa's play, here called "Comme les Feuilles," which ran for two years in Italy. The chief defect of M. de Bouhéliier's "Tragédie Royale" is that the old demented King Edgard is wearisome. The French dramatist may retort by saying that King Lear was also demented, but we understood the cause with Lear; whereas, whilst admitting that Edgard may also be a sort of martyr, we need to know how and why he suffers. The dramatist's psychology, in short, is not at all clear. He has ambition, too much ambition, in fact, and though not without talent, M. de Bouhéliier is far from being a genius. To invent types that are not of this world at all, and to endow them with the breath and the tints of life is the privilege only of the elect. It is laudable to attempt something new, but temerity has its limits, and the author of "La Tragédie Royale" should cast his eyes down to the men about him, and depict them as they are. He will animate them with a breath of enthusiasm, owing to his poetic instincts, and that should suffice. "La Mort de Pan," a two-act play, by Alexandre Arnoux, who is only twenty years of age, completed the programme of "La Tragédie Royale." Like François Coppée many years ago, M. Arnoux had his play read, accepted, and mounted in a very short time. The actors were also young. It was a triumph of youth all round.

With unfeigned pleasure one records the production of M. René Fauchois's three-act play "Beethoven," and commends him for not having attempted to trace the whole life of the famous musician. The dramatist confines himself to the last fifteen years of the composer's unhappy existence. The play contains certain beauties that are more easily felt than analysed, and its classification also is puzzling. For it is not a tragedy, nor a lyric poem; neither is it a féerie, or a symbol. And it is not history. Yet it is a little of all. The fusion, too, of music and verse imparts a special grace to the drama, although, to do the playwright justice, M. Fauchois's poetry alone would have made the play successful.

Differing very much in style from "Beethoven," but scarcely less interesting, was M. Hirsch's realistic play "Les Emigrants," produced in the late autumn. M. Antoine delights first of all in literature, then as an artist he revels in all that pertains to stage mounting. Fine scenery never jeopardises a good play, but it should never be brought into glaring prominence. It is said that money is a good servant but a bad master, and the term has a more pertinent application with regard to scenery, for when the spectator's attention is absorbed by the mounting of a play, its real object has been sacrificed. What Antoine evidently realised when "Les Emigrants" was submitted to him was an opportunity for giving three striking scenes. The drama in itself is absorbing, though from my seat in the second row of the stalls I remember to have suffered from an excess of coal dust in the famous Furnace scene, wherein Antonio stabs and burns the man whose wife he had taken from him. I would like M. Hirsch to set the scene of his next drama on classical lines, that is to say, within the walls of a drawing-room, so as to be able to judge better of his talent.

Jules Renaud's "Bigote," which was played with "Les Emigrants," is a bijou in its way. It is short, but full of thought and observation, and the characters are all interesting living types. Of "Jarnac," written by Léon Hennique in collaboration with Johannes Gravier, little need be said except that Hennique's "Mort du duc d'Enghien," which has always been considered his chef d'œuvre, will not be ousted from its proud position by this later production. There are, however, fine lines in the drama which denote that the authors have studied sixteenth century history, their play being a sort of Liebig of history. The leading parts are exceedingly well drawn, but the stage was otherwise crowded with too many characters having little to do with the action. Historical drama seldom seems to attract the dramatists possessing the requisite aptitudes for writing it, which is regrettable. Coming quite late in the year, that is to say, on December 1, was Mlle. Darsenne's adaptation of Signor Giacosa's play styled "Comme les Feuilles," which ran for two successive years in Italy. It has comparatively little story, but is, nevertheless, one of the most intense tragedies ever mounted; and the drama of down-trodden gentlefolk was never more vividly depicted than by Signor Giacosa, whose theory is that those who are to fall, fall, and that it is as useless to try and stop them on their downward path as it would be to prevent the falling leaves from being carried away by the wind.

Amongst the more interesting of the dramas remounted by M. Antoine during 1909 may be mentioned Richepin's famous play "La Glu," created by Mme. Réjane in 1883, and interpreted at the Odéon by Mlle. Polaire, who is one of the youngest and most original of our present-day actresses.

THE VAUDEVILLE.

Turning to the Vaudeville, I find that M. Porel, who has had a prosperous year, has produced five more or less successful plays, as well as a few revivals. Taking them in their right order, we commence with Jean Richepin's five-act drama "La Route d'Émérande," which, though written in verse, for which Parisians have a great predilection, only kept the bills a short time. The dénouement was foreseen from the first act, and playgoers as a rule prefer to have a certain measure of surprise dealt out to them. Léon Gandillot comes next with his four-act comedy "L'Ex," produced in May. Though Gandillot has written several comedies that are worthy to rank as chefs d'œuvre, his style is often disconcerting, and this was the case with "L'Ex." This dramatist's plays, in fact, often lack balance, and the scenes are occasionally irritating. An absence of cohesion and logic makes a work imperfect, clearness in the characters, and in the analysis of the sentiments by which they are possessed, being an absolute necessity in dramatic art. Unfortunately M. Gandillot omits sometimes to observe this rule. "L'Ex" had but a short run, and yet, despite its defects, it contains some charming little traits of observation, and is not inaccurately described, I think, as the work of a writer of rare talent, of a sort of Diogenes who is not careful enough in the lighting of his lamp. It was only a short run that MM. Bilhaud and Hennequin enjoyed with their three-act play "La Meilleure des Femmes." Apparently the dramatists started with a philosophical idea, with a determination, in fact, to prove that what is called goodness—or, rather, charity—is nothing but a weakness, and that these qualities cease to be such when not allied to discernment and firmness of character. Of Brieux's "Suzette" I have already made mention, and, consequently, there remains, as regards novelties, only to record the success of MM. Nozière and Charles Muller's adaptation of Paul Reboux's novel "La Maison de Danses," which is a singular blend of realism and symbolism, recalling in a measure both Ibsen and d'Annunzio. The leading character, Estrella, strongly recalls Richepin's Glu, a character which Mlle. Polaire (who created Estrella) has also impersonated. The success of "La Maison de Danses" has resulted largely from the wonderful ensemble of the interpretation, for the artists undoubtedly brought out all the qualities to be found in this striking work of art. Despite its subject, "La Maison de Danses," though occasionally complex, is free from all vulgarity, and it bears the stamp of having been modelled by men of literary attainments.

REJANE THEATRE.

It is difficult to account for the persistent ill-luck of certain houses. It is not that Mme. Réjane's talent appeals only to a certain section of the public, for playgoers of all classes and tastes have long recognised her genius. She presides, too, over the most luxurious and best-managed theatre in Paris, and amongst the dramatists who furnished her with new plays during the year were Abel Hermant, with his "Trains de Luxe," and Romain Coölus, with "Le Risque." Beginning the year with a reproduction of Paul Hervieu's "Course du Flambeau," Mme. Réjane, as soon as possible after the tragic death of Catulle Mendès, produced the five-act play "L'Impératrice," upon which he was engaged at the time of his fatal accident.

Hermant's "Trains de Luxe" failed chiefly, I think, because it dealt with the somewhat wearisome subject of "rastaquouarism," if I may coin a word. The "rastaquouare" has filled our theatres and our books for a good many years—books by Daudet, Jules Lemaitre, Maurice Donnay, Henri Lavedan, and even Hermant himself. Catulle Mendès' "Impératrice" can also be dismissed in a few lines, for instead of touching the heart it appeals only to the mind. Mme. Réjane imparted charm, dignity, and distinction to the character of Marie-Ange, and M. de Max played Napoleon with very commendable sobriety of manner, but the piece was withdrawn after a few representations, and is not likely to be heard of again. M. Nicodemi's "Réfuge," which was produced in May, deserved a better fate than it met with. It is a drama of passion, well constructed, and condensed into four or five very intense scenes, clearly showing its author to be a man gifted with dramatic instinct. He expresses his ideas clearly, and develops his scenes with combined logic and strength. The characters, too, are all well drawn, for they are human beings, made of flesh and blood like ourselves. We shall remember the name of M. Nicodemi, for he recalls Bataille, De Porto-Riche, and Bernstein. That Mme. Réjane's acting should not have influenced the public more than it did over this production is another proof, if any were needed, that when ill-luck overtakes a theatre it is difficult to dislodge it. Romain Coölns's "Risque" was also exquisitely played by Mme. Réjane, but it contains very little action, and no sooner does the action commence than it finishes, and this without one having felt any great interest in a single character. Presumably the dramatist thought in abolishing all struggle between the lovers he would demonstrate the absorbing power of love, but his purpose would have been better served in showing the difficulties they had to vanquish. Or their passion needed depicting with such force as to look like a stroke of destiny. The third act alone gripped us. Bringing into it an outburst of conscience made the dénouement pathetic.

It was not, I grieve to say, till the end of December that Mme. Réjane produced the most promising play of the year. This was MM. Emile Moreau and Charles Clairville's "Madame Margot," which is written round Henry IV. of France and his wife, his mistress, and his divorced wife, all of whom, with his various children, are grouped under one roof. The play fulfils all the conditions required. Not only is there life in the story, but the patriarchal atmosphere of the Louvre is also there.

THE GYMNASÉ.

The Gymnase has been able to go through the year with less change of programme than usual, which is always a good sign from the managerial point of view. The new plays at this house have included "L'Ané de Buridan," by MM. de Flers and de Caillavet; "La Rampe," by Henri de Rothschild; and "Pierre et Thérèse," by Marcel Prévost. MM. Flers and de Caillavet have been collaborating with remarkable success for years, all their plays having reached their hundredth or two hundredth representation. Dramatists often fail when they change their style and strike out a new course. Instead of attempting something quite different, these particular collaborators are content slightly to vary the old form, and thus we have had in turn as heroine a Suzanne, a Jacqueline, a Mignette, or a Micheline, all heroines, for the most part, with a bewitching blend of perversity and fascination about them. "L'Ané de Buridan" ran for several months, and was only replaced in October by Henri de Rothschild's play "La Rampe," the theme of which is indicated by its title. The subject, interesting in many ways, is not altogether true to nature. It deals with the history of an actor and a lady in society who come together, and between whom, when the woman attains success on the stage, a professional rivalry springs up. What happens is that, like a venomous plant, this rivalry destroys alike gratitude and love on the part of the man. The author makes a point of stating that his heroine is not a born actress, but his psychology is still wrong, for the ladies in society who become actresses are often more sensible to the intoxication of the footlights than are those bred on the stage. Mme. Marthe Brandès played the leading rôle with distinction, and the play ran for a couple of months, which alone indicates the favour with which it was received.

The same actress, with MM. Dumény, Janvier, and Paul Plant to support her, is appearing in MM. Marcel and Prévost's "Pierre et Thérèse," which was produced early in December. This play, like the book, revolves in an atmosphere of duty, passion, and honour. Contrary to custom, M. Prévost wrote his play first, and as it is constructed more like a novel than a tragedy, it would go to show that there is more of the novelist than the dramatist in this writer. Its chief defect is that it is not rapid enough. Instead of choosing a critical moment in the lives of his heroes and analysing them in Racinian style, M. Prévost follows them through their whole careers, and in place of a psychological study we get a biographical drama. Fortunately the play finishes better than it begins, and the acting, as I have already said, helps it.

THE RENAISSANCE.

Comparatively little change of bill has been required at the adjoining Renaissance, where the novelties have consisted of "J'en ai plein le dos de Margot," by MM. Courteline and Wolff; "Le Scandale," by Henry Bataille; and "La Petite Chocolatière," by Paul Gavault. It is an illogical group of characters MM. Courteline and Wolff set before us in their comedy, and yet they leave behind them an impression of reality. There is what I will call an odour of humanity floating over the whole piece, and fortunately this serves to raise it to the rank of comedy. Very different in style was "Le Scandale" of Henry Bataille, which enjoyed the vogue of the same author's "Femme Nue." It contains, however, one scene lacking plausibility. It is that in which the husband, finding himself alone with his wife, is capable of such self-restraint as not to refer to her recent escapade. Avoiding a scandal with others present was natural enough, but one can hardly admit that a man who, five minutes before, had been beside himself with rage, should still keep silent. The play proved, however, a triumph for M. Guitry as the husband, and also for Mme. Bady, who, in the last scene of all, that wherein the wife, being worn out with fatigue, drops off to sleep as her husband is talking to her. When Abel Tarride took over the management of the Renaissance from Lucien Guitry in the autumn he produced Paul Gavault's "Petite Chocolatière," which is a combination of comedy and sentiment. The play is somewhat difficult of definition on account of the variety it contains, but it is so skilfully put together, and shows such intelligence on the part of its author, that it is not at all unlikely he will have the 150 representations he aspired to on the night of its production. In the name-part Marthe Regnier is adorably audacious and sprightly.

THE PORTE-ST.-MARTIN.

It was rather with modern drama than the older form of melodrama that this theatre did its best business during 1909, for the most profitable run of the year proved to be Henry Bernstein's "Griffe," with the leading rôle played by Lucien Guitry. Other reproductions included Richépin's "La Glu"; Collé's eighteenth-century play, "La Partie de Chasse de Henri IV.," originally produced at Versailles, in presence of the young King Louis XVI., in December, 1774; Péricaud and Desfontaine's "Pierre de Lune"; Anicet Bourgeois and Paul Féval's "Bossu"; and Jules Lemaitre's "Massière"; whilst the new plays have been limited to Pierre Decourcelle's "Roy sans Royaume," an historical enigma, which had but a short run, in September; and MM. G. Guiches and F. de Nion's five-act play "Lauzun," which deals with the love of this cadet de Gascogne for La Grande Demoiselle. "Lauzun" contains anachronisms, and, without being too much of a stickler for form, I quite agreed with a visitor whom I heard on the first night declaring that it pained him to listen to Mme. de Montespan and the King of France exclaiming, in Montmartre accents, "Ca me connaît." The seventeenth century, like our own, had, of course, certain familiarities of expression, but they were not those in use to-day.

THE AMBIGU.

Depending nearly all the year upon such reproductions as those of Dumas and Maquet's "Jeunesse des Mousquetaires" and Zola and Busnach's "Assommoir," MM. Hertz and Coquelin, who have taken over the management of the Ambigu, mounted in November a five-act drama by MM. Bisson and Livet, under the title of "Nick Carter." This is written a little on the lines of "Arsène Lupin," "Raffles," and "Sherlock Holmes," as regards the characters of the arch-villain and the clever detective. The chief attraction of the drama rested with the hounds used by the detectives in the discovery of crime. Neither a Frederick Lemaitre nor a Dorval ever had more applause than these intelligent animals obtained every night.

THE ANTOINE.

For modern drama, astute management, and clever acting we continue to look to M. Gémier at the Antoine Théâtre. His prices still remain about half what is charged at any other theatre, and the performances are invariably entertaining. "La Dette," by Gabriel Trarieux, was the first new play mounted by M. Gémier. It was not without defects, but it bore the imprint of having been written by a man who would some day produce a chef d'œuvre. There was vigour of thought in it, but it did not hold one spellbound. It is not enough for a play to be ingenious and eloquent; if it fails to make one's pulse vibrate the dramatist has not achieved his object. Other plays given during the year were M. Madard's "Donataire," MM. Germain and Trebor's "Guerre," M. Esquier's "Lorsque l'Enfant Parait," MM. de Brisay and Laurus's "Master Bob gagnant du Derby," and M. Benière's "Papillon, dit Lyonnais le Juste," produced in the autumn. Hitherto M. Benière had only been known by short plays and farces. Although he used a subject that had often been treated, one has the impression in "Papillon dit Lyonnais le Juste" of seeing something new, because there is a freshness about its handling. M. Benière has only to give up imitating Gabriele d'Annunzio and he will achieve more than he has yet done. His style is less bitter than that of Courteline, and nearer to the truth than that of Labiche, which, after all, is an enviable position for a dramatist to acquire.

SARAH BERNHARDT THEATRE.

Sarah Bernhardt has been touring for the greater part of the year, and has kept her theatre going for the most part with revivals, in some of which from time to time she has appeared herself. There is little to be said of her new productions, which included MM. Bernède and Henri Cain's "Révolution Française," and Emile Moreau's "Procès de Jeanne d'Arc." "La Révolution Française" was given in fourteen rapid and picturesque scenes, beginning in a picture framer's shop. Then in turn we saw Versailles, the Tuileries, the Vendée, Pitt's house in England, Robespierre's home in Paris, with a few accompanying words for each tableau. The play ran but for a few nights. The author of "Le Procès de Jeanne d'Arc," in which Sarah Bernhardt appears as the Maid of Orleans, thought fit to give us a neurasthenic Bedford, whom he represented as being in love with Joan of Arc. M. de Max was far from realising the character, but as nobody has eyes or ears for anyone but Sarah Bernhardt in such a drama as this, the actor's inefficiency was probably only apparent to the critics.

At the Chatelet, where a very successful Russian season was held in May, the performances have consisted, as usual, of spectacular productions of a more or less fairy-tale order. In "Les Aventures de Gavroche" the authors, MM. Darlay and Marot, brought matters up to date by having aeroplanes for some of their tableaux. There was also the shipwreck in full ocean of the "Amazone," besides other wonderful scenic contrivances. MM. Darlay and de Gorsse's "Petite Caporale," in spite of being something of a féerie, stirred the emotions, and thus escaped boring us.

The Nouveautés, which, like the Cluny and the Palais Royal, produces farces that could never find their way to London, has played all the year to good houses, the new plays having been Hennequin and Veber's "Grosse Affaire," Nancey and Armont's "Théodore et Cie.," and Georges Duval's "Article 301." The Palais Royal had its best success with MM. Mars and Bell's "Revanche d'Eve," and "Cochon d'Enfant," by MM. A. de Lorde and Raphael, both clever men, attracted the Cluny patrons for several weeks.

THE VARIETES.

This popular Boulevard house was able to keep open all the summer with MM. de Fleurs and de Caillavet's "Roi." Late in October the management produced MM. Feydeau and de Croisset's three-act comedy "Le Circuit." Neither lavish mounting, good acting, nor an ingenious scene of reflecting mirrors could save this play from the fate it merited, and it was withdrawn as soon as Alfred Capus's "Ange" could be got ready. In this comedy Eve Lavallière plays the part of a wayward, irresponsible wife, and the whole thing goes with a snap, but it is nevertheless far from being the best work this clever author has given to the stage.

It is with unfeigned pleasure I record that good fortune has returned to the Bouffes-Parisiens, now directed by Mme. Cora Laparcerie, who re-opened the house in November with Maurice Donnay's "Lysistrata." Mention should also be made of Romain Coëlus's "4 fois 7.28," produced here earlier in the year, which contains gainty wit of the Marivaux style.

THEATRE DES ARTS.

Long, indeed, is the list of plays produced during the past year at this theatre, but little merit attached to any but M. Lenormand's "Possédés," which denoted penetration and force. M. Lenormand's début as a dramatist is one of promise. Sarah Bernhardt's "Cœur d'Homme" was also given at this theatre, but it proved more a collection of souvenirs than an original drama in the true acceptance of the word. Of foreign adaptations, mention may be made of the capital acting as Mrs. Erlynne by Suzanne Avril in "Lady Windermere's Fan," and the Spanish adaptation of "La Marquésita."

OTHER HOUSES.

The Théâtre Michel has included operette, farce, pantomime, and drama in its programme, but there is little worth recalling except Nozière's "Deux Visages," in which the author with advantage moderated his customary cynicism. Nozière's skits had the habit, like strong drinks, of burning the palate. Watered a little, they are quite palatable. Contrast on the stage, as in real life, is what is wanted, and certainly the man who never drops his cynicism would soon become a bore.

I must not omit mention of the handsomely re-built Apollo, where a French version of "The Merry Widow" has had a success due in part to its interpretation and not a little, of course, to the vogue the play was known to have had in London, America, and most of the capitals of Europe.

The standard of dramatic literature cannot, however, be said to have been raised by any of the plays produced at the Mévisto, the Grand Guignol, Les Escholiers, the Comédie-Royale, the Théâtre Molière, the Capucines, or the Athénée. In fact, Gaston Devore's "Page Blanche," produced at the Athénée, left an unpleasant impression in the mind, and he may be advised to return to his ordinary style. "Paris-Sport," at the Capucines, was a common-place vulgar revue, saved from failure by the clever acting of Louis Balthy. Otherwise the revues that have been given at Parisiana, the Folies-Bergères, and the better class of music halls have happily had their tone raised a little.

OBITUARY.

The obituary for the year has been a heavy one. Gone from us are the brothers Coquelin, Catulle Mendès, the composer Ernest Reyer, the singers Lassalle and Godard, Louis Decori, Georges Pellerin, Lina Mante (of "Assommoir" fame), Plessis, Alice Lavigne, the sociétaire Leloir, and Paul Clèves (the director of the Porte-St.-Martin).

THE AFTERNOON THEATRE.

During the year 1909 the following plays were presented by the Afternoon Theatre at His Majesty's:—

January 25. G. Bernard Shaw's "The Admirable Bashville" (originally produced by the Stage Society at the Imperial in 1903).

March 16. "The House of Bondage," play, in three acts, by Seymour Obermer.

May 14. "Light o' Love," drama, by Arthur Schnitzler, translated by G. Valentine Williams.

June 4. "The Dryad" and "Admiral Guinea."

June 22. "The Wreckers," opera, in three acts, by Ethel Smyth, book by H. B. Brewster.

November 11. "Pierrot and Pierrette," lyrical musical drama, in two acts, words by Walter E. Grogan, music by Joseph Holbrooke; and "The Tinker's Wedding," by J. M. Synge.

November 30. Mme. Lydia Yavorskaia (Princess Bariatinsky) and her Russian company gave the first of a series of performances with "La Dame Aux Camélias." "Ivan the Terrible" was given on the following Thursday, December 2, and "Hedda Gabler" on Tuesday, December 7. "The Stronger Woman," by August Strindberg, played in English with Lady Tree in the cast, on December 9, and "The Stronger Woman" and "Ivan the Terrible" on the following day.

ACTING IN AUSTRALIA.

BY EARDLEY TURNER.

AUSTRALIANS are—considering the meagre population of their country—the best theatre-goers in the world. Also—and I speak from a not inconsiderable experience of play-acting in the colonies—they are about the most critical. In American parlance “they want the goods.” If the “goods” are supplied to them the play will run till the entire play-going public has seen it. If, on the other hand, the performance does not attain to that quaint but desirable definition they will, after the first night (a “first-night” in Australia is an event at which everybody seems anxious to assist), stay away in their thousands. There is nothing the Australian prides himself on more than his independent point of view, and, no matter how well boomed an entertainment may be, if it is not to his taste he will not have it, and nothing on earth can make him have it.

This ultra-critical attitude is not so very surprising when one comes to think of it. A country that even in its young days had the privilege of seeing such players as Gustavus Brooke, Barry Sullivan, William Creswick, Walter Montgomery, and Edwin Booth, to mention only a few star tragedians, has had a fairly high-class standard in acting set up for it. Since those early days, be it remembered, the Colonies have had the very best plays—and many of the best players—that England and, of late years, America could supply. The rights of the successful pieces only are acquired for the Australian market—pieces that have already gained favour with audiences elsewhere. For, pending the coming of the native dramatist, there is no such thing as trying a piece on the “dog” in Australia.

ACCURATE AUSTRALIAN JUDGMENT.

This being understood, it will be granted that Australian taste, where the drama is concerned, should be a particularly cultured one. Therefore, it behoves the English actor or actress who contemplates a professional visit to the colonies to keep this fact well in mind. In my humble judgment the Australian appreciation of a player's talent is surprisingly accurate as a rule.

A land that, young as it is, has produced such great artists as Melba, Ada Crossley, and Amy Castles among singers, and Nellie Stewart, Marie Löhr, Edith Latymer, and Alice Crawford among actresses, may safely be allowed the possession of both artistic taste and critical acumen. Verbum sap.

The English actor, then, if he goes to Australia, and, giving the best that is in him, “makes good,” will have a very enjoyable experience. Should he join one of the organisations of the theatrical managements long established out there his work, though hard at first, will be performed under most agreeable conditions. To begin with, the climate is hard to beat. In the winter there is but little frost, no snow (except on the high mountainous ranges), while fog (that dreaded enemy of the English artist) is conspicuous by its absence. The summer is glorious beyond expression. Old Sol, like the hardy old public performer he is, never disappoints his audience in Australia. His season is always a brilliant success!

When the actor lands on these sunny shores he will be warmly welcomed by a hospitable people, and thereafter his work must speak for him.

REPERTORY WORK AND TOURING.

The actual work will be found very little different from that in England, with the exception that the long run (as experienced in London) is a thing unknown. In the big cities of Melbourne and Sydney—the population of which cities combined does not greatly exceed a million souls!—after six or seven weeks at the outside, the drawing power of most plays, however successful they may have been at home, will be exhausted; comic operas and pantomimes are the exceptions to this rule. But during the run all the playgoing public will have paid to see the pieces, and the theatre will have been practically full all the time. And although the prices of admission are lower than at home, full theatres all the time mean handsome profits. In the smaller cities of the Commonwealth shorter runs naturally obtain, but the business is uniformly good.

Imagine a big repertory company with a series of the latest London successes travelling around to the big cities of England, Scotland, and Ireland, and a fair idea will be gained of what touring in Australia is like; with the noteworthy exceptions that the journeys in the colonies are very much longer, and that the cities, when you come to them, are cleaner, fresher, and more cheerful as a rule. The people appear more prosperous; poverty, if there be any, is never in evidence. Repertory work, of course, calls for constant rehearsal, and it must be admitted that, especially at the outset, the newcomer will have very little spare time on his hands. But what would you? The average actor in England—I think he will agree with me—has too much spare time as a general rule.

After putting in six weeks of what is surely the complete lazy life on the liner that takes him out, a little hard work should be welcomed even for its own sake. There is nothing so tiring to the keen actor as “resting.”

BEAUTIFUL SYDNEY.

If the actor voyages right round on the ship to the port of Sydney (and I envy him the eye-opening experience of steaming up radiant Sydney harbour for the first time) he will arrive at a city which possesses some of the best-appointed and best-managed theatres in the world. Here are the headquarters of the famous firm of J. C. Williamson, hard by, and connected with the leading theatre, Her Majesty's. The imposing front of this playhouse is situated in Pitt Street, a compact and tremendously busy thoroughfare running right up from the Circular Quay (where passengers land) straight to the railway station—a distance of about a mile. Besides Her Majesty's there are the various other theatres: Theatre Royal (under the same management), Criterion, Palace, and many large-sized halls, given over nowadays to the inevitable kinematograph entertainments—for “pictures” have become part and parcel of the entertainment of Australia as of most countries on the globe. There are also two principal variety palaces, one of which, the Tivoli, managed by the ever-green Mr. Harry Rickards, has welcomed a great many of England's music hall stars. The other, the National, submits a programme which contains the names of home-grown artists only—and very smart and clever is the native variety artist, by the way.

THE LIVING IN SYDNEY.

Sydney, apart from being one of the most beautiful spots in the world, has also a well-won reputation for being, in the words of the English business manager, “a splendid show town.” Even in the hottest months of the year (and it can be hot in Sydney!) the theatres will be packed night after night with audiences keen and responsive to a high degree. The English actor on making his first bow may well make use of the time-worn quotation which he has doubtless at some time or other seen inscribed in a landlady's book, and murmur, “This is a home from home!” Which reminds one that a home, or at least lodgings, for the new chum are the first necessity.

Well, there are hotels and boarding-houses in plenty. Professional “diggings” as understood in the old country do not exist. This, to my mind, is hardly in the nature of a calamity. For the actor who does not know the country the best plan (and one frequently followed) is to put up at a decent hotel for a week or two, and meanwhile to look around for a boarding-house best suited to his particular requirements. First-class hotel accommodation in Sydney can be got for two and a half or three guineas a week, upwards, and the newcomer can have his choice of the Australia, Wentworth, Arcadia, or Tattersall's, where generally a special professional tariff will be quoted. Boarding-houses (any amount of them) can be got for twenty-five and thirty shillings weekly. These prices obtain in all other of the cities. The new arrival will find most things a little dearer in price than in England, more especially clothes—a most important item when the dressing of modern parts comes into consideration. Ordinary theatrical requisites, such as grease-paints, spirit-gum, soap, powder, etc., are easily procurable at a fraction or so over home prices. Wigs are considerably more expensive; but good wigs are expensive all the world over.

WORKING CONDITIONS IN THEATRES.

The theatres, commodious and comfortable in front, compare behind the scenes most favourably with those in the large towns at home. Dressing-room accommodation may be likened to Mercutio's wound—"It is enough—it will serve." Actors hardly acclimatised may be pardoned for feeling somewhat "cribbed, cabined, and confined" when the thermometer jumps to 95 degrees in the shade, but under cooler conditions the rooms are comfortable enough. The stages are for the most part roomy, and manned by working staffs which I affirm cannot be beaten anywhere. Indeed, I have never seen scenes (and in the very heaviest of productions) handled with such dexterity. The "productions" themselves are, by the way, in every respect quite equal to those of London. In fact, and to sum up, Australian theatres are run as efficiently as the race-tracks of the country, and those admittedly approach perfection.

TOURING AND DISTANCES.

The season in Sydney being ended (it may last only a few weeks or three or four months), a move must be made to another city of the Commonwealth, and this "move"—wherever the next town may be—will prove a pretty formidable affair, for the principal cities are very far apart in Australia. Distance is literally no object to the native; the vastness of his continent has never presented any difficulties to his exploration of it, and the actor-explorer will soon accept the long journeys quite as a matter of course. As I write, a little trip of three thousand miles or so is being taken by the J. C. Williamson pantomime company, viz., from Sydney (New South Wales) to Perth (West Australia)!

Say that Melbourne follows Sydney—as, of course, will very frequently happen. That means a train journey only of just on 600 miles. Leaving Sydney on a Thursday night at 8 o'clock (the popular night for starting a season in Australia is Saturday; an artist's first appearance and the commencement of his engagement in the country will therefore invariably date from that day), the traveller reaches Melbourne at 1 p.m. the next afternoon, having nice time for rest and a look round before the opening performance. The accommodation on the train, as also on all steamers provided by the management, is first-class on all occasions. Sleeping berths, if required, have to be paid for out of the actor's own pocket.

MELBOURNE AND ITS THEATRES.

The Melbourne theatres are, taking them all round, on a slightly larger scale than those of Sydney, as befits a city that boasts a slightly larger population. The principal are: Her Majesty's, Princess's (popularly known as the "Princess"), both of which are managed by the all-pervading J. C. Williamson firm; Theatre Royal (which is leased by the young but decidedly go-ahead firm of Clarke, Meynell, and Gunn, and is the firm's headquarters); the King's, a commodious and comparatively new playhouse, built for and run by Mr. William Anderson. There is also a smaller theatre, as its name implies, The Bijou; and close at hand the Rickards Music Hall, known in this city as the Opera House. All of these places of amusement are close to one another, being situated in Bourke Street (a broad and spacious thoroughfare at the top of which stand the Federal Houses of Parliament), or in streets that intersect it. There are, of course, many buildings devoted to picture shows—several of them having been specially built for that thriving class of entertainment.

MELBOURNE HOTEL ACCOMMODATION.

Hotel and boarding-house accommodation in Melbourne is extensive. The former may be selected from Menzies's (the popular rendezvous of the city, where most visiting "stars" put up; the esteemed proprietor's wife, as Miss Dorothy Vane, will be remembered by playgoers in England for her charming performances in comic opera under the D'Oyly Carte management), Scott's, Port Phillip Club, White Hart—all adjacent to the various theatres. To those actors who do not object to living some distance away from the scene of their daily labours the alluring seaside spot of St. Kilda may be recommended. It is a suburb three miles out of Mel-

The "king" of theatricals in Anstralia. Mr. Williamson went to Australia from America many years ago with Miss Maggie Moore, and opened in "Struck Oil," which was a huge success. Since then he has never looked back. He owns many theatres and has added to his theatrical enterprises until now he occupies a most unique position. A few months back the J. C. Williamson management had eight companies in Anstralia. Mr. Williamson's present partners are Mr. Tallis and Mr. Ramaciotti.

bourne, and can be reached by tram or train (single fare by either 3d.). Splendid accommodation is provided at the George Hotel, where at various times many of the leading theatrical lights have been guests; and there are boarding-houses of the best class in great number.

ADELAIDE.

On one travelling south another 500 miles Adelaide, the South Australian capital, is reached. Though probably not so far advanced in matters pertaining to the stage as either Melbourne or Sydney, Adelaide (the "city of churches," as it is termed) is just as appreciative of anything good. It boasts only one playhouse (the Theatre Royal), which is hired by the various managers as they require dates. Sharing terms, as understood in England, are rarely arranged for in Australia. There are the usual variety houses and picture shows. These latter are open on Sunday nights as well as weekdays, and are splendidly patronised. The prices are lowered for the occasion, admission being 1s. and 6d. At one hall I visited on a Sunday evening I was astonished to find that the entire music hall programme was gone through as on an ordinary night, the only difference being that the performers wore their everyday clothes. This struck me as supplying a curious commentary on the so-called "city of churches."

Hotels (near the theatre) are Black Bull, Criterion, and York—all comfortable and reasonable in tariff.

Having played in these three cities, the actor will acknowledge that he has had little to complain about; indeed, unless he be the veriest hypochondriac, he should enjoy every hour of his stay amid the beautiful surroundings that each boasts.

OTHER TOWNS.

Visits are invariably paid to the smaller towns also, no matter how big the attraction or how large the personnel of the company. These visits, taken en route to the capital cities, are for only two or three nights as a rule, a different piece in the repertory being played each evening. In New Zealand, it may here be mentioned, the actor must be prepared for a number of one-night stands; but the tour in the Dominion is, however, always a short one.

The player from England will be much interested in seeing some of the towns associated with the first great gold rush in Australia, such as Bendigo and Ballarat. He will marvel at the solidly built and well laid out appearance they present nowadays, remembering that it is only within an ordinary life-time that they have sprung up. On the outskirts are still to be seen the shafts of the gold mines—in Bendigo one of the deepest mines in the world is still working in the principal street, cheek by jowel with the town hall—while the city thoroughfares, with their electric trams, theatres, and hotels, are quite up to date. Here, too, in these golden cities, will be a chance for the observant actor to study some new and varied types of character on their native heath, so to speak, such as the miner, the "Swaggie" or "Sundowner," and the ancient Chinese who pitched their tents on the diggings in the old days, and whose encampment still remains.

Bendigo's theatre is named the Princess, and its principal hotels are the Shamrock, City Club, Royal Mail. Ballarat ("the city of statues" as well as gold mines) has for theatre Her Majesty's, and no better hotels are to be found in the Commonwealth than Craig's, the George, and Carlyon's. From 5s. to 10s. a day is the ordinary charge to professionals.

The general characteristics of all Australian cities do not vary much, many hundreds of miles though they may be apart. Thus Brisbane, Queensland's capital, may be said to resemble in various ways Perth, the capital of Western Australia, though the whole width of the vast Australian continent is between the two places. So having played in one city the actor thereafter feels quite at home in all, the same thing applying to New Zealand and Tasmania.

One has plenty to occupy one's mind on such an extensive tour—there is so much to do and so much to see. The work will prove the actor's versatility, and, given conscientiousness, will improve his acting, as the journeys and wanderings by the sea should improve his general health. All the actors in Australia have a bronzed skin and generally robust appearance as if they thoroughly enjoyed life.

"IMPORTED" ACTORS AND CRITICISM.

Wherever he goes he of the theatre can have a good time. Golf, cricket, yachting, and turf clubs open their hospitable doors to him, and though a small section of the Press cries out against the imported actor—not unnaturally arguing that the native article is quite capable of the best work—newspapers on the whole will be kind and generous to him wherever he appears. Criticisms in such journals as the "Sydney Morning Herald" or "Daily Telegraph" and a few others are scrupulously fair and honest, and will be held in esteem. The Melbourne newspapers—the "Age" and "Argus"—are likewise wonderfully well informed; indeed, these critics are real students of the drama, and their notices are quite unbiassed. But "there are others," though they need not trouble the artist who pleases his manager and his audiences. The critics naturally have a warm corner in their hearts for their own actors and actresses, but the English performer, though effort of his will be very keenly scrutinised and discussed, gets fair treatment on the whole.

The newspapers are read with avidity by all classes in the colonies, and the actor from home who is written about, say in Melbourne, will find—such is the curiosity of the native regarding anybody fresh from the mother country—that when he reaches Auckland, N.Z., he is already quite well known there by reputation.

There is one weekly journal in particular boasting an enormous circulation, which is to be found in every corner of Australasia—the Sydney "Bulletin." Never, I should say, has there existed a paper with such fearlessly independent views. A notice therein for the actor therefore, good or bad, may be depended upon to be the genuine expression of the writer's opinion, and the English artist may be accounted fortunate and deserving indeed if he or she is accorded a line of praise. I may confess that personally I am very pleased when the "Bulletin" does not slate me.

AUSTRALIAN ACTORS.

Although the Australian dramatist has not yet arisen (I have no wish to do the most excellent native writers of melodrama an injustice by this remark), it cannot be gainsaid that there are many sound and clever all-round artists to be found among the native-born actors—if an imported actor may venture an opinion. The portraits of some of the better known, which may be taken as representative, performers of to-day are reproduced.

AUSTRALIAN MANAGERS.

Turning to the managers who have done, and are still doing, so much for theatrical art in the colonies, first honours naturally fall to Mr. J. C. Williamson, head of the world-renowned firm that bears his name. Since Mr. Williamson first arrived in Australia with the felicitously named play "Struck Oil," playgoers have been provided by him with every kind of attraction—the very best that money and astute management could procure. Australians are greatly indebted to him for the quality of their amusement; the name of J. C. Williamson on the bill is a guarantee that the entertainment will be of the highest class. No money is spared, nothing is scamped, in any Williamson production, while the firm's staff of lieutenants in every department, though thoroughly business-like, are kind and courteous to all.

Next to Mr. Williamson, the oldest manager in Australia is Mr. Bland Holt, a son of the well-known English actor-manager, the late Mr. Clarence Holt. Mr. Holt's productions are always on the colossal, Drury Lane scale; indeed, he has staged most of the big Drury Lane successes. He personally is one of the biggest favourites in the colonies, both as manager and actor, as well as being one of the most respected of men. His company form always a big "draw." Some members of it have been under the one management for twenty years, and no happier engagement were possible.

Mr. William Anderson is a native manager of a later date who is also very successful as a purveyor of sound melodrama, in which his wife (Miss Eugenie Duggan) is a popular "star." Mr. Anderson's ventures are many, and uniformly well supported by the public. He always has one or two companies on the road, and is the lessee and manager of several theatres and other places of amusement.

The firm of Clarke, Meynell, and Gunn, though it has only been established about five years, has unquestionably made its mark. Mr. Clyde Meynell is an Englishman who has had a large experience of theatrical management in his native country. Unfortunately, Mr. John Gunn succumbed to pneumonia at the early age of forty on October 20, 1909. Sir Rupert Clarke is the other surviving partner.

THE AUSTRALIAN STAGE.

BY DUNCAN NEVEN

Dramatic Critic "Sunday Times" and "Referee," Sydney, Australia.

THE Australian stage occupies rather a unique position in many ways. Its attractions to English artists appear to be many, judging by the way Australian managers, or representatives of managers, are besieged in London with applicants when they are there. But naturally many of these are totally unsuited for the requirements of the Australian stage, for out here an artist, in whatever sphere of work he or she may be in, requires to be versatile in a more or less degree, and much more so than the average English artist. Australia is a huge continent, for the most part scantily populated; but in the capital of each State there is a large population. Consequently, though comparatively long runs do obtain in Melbourne and Sydney, the requirements of management and the demands of the public necessitate change. We are given to understand in Australia that in England the majority of the actors and actresses are one-part artists, and this statement is confirmed by the interviews with a number of the principal artists imported. Whether this be a case of "talk" or not is not very material, but the fact remains Australian is a very poor field for a one-part actress. A striking instance of this was given recently. A lady who was specially imported for a certain small repertory achieved unbounded success in the opening production; but in the next, a play of a different nature, she was decidedly badly suited. It was manifest that she had made a close study of one class of acting, and had not versatility.

NECESSITY FOR VERSATILITY.

The necessity for versatility in Australia is thus at once apparent if an artist wishes to maintain a fairly even standard in several pieces. Thus English artists with an eye on Australia should cultivate versatility. Reports from England, on the other hand, announce the success of a number of Australians because of their general usefulness as it might be called. After several years on the Australian stage an artist finds it an easy matter to adapt himself to the conditions in England.

Whilst recognising the difficulties that managers must be occasioned in selecting artists in England for Australia, it must be admitted that some of those imported in recent years do not come up to the standard we might reasonably look for. It is a well-worn saying now that Australians are a critical people when dealing with their theatrical fare, and in the main the statement is perfectly true. The Australians regard the theatrical amusements as part of their pleasure, not merely as a means of filling in an evening, and it is therefore natural that they should expect something good. In this way patrons follow the careers of individual artists, and the profession generally with a good deal of interest, and are not slow to appreciate good acting when they see it. An artist is expected to give of the best, and hardly any more need be said on this score. To many visiting artists the Australians appear an unappreciative audience, but this is not so. One artist asked a number of friends what they thought of such and such a performance. It happened to be a very good company and piece, but he was somewhat shocked because the reply he received was "Not too bad." This, however, I think is a typical Australian mode of expression in connection with the average play. It must not be supposed, however, that visiting artists are coldly received; on the other hand, they are at once hailed gladly; it remains with themselves whether they will improve or lessen the good feeling shown at an opening.

AUSTRALIAN TASTE.

I am asked to state what class of theatrical fare the Australians prefer. It is rather a difficult matter to express any decided opinion. We live on a big continent, and tastes may differ as widely. But in the main one would be within the mark in stating that a good musical piece would receive a warm welcome anywhere, while with the masses melodrama, well staged, can always command large audiences. The people as a whole love music, and when the piece is beautifully staged, with some good "relief" element in it, there is always a large welcome for it. Judged by "Peter Pan" fairy plays here are a failure, for this production was magnificently staged in Sydney, but the business was poor, and it was never toured.

SUCCESS OF PANTOMIME.

For many years we were without a good pantomime, but during the last few years we have been catered for again by Australian managers, and with so much success that each has proved a gigantic success. Three years ago Mr. J. C. Williamson gave "Mother Goose," and throughout the Commonwealth it achieved great success. Spectacularly it was magnificent, but it departed from the old pantomime, in that it was made particularly bright by special features. This was followed by "Humpty Dumpty," which was again a success; and then we were given "Jack and Jill," all on a scale of magnificence never before seen in Australia, and it is doubtful if better scenic effects were seen in England. In 1908 also the firm of Clarke, Meynell, and Gunn entered the field of pantomime, and gave Australia "Cinderella," and their inaugural production was so successful in Melbourne that it broke the world's record by running constantly in Melbourne from December, 1908, to April of this year. Its subsequent tour of the Commonwealth has been a huge success, as has that of "Jack and Jill." Both these pantomimes are still touring, nine months after their initial production. Melbourne generally opens the pantomime season at the end of December, and Sydney receives it about Easter, so that the greater heat of Sydney at Christmas might be avoided. It will thus be seen that pantomime artists can be assured of permanent employment all the year round for the tour of the Commonwealth is generally just finished in time for rehearsals to take place for the next production.

DRAMA AND ITS FOLLOWING.

The drama here has a great following. The romantic and period drama, as played by the company headed by Mr. Julius Knight, an English actor, who has proved a remarkable draw here in recent years, appears to appeal to all classes, and the Williamson management has achieved great success with this class of production. The dramas are, generally speaking, magnificently mounted, every detail of the period being well thought out and presented. Mr. Bland Holt, an Australian, is recognised as the "King" of melodrama in Australia, and his productions are generally a replica of the magnificent spectacles witnessed in England at Drury Lane. Mr. William Anderson is the other great caterer for melodrama audiences in Australia, and he runs Mr. Holt very closely in scenic effects, while his companies always maintain a good standard in acting. These managers secure the latest London and New York melodrama successes and stage them in Australia on the same scale of magnificence, better if possible, with the consequence that they command enormous patronage. These plays are undoubtedly money makers, and, well done, always appeal to the masses.

The production of plays in Australia has reached a very high standard. Take, for instance, the J. C. Williamson management. There is a huge permanent staff constantly employed in all departments of production, while outside aid is enlisted on many occasions. The firm's own staff designs and makes all that is necessary for the many big productions, and a Williamson production can always be depended upon to be on a scale of magnificence that one cannot find fault with. In fact, many artists and others visiting Australia state that the productions here eclipse those in England in very many cases. The Williamson management possess a wonderful organisation gradually built up with many years' experience of Australian conditions and wants. Of course, this may be said to be due, or, on the other hand, it may not, to the fact that there are no large firms here making a speciality of supplying theatrical goods as is done in London. Hence the necessity for some such organisation. I am only instancing the Williamson firm, for without doubt Mr. J. C. Williamson occupies a pre-eminent place in Australia's amusement affairs.

THE AUSTRALIAN STAGE.

Talma.

MISS NELLIE STEWART.

A brilliant actress who is one of the greatest "draws" in Australia. Miss Stewart is an Australian and one of a family of theatrical artists. One of her most famous impersonations is the title-rôle, in "Sweet Nell of Old Drury," in which she was supported by Harcourt Beatty. She recently appeared in Shakespeare for the first time as Rosalind. Miss Stewart has acted in England.

THE AUSTRALIAN STAGE.

MISS ROSE MUSGROVE.

[Talma.

A talented Australian who for many years was associated with Mr. J. C. Williamson's Musical Organisations. She has latterly been appearing with the Hugh Ward company. Miss Musgrove has portrayed successfully a number of varied rôles.

THE AUSTRALIAN STAGE.

MR. WALTER BAKER.

[Talma.]

The Will Terriss of Australia. Now playing lead in one of Mr. William Anderson's dramatic companies. For many years he was associated with Mr. Bland Holt as juvenile lead, and is regarded as one of Australia's best actors in melodrama.

THE AUSTRALIAN STAGE.

MR. GREGAN McMAHON,

A native of New South Wales, who has a long list of successes to his credit. Originally playing in light-comedy rôles, he has of late broadened his method, and has appeared in many strong character parts, of which he has given very scholarly and admirable renderings.

MISS BEATRICE HOLLOWAY.

A charming young actress who has recently been playing lead in dramatic companies. She is the daughter of the late Mr. Charles Holloway, who occupied a prominent place on the Australian Dramatic Stage for so many years. Miss Holloway, though young, has shown that she possesses great talent for the stage.

THE AUSTRALIAN STAGE.

MR. HARRY ROBERTS.

[Talma.

A young Australian actor who has appeared in London and America with great success, especially in the latter country, where he made a name for himself in Shakespearean and other high-class works. Mr. Roberts played in "The Prince Chap" in London. He has recently been appearing in Australia once more by arrangement with Clarke, Meynell, and Gunn. He is a very versatile actor.

INCREASING MANAGERMENTS, LACK OF THEATRES.

The theatrical business in Australia is in the hands of a few managers, but an increase has been apparent in recent years and there appears to be room for all, the only drawback being the lack of sufficient theatres in the larger centres. For many years Mr. J. C. Williamson provided near and far for all classes, except in vaudeville. Brough and Boucicault and the late Herbert Fleming also for many years gave Australia the best kind of theatrical fare that they could command. During the last few years Meynell and Gunn have come into the field. The firm is really headed by Sir Rupert Clarke, the well-known Victorian, and Mr. Clyde Meynell and *Mr. John Gunn are the managing directors. For a time Mr. John Wren was also a partner, but Sir Rupert Clarke recently purchased his interests in the firm. Thus the J. C. Williamson management, Clarke, Meynell, and Gunn, and in a lesser degree Mr. Allan Hamilton, Mr. Edwin Geach, Mr. George Marlow, and Mr. Hugh Ward (who makes periodical visits), and Mr. Anderson and Mr. Holt, already mentioned in the melodramatic field, are the principal caterers for Australia's productions.

LACK OF AUSTRALIAN AUTHORS.

It is fitting at this stage to refer briefly to Australian drama. It is perhaps a reflection on us that we have not authors of our own who are considered sufficiently good by Australian managers to have their works produced. A number of Australian works by local authors have been accepted and produced in other parts of the world, but here native works are few and far between. And it is in the field of melodrama that our authors of late especially have had the greatest encouragement. "Robbery Under Arms," by Rolf Boldrewood, and adapted by Alfred Dampier, was one of the first of the big Australian successes, and this melodrama, brimful of sensational episodes of the early bushranging life of Australia, has achieved remarkable success here, and even at present when revived by a capable company can always command good patronage. This piece was staged by Mr. Alfred Dampier in London some years ago. Then within recent years Mr. Anderson has staged "The Squatter's Daughter," by Bert Bailey and Edmund Duggan, two good melodrama actors playing with Mr. Anderson's company. The latter is also a brother to Miss Eugénie Duggan (Mrs. W. Anderson), a lady who has achieved great success in these Australian and other melodramas. Then Mr. Bland Holt has latterly given us "The Great Rescue," a typical Australian story adapted from Lincoln J. Carter's story "Bedford's Hope." These three are Australian from head to foot. The first is a tale of the bush, the second also smells throughout of the gum tree and the eucalyptus, and there is introduced into it some fine Australian scenery, with sheep shearing and wood chopping competitions, while the last mentioned is a fine mining story. "The Great Rescue" contains two of the finest sensation scenes ever seen on the Australian stage. A miner cut off through an inflow of water into the tunnel of the mine for a number of days and eventually rescued by a diver, a true incident, which occurred in West Australia, is introduced into "The Great Rescue," and there is also a sensational race between a motor-car and train. Then Mr. J. Smith, of Melbourne, has lately come into the field with another melodrama entitled "A Miner's Rescue." This piece, too, has achieved a good deal of success. Within the last few weeks Mr. Anderson has also staged another Australian drama called "White Australia" or "The Empty North," written by Randolph Bedford. This piece is something after the style of "An Englishman's Home," excepting that it points the danger to Australians of their vast northern lands being left unoccupied, and further that it has more life and sensation in it than the English piece. Mr. Anderson has just staged another melodrama by Mr. J. Smith called "The Bushwoman," which deals with life in the interior of Australia.

EARLIER AUSTRALIAN PLAYS.

These are the more recent successful Australian productions emanating from Australian brain and dealing principally with Australian life and conditions. But reference to the more notable authors, or what may be termed the earlier period of our stage, will prove interesting. In musical productions the hand of J. C. Williamson is seen fairly strongly. In conjunction with Bert Royle Mr. Williamson was responsible for "Djin Djin," the music being by Leon Carron and George Pack. "Australis" is also by Mr. Williamson and Bernard Espinasse, and "Matsa" is by Mr. Williamson and Bert Royle. "Parsifal," one of the most gorgeous productions Australia has seen, is by an Australian, the Rev. Hillhouse Taylor, who also had Mr. Williamson's assistance. Arthur Adams and Mr. Williamson were also responsible for "Tapu," a New Zealand story, in which there were introduced a number of pretty New Zealand scenes of Maori life. The music was by Arthur Hill. Mr. Hill, too, is composer of the music of "The Moorish Maid," the librettos of which were written by John Youlin Birch, also a New Zealander. The latter, in conjunction with "Mr. Humphries" (Dr. Lowe), also of New Zealand, has written several other musical pieces, but so far they have only been performed by amateur companies with the aid of a few professionals, and toured New Zealand. Advice has been received that efforts are being made to have "The Moorish Maid" produced in London. This New Zealand piece was a success when professionally produced in Australia.

THE FIELD OF BURLESQUE.

In the field of burlesque the late Mr. Akhurst was the more prominent author, and he has left several burlesques to his credit. In pantomime themes, too, we have been fairly productive in the past. Montague Grover achieved a good deal of success with his pantomime "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast"; while Garnet Walch met with success some years ago with several of his pantomimes. Patrick Finn, another Australian, at present in Sydney, is responsible for the librettos of several musical comedies and pantomimes.

DRAMAS AND THEIR WRITERS.

But it is drama that has most appealed to the Australian mind. Walter H. Cooper, a barrister, of Sydney, is generally regarded as the "father" of the Australian drama. Among the pieces he has written may be mentioned "Colonial Experience," "Foiled," "Hazard," and "Sun and Shadow." Bernard Espinasse, besides his incursion into music, is responsible for several dramas, among which may be mentioned a version of his own of "The Three Musketeers," "Her Good Name," and an adaptation of "Sappho." Garnet Walch has also written a couple of dramas besides his dip into pantomime, as has also P. Finn. Alfred Dampier, now deceased, and one of our best actors of the past, dramatised a number of Australian stories, the more noteworthy being the great successes "Robbery Under Arms," already mentioned, and Marcus Clarke's "For the Term of His Natural Life." George Darrell, another ornament of Australia's dramatic stage, now retired, has also used his pen and knowledge of the stage to advantage in writing several Australian dramas, including "The Sunny South," and dramatising several Australian stories. Julian Thomas, a noted Australian journalist of his time, also wrote several dramas; while Lewis Scott is the author of a number of others, including "Ostracised," dealing with the doings of the celebrated Kelly gang. Then throughout Mr. Bland Holt's lengthy career on the Australian stage this actor-manager has been responsible for a number of adaptations of dramas to Australian ideas and conditions, the more noticeable, perhaps, being "The Great Rescue" and "The Breaking of the Drought"—the latter from one of Arthur Shirley's dramas. These plays are hopeful beginnings, and when Australian managers can see their way to risk something—for there is risk in staging an unknown author, even though he be an Australian—there should be a new era dawn in Australian theatrical affairs. It will be noted that most of these are melodramas, and, although good of their type, it must be admitted that the Australian managers fight shy of comedy plays, which are generally staged by the local amateur clubs. There have been several cases where "foreign stars" have been infected with the idea of writing an Australian drama from what they had seen or heard of life here, the late Wilson Barrett, with his "Never Never Land"—which, however, was never produced here—being among them.

THE FOREIGN MARKET.

It must not be supposed, however, that there is any dearth in theatrical authorship in Australia, but managers have so come to regard London and New York as places in which to look for their plays that the Australian is apt to be overlooked. One must admit that the theatre nowadays is a business concern, and while the managers' desire is to please the people, their great aim is to make money. But the most depressing fact is that the managers should be compelled to go abroad for their plays, as they say they are. Managers receive quite a number of plays by Australians, but they complain that they are unstageable, as do managers in other countries with unknown authors. Surely out of the great number they receive Australian managers should be able to find a few plays which, even though they did require some alteration—and what play does not?—would "make good" here. Many of the plays imported have really no artistic or intellectual value in themselves, and are entirely "foreign" to Australia in their application. Many of these plays have interest for a limited section of the people only. They would be all right in their way occasionally to give Australians a glimpse of life elsewhere and an insight to the tastes of theatregoers in other lands; but they are supplied to us for our breakfast, lunch, and dinner here by most managers. The greatest condemnation of the present system lies, perhaps, in the fact that several Australian plays have been sent to England, have been accepted and staged. These, truly, did not deal entirely with Australia, but surely if an English manager thinks them good enough, some chance should be given them in Australia.

SHAKESPEARE AN INCREASING SUPPLY.

For some time past we in Australia have had complaints from a large number of theatregoers that they have not been catered for with the better class of play, particularly with Shakespeare. Up till some months ago we had not had any Shakespearean production worth recalling for ten years. Recently, however, Miss Margaret Anglin, the American star, revived "Taming of the Shrew" and "Twelfth Night" with success. Miss Anglin was followed by the return of Mr. Walter Bentley, who achieved a great success with "Hamlet," though the scenery was poor; but Mr. Bentley's acting proved superb in the principal rôle. Then, most important of all, we have had return to Australia Mr. Oscar Asche and his wife, Miss Lily Brayton, and their complete Shakespearean company from England for a brief tour. This is undoubtedly the most notable event that has occurred in Australia's theatrical history, and reminds one of Sir Henry Irving's initial tour of America. Mr. Asche is a native of Australia, but his enthusiastic receptions have been more on account of his brilliant success in the rôles he has given us and the good acting of his company than because he is an Australian. The Premier of Victoria, the Chief Justice, the University Professors and Chancellor, and other such important bodies have welcomed Mr. Asche and Miss Brayton, and spoken in eulogistic terms of the revival of Shakespeare, and expressed the hope that it is the dawn of a new era in Australian theatrical fare. The tour is under the direction of Clarke, Meynell, and Gunn, who have been well repaid for their enterprise. Then Miss Nellie Stewart recently played in Sydney "As You Like It" for the first time on any stage here, the production being gorgeous in the extreme and capably acted. These revivals have awakened interest in Shakespeare all over Australia.

A REPERTORY THEATRE.

A movement recently started in Victoria for the establishment of a Repertory Theatre. The question has been taken up by a number of the most influential and wealthy people, and the initial meeting was presided over by Victoria's Chief Justice. The meeting decided to raise £4,000, and Mr. J. C. Williamson intimated that so soon as this sum was forthcoming he would join with the promoters. Nothing definite, however, has been announced as this article leaves Australia. The object the promoters have in view is to produce the best class of plays, and also to assist Australian authors. Miss Madge McIntosh, recently in Australia, associated herself with the movement, and promised her services to forward it while in England. It is intended to engage a few of the principals from England, and then to train Australians as opportunity offers. The promoters of this repertory theatre scheme allege that the stage in Australia has sunk to "turgid melodrama, foolish farces, and inane musical comedy." Australia is not the only country whose stage has sunk to this level. I do not attempt to plead for the "turgid melodrama," etc., but simply record that the managers are well supported by the masses in producing the entertainment they do at present. Besides the production of Shakespeare and old comedies, plays by the more modern writers, such as Shaw, Ibsen, Galsworthy, Granville Barker, and others, will be staged. Should plays by Australians be forthcoming these will also be produced, and thus this project will help, it is expected, to bring about the birth of a national drama. It may appear a striking commentary that no Australian manager has yet given us any of Shaw's plays.

NATIONAL OPERA.

A project that deserved success was the formation of what was known as the "National Opera Company," backed up by Mr. John Wren, of Melbourne. Mr. Wren spent a lot of money, and had a manager in England selecting artists for the company in Australia. The idea of the promoter was that this company should be the training ground for eligible Australians, and that when these Australians had reached a sufficiently high standard and had been taught their business they should replace the imported artists, and so eventually form a purely Australian company. The repertory of the company was to be principally old English operas and the best of modern operatic works. But "the" great aim of the promoter was to train Australians to take the place of imported artists on our operatic stage. Unfortunately, the commencement was inauspicious, for the leading artists, with one or two exceptions, failed to reach anything like a decent standard, and Mr. Wren, after supporting the company for some months, decided, with a good deal of reluctance, to relinquish the idea. The company opened in Melbourne, and then came to Sydney. The latter season was better than that at Melbourne, for it had the aid of some foreign artists. The mounting of the pieces was magnificent, Mr. George Musgrove's beautiful settings leaving nothing to be desired in this respect. Mr. Wren intimated at the time that he would probably revive the project later, but, seeing that he has since sold out of the firm of Clarke, Meynell, and Gunn, the probability does not appear rosy—more's the pity for Australia.

THE VAUDEVILLE STAGE.

The vaudeville stage in Australia plays an important part in our life of entertainment, and it has a great attraction for English and American artists, for Mr. Harry Rickards, who has been aptly termed the "Napoleon of vaudeville in the Antipodes" has fresh artists arriving in Australia almost weekly from England and America. Visiting artists should guard against prolonging their "turns" at the various centres too long, as the audiences get tired of having the same stuff drummed into them. One comedian in Sydney gave the same turn for thirteen weeks! An English artist of standing explained to me that an artist in England can "make good" in one turn and play it on circuit, with a week at each centre, for almost a year, and then get another turn ready and do the same round provided conditions are favourable. Such a condition of affairs cannot possibly exist in Australia where the artists only play at the large centres in most cases in four of the States. I would strongly advise vaudeville artists coming to Australia to get ready several turns and give changes at intervals. They would be the better able to judge when they landed how long such a turn was likely to go, and if their opening turn did not appeal they would have something ready to secure their desired success. It is infinitely better for an artist to score than merely to fill a place on a programme, especially when he or she comes from England. As an instance I would recall a recent case where a lady gave a turn in Sydney and Melbourne, which we were told was the "rage of London" for a season. The turn simply went flat, and nothing could lift it up for an Australian audience. Yet this artist persisted with this turn to the end of her season, managerial arrangements presumably not being able to accommodate her elsewhere. Versatility is the thing that should be aimed at, and acts with plenty of go and bright features appeal here. For many years Mr. Harry Rickards had a monopoly of vaudeville in the principal centres, but within years others have come into the field. Mr. Rickards has a circuit embracing Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, Perth, and Kalgoorlie, and once a year he sends a company of selected artists, generally headed by a star such as Cinquevalli or Chung Ling Soo, through New Zealand. Occasionally he lends an imported artist to Mr. Ted Holland in Brisbane.

Apart from Mr. Rickards, Mr. James Brennan is the other big vaudeville manager in Australia, and he has a circuit covering Sydney, Melbourne, Newcastle, and Adelaide, while many of the artists engaged by this management also go to Mr. Holland. Mr. Brennan started out with simply employing Australian talent, but latterly his success has been such that he has engaged American and English vaudeville artists. Mr. Ted Holland, in Brisbane, has a house running with vaudeville all the year round, and he sends companies on tours of northern Queensland, a large district much favoured by the smaller fry also. Up till twelve months ago Messrs. John Fuller and Sons, who have theatres of their own in each of the principal centres (four) in New Zealand, ran vaudeville, but the picture boom has displaced the variety programme for twelve months, and consequently there has been rather a surplus lot of vaudeville artists for some months. Many of these have organised companies among themselves and toured the country districts. Messrs. Fuller and Sons, however, have just made the announcement that they intend resuming vaudeville at Christmas, and this will relieve the ranks considerably and widen the field once more. One of the members of the Fuller firm is at present touring the world, and it is understood that some arrangement will be come to with an Australian manager for the importation of foreign artists who will make a circuit in Australia and then do the Fuller tour in New Zealand.

CHORUSES AND BALLETS.

It would not be appropriate to conclude this article without reference to the Australian choruses and ballets. Taken on an average the Australian chorus and ballet girls are difficult to surpass. Their qualifications are not merely to look well, but also to be able to sing and dance well. Managers do not experience much difficulty in securing recruits to their banners, so plentifully is Australia equipped in this direction. Their physical advantages are also splendid; in fact, they might be called ideal girls in every way for the work they are called upon to do.

AMATEURS.

Amateur dramatic and musical societies occupy a prominent place in our social life. But apart from this aspect, these societies do good work through introducing to the public at intervals some of the better class works of the older and some of the modern authors, and also our "budding authors." In Sydney and Melbourne especially these societies are very strong, and though some of their performances do not reach a remarkably high standard, still they are sufficiently good to whet one's appetite for the productions to be given by a professional company. Very often, too, a promising actor or actress is unearthed, and many on the Australian stage to-day, and some of those who have gone abroad and done well, owe their start to one of these societies.

LACK OF ONE-ACT PLAYS

The curtain-raiser has not been seriously introduced into Australian theatres. With "An Englishman's Home" the J. C. Williamson management introduced a curtain-raiser because of the shortness of the main piece.

CENSOR : THE PUBLIC.

Censorship of plays is unknown in Australia as you know of it in England, one reason perhaps being that most of our productions are procured from England or elsewhere abroad. But here the public are the great judges, and the management must bow to their verdict in every case.

PICTURES.

A word, too, may be given to the picture entertainments. It is recognised here that this industry is still only in its infancy, and that with the further development of mechanical appliances, the possibilities cannot at present be adequately foreseen. At any rate, there were not more than twenty picture shows in Australia eight years ago; now there are over 500. West's have a permanent show in each centre of the Commonwealth and New Zealand, while Mr. C. Spencer, of the Sydney Lyceum, has a big connection with hiring, etc., while he conducts permanent shows in Sydney, Melbourne, and Adelaide. There are a number of smaller people running shows in the capitals of the States and country districts.

THE THEATRICAL YEAR IN GERMANY.

BY FRANK E. WASHBURN FREUND.

THE various tendencies followed by the modern German dramatists in their works were described in these pages last year. It will be understood, then, that no new trend has to be recorded, except perhaps a stronger leaning towards the play with a pronounced tendency on the one hand and to the problem play on the other. Such "tendency" plays are sometimes of a political nature or have social or moral ethics for their theme, whilst the problem plays—sometimes by the hand of fine essayists or similar writers—treat certain philosophical subjects often in a poetical and sometimes even original way. The preference for old comedies of the post-classical period has remained as strong as last year, at least in Berlin, and seems to show an attempt at getting away from the hard daily struggle of the present and back to the good old days when the American "hustle" and its proverb, "Time is money," were unknown. As before, foreign countries—England, France, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Russia—have been drawn upon, and have had to contribute largely to the play-bill. Germany's own harvest in new pieces has been plentiful in quantity, but by no means great in quality nor even in "drawing" power.

HAUPTMANN AND SUDERMANN.

Hauptmann and Sudermann, the two prominent figures of the "New Movement," which has gone on now for twenty years, in German dramatic literature, have both made their contributions, the one having rung in the year with a new play, the other having rung it out. During the twenty years both have developed according to their gifts. Hauptmann was ever the poet, nourished and strengthened by contact with Mother Earth even when he erred, for his mistakes generally arose through his getting too far out of touch with her; and Sudermann was always the gifted writer and born playwright who, with his youthful temperament, fashioned after the old French pattern, went off into new tracks (in "Die Ehre," etc.) in the early days of the movement, and won for it an apparent triumph. But his temperament gradually changed into a routine which has seldom failed him.

Hauptmann's latest work, "Griselda," deals with the old Griseldis legend, as told by Boccaccio. Of course, Hauptmann had to make many changes before he could use the simple story of the sufferings of the gentle peasant girl whom a Prince married, robbed of her children, and finally chased away in order to test her obedience to him. Its ethics—the slave-like obedience of the wife—are even still more primitive than those of Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew." Hauptmann, therefore, has sought to explain the actions of the Prince on psychological grounds, and changes Griseldis from a patient sufferer into a handsome but strong-willed peasant woman. Both find happiness at last after their rough edges have been worn smooth in the school of suffering, and they are ripe for each other. Beginning and end are rightly conceived, but the way from the one to the other—that is, the development of the piece—seems highly challengeable, because it is arbitrary, and does not spring naturally from the necessities of the theme. The Prince's behaviour towards Griseldis is attributed to his jealousy of the child that is about to be born to them; he wants alone to possess Griseldis' love! Such a case is, of course, possible, but grafted on to this particular legend quite destroys its delicate flavour as well as its poetry, which must not be confounded with cheap romance. Instead of a well-built drama, which gradually develops and unfolds itself till it reaches the great climax, there are only ten "genre" scenes, one of which—where the Prince, in wild anger, awaits the news of the birth of his child—has a most painful effect. The language is peculiar, reminding one of the sharp lines of a woodcut, and is intentionally dry. The work has not been an entire success. For some time Hauptmann has given up treating present-day subjects, the only ones which appeal to him now being the eternal, never-changing questions and problems of mankind. The themes he seeks are those which, as Otto Ludwig, a dramatist of great aims of the middle of the nineteenth century, expressed it, can happen everywhere and nowhere, always and never. If without vague symbolism he can succeed in transferring such themes to his native land and imbuing them with the breath of the soil, he will yet achieve a great work. It must only be allowed time to ripen within him.

Sudermann's new piece, "Strandkinder," was given in the Berlin Hoftheater, where, with it, his name appeared for the first time in the repertory. Very probably this is the hand of Dr. Paul Lindau, who, in spite of his seventy years, is still hale and hearty, and as chief producer of the Hoftheater has for the last twelve months been actively and successfully engaged in enlarging and strengthening its repertory on various sides. "Strandkinder" is the name for the wild inhabitants of the shores of the Baltic Sea—its product, as it were—in the dark Middle Ages, and so also are called their prey, the prisoners of sea fights and the survivors of wrecks planned by the cruel shore dwellers. In this play Sudermann's imagination has painted us a highly coloured picture of rough primitive passions, full of murder, wild hatred, and hot love, somewhat in the style of Wildenbruch. Every act has a great climax, and therefore the play seems to promise a success with the public.

ERNST VON WILDENBRUCH.

Dr. Lindau has also brought out in the Berlin Hoftheater the late E. von Wildenbruch's "Lieder des Euripides" and his posthumous work, "Der Deutsche König," the latter being left as a legacy to his countrymen. All the poet's weaknesses are evident in this latter work; his faulty psychology, his high-sounding rhetoric, his superficial treatment of great motives; and it has only found favour because of the patriotic spirit which runs through it. It is different with "Die Lieder des Euripides." They represent the best that Wildenbruch has done. They form a kind of portrait by himself wrung with pain from his own soul. Euripides is himself as he would have liked to be—to be loved and admired. An army of Athenians has been beaten by the people of Syracuse, but their prisoners are spared because they sing the songs of Euripides, and their captors hear in them with delight the poetry of their own tongue and the memories of their childhood. Then Euripides himself comes and prevails on the victors to set the captive Athenians free; if that is not done, the poet swears he will be silent for ever. And in this noble work, full of warm feeling and pulsing rhythms, there is one line of true greatness. "Who says I sing only for the Athenians?" asks Euripides, as one of the prisoners, his countryman, on being commanded to sing Athenian songs in honour of the victors, throws the lyre in the dust, declaring that Euripides belongs only to the Athenians. Euripides lifts up the lyre. He, the poet of mankind, belongs to the whole world. Such a poet Wildenbruch had sometimes dreamt of being, but it was not granted to him. He was ever the servant of his gifts, never their master. He allowed his noble and glowing temperament to run riot instead of reining it in and making it do his bidding. He saw single scenes of picturesque splendour, but never a well-knit whole; he saw single features of his figures, which he often allowed to grow to phantastic dimensions, but never rounded, surely drawn human characters, so that, after the first enthusiasm, they leave us cold, and his phrases sound empty. Nevertheless, his gifts were great, and his "Songs of Euripides" would perhaps be appreciated here, too, if given in a fine and free translation. Lindau gave himself up to the work of producing this play with loving piety, and the result produced a wonderful impression.

HISTORICAL AND POETIC PLAYS.

German history has appealed to several other writers. A young Viennese, Rudolf Holzer, has taken for the theme of his drama the story of "Kohlhase," which Kleist utilised for a novel. Kohlhase is a merchant of Luther's time—Luther himself comes into the story—from whom a nobleman in a fit of insolence unlawfully takes two horses. Kohlhase first seeks redress from the young lord in court, and when it is refused him becomes a kind of outlaw, like Robin Hood, attacks villages and even towns with his band, and is finally executed. The theme treated here is the feeling of injured justice. Right is right, and must remain so. This work was brought out in Weimar, but had only a succès d'estime. The very difficult material was not thoroughly mastered by the author, and where he took a different road from Kleist it was not to the advantage of the piece. Nor is he entirely successful in the way he uses the old language either; side by side with rugged, honest talk can be found speeches that are out of the picture.

In "Der letzte Streich der Königin von Navarra" the author, Johannes Raff, has made use of a French story. The play shows great weaknesses, but has great aims and some capability. Its theme is the eternal uncertainty of love, the growing fear that the call of the blood is the strongest, that happiness would be thrown to the winds in order to enjoy the compelling passion of an hour.

For some years a number of Renaissance and other dramas by Wilhelm Weigand have been appearing in book form without being performed. Now, however, his "Lorenzino" has been given in Breslau. It is an ambitious piece on a subject which has often been treated: the tragic fate of Lorenzino, who, in order to save the city of Florence, murdered his cousin, Alexandro de Medici. But the piece lacks the human note. All the characters stand for an abstract quality, and only that, and the whole gives the impression of a game of chess. A favourite essayist, Karl Federn, who has written several fine essays on Emerson, has also attempted an Italian theme in his play, "Der Gast des Mocenigo." It is, however, too philosophical. A finely-thought-out comedy has been written by Franz Kaibel on the same story from "The Thousand and One Nights," which has already been treated by Wieland. "Wenn Verliebte Schwören" ("Lovers' Vows") is the story of an artisan whose wife dies. He swears to mourn on her grave for nine days without food or drink, but the persuasion of a female friend makes him reconsider his decision. It almost gives the impression of the theme of "Der Letzte Streich der Königin von Navarra" turned into a comedy: vows to-day, forgotten to-morrow. In his "Thersites" Stefan Zweig has dipped into classical lore. He felt the desire to describe psychologically this mocker of the Homeric epics, and in his hands Thersites becomes the "tragedy of ugliness." This cowardly, hideous creature has a heart, however, which longs for friendship and love, but can never be satisfied, so that the lust for revenge in him gains the mastery in the end. The piece is the work of a lyric poet; it is devoid of outward action, and all the work and care are spent almost entirely on the central figure, Thersites. Karl von Levetzow, in his "Bogen des Philoctet," has also gone back to the antique, to a subject already used by Sophocles. His language in "Der Bogen des Philoctet" is not free from rhetoric, his characters are not all firmly drawn, but through it all one feels that, to speak with Goethe's Iphigenie, "his soul seeks the land of the Greeks." And Levetzow has entered the land of the Greeks as a man of his time, just as Goethe once did also. That has helped and at the same time harmed the work. The blending of the two ages has not been everywhere successful; contradictions stare at one, and modern philosophical views of life show themselves, but nevertheless the piece has so much strength and manliness in hate and scorn, as well as in love and friendship, that it gives hope for the future. Thanks are due to the Berliner Theater for producing it.

PLAYS OF THE SOIL.

The "Soil" dominates the work of a group of dramatists, a few of whom I may mention here, with their latest plays—Karl Schönherr's "Der Bildschnitzer" is a little village drama, charmingly observed and firmly drawn, and another, though unsuccessful, piece of his is "Ueber der Brücke," showing the irreconcilable difference between two modes of life—those of the dweller in town and the strolling player. A new writer, Ludwig Heilbronn, has written a strong and fine play, "Hoogeland," modelled on Ibsen. E. von Keyserling is a quiet observer and fine portrayer of morals and manners. His "Peter Hawel" is finely and deeply conceived, a poem in prose. Fritz Stavenhagen, who died so young, has given in his "De Dütsche Michel," in low German dialect, a play which is the product of the soil, a kind of humorous, although slightly forced, contrast to Hauptmann's "Weavers." Max Dreyer's new comedy, "Des Pfarrers Tochter von Streladorf," also plays in North Germany. Almost all the characters are fine, honest Germans to the core, such as Dreyer loves. With them he runs against the narrow code of moral laws, and, behold! the honest public follows its daring leader.

DR. PAUL LINDAU.

LINDAU, who celebrated his 70th birthday in June last, is now chief producer of the Berlin Hoftheater, after having been Intendant of the famous Meiningen Hoftheater and manager of some Berlin theatres. He has in the course of his career published many novels and plays, mostly society comedies, which met with great success and are still in the repertoire of many theatres. He has a predilection for criminal psychology, and one of his latest and most interesting plays, "Der Andere," the case of a dual personality, deals with this theme.

and applauds the Pastor's brave daughter when she turns off her former lover who wants her to accept him for her husband because of the child to be born to them. Whether it would applaud her action in real life is another question. For the characters of her play, "Das Letzte Glück" (Frankfurt a. Main), the well-known novelist, Clara Viebig, has gone to the Eifel, the mountainous strip of country on the left side of the Rhine, which she knows so well. The characters are, as usual, excellently drawn and lifelike, but the dramatic form is neither sure nor uniform enough, so that only single scenes work dramatically, although that in a strong degree. Finally, Lothar Schmidt has written a comedy with the true Berlin flavour, "Only a Dream," a story of adultery, lightly treated. True Berlin types all the characters are, with their bitter tongues, their love for sharp sayings, their slangy talk, and their natures devoid of inner culture!

"DON JUAN" REDIVIVUS.

A small group for itself is formed by a few pieces which represent the old theme of "Don Juan" in a new and generally modern setting, and with a special meaning. Three such pieces have appeared within the year: "Don Juan's Letztes Abenteuer," von Hans Otto (Stuttgart); "Don Juanito," von Schmitz (Mannheim), and "Unterwegs," von Thaddäus Rittner (Vienna). The first of the three pieces plays in Venice, and is evidently by an imaginative writer, who, through the power of suggestion, forces his audience under his spell almost against its will. The second piece shows us a modern Don Juan who has too much intellect and culture to be the captivator, so that his prey always escapes him, or rather he himself lets it escape. The piece was only partly successful. The first act alone shows signs of a light and sure touch. In the third play, Don Juan betrays the wife of his friend, who stabs him. But Don Juan never dies, he is the lover in man. The woman, for whom his present embodiment is killed, bends over him and kisses him. Suddenly she starts up, horror stricken; the dead man has kissed her again!

SATIRICAL PLAYS.

A. Schnitzler, whose sentimental early piece "Liebeleil" was given by the Stage Society last summer under the title "Light of Love," has this year written only a one-act play, "Comtesse Mizzi," which is certainly the very reverse of sentimental. It is a satire on the morals of the aristocracy, in which, however, all exaggeration of the characters is carefully avoided. By the mere conduct of the action and the choice of the characters, he brings out, seemingly quite naturally, a biting scorn. Walter Turzinsky, whose "Gelbstern" was noticed here last year, has this year joined forces with Konrad Stifter, and together they have produced an audacious burlesque "Man Soll Keine Briefe Schreiben," which at the same time makes fun of the detective stories of last year. One scene—impossible, of course, but very merry—plays in a low den of criminals, and is the best in the piece.

The Academic Stage Society, Berlin, unearthed Frank Wedekind's earliest play, a youthful and immature piece, called "Die Junge Welt." It is the attempt of an idealist to free himself from the first disappointments of life, but Wedekind has never succeeded in this attempt, and still wears his cloak of apparent cynicism. His last piece, a one-act play called "Die Zensur," has since come out in the Schauspielhaus in Munich. It is not a play but a dialogue, in which, under the name of Buridan, he discusses his own affairs, as some of his plays had been forbidden by the Censor. Shortly before the end of last year Hermann Bahr, the Proteus of German literature, won great success in the Berlin Lessing Theater with his bright and witty comedy, "Das Konzert." It is a very amusing persiflage on the admiration for artists of ladies, old and young, of the upper classes, who worship in the artist the handsome and fascinating man also. The dialogue is full of humour, and sparkles with smart sayings.

FOREIGN AND ENGLISH PLAYS.

Of the many foreign works I may mention the two following:—(1) The recently finished play by the ever-young Björnson, "Wenn der Junge Wein Blüht." This fine and humorous piece on the old theme of love is the work of a mature thinker, and is yet filled with the warm-hearted feelings of youth. Very soon after the Danish première it had its first German performance, and had a very hearty reception in the Dresdner Hoftheater, which for some years now has been notable for its energy and enterprise. (2) "Revolutionshochzeit," by the Danish writer Copnus Michaelis (Hebbel Theater, Berlin). It treats in a rather original way an episode of the great French Revolution. The Shuberts have bought the work for America. Of English plays given for the first time in Germany may be mentioned Shaw's "Major Barbara" and "Widowers' Houses"; Galsworthy's "Strife," produced in Cologne, where it had a very hearty reception from the public; with Somerset Maugham's "Mrs. Dot," H. H. Davies's "Captain Drew on Leave," W. W. Jacobs and Louis N. Parker's "Beauty and the Barge," Parker's "Cardinal," which has met with great success, John Valentine's "The Stronger Sex," and several others. The fact that an English musical comedy, "Miss Gibbs," has invaded the land of the operette, Vienna, and been a great success there is remarkable, and seems to point to a friendly exchange between the two nations.

INTERESTING REVIVALS.

Some specially interesting performances of older works may be mentioned here, such as the numerous cycles of Schiller's plays to commemorate the 150th birthday of the poet, who is still a living power on the stage. Lindau directed a cycle of the plays in the Berlin Hoftheater, Reinhardt gave "Don Carlos," and outside Berlin there were also several cycles, as, for instance, in the Stuttgart Hoftheater. Hagemann, in Mannheim, gave the great Wallenstein trilogy in one evening, which proved an extraordinary success. It was in Mannheim that Schiller first became known by his "Räuber." The Lessing Theater, in Berlin, gave a cycle of thirteen Ibsen plays in chronological order, brilliantly performed. Direktor Brahm showed herewith what he has achieved during the last twenty years. In the Berlin Hoftheater, under Lindau, Hauptmann has been taken up again, his "Sunken Bell" having been given there during the year. Two scenes from it are reproduced here. Lindau also revived Otto Ludwig's "Die Maccabäer," a powerful drama, but unfortunately not of uniform structure, through being cast from several different sketches. After this he gave a charming version of his own of Molière's "Malade Imaginaire," in which the original ending is preserved, and earned hearty success with it. In the Cologne Stadttheater, Direktor Martersteig, who has just received the title "Geheimer Rat" (Privy Councillor) for his services to the stage, gave a performance of "Faust," in which the atmosphere and spirit of the play were beautifully brought out.

FESTIVAL AND OTHER PERFORMANCES.

The "Münchener Märchenspiele" towards the end of the year paid a successful visit to Berlin. They gave the old fairy tales in artistic new versions with music, so as to get into touch again with the old poetry of the people, and in this way to lay the foundation for a new poetic revival. The new movement for open-air performances was discussed at some length in THE STAGE some months ago. It also shows the love for the dramatic art in all circles, and the longing for beauty and poetry, colour and life in it.

Quite unique are the Festivals for Young People which have been held in Weimar by the Schillerbund. For three weeks four classical performances were given each week to youthful audiences, who in this way became accustomed to noble dramatic fare. For this year's performances a considerable sum has already been collected.

CONDITIONS IN BERLIN.

In No. 18 of "Die Deutsche Bühne," the official organ of the Deutsche Bühnerverein (Society of German Theatre Directors), the following significant passage occurs:—"It is a pretty generally known fact, and one not to be denied, that the Berlin theatres are at present fighting against very calamitous fortune. The want of new "drawing" pieces, constant official regulations from high police authorities, depressed conditions of trade—in short, a whole series of adverse circumstances—have contributed towards making this year's season into a particularly unfortunate one."

All possible means apparently have been tried in Berlin to fight the growing indifference of the public to the theatre. Numbers of so-called free tickets are given away, and as on each ticket a fee is charged which is equal to about a third of the box office price, a small return is thus secured. But it is said that even these tickets are sometimes refused. Another plan is to offer tickets to all kinds of clubs, societies, etc., at greatly reduced prices, and to sell tickets in all kinds of shops at half-price—in short, to do everything possible to fill the theatres with a half-willing, half-unwilling audience. In spite of all this, however, the interest of the public centres only round certain premières, but for these performances a great many free tickets have of necessity to be given away to the Press, etc., without fee of any kind. The tendency seems to be now—started by the Lessing Theater—to sell all tickets available for sale, on important first nights, only at increased prices. The pleasure of being able to pronounce for the weal or woe of a new piece must be purchased at an extra price. By these means the fate of new works is put more than ever in the hands of people with long purses, especially as nowadays the Berlin verdict holds good more and more for the whole of Germany. Such premières, especially in case of Hauptmann first nights, have in this way become a strange kind of society function, at which rich but not very cultured Berlin circles create a noisy battle for and against the play and the author! Such painful scenes contribute nothing towards showing Berlin to be a centre of culture; to Hauptmann and his production they have even done serious harm. For “small” premières, the result of which is uncertain, all possible means are taken to secure a full house, that can be relied on absolutely. This guarantees tremendous applause on the evening, but the next morning often brings a miserable Press, and the result empty houses. But even when the Press is good, the audience often falls off very soon. How can that be accounted for? The “Deutsche Bühne” attributes it principally to the lack of new “drawing” pieces, but it is also partly because Berlin is following more and more the example of London and relying on the long run of a “drawing” piece, and has become unfaithful to the old repertory system. There are already theatres which daringly begin the season, the same as in London, with only one piece, staking their all on the one card. In London the evil of the long run has been proved by experience. In Berlin they are steering straight towards this evil with open eyes. Berlin private theatres are now forced into the long run system for the reasons that rule in London, namely, financial ones. Berlin will probably not have long to wait for the inevitable consequence of all this. Instead of stock companies, accustomed to play together and to keep up a certain style and tradition, companies will be formed for each single run. In last year’s volume of this book we discussed the plan which had been adopted to try and balance this unsatisfactory state of affairs, namely, the lending of actors to different stages and their touring in the provinces during those periods of enforced resting. But in the long run that alone cannot meet the case. Pieces which enjoyed these long runs during the last year were generally musical comedies and poor farces, and also some comedies of satirical tendency, of native and foreign manufacture; in short, mostly pieces of a very light character. Musical comedies have become the fashion.

THE BERLIN SCHILLER THEATER.

The theatres of Berlin are showing two distinct tendencies: on the one hand the change into the purely commercial management on capitalistic basis, with the consequences just mentioned. An example of this is given by the Metropol Theater, which has now been turned into a company whose shares are bought and sold at the Exchange. On the other hand, there is the development of the “Volksbühnen” (People’s Theatres), which form a kind of supplement to the Royal Hoftheater. Two such theatres, under the far-seeing and excellent management of Dr. R. Löwenfeld, are the Schiller Theater, which, at very low prices, give their public (mostly the lower middle classes) a changing repertory of classical but also amusement plays, and even sometimes premières. A careful ensemble is made a particular point, and although too much attention is not given to the decorations, they are always tasteful. The two scenes from the Schiller Theater reproduced here are from an Ibsen piece, and are by one of the best German scenic artists, Prof. Roller, who has also designed the pictures given here of Reinhardt’s production of “Julius Cæsar.” The price of seats in the Schiller Theater is, for the best places, 2s. 6d.; for the cheapest, sixpence, including programme and cloak-room accommodation! Excellent refreshments are also provided at extraordinarily cheap rates. At the same time they are in no way “popular” theatres in the sense of certain theatres here, for they have a much higher object in view. Anyone taking a subscription fares cheaper still, and these subscriptions are also payable in four instalments, so that even the poorer people can take them. By the way, a company has just been started in Berlin which sells, at a slightly increased price, subscriptions on the instalment system for all theatres worked on the subscription method. This ought to help to bring a larger public to the theatres. It must not be thought that these Schiller theatres are merely a philanthropic undertaking. This is by no means the case. They belong to a company, but one which has founded them for the common good, not as a profitable speculation. For all that, these theatres have not only paid their way, but give a profit of from £1,000 to £3,500 a year! One of the two theatres—the one in Charlottenburg—is, moreover, a model of modern theatre architecture, with an auditorium designed on the amphitheatre system—a real People's Theatre in the best sense of the word—that is, a theatre in which the universality of culture is emphasised, instead of the difference of classes being sharply marked by separation.

A CLASSICAL STAGE SOCIETY.

Truly unique institutions are the two "Freien Volksbühnen" of Berlin, to which a new one has been added, called "Das Klassische Theater." They are societies which make arrangements with different theatres to have, according to their choice, plays from the theatres' repertoires played to their members on certain days during the season. The new "Klassische Theater" was founded last year for the performance at Wednesday and Saturday matinées of classical as well as good modern plays for the pupils of the higher boys and girls' schools. In the first season six performances are to be given—in the Deutsches Theater, the Berliner Theater, and Neues Schauspielhaus—for the price of six shillings, including cloakroom and programme. The parents of the children can, as far as the space permits, have seats at the same price. A plan is on foot to extend this excellent enterprise to all the board schools also.

POPULAR STAGE SOCIETIES.

The two "Freien Volksbühnen" are older foundations. In 1890 Bruno Wille, philosopher and idealistic educator of the masses, founded the "Freie Volksbühne." It was opened with a performance of Ibsen's "Pillars of Society." The organisation is much the same as the Stage Society here; in fact, it might be called a Popular Stage Society with very similar methods, but, of course, entirely different aims. The performances take place on Sunday afternoons, and plays and theatres are chosen by the Council. The Council consists of a literary advisory board of authors and critics, the president of the Society, and office bearers (treasurer, secretary, etc.), chosen by the members of the Society. In the first years of its existence, companies were got together for each piece, and all the first-rate artists competed with each other in lending their services. In those days there were no public performances on Sunday afternoons in Berlin; now that these performances bring the theatres so much money, few artists are free for special performances, so that the "Freien Volksbühnen" have now generally to take one of the plays already in the repertory of the theatre giving the performance, although, of course, the Society can choose the piece. Then they have reserved for themselves the right to choose now and then an entirely new piece, which the theatre in question has to produce for them. In this way the Volksbühnen retain a certain amount of literary independence. To enlarge this independence again, however, and to be enabled to realise all the intentions they cherish, the larger of the two societies, "Die Neue Freie Volksbühne" (the two societies together total the respectable number of 60,000 members, many of whom are artisans), has decided on building a theatre of its own. It has already got together a building fund of more than £5,000, collected mostly from small people. This Society alone now pays a yearly sum of £25,000 to the eleven theatres with which it has contracts. The members pay one shilling for each performance, the seats being allotted by ballot. By means of these societies an entirely new public for the dramatic art has grown up. For the last three years a similar society has existed in Vienna, with a membership of 9,000, under the presidency of Herr Stefan Grossmann, a well-known writer and dramatic author.

PROVINCIAL MOVEMENTS.

From the provinces some interesting movements are to be recorded. The towns are occupying themselves more and more with dramatic art, although not in all cases to the extent of entirely freeing the managers from financial considerations. At a meeting of the "Bühnenverein" (Society of German Theatre Directors), stress was laid on the fact that managers had to provide all scenery, weapons, armour, etc., themselves, representing a cost of about £8,000, and for that reason they must of necessity be, in the first place, business men. The managers also blame the towns for the adherence to the abhorred system of the "trial month"—the month within which an actor may receive notice—because the Municipal Theatre Committees reserve the right of making the manager discharge any actor whom they do not like.

Several new towns have taken up the management of their own theatre, as, for example, Kiel. In several other towns managers are made to fulfil certain conditions in exchange for the subvention, such as a fixed amount of salary, supply of costumes for the actresses, cheap popular performances, etc. Towns are more and more recognising the fact that an art institution like the theatre can only be permanently maintained on a sound economical basis and adequate payment for the actors. In some places the condition is made that if a net profit is the outcome of a year part of it must come to the town, the manager being guaranteed a certain sum. This is intended to prevent, on the one hand, the squeezing out of "drawing" pieces (the manager has no longer only to look anxiously to profits and can turn his attention to other works), and, on the other, to prevent expenses, borne by the town, such as light, water, and rent, helping in the end only to fill the pockets of the manager. The following record of sums paid by towns towards their theatres should be of interest:—Cologne, £25,000; Frankfurt, £13,000; Barmen, £6,000; Dortmund, £6,000; Essen, £4,000; Elberfeld, £4,000; Aachen, £3,500; Breslau, £3,000; Düsseldorf £2,500; Magdeburg, £2,500; Kattowitz, £1,000; Thorn, £1,000.

PEOPLE'S THEATRES IN THE PROVINCES.

The Cologne Stadttheater has made an excellent arrangement, similar to the Berlin Volksbühnen movement, by which extra performances are given on Sunday afternoons to the different societies, trades unions, etc., of the town, and even to the Socialist workmen's organisation, the societies having the right to choose any piece they like from the repertory of the theatre. Last year, for example, the trades unions chose Galsworthy's "Strife," and received the work with the greatest enthusiasm. In a letter to me Dr. Simchowitz, the dramaturg of the theatre, wrote: "We are indeed proud of having solved the problem of popularising the theatre in this way; so far no other theatre in Germany has succeeded in this point to such an extent or in a more truly liberal spirit." In Hamburg a "Deutsches Volkstheater" is in process of building, which will give each subscriber one performance a week (forty in the year) for a yearly subscription of 20s. This also includes an illustrated theatrical paper, delivered gratis, and free entrance to numerous artistic and scientific evenings.

A CENTRE OF ART AND CULTURE.

What can be done by private enterprise is shown by the Düsseldorf Schauspielhaus (directors, Frau L. Dumont and G. Lindemann). It was founded a few years ago with great enthusiasm by Frau Dumont, and is now one of the centres of art and culture. In this theatre, which is architecturally a fine building, with a very comfortable and refined interior, not only plays, but also art and other lectures (on Sundays) are given, and concerts and exhibitions held. Finally, this theatre, which has been further improved by the addition of a beautiful new hall, has been selected as the headquarters of a kind of private University called "The Rhenish Popular Academy for Ethics and Æsthetic Culture." The repertory of the theatre contains Shakespeare and all the classics, as well as Ibsen and the modern writers. In connection with the theatre is an academy of acting, now under the direction of Dr. E. Stahl, lately Professor of German at the University of Nottingham. The theatre also publishes the excellent paper, "Die Masken," which is sold every evening with the programme for a very small sum. Some rich merchants of the town have generously guaranteed to pay up possible deficits. The decorations of its productions are, like those of Reinhardt, on the newest lines; its company, also like Reinhardt's, often go touring. Last year the company received well-earned applause in Paris. There is also a prospect of their visiting England in the near future. It is good to be able to record that the actors' interests, too, are well cared for in this theatre; their contracts are for a whole year—that is to say, they receive the full amount of their salaries during their holidays of about four weeks; historical costumes are provided for the actresses by the management, also modern ones for those actresses in receipt of a small salary. The Schauspielhaus has, therefore, become a model institution in that respect. Besides the Schauspielhaus, there is also the Stadttheater in Düsseldorf, supported by the town, and concerned principally with the opera. All this in a town of some 300,000 inhabitants!

STÄDTBUND THEATRES.

The movement of the "Städtebund" theatres is increasing steadily. Several of the smaller towns join together and have a good company with an extensive repertory and well-studied performances, instead of each having a mediocre company and hurriedly prepared productions. For the actors, as well as the managers, this development is advantageous. As in each of these towns there is a theatre season of several weeks, or even months, the actors often get contracts for the whole year, while the managers find in each town a public fresh and eager for the theatre. Of course, in this way a good many posts are lost to actors, but these were generally positions which could not be taken by any self-respecting man, and have only helped to create a miserable proletariat, so their loss is no harm to any one—in fact, rather the reverse.

WANDERTRUPPEN.

The system of subsidised touring companies forms, for quite small communities, a kind of supplement to the Städtebund theatres. The Märkische Touring Company, which was mentioned here last year, has enlarged its repertory, and now gives a number of classical and modern pieces. Receiving support from the community, or perhaps from private sources, in the form of the free use of a hall and light, a sum in cash or a guarantee fund, it is independent of "drawing" pieces, and can give plays of real artistic value. During the last year 189 performances were given in sixty-eight places by the Märkische Wander-Theater. In Hungary such touring companies are now even subventioned by the State, less, it is true, to serve Art and the education of the people than to relieve the poverty of the numberless unemployed actors and actresses. However, if the plan works, the result will be the same in the end.

PROVINCIAL TOURS BY ENTIRE COMPANIES.

Another important movement in the provinces must be mentioned, as, happily, it is destined to supplement, not to replace, the stock companies in the different towns, for they, in spite of some weaknesses, are a guarantee for a certain independence and healthy growth in the dramatic life of the whole country. The movement referred to is the "Ensemblegastspiele" of entire companies, which is becoming more and more the custom, and closely resembles the big autumn tours of the first-rate London companies. These tours give new interests to both actor and public in the towns they visit, provide material for comparison, and bring with them new plays and new actors, and in some cases new methods of staging; in short, beget new life, and thus raise the dramatic art of the country. Theatres in Vienna, Düsseldorf, Berlin, etc., send their companies on these tours, notably Reinhardt's, which gave plays by Shakespeare, Goethe, Schiller, etc., in the Künstlertheater in Munich during the summer. These tours are taking more and more the place of rounds through the provinces by single well-known actors, who during these tours "star" in show rôles in the different towns, playing with the resident stock companies. Another good way of supplementing the work of the provincial theatres is a custom which has come into use of companies touring with one or several plays which, for some reason or other, have failed to get a hearing, but have appeared promising. In spite, therefore, of a few adverse points, it may be said that dramatic life in the provinces is healthy and progressive.

NEW THEATRES.

The many newly built theatres in the larger and smaller provincial towns also speak for these favourable conditions. During the year new theatres, some of them beautiful and expensive buildings, have been erected in, amongst other places, Cassel (Royal Court Theatre), Chemnitz, Stuttgart, Hildesheim, Osnabrück, Celle, Wolfenbüttel, Basel, Baden bei Wien, Aussig, and Meiningen, where the old Hoftheater was burnt down early in the year.

MEININGEN.

With characteristic energy Duke George II., the great friend and benefactor of the theatre and the leader of the famous "Meininger," had a stately new house erected, in which Geheimrat Max Grube, one of the Old Guard of the Meininger, now rules as director. He has begun with the excellent idea of opening his theatre to young dramatists, especially of poetic works, and of trying to smooth the way to fame for young actors. On the occasion of the opening ceremony of the new Meininger Theater the "Deutsche Bühne" published, in December, a highly interesting special number, in which the Meininger and their famous deeds were treated. In the same number is to be found an interesting account, "Die Meininger in London" (in 1881), by L. Barnay, also one of the Meininger Old Guard, who has come to fame, and is now director of the Hanover Hoftheater. In the course of the article he tells of the admiration excited in London audiences by the Meiningers, especially in the crowd scenes in "Julius Cæsar." During last year, also, the Meiningers and their Duke celebrated another happy festival—namely, the seventieth birthday of the Duke's consort, the Baroness Helene v. Helfdurg, who, as is well known, was at one time an actress of great and exceptional gifts.

ART ON THE STAGE.

The new movement in stage decoration in Germany was described at length in these pages last year. This year we reproduce a number of pictures of scenes from different theatres, to illustrate this movement still further. Of particular interest are the pictures from "Julius Cæsar" (Reinhardt); from Goethe's "Faust" (Cologne), designed by Director Martersteig himself; from Goethe's "Tasso" (Mannheim), designed by Intendant Dr. Hagemann himself; the scene from "The Merchant of Venice" (Düsseldorf Schauspielhaus, Directors Dumont and Lindemann); and from "Coriolanus" and "King John," designed by Herrn Maschinendirector Klein, Munich, who has arranged a new kind of Shakespeare stage. It was in Munich, too, that the first Shakespeare stage was invented and used for years, with the greatest artistic success, by Jozza Savits. All these scenes give a good idea of the way in which, in these productions, such minor detail as serves only to weary the attention is toned down or totally eliminated, and all the forms and masses in which the significance of the subject lies are developed or brought out into stronger relief.

Roller, in Vienna, has already adopted this new style for operatic performances, and his example was followed by Dr. Hans Löwenfeld (Leipzig) with great success in a performance of "Die Zauberpflöte," in which emphasis was laid on the general impression instead of on correct details of the scenery. It was to have the effect not of a "magic farce," but of the great work of Art dedicated to Freemasonry and brotherly love. The fine results of the performance justified Dr. Löwenfeld's enterprise. This movement has already begun to attract the attention of wide circles. In Mannheim, for instance, where Intendant Dr. Hagemann has taken it up so enthusiastically, a rich family of the name of Lenz has magnanimously borne the entire cost of the new decorations of "Faust," "Wallenstein," and now the whole Wagner Ring. The German Shakespeare Society has also shown interest in the new ideas. Dr. Hagemann gave a lecture to the Society recently, which was attended by a highly interested audience; and full accounts of the new work done in Berlin, Munich, Mannheim, Bern, etc., are given in its comprehensive Year-Book. Last year the proposal made by Dr. Gregori, of Wien, to found a "Society for Art on the Stage" was mentioned here, and it is interesting to learn that this Society has since then really been established, and has enlarged itself greatly. This autumn (1910) it will hold its first public congress in Berlin, at which the principal points to be discussed are: The building of theatres (especially the arrangement of the stage), limits of naturalistic and stylistic production, the education of the actor, etc. At the same time in Berlin there will be a large Theatrical Exhibition, arranged by the "Gesellschaft für Theatergeschichte" (Society for the History of the Stage). In Berlin, also, a number of authors, painters, and architects have formed themselves into a society whose duty it is to choose artistic decorations, suited to the style of the different plays, for the smaller provincial stages which cannot afford to engage an artist to design their decorations.

THE AUTHORS' YEAR.

The German Dramatists' Society has been making great progress and now counts more than 120 members, amongst whom are many of the best-known writers of Germany. It has made an arrangement with the sister societies of Denmark and Spain to help each other mutually, and hopes to make a similar arrangement with the other countries. It was cordially desired to have connection with England in the same way, but unfortunately an English Dramatists' Society has not yet been established. The Society, in collaboration with the Society of German Theatre Directors, is working out a standard contract for plays which will be binding for both managers and authors, and will regulate the percentage of authors' fees, etc. It is to be hoped, also, that an agreement will be arrived at about the treatment of MSS. sent in for perusal, for there is as much sinning against this point in Germany as—well, elsewhere! A standard contract between authors and dramatic agents has also been drawn up, but all the agents have not yet agreed to it. Similar good work has been done by the Austrian Union of Dramatists and Composers in Vienna, whose leading spirit is Fritz Telmann.

A THEATRE BOYCOTT.

The German Dramatists' Society has during the past year boycotted a Berlin theatre; none of its members may, according to a ruling of an extraordinary general meeting, give this theatre any play, nor may any member of the foreign societies which are affiliated with the German one, do so either. A member who broke this rule was expelled. The case, which is most important for future developments, is as follows:—The play by Lothar Schmidt, "Nur Ein Traum" (already mentioned here), had a very good reception at the première, and the Press criticisms which followed were also very favourable. In spite of this, however, the manager did not give it on the Sunday following the première, as is the usual custom with successes. This, in the opinion of the Society, has harmed the piece very much, because, in the eyes of the public, it appeared to have had only a slight success, and no one troubled to go, in consequence of which takings at the next performances, it is alleged, fell at once. Finally, the piece was taken out of the repertory altogether, seriously damaging its chances in the provinces. In future such cases will, no doubt, be provided for by a suitable clause in the standard contract. In the present case the Society has sued the manager and the result is awaited with much interest. The question at issue is whether the court will look upon it as a recognised custom that a piece which has been well received and well criticised should be put on the bill for the following Sunday, and whether, if this is not done, the author is entitled to damages. On the other hand, the manager declares that the piece from the first was not a financial success. From this case it will be plainly seen how important an international agreement is; then the boycott would, of course, have far greater effect. In such a case, for instance, the interests of an English author would be equally well guarded if he belonged to an affiliated society. This case has caused the Society to form a Legal Committee, which, in future, will act in such cases.

A COPYRIGHT CASE.

Still another legal case, much the same as the "Sherlock Holmes" one, will interest English authors. Two adaptations had been made of Justin Huntly McCarthy's novel, "If I Were King," for the German stage. The one, by Leo Lenz, was the authorised one; the other, by Felix Josky, was done on the adapter's own account. Both were accepted by Berlin theatres, and Josky's was to be performed first. Thereupon the authorised adapter, Lenz, took the matter to law, and the première was temporarily postponed. Soon after, however, the court declared Josky's adaptation of the English novel to be legally valid, and the performance was allowed to proceed. Herr Josky voluntarily declared himself willing to pay Mr. McCarthy the usual share of author's fees, probably the half.

THE ACTORS' YEAR.

Owing to the length of this survey, it is impossible to record in detail the progress of the movements amongst the profession in Germany during the last year. Nor is it absolutely necessary, as the different points—the demand for an Imperial theatre law (which, by the way, is not likely to come to pass soon), a minimum salary, etc.—have been constantly referred to in THE STAGE. I only need, therefore, to sum up shortly. It will be remembered that the German Actors' Association—which now counts about 10,000 members—at the end of 1908 refused to accept the standard contract which had been worked out by a committee formed of some of its own members and of some members of the Society of Directors; thereupon the latter broke off all connection with the Association, refused to accept it as representing German actors, cancelled the Court of Arbitration composed of members of both parties, and in other ways tried to fight the Association. One may deeply regret the struggle which then ensued, and in which, unfortunately, there was much that was merely personal; but, on the other hand, it has brought about a development of the Association in the right direction, more in accordance with the social and economic views of the present day. Out of a kind of friendly society, whose principal object was the provision of old age and invalid pensions for its members, a kind of trade union has now developed, which aims at raising the social position of its members, and, in fact, of the whole class, and will work for their interest with all its strength. Faithful to the motto, "Viribus Unitis," proposals are being discussed to combine with all the other similar societies, such as the Dramatists', the Musicians', the Chorus Singers', etc. In an interesting letter to me Herr Curt Stark, an actor who at one time played in English in America, and who is one of the most energetic workers of the Association, proposed an international combination, which, it is much to be hoped, will one day become a reality. I had the pleasure of reading this letter to the Committee of the English Actors' Association towards the end of 1909, and I was very glad to see how enthusiastically the proposal was received. Let us hope it will bring about the desired end; all would be the gainers by it.

A LEGAL PROTECTION BUREAU.

In place of the cancelled Court of Arbitration the Association has created a "Rechtsschutzbüreau" (Legal Protection Bureau), which has already done some excellent work, and, it is pleasant to record, has in two cases been able to assist English actresses who, unfortunately, were forced to seek protection. Such good fellowship and international brotherhood will surely contribute much towards a pleasant understanding and mutual appreciation. This Protection Bureau has taken in hand 817 cases in all, of which 729 were arranged by a settlement, while the eighty-eight remaining cases came before the court. If a member of the profession is unjustly treated he goes at once to the Bureau for advice, and the Bureau acts for him immediately. If he has been dismissed without good reason he receives support if the case be a needy one, and also the legal expenses are borne by the Bureau. But not only are the actors protected against the directors, the directors are also assisted in cases where the actor has behaved badly. Thus the Bureau exercises an educative influence on all sides, which cannot be too highly appreciated. Nor is it to be wondered at that this institution, which was intended as a "weapon of defence" against the directors, has already been found by some of the latter to be a useful arrangement.

The struggle has strengthened the Association in other respects also—the number of its members has increased, and its capital has now reached the sum of £400,000. The poor conditions under which the German actors work,* as well as the spirit of the times, would sooner or later have inevitably driven the Association on to the road of trade unionism in any case, but this struggle has hastened the process, has cleared many points, and opened the eyes of the actors. That was plainly discernible in the unanimity with which it was decided, at the December meeting of the Society, to put such important questions as minimum salary, combination with other associations, etc., into the hands of a permanent committee. The personal element in the fight will in time disappear, and directors and actors will agree to bury the hatchet again, for the best representatives of the former—Baron von Putlitz (in his pamphlet, "Theaterhoffungen"), Max Martersteig, Dr. Hagemann, Dr. Brahm, etc.—are all in favour of peace, and understand the actors' standpoint. Some of the towns, such as Frankfurt, Mannheim, etc., which have influence in the theatre, have openly taken the part of the Association in the fight. The same may be said of public opinion. And when peace is at last restored the great step in advance will have been taken once for all. There cannot be any doubt that in the end all three factors together—the actors, the directors, and the Princes and towns—will, in accordance with the views of modern times, contribute in providing the solid social and economic basis on which alone a real dramatic art can thrive.

OBITUARY.

The past year has been one of heavy losses to the German stage. Of dramatists who have passed away during the year I will only mention Detlev von Liliencron, whose strength, however, did not lie so much in his plays as in his wonderfully fresh and youthful lyrics; and Ernst von Wildenbruch, who has already been discussed in these pages. The stage has to mourn the loss of that fine actor, Adolf von Sonnenthal, of the Burgtheater, Vienna, who died full of years; of Adolf Matkowsky, the well-known and much-admired member of the Berlin Hoftheater, taken in the prime of life; of Klara Ziegler, the former famous classical "heroine" of the Munich Hoftheater; and of Professor Strakosch, the great elocutionist, who worked in the Burgtheater under Laube, and latterly in Reinhardt's theatre. To him many fine actors owe their excellent training. Finally, I cannot close without reference to the sad death of Meta Illing, founder of the English Theatre in Germany. It was to a splendid cause that she gave her ambition, energy, and enthusiasm, but her exertions for it unfortunately cost her her life.

* About 45% of the actors have a yearly income of £35-£50, 25% have up to £120, 20% have from £120-£150, and only 10% have an income of over £150. Out of these sums agents' fees, some costumes, tips, etc., have to be paid.

THE NEW THEATRE, NEW YORK.

BY W. H. DENNY.

TO whom belongs credit for the initiative of the scheme of the New Theatre perhaps may never be known. Many lay claim to it; yet for all that it is right to record that the proposition was brought into the sphere of actuality mainly through the suggestions and ideas of the late Heinrich Conried.

Whatever errors of management may be attributed to that individual—and the last few seasons at the Opera gave rise to the suggestion that he was guilty of several of vital consequence—it may be admitted at once that his ideals were of the highest, and from the time that he became the presiding spirit of the little German theatre in Irving Place until the closing days of his direction of the Metropolitan Opera House he had Music and the Drama ever before him as Art without the remotest suggestion of commercialism.

It was a fortunate circumstance for him that he was brought into contact with men of millions, who enabled him to work with his artistic aims, and, having done so much for Music, it was a natural sequence that his motives should revert to his original pursuit, and it became with him an objective to place the Drama upon a similar favourable basis.

His association with millionaires, who were the mainstay of the Opera, enabled him to promulgate his ideas, with the result that a number of rich men were brought together, and induced to consider the matter favourably.

THE DIRECTORATE.

It is almost unnecessary to record that many were the alarming premonitions regarding the ultimate result of the scheme, and the untimely death of Herr Conried threatened to put an end to the whole affair, but by this time it had progressed so far that retreat only meant the senseless sacrifice of a vast sum of money.

When it had arrived at a reasonable condition of approaching completion an effort was made to obtain a head official to undertake the duties which would have fallen to the late Herr Conried. Granville Barker and Augustus Thomas were approached, but both failed to see a chance of succeeding owing to the gigantic proportions of the building, which did not agree with their ideas of a dramatic house.

Eventually Winthrop Ames, a Harvard graduate, who had made the drama a study from a theoretical and ethical point of view, was prevailed upon to accept the position, and afterwards Lee Shubert was appointed business manager. Numerous were the comments upon this move, and not a few made disparaging forecasts regarding it; but it undoubtedly indicated great acumen on the part of those interested in the scheme, for Mr. Shubert is the head of a firm which has succeeded in achieving a high position in theatrical enterprise in face of what appeared to be insurmountable difficulties. Perhaps this appointment had a certain influence upon the opening arrangements. But the result generally must be beneficial, for Mr. Shubert has an intimate knowledge of business matters in connection with the Drama.

FOUNDERS OF THE NEW THEATRE.

There are thirty founders of the institution, and the list contains the names of representative men of New York, while not a few of them are familiar to the whole civilised world. They are as follows:—

John Jacob Astor	Elbert H. Gary	J. Pierpont Morgan
George F. Baker	George J. Gould	James Stillman
Edmund L. Baylies	Eliot Gregory	Hamilton McK. Twombly
August Belmont	Archer M. Huntington	Rob. B. Van Cortlandt
Cortlandt Field Bishop	James Hazen Hyde	Cornelius Vanderbilt
Frederick G. Bourne	Ernest Iselin	William K. Vanderbilt
Alexander S. Cochran	Arthur C. James	Henry Walters
Paul D. Cravath	Otto H. Kahn	Harry Payne Whitney
Wm. B. Osgood Field	W. de Lancy Kountze	M. Orme Wilson
Henry Clack Frick	Clarence H. Mackay	Henry Rogers Winthrop

These gentlemen subscribed the three million dollars (roughly £600,000) necessary for the site and building, while twenty-three of them have undertaken the payment 25,000 dols. (£5,000) annually for the use of a box, or a total of 575,000 dols. (£115,000) income, independent of public patronage, and have further signified their willingness to add to this amount if occasion demand. It will be seen that financially the institution has nothing whatever to fear.

In return for this unexampled profusion of generosity not one single instance of any advantage, other than the occupation of the box in question, has been evidenced, the officials, Mr. Ames particularly, having been allowed a perfectly free hand in the selection of the personnel. What this means to the Drama as an art, and all employed in it, can be appreciated by those familiar with the conditions frequently attaching to the investment of money in various theatrical speculations. In this respect New York has set a noble example to the whole world.

THE EXECUTIVE STAFF.

The Executive is as follows:—

President: William K. Vanderbilt.

Vice-Presidents: Clarence H. Mackay, William B. Osgood Field.

Treasurer: Otto H. Kahn.

Secretary: Henry Rogers Winthrop.

Director: Winthrop Ames. Manager: Lee Shubert. Literary Manager: John Corbin.

Producer of Classic Dramas: Louis Calvert.

Producer of Modern Dramas: George Foster Platt.

Assistant Producers: Wilfrid North, Frederick Stanhope, Elliott Schenck.

Art Director: Edward Hamilton Bell.

Treasurer: Jed F. Shaw.

Technical Director: Claude L. Hagen.

General Representative: Van Ness Harwood.

Acting-Manager: Edward E. Lyons.

THE BUILDING.

As to the building itself, nothing more exquisite as a permanent home for the Drama can possibly be imagined. The exterior, as seen from Central Park, can scarcely be described, and only a pictorial reproduction may suggest the sense of its beauty and completeness of design, which will remain a tribute to the genius of the architects. As to the interior, it is in itself a monument to the artistic instinct of the designer. It is a dream of white and gold and cerise, and of costly marble, the whole pervaded by a soft glow of light, which reveals the effect of the velvets, silks, gold, and, above all, the wonderful harmony of colour.

Those who have gone before are not forgotten, for upon marble tablets around the auditorium are inscribed the names of those giants of dramatic intellect who created the reason for this magnificent structure. Our own Shakespeare dominates, and the quotation regarding the holding the mirror up to Nature is inscribed above the proscenium,

THE STAGE.

And now for the more material and mechanical details, so far as may be allowed, since there are certain contrivances for which patents have been applied and are still pending, so that for the present the details must remain secret.

The stage is 100 ft. wide, and has an opening of 42 ft., with a height of 40 ft., while below is a depth of 42 ft. From the stage to the gridiron measures 118 ft., and adding the 42 ft.—the distance from the stage to the floor of the cellar—a total of 160 ft. is arrived at, giving a space sufficient to satisfy the most exacting of scenic designer. From the curtain to the back wall measures 66 ft. 10 ins. At present the mechanism of the stage is not quite complete, but when finished the stage may be raised or lowered, as occasion requires. At present it may be revolved, so that as many as four scenes may be set at once, enabling a four-act piece to be presented with a wait for change of scene of less than sixty seconds.

BEHIND THE CURTAIN.

The comfort of the actor has not been neglected, since everything possible in the way of convenience in the dressing-rooms has been provided. The dressing-rooms on the higher floors are reached by an elevator. Each room is fitted with a double wardrobe, with interior lights, while around a marble-topped table in each room are arranged variously tinted lights, so that the effect of make-up may be ascertained according to the lighting of the scene. Each room has a hot and cold water supply, and is furnished with lounging and other chairs, while on each floor are tub and shower baths for the use of the players.

Nor has the green-room been forgotten—that time-honoured institution, with its interesting traditions, swept away by the latter-day commercialism. At present it is not complete, but promises have been made of pictures and articles of interest, which will constitute a source of pleasure to all connected with the institution. It is not at all an unlikely thing that many English artists who have had occasion to profit by the opportunities of the American stage may give a practical indication of their appreciation in donating theatrical mementoes of interest.

THE LIGHTING SYSTEM.

The Linolight system is used for stage lighting, and is operated by a single individual, through the medium of a switch-board immediately in front of the musical director, in the position those familiar with operatic performances will recognise as allotted to the prompter. The gradual change of lights has been arranged on an automatic system, and may be accomplished in a certain fixed time, according to desire, so that the effect of change from sunset to moonlight or moonlight to dawn may not be ruined by the accidental turning of a wrong lever. The curtain is raised and lowered by electricity.

In conclusion, it may be stated that one cannot estimate too highly the benefit conferred upon the Drama, though that branch of art is not to be the absolute aim of the institution, since Opera also is associated with the scheme. Hitherto the lyric art alone was supported in this manner, while her sister was permitted to limp along, assisted occasionally by the fortuitous aid of money bags with ulterior motives.

It is not to be supposed that the new order of things would be permitted to go unchallenged, that the inauguration of the New Theatre would go unattended by carping criticism, which evidences itself in a desire to belittle the endeavours of those concerned in the conduct of the new institution; but in spite of, or possibly because of this, henceforth in New York the Drama will have a home worthy of her best achievements, and the institution, inaugurated amid misgivings, and even dissension, will eventually triumph; will undoubtedly become a lasting evidence of the desire of men to leave things better than they found them; and will eventually confer distinction upon the names of those whose disinterested application of their wealth has resulted in a noble enterprise, which through them reflects honour and renown upon the American nation,

THE YEAR'S DRAMA IN AMERICA.

BY THE NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT OF "THE STAGE."

THE opening of the theatrical year in the United States was anxiously anticipated by those connected with the business part of it, since the preceding year, owing to the elections, had proved disastrous. Company after company came tumbling in from the road, unloading their crowds of unemployed actors on the unsympathetic pavement of Broadway, whilst many sure money-makers of previous seasons showed scarcely a balance, some having been kept on the road by means of using some of the previous profits.

It is not to be wondered at, then, that the managers looked forward with confidence to the year of 1909, since everything indicated that the losses of the foregoing year would be made more than good. Alas for the mutability of human affairs, especially theatrical, the promise of the year has not at all been realised, and at the cleaning up there will be heard more than one wail. The reason of this unfulfilment is not difficult to discern, but, of course, the discussion of this does not belong here, but it will be sufficient to mention that whenever a good play, well mounted and acted in a first-class manner, has been presented to the public, it has not failed to draw.

MANAGEMENTS AND THEIR SUCCESSES.

The producing managers have had a rough time of it. Henry B. Harris has had none too good a streak of luck, for his successes have included only "The Third Degree" and "Such a Little Queen" and one or two others. The Lieblers have had "The Dawn of a To-morrow" and "The Man From Home." Even Henry W. Savage, whose luck last year or so has been proverbial, has not hit the bull's-eye too many times this year, and has dropped out several attractions to which he had pinned his faith. Charles Frohman has had a smaller percentage of successes than usual, and the Shuberts have had the same, though the great number of productions made by this firm must be taken into consideration, and they have several big money-makers to their credit; while Klaw and Erlanger have had to rely mainly upon their old successes. This condition is in the face of the wonderful promises made in anticipation of the wealth of dollars supposed to be in course of tumbling upon the inhabitants of the United States, owing to the gigantic crops, the revised tariff, the settlement of the Presidential question, etc. The lucky ones have been David Belasco and Wagenhals and Kemper, though Lew Fields has run them very closely, but he belongs more or less to the Shubert faction.

THE SPRING SEASON.

The first production of the New Year was made by David Belasco at the Stuyvesant of Eugene Walter's "Easiest Way," after an attempt had been made to "corral" the play by Messrs. Cohan and Harris, who pleaded a contract giving them the right to all plays coming from that author's pen for five years from a recent date; and the action is still pending. The success of "The Easiest Way" was instantaneous, and the piece ran to capacity until well into the summer, when the run was interrupted for a few weeks and afterwards resumed. The next production was by the Lieblers, who presented Miss Eleanor Robson in "The Dawn of a To-morrow," which also proved a success, and ran the season out; but "Kitty Grey," with our G. P. Huntley, at the New Amsterdam, on January 25, under the Charles Frohman management, did not "catch on," and "A Stubborn Cinderella," with Lionel Barrymore as a star on Broadway for the first time, albeit that it came with a big Western MISS MAUDE ADAMS.

MISS ADAMS is from the Mormon City. After various engagements, she was selected by Charles Frohman to be leading lady to John Drew, which position she filled for five years, until Mr. Frohman decided to raise her to the dignity of a star as Lady Babbie in "The Little Minister." Since then she has appeared as Juliet in Shakespeare's play, also in "L'Aiglon," "Quality Street," and eventually as Peter Pan, in which character she went straight to the heart of the American public. Last season she played entirely at the Empire, New York, in "What Every Woman Knows."

THE AMERICAN STAGE.

MISS MARGARET ANGLIN.

MISS MARGARET ANGLIN is to-day, perhaps, the most successful emotional actress in the United States. She was born in Ottawa, Canada. In 1905 she was selected as a star by the Shuberts for Hartley Manners's version of "The New Magdalen," Zira, in which she appeared at the Princess Theatre, in New York, and on tour. The following season she appeared as a co-star with Henry Miller in "The Great Divide." Subsequently she appeared on her own account in "The Awakening of Helena Ritchie," which constituted her main attraction for her tour in Australia, under the auspices of J. C. Williamson. On her return to New York she opened with the same play at the Savoy, and is at present touring the States with it. Her principal hits prior to her becoming a star were in "Mrs. Dane's Defence" and "Lord and Lady Algy," for Miss Anglin's versatility is remarkable. She is equally at home in comedy and pathos, while her rendering of Shakespearean heroines stamps her as an actress of a high order.

MISS ELEANOR ROBSON.

Miss Robson is a daughter of Miss Madge Carr by her first husband, Charles Robson, and was born in Wigan, England. When quite a little her mother took her to the United States. She first appeared in stock companies. In 1902 she was starred by the Liebbers of which George Tyler is the moving spirit—in "Audrey," at the Madison Square Theatre, and later played "Merely Mary Ann," by Israel Zangwill, appearing in London in that piece. In 1906 George Tyler determined to give her an entire New York season, and for that purpose secured the Liberty, presenting "Nurse Marjorie," "The Dear Unfair Sex," and eventually Paul Armstrong's dramatisation of Bret Harte's "Salomy Jane's Kiss." Last season Miss Robson made an immense success in "The Dawn of a To-Morrow. Miss Robson's mother, Madge Carr, is known to English playgoers as Madge Carr Cook, in the successful American comedy, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

MISS BLANCHE RING,

As "The Yankee Girl."

MISS BLANCHE RING comes of a theatrical family, being the daughter of James F. Ring, a well-known actor. She was born in Boston, Mass., and started on her stage career at a very early age. She has appeared in London, at the Savoy, in a piece called "Love Birds." Later, in America, she played in "Sergeant Brue." In 1907 she was advanced to the position as a star, in conjunction with Jeff. de Angelis and Alexander Carr, in "The Great White Way," and last season she practically made "The Midnight Sons" a big success. This season she is the star of "The Yankee Girl."

reputation, did not occupy the boards of the Broadway for a very long period. February was a month of success, for on the first of the month "The Girl from Rector's" scored a success for Joe Weber, in spite of the fact that misgiving reports as to its moral reputation had been floating about, for on the occasion of its presentation in Trenton, N.J., the performance was interdicted by the police. Nevertheless, or because of this, it caught on at once. "The Third Degree," produced by Henry B. Harris on the same evening, also scored a big success, being the second play by Charles Klein written for this manager. This production was notable for the work of Wallace Eddinger and Miss Helen Ware in the parts of the irresponsible youth, against whom the most convincing chain of circumstantial evidence appears in connection with the finding of the dead body of the man he visits during a drunken orgie, and the woman of humble origin, whom he has married against the wishes of his family, but who stands by him, and eventually succeeds in freeing her husband from the accusation. On February 11 "Havana," the musical comedy, was moved from Philadelphia at short notice to the Casino, New York, owing to the enormous hit made in the Quaker City, and subsequent results justified the action, for the piece filled the theatre until well into the hot weather, when a vacation was decided upon, and it was rested for a few weeks, re-opening the season later.

Miss Grace George, too, was successful with a production of "A Woman's Way" at the Hackett Theatre, but at Wallack's "The New Lady Bantock," which was Jerome K. Jerome's "Fanny and the Servant Problem" under a new title, with Miss Fannie Ward and Charles Cartwright in the cast, did not score, and "The Fair Co-Ed" at the Knickerbocker, produced by Charles Dillingham, shared a similar fate, though the latter made good in Chicago later. Nor was "The Goddess of Reason" at Daly's any more happy. March was not at all propitious, for although "A Fool There Was" at the Liberty, with Robert Hilliard as the star, made more than good, and Charles Cherry at the Maxine Elliott in "The Bachelor" hit the mark too, "The Richest Girl," with Miss Marie Doro in the cast, failed to last long, although under the powerful ægis of Charles Frohman. An untoward fate frowned upon the Suffragist play. "Votes for Women," shown at Wallack's for a brief period, "A Woman of Impulse" for a like term at the Herald Square, and "An Englishman's Home" at the Criterion, though the last-named piece was never expected to accomplish much this side of the pond, and many wondered what induced Charles Frohman to attempt the experiment. Bertha Galland, in "The Return of Eve" at the Herald Square, however, made a partial success, and Miss Henrietta Crosman succeeded in enticing the public to visit Wallack's for some time in "Sham," which was fairly successful. April 1 saw the bringing into the Herald Square Theatre "The Beauty Spot," which had made something of a success on the road. This was a new version of "The Birth of Venus," produced some years ago, with music by E. Jakobowski, but for the present version the score had been provided by De Koven. The production ran the summer out. On April 12 "The Climax" was produced by Joe Weber, and scored an instantaneous hit. "The House Next Door" at the new Comedy, with C. E. Dodson as the star, presented on April 12, scored a success, and lasted until well into the summer, but "The Gay Life" at Daly's and a revival of "The Mascotte" at the New Amsterdam Theatre were disappointing ventures, and were withdrawn with some celerity. At the Hackett Theatre Laurence Irving presented at a matinée an adaptation of Brioux's "Les Hanneçons," entitled "The Incubus," which you have seen in England. He gave this shortly before sailing for home after his season in vaudeville, and made such a favourable impression that preliminary arrangements were at once entered into for a season later.

April 27 saw the production of "The Candy Shop" at the Knickerbocker. This piece after a short time was sent on to Chicago, where it caught on heavily. Until quite recently it had been doing very well indeed on the road.

Early in May George Fawcett, the original foreman in "The Squaw-Man" ("A White Man"), invaded the realm of stardom for the first time in "The Great John Ganton," adapted by Hartley Manners from the novel of that name, and he was most successful. On the same date Lew Fields brought into the Broadway Theatre "The Midnight Sons," for which those who had been present on the occasion of its initial production in New Haven, a fortnight before, prophesied a failure. Lew Fields, however, had not been idle, and by means of careful revision, excision, and addition, including the engagement of Miss Blanche Ring, when the piece was presented in New York he managed to make the musical comedy the hit of the season. In opposition to this, "The Narrow Path," a piece apparently suggested by the success of "The Easiest Way," achieved the record run for the season of one performance at the Hackett Theatre, Henry B. Harris, the proprietor, refusing to allow it to be repeated in face of the universal condemnation it received on the grounds of its salacious character.

Things were pretty quiet during May and June. On the last day of the former month Miss Marie Dressler appeared at the Aerial Garden on the roof of the New Amsterdam, and speedily came to grief, her piece, "The Boy and the Girl," being withdrawn after a few performances. On June 22 Miss Maude Adams made her famous experiment of a performance of "Joan of Arc" in the Stadium of the Harvard University. The production of "The Motor Girl" at the Lyric, and "The Follies of 1909" at the New York Theatre, marked the end of the regular season.

MIDSUMMER VENTURES.

Intermittent "summer attractions" included two weeks at the Empire played by Sir Charles Wyndham and Miss Mary Moore in "The Mollusc." This piece had been a failure previously with Joseph Coyne and Alexandra Carlisle in the cast. For the two weeks Sir Charles and Miss Moore played the theatre was filled "to capacity," and such was the success, that an endeavour was made to induce the two to prolong the engagement, but Sir Charles particularly wanted a holiday, so it was postponed until later.

There was an attempt on the part of the Shuberts this month to run a stock company at Washington, but after three weeks' struggle with the hot weather which supervened, they gave it up after the production of three pieces which have scarcely since been heard of.

July is not a month usually selected for starting the season, but in the case of "The Gay Hussars" there seemed to be no choice, since Henry W. Savage believed he had another "Merry Widow," and Shuberts had the same opinion, both having determined to make it their supreme effort for the season. Mr. Savage, rendered wily by his previous experience with "The Devil," laid his plans in secret, and before the opposition could begin preparations, got in first, and produced his piece on the road. After several changes in the cast he brought it in to the Knickerbocker. Here it stayed for several weeks, after which it was sent out on the road for some time, after which it was relegated to the store house. William A. Brady returned early this month from Europe with promises that later Sir Herbert Tree would appear in the United States under his management, a statement contradicted later by the London manager.

THE AUTUMN SEASON.

The next production was in August, by Henry W. Savage, at the Liberty Theatre, and proved to be an adaptation of a Viennese farce, which he called "The Florist's Shop." This, after a few weeks, was removed. Of short life, too, was "The Only Law," by Wilson Mizner and George Bronson Howard, which did not succeed mainly by reason of its frank treatment of subjects usually handled with the most careful circumspection. At Daly's, shortly afterwards, "Billy," a comedy amplified from a sketch played in vaudeville by Sydney Drew, caught on, and ran for some time. At the Herald Square Theatre on August 16 a Western successful musical comedy was produced, entitled "A Broken Idol."

August is one of the great producing months of the year, and for 1909 there was a quick succession of productions. "The Dollar Mark," a society drama, by George Broadhurst, was staged at Wallack's. This piece had made a sensation in San Francisco, where it had been produced by a scratch stock company for the purpose of filling in a week and ran ten, which is about the record. It did not do at all well at Wallack's, and a worse fate was reserved for the London success, "The Flag Lieutenant," produced at the Criterion by Charles Frohman.

On August 31 Henry B. Harris produced at the Hackett Theatre Channing Pollock's "Such a Little Queen," which turned out to be a real success, and served to introduce a new star to Broadway, Miss Elsie Ferguson, who had been out on a road production, playing a not too prominent part. On the same date "The Sins of Society," which had been quite a success in Chicago, was produced at the New York Theatre. The Drury Lane piece, however, did not last long.

Mr. Savage produced his new opera, "The Love Cure," on the first day in September at the New Amsterdam. "The Love Cure" caught on at once, and gave promise of a very lengthy run, but somehow it disappointed in this respect, but has been a steady money-maker on the road. It introduced two artists in a stellar

MISS HATTIE WILLIAMS.

MISS HATTIE WILLIAMS has mostly appeared in musical comedy. She was the original dancing girl in "Trilby" when that play was produced in America, and since then has played the principal parts in "The Girl from Maxim's," and with the Rogers Brothers in their musical pieces, afterwards starring with Sam Bernard in "The Girl from Kay's" and "The Rollicking Girl." In 1906 she appeared as the star in "The Little Cherub" in New York, and in 1908 she played the principal part in "Fluffy Ruffles." This season she is starring in "Detective Sparkes."

THE AMERICAN STAGE.

MISS BLANCHE BATES.

MISS BLANCHE BATES is a native of Portland, Oregon. She was educated in San Francisco, going from school to the stock company. She was at one time a member of the late Augustin Daly's Company, appearing as the Countess Mirtza in "The Great Ruby." She became a member of David Belasco's Company, playing in "Madame Butterfly," later in "Under Two Flags," "The Darling of the Gods," and "The Girl of the Golden West," in which she is at present starring on the road.

MISS FRANCES STARR.

MISS FRANCES STARR was born in Oneonta, N.Y., and made her first appearance in a stock company in Albany, and later joined the Murray Hill company, of New York, also stock. After this she joined Fred Belasco's company at the Alcazar, San Francisco, and later the Proctor Fifth Avenue Theatre company, from which she was selected by David Belasco to play the ingénue part with David Warfield in "The Music Master," when Minnie Duprée left the cast. Her success in this part decided that manager to promote the young actress to "stardom," and there she has since remained, playing the star parts in "The Rose of the Rancho" and "The Easiest Way."

THE AMERICAN STAGE.

MISS DOROTHY DONNELLY.

[Sykes.]

MISS DONNELLY first appeared under her brother's management in the Murray Hill stock company. After appearing in many principal rôles she made a distinct hit in G. Bernard Shaw's "Candida," in which Arnold Daly was starring. MISS DONNELLY followed this up with several other successes, notably in "The Little Grey Lady" and "Daughters of Men." It was not until Mr. Henry W. Savage cast her for the part of Madame X., however, that the public had an opportunity of appreciating the result of her early training in her brother's company. She scored an instant success in it, and is at present appearing in it in Chicago, where the piece has had a run. MISS DONNELLY is an accomplished pianist, and varies the monotony of appearing successfully on the stage by attending to the duties of vice-president of the Twelfth Night Club of New York.

capacity, Miss Elgie Bowen and Charles Ross, who "made good," the latter scoring a great hit as Torelli.

In September, too, the productions were numerous, including "The Fortune Hunter," by Winchell Smith, at the Gaiety Theatre, in which Jack Barrymore made a distinctive mark in the star part; "An American Widow," by Kellett Chambers, a brother of Haddon, which was produced at the Hudson by Henry B. Harris; "The Revellers," by Charles Richman, in which the author played the principal part at the Maxine Elliott; and "The Melting Pot," by Israel Zangwill, the offering at the new Comedy Theatre. This last, in spite of an unfriendly reception by the critics, turned out to be most successful, and in the same category may be placed "The Dollar Princess," which was produced at the Knickerbocker on September 6, and is still running. Another success was the musical version of G. Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man," entitled "The Chocolate Soldier," which is also still running, after being transferred from the Lyric, where it was produced, to the Herald Square Theatre, and then back again, and afterwards to the Casino. "The Widow's Might," in which Miss Lillian Russell had been on the road, was brought in to the Liberty. On September 20 Miss Margaret Anglin, returned from her trip around the world, during which she had played in Australia and New Zealand, opened at the Savoy in a play by Charlotte Thompson, "The Awakening of Helena Ritchie," which made an instant success; and another success, also produced at the same time, was "Inconstant George," a comedy adapted from the French by Miss Gladys Unger, produced by Charles Frohman at the Empire, with John Drew in the star part. There were three failures, however, to offset these, namely, "The Rose of Algeria," by Macdonogh and Victor Herbert, which followed "A Broken Idol" at the Herald Square; "The Intruder," at the Bijou; and "The Noble Spaniard," which Henry B. Harris, breaking his usual rule of only producing plays by native authors, presented at the Criterion. On September 27 the Shuberts presented "The Girl and the Wizard" at the Casino, which was a success, and remained until almost the end of the year, and the same firm produced "The White Sister," a play on a somewhat religious subject, with three stars, Miss Viola Allen, William Farnum, and James O'Neill.

October was looked forward to by the managers as offering unusual opportunities to them of making dollars unlimited, for the Hudson-Fulton celebration was to take place, and, of course, was recognised as an event which would draw New York full to overflowing. The crowd came, but were mostly a cheap lot, for although the picture houses and vaudeville theatres were heavily patronised, the higher grade theatres were mostly deserted. On October 4 Forbes Robertson opened at the Maxine Elliott Theatre in Jerome K. Jerome's "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," and at once jumped into public favour, and the attraction has been crowding the theatre ever since. "On the Eve," at the Hudson, in which Henry B. Harris presented the celebrated German actress, Hedwig Reicher, met with little support, as did "The Master Key," by Cosmo Hamilton, which William A. Brady ventured at the Bijou. George Tyler, too, about this period was none too fortunate with his productions of "Foreign Exchange," by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson, in which Harry B. Warner starred, at the Grand Opera House in Chicago, and "If I had Money." Other October productions were "The Debtors," founded on Dickens's "Little Dorrit," at the Bijou; "The Harvest Moon," by Augustus Thomas, at the Garrick (Frohman); "Israel," by Henry Bernstein, at the Criterion; "The Builder of Bridges," at the Hudson; and "Springtime," with Mabel Tagliaferro, at the Liberty, which were only partial successes. The George M. Cohan piece, "The Man Who Owned Broadway," in which Raymond Hitchcock had made a hit in Chicago, was brought into the New York Theatre, and "made good." On October 26 William Faversham produced Stephen Phillips's "Herod," and created something of a sensation by the gorgeous manner in which the play was mounted, but the time originally allotted to it was not extended.

November was most notable for the opening of the New Theatre. In this month, too, David Belasco made arrangements for the establishment of a stock company, and engaged a number of prominent artists, including Miss Nance O'Neill, but this caused trouble, since she was claimed by another manager, and a law-suit supervened, which, however, was decided in Miss O'Neill's favour. The company went forward with the rehearsals, and made a most favourable impression at the try out in Washington, in a play adapted by Mr. Belasco from the French, and which was presented later in New York, at the Stuyvesant Theatre, with considerable success.

On November 8 Mlle. Genée made her appearance for the season at the New Amsterdam, in "The Silver Star," and scored a success, appearing for the first time in New York in a speaking part. The same date also saw the opening of "The Belle of Brittany" at Daly's, with Frank Daniels in the part created by George Graves in London. Mr. Daniels, according to the critics, made the hit of his professional career.

On November 22 Harrison Grey Fiske presented George Arliss in a dramatisation of W. J. Locke's "Septimus," which made a certain amount of success, and the same date saw "His Name on the Door," which had been tried in New Haven by amateurs and proved entertaining, introduced Frank Lord, a new author, at the Bijou. This play was afterwards moved down town to the Garden Theatre.

At the end of this month Henry Miller returned from London to look matters over after his comparatively long absence, and uttered some most uncomplimentary things regarding the New Theatre, and announced his intention of producing the latest play of the author of "The Great Divide," entitled "The Faith Healer." About the same time Henry W. Savage returned also, with several plays, among which he counted as his best acquirement Monckton Hoffe's "The Little Damozel." During his absence abroad he had given directions by cable to close down "The Gay Hussars," "The Florist's Shop," and "Mary Jane's Pa." though the last-named was immediately taken up by a Western manager, and sent out on a prolonged tour to the Pacific Coast.

OTHER EVENTS OF THE YEAR.

In April occurred the death of Heinrich Conried. His body was brought to New York and buried, after a most imposing funeral ceremony in the building he had presided over for so many years.

An incident of some importance happened in April when occurred a resumption of friendly arrangements between Klaw and Erlanger and David Belasco, Harrison Grey Fiske, and Joe Weber. The last three had for some time been connected with the Shuberts as an independent faction.

In May The Lambs realised their long-promised Public Gambol, opening at the Metropolitan Opera House, netting $40,000 for the one performance, following this up with a tour of the large cities, and ending up in Chicago. At the conclusion, it was found that a net profit of $90,000 had been acquired, towards constructing a new club house. The present one is barely five years old, but the club has increased so in popularity that a change of premises is deemed as absolutely necessary.

August saw the resignation of Mr. William Winter from the staff of the "Tribune," on which he had been the dramatic critic for over thirty years. His reason was that his criticisms were mutilated by the manager, and altered so as to fit in with the financial arrangements of the paper. Later in the year a banquet was tendered the veteran littérateur by many influential members of the New York literary and artistic circles.

"THE STAGE" CYCLOPÆDIA OF PLAYS.

This important work has taken over twenty years to complete. It has been compiled by Mr. Reginald Clarence, the well-known bibliographer of dramatic data. Over 50,000 plays are recorded in "THE STAGE Cyclopædia" together with descriptions, authors' names, dates, places of production, and important revivals. The period covered extends over upwards of 500 years, and records productions of which any mention can be found since the commencement of the British stage up to the present month.

The book is published at the offices of THE STAGE, 16, York Street, Covent Garden, W.C., at 10s. 6d. net., by post 10s. 10d.

AMERICAN COPYRIGHT. CHANGES IN THE UNITED STATES LAW.

BY BERNARD WELLER.

THE new Act amending and consolidating the Acts concerning Copyright in the United States came into force on July 1 last. A statement of the provisions affecting dramatic, musical, and similar property, from the point of view of alien authors, will serve as a supplement to, and in certain respects a necessary corrective of the article on "How to Protect a Play" in THE STAGE YEAR BOOK for 1908. The Act is one of much length—naturally so, because of its comprehensive character—and the provisions are set forth in considerable verbal detail; but, as legal enactments go, the statute is fairly plain sailing. The new law gives American authors and other owners of copyright works almost all that they could desire in point of protection. One deficiency is that there is no specific provision for kinematograph pictures. Such pictures ought to have been made one of the separate classes of copyright property enumerated under Section 5; and, as it is, these subjects of copyright—now often extraordinarily valuable—have to get their protection under cover of sub-sections dealing with photographs or with pictorial illustrations. A kinematograph picture has, if one comes to think of it, no solid existence. It is an ever-varying shadow on a screen; and it would have been wise to have provided for it as a particular subject. The kinematograph picture may perhaps, where it is dramatic in character, obtain protection as a dramatic composition. The omission to deal with the kinematograph picture specifically is the more notable for the reason that provision is made as to mechanical reproductions of musical works by phonographs, gramophones, pianolas, and the like. The fixed royalty principle—proposed but rightly rejected at the Berlin Conference—is in this respect given a novel legislative sanction. But generally speaking, the American copyright owner is protected in the most ample way. The period for the enjoyment of his rights is increased to a maximum of fifty-six years. For infringement the remedies at civil law have been facilitated, and they carry with them heavy penalties. Wilful infringement for profit is also punishable as a criminal offence. The formalities attendant on taking out copyright have, however, been increased. They include deposit of copies, registration, filing of affidavit, printing of copyright notice on works, etc.—altogether a formidable and needlessly-vexatious procedure. Here the new law has consolidated without simplifying. It might with advantage have followed the Berlin example.

PERFORMANCE NOT PUBLICATION.

The poor foreign author, especially the writer in English, comes, if anything, more badly off than before. Fortunately, the dramatic author escapes the worst effects of the way in which the United States—a way so discreditable to a great country—regards the obligations of international copyright. In the case of a published book in English the foreign author or owner has, in order to claim copyright, to meet this requirement:—

All copies accorded protection under this Act . . . shall be printed from type set within the limits of the United States, either by hand or by the aid of any kind of typesetting machine, or from plates made within the limits of the United States from type set therein, or, if the text be produced by lithographic process, or photo-engraving process, then by a process wholly performed within the limits of the United States and the printing of the text and binding of the said book shall be performed within the limits of the United States.

But the English dramatist, as long as he keeps from printed publication outside the United States, is saved from these consequences by the definition of American law which says that public performance is not publication. Thus a play, or dramatic composition—as the term is under the American statutes—if in manuscript, or only printed privately and not for sale, is protected at common law.

But as soon as it is published as a book for sale it becomes published in the eye of American law, and if it does not comply with the foregoing "manufacturing provisions" and other conditions of the Act it forfeits all rights—performing as well as printing or other multiplying forms—in the States.

This distinction between performance and publication is maintained in the new Act. Section 2 says expressly:—

Nothing in this Act shall be construed to annul or limit the right of the author or proprietor of an unpublished work, at common law or in equity, to prevent the copying, publication, or use of such unpublished work without his consent, and to obtain damages therefor.

A play performed, but not printed for sale, is an unpublished work. It is in most respects effectually protected at common law. Moreover, certain States—New York, Louisiana, Pennsylvania, Ohio, New Jersey, Massachusetts, etc.—have penal statutes covering the unauthorised performance of plays. These statutes apply to plays that are unpublished works.

Further, the author who does not take out copyright under the statute and lets his play remain at common law has the advantage of perpetual protection. That is to say, there is no time limit to his exclusive right to his work. Under the Copyright Act, on the other hand, he can only enjoy his right—at all events as that of a published book—for a certain number of years.

A VALUABLE CONCESSION.

The new Act, however, does make concessions in point of statutory copyright to authors or other owners of certain works. Section 11 says:—

Copyright may also be had of the works of an author of which copies are not reproduced for sale by the deposit, with claim of copyright, of one complete copy of such work if it be a . . . dramatic or musical composition; of a photographic print if the work be a photograph, or of a photograph or other identifying reproduction thereof if it be a work of art or a plastic work or drawing.

There is no stipulation that the copy must be in print; and it would appear that, as regards a dramatic composition, a typewritten copy or even a manuscript one would fulfil the requirement of the section. It is stipulated that if a work is later on reproduced for sale as a book the copyright proprietor is not exempt from the deposit of two copies at Washington, made in accordance with the manufacturing provisions already quoted. In other words, the statutory copyright secured in the unpublished work lapses upon irregular publication in this respect. That is the only meaning of the stipulation, taken in conjunction with Sections 12, 13, and 15.

The provision is chiefly advantageous to dramatic compositions. It is advantageous also as far as the performing rights of songs and other musical compositions go. But such pieces as songs, etc., are often valuable as printed publications for sale, and copyright obtained under Section 11 forbids anything of this kind. How far a kinematograph picture could protect itself under this section is doubtful. The section becomes inoperative so soon as the work is "reproduced in copies for sale." Is the exhibition of a kinematograph picture publication within the meaning of American law? It would seem not. But what of the films? Are they, if multiplied and sold, copies for sale? If so, and they are not made within the United States, do they invalidate any protection enjoyed by the kinematograph picture either at common law or under the Act?

But, in relation to dramatic compositions, the provision contained in Section 11 is certainly valuable. On the whole, assuming that a manuscript or typewritten copy is valid, it seems advisable—good as the protection at common law is—for the English owner to avail himself of the provision. He then comes under full statutory protection. The only point that he has to consider is that he may limit his term of protection to the maximum statutory period of fifty-six years, whereas at common law his right endures for ever. It is not certain, however, that he limits his right in this way, for if the fact of filing one copy of his work still leaves it an unpublished work, then, according to Section 2, "nothing in this Act shall annul or limit" his right at common law. It seems rather an odd and even impossible conjunction of common-law rights and statutory rights. One is inclined to think that as the property becomes a copyright under the Act the statutory period for copyright is applicable; and Section 8 is favourable to this view.

There is also the point of view of English law to be considered. Prior publication in a non-Union country forfeits the home right to protection. Would filing a copy at Washington amount to publication? There appears to be no sufficient reason for saying that it would. However, the Washington copy need not be deposited until after the public performance in England, or in the British dominions, or any Union country.

VARIETY ART PROTECTION.

The words of monologues, duologues, sketches, scenas, songs, etc., if falling within the definition of dramatic or musical compositions, can similarly be protected under this section. This fact should be noted by variety artists.

AD INTERIM COPYRIGHT.

A further concession, applicable to English books published for sale, gives the owner of a work an ad interim copyright for a maximum period of sixty days. The owner of a book published abroad in the English language before publication in the States must deposit in the Copyright Office, not later than thirty days after the publication abroad, one complete copy, with a request for the reservation of the copyright and a statement of the name and nationality of the author, of the copyright proprietor, and of the date of publication. The owner thereby secures an ad interim copyright, which has all the force and effect given to copyright by the Act. It lasts for thirty days from the date of deposit.

This copyright is extended to the full statutory term if within the period of the ad interim protection an authorised edition of the work is published in the United States, in accordance with the manufacturing provisions.

PROCEDURE FOR ORDINARY COPYRIGHT.

The manufacturing provisions have been explained. The proprietor of an alien work is, of course, at liberty to set and print and bind copies for sale as far as concerns his own country and countries other than the United States, but only copies produced in the States will be protected there. Sections 15 and 16 are not without some looseness of wording, but it certainly seems that it will not suffice, as formerly, that only the type be set in the States. The whole work as a book must now be set, printed, and bound in that country. Two copies must be deposited at Washington promptly after publication. In the case of ad interim copyright, as explained, thirty days is allowed.

The two copies must be accompanied by an affidavit under the official seal of any officer authorised to administer oaths within the United States, duly made by the person claiming copyright or by his duly authorised agent or representative residing in the United States, or by the printer who has printed the work, setting forth that the copies deposited have been printed in accordance with the manufacturing provisions. The affidavit must state also the establishment or establishments in which the type was set or plates made, the printing and binding were done, and the date of the completion of the printing of the book or the date of publication. Any person who knowingly makes a false affidavit is guilty of a misdemeanour, punishable by fine and also by forfeiture of all rights and privileges under copyright.

In addition, a notice of copyright must be affixed to each copy of the work published or offered for sale in the United States by authority of the copyright proprietor, except in the case of a work seeking ad interim protection. The notice of copyright must consist either of the word "Copyright" or the abbreviation "Copr.," accompanied by the name of the copyright proprietor on the title-page or page immediately following; and if the work is a dramatic, musical, or literary work the notice must include also the year in which the copyright was secured by publication.

If the two copies of the American issue are not promptly deposited, the Register of copyrights may require the proprietor of the copyright to deposit them, and after the demand has been made, in default of the deposit of copies of the work within three months from any part of the United States, or within six months from any outlying territorial possession of the United States, or from any foreign country, the proprietor of the copyright is liable to a fine of one hundred dollars, and the copyright becomes void.

The fee for registration of copyright is one dollar, except in the case of photographs, for which it is 50 cents.

The Act lays down an elaborate system of registration, with periodically issued catalogues. The catalogues and index volumes are to be admitted in any court as prima facie evidence of the facts stated therein as regards any copyright registration.

No action or proceeding can be maintained for infringement of copyright in any work until the provisions as to deposit of copies and registration of the work have been complied with.

There is a stringent provision dealing with registration of assignment. Every assignment of copyright must be recorded in the Copyright Office within three calendar months after its execution in the United States or within six calendar months after its execution without the limits of the United States. Otherwise it will be void as against any subsequent purchaser or mortgagee for a valuable consideration, without notice, whose assignment has been duly recorded.

WIDE POWERS.

The powers enjoyed under the Act are, as have been said, of the amplest kind. The copyright owner has the exclusive right :—

- (a) To print, reprint, publish, copy, and vend the copyrighted work;
- (b) To translate the copyrighted work into other languages or dialects, or make any other version thereof, if it be a literary work; to dramatise it if it be a non-dramatic work; to convert it into a novel or other non-dramatic work if it be a drama; to arrange or adapt it if it be a musical work; to complete, execute, and finish it if it be a model or design for a work of art;
- (c) To deliver or authorise the delivery of the copyrighted work in public for profit if it be a lecture, sermon, address, or similar production;
- (d) To perform or represent the copyrighted work publicly if it be a drama, or, if it be a dramatic work and not reproduced in copies for sale, to vend any manuscript or any record whatsoever thereof; to make or to procure the making of any transcription or record thereof by or from which, in whole or in part, it may in any manner or by any method be exhibited, performed, represented, produced, or reproduced; and to exhibit, perform, represent, produce, or reproduce it in any manner or by any method whatsoever;
- (e) To perform the copyrighted work publicly for profit if it be a musical composition and for the purpose of public performance for profit; and for the purposes set forth in sub-section (a) hereof, to make any arrangement or setting of it or of the melody of it in any system of notation or any form of record in which the thought of an author may be recorded and from which it may be read or reproduced.

Incidentally it may be pointed out that under (d) dramatic pieces are protected from cinematographic piracy, and under (e)—to which there is a long addendum—musical works from mechanical reproduction, subject to freedom to reproduce in certain circumstances on payment of a 2 cents royalty for each disc, roll, cylinder, or other reproducing device employed.

DURATION OF COPYRIGHT.

Formerly the statutory copyright period, dating from due registration and filing at Washington, ran for twenty-eight years; and the author, if he was living, or his wife or children, if he was dead, might obtain a further term of fourteen years on re-complying with the regulations for original copyrights. The chief alteration is that the later period of fourteen years now becomes one of twenty-eight, making fifty-six years in all. Application for the renewal and extension must be made to the copyright office and duly registered therein within one year prior to the expiration of the original term of copyright. In default of application for renewal and extension, the copyright in any work ends after twenty-eight years from first publication. The extension under the new Act applies to a subsisting copyright.

REMEDIES : CIVIL AND PENAL.

The penalties for infringement are, by way of civil action, heavy and various. In the case of dramatic or dramatico-musical or choral or orchestral composition the penalty is 100 dollars for the first and fifty dollars for every subsequent infringing performance, provided that the damages shall not exceed 5,000 dollars nor be less than 250 dollars. These penalties are much more severe than they were before. Then, on the criminal side, any person who wilfully and for profit infringes any copyright work, or knowingly and wilfully aids or abets the infringement, is deemed guilty of a misdemeanour to be punished by imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year, or by a fine of not less than 100 dollars nor more than 1,000 dollars, or both, in the discretion of the Court. The power to imprison existed under Section 4,966 of the old law, but not in conjunction with a fine.

THE LICENSING OF AMERICAN AGENTS. AN UNFORTUNATE BILL.

AN important Bill, which proposed to amend the law relative to employment agencies, particularly directed to control theatrical and vaudeville agencies, very nearly became law in New York. The Bill, introduced by Assemblyman Voss on March 9. went through all its stages, and was eventually blocked by the Mayor of Buffalo refusing to sign it. The Bill was warmly advocated and supported by the White Rats, the Society of Magicians, the Actors' Society, the Actors' Union, the Vaudeville Comedy Club, and the Hebrew Actors' Society.

The main features of the Bill were :—

Agency Fees.—Gross fees charged to applicants for theatrical, vaudeville, or circus engagements, or other entertainments of the stage, should not exceed the amount of 5 per cent. of the salary when the engagement was for less than ten weeks, and 5 per cent. on ten weeks' salary when the engagement was for ten weeks or more. This applied to theatrical engagements; vaudeville, circus, and other were liable to 5 per cent. of the salary throughout the engagement.

Split Commissions.—This practice was especially prohibited.

License.—Each agent had to obtain a license from the Mayor, to post the same in a conspicuous place in his office; to pay £5 annually for the license, and to enter into a bond of £200. The renewal of the license could be opposed.

Control.—Books to be kept and a record made of all persons to whom work was promised or offered, and of all persons applying for employées, together with the date of the engagement; obligatory to investigate the financial responsibility and reputations of all applicants for actors and actresses, and to "inform all applicants on request who may be engaged or contracted for such employment any and all information in their possession at the time said engagement is made."

Contracts.—All contracts for theatrical engagements to be drawn according to the direction of the Mayor or Commissioner of licenses.

Other Conditions.—"No such licensed person shall send or cause to be sent any female as a servant, or inmate, or performer, to enter any place of bad repute, house of ill-fame, or assignation house, or to any house or place of amusement kept for immoral purposes, or place resorted to for the purposes of prostitution, or gambling house, the character of which such licensed person could have obtained upon reasonable inquiry." . . . "No such licensed person, his agents, or employées shall have sexual intercourse with any female applicant for employment."

Penalties.—For breaking or not complying with the regulations of the Bill the penalties ranged from fines of £10 to imprisonment for various periods at the discretion of the court.

The Bill was passed by the Assembly on April 14. The Senate unanimously passed it on April 29. It was to have gone before Governor Hughes on May 6, but it was discovered that the Bill in going through amendments had lost its wider application, and the Governor's legal adviser determined that it was a special city Bill, and concerned only Buffalo and New York. It accordingly went before Mayor J. N. Adam, of Buffalo, on May 10, who refused to sign it. He said he thought the Bill had been badly drawn, and that Buffalo should never have been included in it. Mayor McClellan, of New York, signed it on May 12, and in connection with the signing issued the following significant memorandum :—

The condition of affairs existing between actors and these theatrical agencies appears to be almost beyond belief. For this reason, therefore, and in order that the parties in favour of this Bill may ask for a rehearing before the Mayor of Buffalo and be successful when the matter is completely argued before him, I have decided to accept this Bill on behalf of the city of New York.

An endeavour was made to get the Mayor of Buffalo to grant a rehearing, but the application was refused, and one of the most important Bills dealing with theatrical matters of recent years was consequently killed.

We understand that the various organised bodies in New York are working to have the Bill re-introduced, when, by limiting its scope to New York, a happier result may be anticipated.

CENSORSHIP AND LICENSING.

ONE of the most important events in the theatrical year has been the inquiry held by a Joint Select Committee of the Lords and Commons into the working of the Dramatic Censorship and the General Licensing and Regulation of Amusements. This may be directly traced back to the discontent with existing conditions shown by the dramatic authors who in 1903 formed a deputation which waited on the Home Secretary in February of that year. Ten months later, in December, 1903, Mr. Robert Harcourt introduced a Bill in the House of Commons which aimed at abolishing the powers of the Lord Chamberlain in respect of stage plays and transferring to the local authority the powers of the Lord Chamberlain in regard to the licensing of theatres in London. Early in 1909 Mr. Harcourt remodelled his Bill, and introduced it afresh. In its new form it had the wider application of making one license cover dramatic and music hall entertainments. This Bill was blocked on its second reading.

Some questions, mainly resulting from licenses not being granted to certain plays, however, were asked in the House of Commons, and on July 5 the House resolved that an inquiry was necessary. The House of Lords on July 7 concurred in the proposal for a Joint Committee, and on July 19 appointed five Lords to sit with the five members of the Commons who were selected on July 16. The Joint Committee was constituted as follows:—Right Hon. Herbert Samuel (Chairman), Earl of Plymouth, Lord Willoughby de Broke, Lord Newton, Lord Ribblesdale, Lord Gorell, Mr. Robert Harcourt, Mr. A. E. W. Mason, Colonel the Right Hon. M. Lockwood, Mr. Hugh Law.

The Terms of Reference were:—To inquire into the Censorship of Stage Plays as constituted by the Theatres Act, 1843, and into the operations of the Acts of Parliament relating to the licensing and regulation of theatres and places of public entertainment, and to report any alterations of the law or practice which may appear desirable.

The Committee in twelve sittings examined the following forty-nine witnesses:—Mr. W. P. Byrne (Home Office), Mr. G. A. Redford (Examiner of Plays), Mr. William Archer, Mr. G. Bernard Shaw, Mr. W. F. Fladgate (Society of West-End Theatre Managers), Mr. Granville Barker, Col. Sir Douglas Dawson (Lord Chamberlain's Department), Mr. J. M. Barrie, Mr. Forbes Robertson, Mr. Cecil Raleigh (Society of Authors), Mr. John Galsworthy, Mr. Frederick Whelen, Mr. Laurence Housman, Sir Herbert Tree, Mr. Bram Stoker, Mr. W. B. Redfern (Theatrical Managers' Association), Mr. P. Hedderwick (Theatrical Managers' Association), Mr. Frederick Mouillot (Ireland), Mr. J. H. Savile (Scotland), Mr. W. L. Courtney, Mr. T. P. Le Fanu (Irish Office), Sir William S. Gilbert, Mr. Clarence Derwent (Actors' Association), Mr. A. B. Walkley, Miss Lena Ashwell, Professor Gilbert Murray, Mr. J. B. Mulholland (Theatres' Alliance), Mr. George Alexander, Mr. George Edwardes, Mr. M. V. Leveaux (Touring Managers' Association), Mr. Comyns Carr, Mr. Frank Gerald (Actors' Union), Right Hon. J. W. Lowther (Speaker of the House of Commons), Mr. H. Tozer, Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. P. J. Rutland (Entertainments Protection Association), Mr. Alfred Moul, Mr. Portland Akerman (Sketch Artists' Association), Mr. Philip Carr, the Bishop of Southwark, Mr. J. G. Snead-Cox, Mr. Hall Caine, Mr. G. L. Gomme (London County Council), Mr. Israel Zangwill, Sir Arthur Pinero, Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. W. H. Clemart (Variety Artists' Federation), and Mr. Philip Yorke.

THE REPORT.

The report of the Committee was issued on November 11. The chief conclusions and recommendations were:—

THE CENSORSHIP.

The public interest requires that theatrical performances should be regulated by special laws.

The Lord Chamberlain should remain the Licenser of Plays.

It should be optional to submit a play for license, and legal to perform an unlicensed play, whether it has been submitted or not.

The Director of Public Prosecutions, if he is of opinion that any unlicensed play which has been performed is open to objection on the ground of indecency, should have power to prefer an indictment against the manager of the theatre where the play has been produced, and against the author of the play.

Where a play has not been submitted and is open to objection, the manager and the author should be liable to action by either the Attorney-General (before a Committee of the Privy Council) or the Public Prosecutor (in the law courts). After action by the Attorney-General or the Public Prosecutor it should be illegal for any further performances of the play to take place until the case has been heard and decided. The theatre license should be liable to endorsement. A license that has been endorsed three times within a period of five years should be liable to forfeiture by the Court which directed the last endorsement, and be incapable of renewal, for a period of five years following, to or for the benefit of the same licensee.

Proceedings may be taken against the producers of a licensed play; but the performance should not be liable to suspension pending the decision of the proceedings, nor the license to endorsement.

Distinct Parliamentary responsibility should attach to the Lord Chamberlain, who should be held accountable primarily to the House of Lords, and secondarily to the Lower Chamber, for his decisions.

The same provisions for licensing, for the punishment or prohibition of unlicensed productions which are found to be improper, and for control through the license of the building to be applied to plays, should apply also to all words sung or spoken in any licensed place of entertainment.

The scale of fees now payable to the Examiner in respect of stage plays should be continued. The fees payable for the examination of songs should be on a low scale.

The period of seven days which must intervene between the presentation of a play for examination and its proposed performance should be extended to fourteen days.

The existing practice of managers only submitting plays to the Examiner should be continued.

THEATRE REGULATION.

The power conferred upon the Lord Chamberlain by the Theatres Act, 1843, to order the closing of all or any theatres on solemn occasions of national importance should remain.

The licensing of the forty theatres which are now in the jurisdiction of the Lord Chamberlain should be transferred to the London County Council.

The authorities should still be empowered to withdraw a theatre license provided that they are acting "according to the rules of reason and justice." But it should not be regarded as a valid reason for withdrawing the license of a theatre that a licensed play, to which objection is taken, has been performed there; or that an unlicensed play has been performed there, if proceedings have been taken and the Court or the Committee of the Privy Council, as the case may be, have not ordered the theatre license to be endorsed.

The licensing authority should have full power to grant occasional licenses, and to transfer a license from one person to another during the course of the twelvemonth for which the license has been granted.

THE SINGLE LICENSE.

The present legal differentiation between the theatre and the music hall should be abolished, and each be allowed to present whatever form of entertainment it desires.

The new form of license might be termed the Dramatic and Music License.

The issue of the existing Music and Dancing License, obtainable without payment of a fee, should be continued for the use of the assembly rooms, hotels, restaurants, skating-rinks, and other places which now, as well as the music halls, give performances under its authority.

DRINK LICENSE.

All places of amusement holding the new single license should be required to obtain a Justices' license if it is proposed to sell intoxicating drinks on the premises, but existing theatres with excise licenses should be entitled to sell under that license for a period to be agreed.

SMOKING.

It should be left to the managers of places of amusement to decide whether smoking should be allowed in the auditorium or not.

IRELAND.

With respect to Ireland, no change in the existing law and practice is recommended.

A verbatim report of the proceedings before the Joint Committee at their twelve sittings, with the full text of their recommendations, with an appendix containing statements by Mr. G. Bernard Shaw, Mr. Henry Arthur Jones, and Mr. Charles Frohman, is published in book form at THE STAGE Office. Price 1s.

 THE BRITISH EMPIRE SHAKESPEARE SOCIETY.

THE society was founded in 1901 by Miss Morrith, with the approval and hearty co-operation of Sir Henry Irving, who became the society's first president. The governing council of the society is as follows: President, Princess Marie Louise of Schleswig-Holstein; vice-presidents, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Arthur Bouchier, Mr. W. L. Courtney, Lord Howard de Walden, Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. Alan Mackinnon, Sir Charles Mathews, Mr. Forbes Robertson, and Mr. Lewis Waller; hon. general directors, Miss Morrith and Mr. Acton Bond. The society works not for profit, but for the sole object of making Shakespeare a vital force of the English-speaking race—that is, not only with the cultured, but with the rank and file of the people as well. The public dramatic readings given by the society evoke great interest, the more especially as they are cast from amongst the local members—except in London, where the readings are in the hands of professional casts. Membership of one centre implies membership throughout the Empire. Candidates for the final elocution competition, which takes place annually at a London theatre, with some well-known actor as judge, are only eligible to compete on their having qualified in their respective local competitions. Those desiring to become members or associates of the society should communicate with the acting general secretary, Mr. John Beamish, 81, Regency Street, London, S.W.

The following is a brief summary of the work accomplished in London in 1909:—

January 5.—Reading of "King John." The cast included Mr. Robert Loraine, Mr. Acton Bond, and Miss Esmé Beringer.

February 2.—Reading of "King Lear." The cast included Mr. Lyn Harding, Mr. Acton Bond, Mr. Bassett Roe, and Miss Dorothy Thomas.

February 28.—Reading of "King Lear." The cast again included Mr. Lyn Harding, Mr. Acton Bond, Mr. Bassett Roe, and Miss Dorothy Thomas.

April 1.—Reading of "Othello." The cast included Mr. Cyril Keightley, Mr. Acton Bond, Mr. Athol Stewart, and Miss Nora Lancaster.

May 10.—Reading of "Macbeth." The cast included Mr. J. Fisher White, Mr. Athol Stewart, and Miss Greta Morrith.

May 18.—Reading of "Julius Cæsar." The cast included Mr. Franklin Dyall, Mr. Acton Bond, Mr. Michael Sherbrooke, and Miss Nora Lancaster.

June 18.—Reading of "Julius Cæsar." The cast included Mr. Franklin Dyall, Mr. Acton Bond, Mr. Halliwell Hobbes, and Miss Esmé Beringer.

June 28.—Elocution Competition. Judge, Mr. Arthur Bouchier.

October 22.—Reading of "Much Ado About Nothing." The cast included Mr. Arthur Bouchier, Mr. Norman Forbes, Mr. Hubert Carter, Mr. Bassett Roe, Mr. Acton Bond, Mr. Harcourt Williams, Mr. Alfred Brydone, Miss Jessie Bateman, and Miss Violet Vanbrugh.

October 24.—Reading of "Othello." The cast included Mr. William Devereux, Mr. Acton Bond, and Miss Margaret Halstan.

December 4.—Lecture by Mr. F. S. Boas, M.A., LL.D. Chairman, Mr. G. E. Morrison.

CHILDREN AT ENTERTAINMENTS.

THE NEW LAW.

THE Children Act, 1908, which came into force on April 1, 1909, provides in Section 121 :—

(1) Where an entertainment for children or any entertainment at which the majority of the persons attending are children is provided, and the number of children who attend the entertainment exceeds one hundred, and access to any part of the building in which children are accommodated is by stairs, it shall be the duty of the person who provides the entertainment to station and keep stationed wherever necessary a sufficient number of adult attendants, properly instructed as to their duties, to prevent more children or other persons being admitted to any such part of the building than that part can properly accommodate, and to control the movement of the children and other persons admitted to any such part whilst entering and leaving, and to take all other reasonable precautions for the safety of the children.

(2) Where the occupier of a building permits, for hire or reward, the building to be used for the purpose of an entertainment, he shall take all reasonable steps to secure the observance of the provisions of this section.

(3) If any person, on whom any obligation is imposed by this section, fails to fulfil that obligation, he shall be liable, on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding, in the case of a first offence, fifty pounds, and in the case of a second or subsequent offence, one hundred pounds, and also, if the building in which the entertainment is given is licensed under any of the enactments relating to the licensing of theatres and of houses and other places for music or dancing, the licence shall be liable to be revoked by the authority by which the licence was granted.

(4) A constable may enter any building in which he has reason to believe that such an entertainment as aforesaid is being, or is about to be, provided with a view to seeing whether the provisions of this section are carried into effect.

(5) It shall be the duty of the council of the county or county borough in which a building in which any contravention of the provisions of this section is alleged to have taken place to institute proceedings under this section if the building is a building licensed by the Lord Chamberlain, or is licensed by the council of the county or county borough under the enactments relating to the licensing of theatres or of houses and other places for music or dancing, and in any other case it shall be the duty of the police authority to institute such proceedings.

(6) This section shall not apply to any entertainment given in a private dwelling-house.

The Act also provides that persons habitually wandering from place to place, taking children above five years of age, must be in a position to prove that a child is either (1) totally exempted from school attendance or (2) is not, by being so taken about, "prevented from receiving efficient elementary education." The penalty is a fine not exceeding, with costs, 20s. A constable may arrest, without warrant, any person whom he believes to be guilty of an offence under this section of the Act (s. 118).

If, during October to March, a child has obtained a certificate for 200 attendances at a public elementary school during that period, it is not incumbent on the parent or guardian—such person being engaged in a trade or business of a nature to require him to travel from place to place—to prove that the child is receiving efficient education during the months of April to September. A child means a person under the age of fourteen years. Under this Act all applications for licenses are heard in special Children's Courts.

In addition a short season of drama in the original Greek was played at Terry's by Miss Smiltou, commencing November 29, and the City of Rome Children's Opera Company appeared earlier in the year at the same house.

THE KINEMATOGRAPH ACT.

THE Kinematograph Act came into force on January 1, 1910.

The Act applies to public kinematograph and similar exhibitions for the purposes of which flammable films are used.

The Act does not apply to exhibitions where no flammable films are used.

No kinematograph exhibition of flammable films is lawful anywhere—except in a private dwelling-house to which the public are not admitted—unless the regulations made by the Secretary of State are complied with.

Licensing and other authorities may make such terms and conditions and such restrictions as they may think fit, subject to the foregoing regulations. The London County Council, for instance, on December 21, 1909, passed a recommendation of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee to the effect that the licenses granted by the Council under the Act should be subject to a condition that the premises should not be opened under the license on Sundays, Christmas Day, and Good Friday.

It is not necessary that the building should be licensed in every case. The Act provides for different buildings or places in which kinematograph exhibitions including flammable films are given. They may be classified:—

- (1) Permanent premises regularly used.
- (2) Permanent premises occasionally used.
- (3) Buildings or structures of a movable character.

PERMANENT PREMISES REGULARLY USED.

Licenses are necessary. The licensing authorities are the county councils or, in the case of county boroughs, the borough councils, who may delegate their powers to justices sitting in petty sessions, and also in accordance with other powers of delegation.

An applicant must give seven days' notice in writing to the county council, and also to the chief officer of police in the police area in which the premises are situated.

An exception to this general licensing authority lies in the case of premises licensed as theatres by the Lord Chamberlain, who exercises the powers instead.

The maximum license fee is £1 per annum, or for shorter periods 5s. per month, with a limit of £1 to the fees payable in any one year. The licensing authority may grant a license for any period not exceeding one year.

PERMANENT PREMISES OCCASIONALLY USED.

A license is not required if the premises are not used on more than six days in any one year, but the foregoing seven days' notice must be given of the intended use, and the Home Secretary's regulations must be complied with.

MOVABLE BUILDINGS OR STRUCTURES.

A license is not required for each fresh place visited. The owner must obtain a license from the licensing authority in the place in which he ordinarily resides, and as long as this license runs he has only to give the local licensing authority and the police in any place in which he finds himself two days' notice in writing of his intention to exhibit. He must have complied with the Home Secretary's regulations.

A plan and description of the building or structure, certified by the licensing authority, must be attached to the license, and must be shown on demand to any police constable or other authorised person. The license may provide that any of the conditions may be varied by the local authority.

PENALTIES.

The owner of the kinematograph and the occupier of the building in which it is used in contravention to the provisions of the Act, the regulations of the Secretary of State, or the conditions attached to the license, are liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding £20, and in the case of continuing the offence to a further penalty of £5 for each day during which the offence continues, and the license (if any) is liable to be revoked.

[The text of the Act and the Regulations of the Secretary of State, with some explanatory notes, are issued in pamphlet form at THE STAGE Office, price 2d.—ED.]

THEATRICAL ORGANISATIONS.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

(Incorporated under the Companies' Acts, 1862 to 1900.)

ENTRANCE fee, 5s. Annual subscription, payable January 1, 15s., or 4s. 6d. quarterly. The subscription for those elected after April in any year is 4s. 6d. quarterly for the remainder of that year. The election of members is vested in the Council.

The Association held its annual general meeting on February 9 at the Criterion, when the Council reported that there were 1,012 paying members, making with thirty-two life members a total membership roll of 1,044; that the Association was living within its income; and that satisfactory progress was being made generally. It was at this meeting that a resolution was passed supporting Mr. Harcourt's first Bill, introduced in the House of Commons on December 17, 1908, in which it was proposed to abolish the powers of the Lord Chamberlain in respect of stage plays and to transfer to local authority the powers of the Lord Chamberlain in respect of the licensing of theatres in London. The meeting apparently misunderstood the scope of the Bill, looking upon it as though, in addition to abolishing the Censorship, it aimed at abolishing the distinction between theatres and music halls and establishing a single license. However, when the Parliamentary Committee appointed to inquire into the Censorship and the licensing of theatres and music halls were sitting, the Association held a general meeting at its rooms on July 20 and reversed the opinion previously expressed, passing a resolution supporting the Censor, and asking for an extension of his powers. The meeting was a small one of fifteen members, ten of whom carried this resolution. Mr. Clarence Derwent later gave evidence before the Parliamentary Committee on behalf of the Association to this effect.

In June the Council gave publicity to a draft Standard Contract which they had prepared. The principles embodied in this contract were payment for matinees, payment for rehearsals—that is to say, half salaries after three weeks' rehearsals for productions in London, and half salaries for all rehearsals after one week for the provinces—and the £2 minimum wage. This contract was submitted to the various managerial associations, each of which refused to consider it.

Some progress was made towards amalgamating with the Actors' Union, and two committees, one appointed by each body, held several meetings and framed a report. As the Union quietly died early in November these praiseworthy endeavours towards uniting actors under one head proved, however, to be only so much time wasted.

The most serious question of the year, which remains before the Association as this book goes to press, was that of the return of the actor-managers. In October a Council meeting, at which only seven were present, authorised certain representations inviting the actor-managers to return, and at a subsequent meeting a requisition in this sense was drawn up and signed, and given to the secretary to obtain signatures of members. An attempt was made by the opposing faction in the Council to annul the requisition, but the voting was against it. The matter will probably be settled by the Association at its annual general meeting on January 25, 1910.

During the year 1909 the Association paid off some of the outstanding debentures. It also finished the year in a financially sound condition, a vigorous policy of retrenchment having brought its expenditure within its income. The new premises, 32, Regent Street, W., were entered on December 11.

Council (1909):—Mr. Frederick Annerley, Mr. F. J. Arlton, Mr. C. Hayden Coffin, Mr. Lewis Casson, Mr. Cyril Cattley, Mr. C. F. Collings, Mr. Clive Currie, Mr. Clarence Derwent, Mr. Gilbert Esmond, Mr. Richard A. Greene, Miss Helen Haye, Miss Agnes Imlay, Mr. J. Poole Kirkwood, Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn, Miss Marion Lind, Miss Rose Mathews, Mr. Frederick Morland, Mr. Russell Norrie, Mr. Cecil Raleigh, Mr. Langford Reed, Mr. Leonard Shepherd, Mr. Jackson Wilcox, Mr. Chris. Walker, Mr. J. Sebastian Smith. Secretary Mr. Duncan Young.

THE ACTORS' UNION.

In the history of Actors' Organisation brief space is to be allotted to the Actors' Union. It was born early in 1907, an outcome to an extent of dissatisfaction with the Actors' Association, in which body at that time the Reform Party were pursuing an energetic campaign. Two and a-half years have been the length of its life, vigorously enough begun, but declining before maturity was in sight. The Union began with a 6d. per week subscription for twenty weeks in the year, and, finding difficulty in collecting the amounts, in 1908 altered it to 1s. 8d. paid monthly, or 15s. paid yearly. £271 odd was its income from subscriptions during 1908. Members apparently soon lost interest in the Union, and it died in November, 1909, with liabilities outweighing the assets by nearly £65. At the meeting called to wind-up the Union held at Hummum's Hotel on November 16, Mr. Henry Bedford supplied the inscription for the gravestone in "Killed by the apathy of the actor." Apathy on the part of the actor may have largely contributed to its decease, but the Committee were in the main responsible, for in the first year of the Union they made an order which practically prevented the affairs of the Union from being discussed by its members in the Press. Publicity among those interested was accordingly denied the Union, with the inevitable result.

THE SOCIETY OF WEST END THEATRE MANAGERS.

The Society of West End Theatre Managers consists of twenty-seven members, including two hon. members, Sir Squire Bancroft and Sir John Hare.

The President is Sir Charles Wyndham. The Vice-Presidents are Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, Mr. George Alexander, and Mr. George Edwardes. The Director is Mr. J. E. Vedrenne. The members are Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. Arthur Bouchier, Mr. Arthur Chudleigh, Mr. Arthur Collins, Mr. R. Courtneidge, Mr. Frank Curzon, Mr. Tom B. Davis, Mr. Charles Frohman, Mr. J. M. Hicks, Mr. William Greet, Sir John Hare, Mr. Frederick Harrison, Mr. Seymour Hicks, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. J. E. Vedrenne, Mr. Lewis Waller, and Sir Charles Wyndham.

Meetings are held on the first Wednesday of each month at the Society's offices, 52, Shaftesbury Avenue, W. The Committee meet every fortnight.

The theatres controlled by the members are:—Adelphi, Apollo, Comedy, Criterion, Daly's, Drury Lane, Duke of York's, Gaiety, Garrick, Globe, Haymarket, His Majesty's, Lyric, New, Prince of Wales's, Queen's, Royalty, St. James's, Shaftesbury, Terry's, Vaudeville, and Wyndham's.

TOURING MANAGERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Touring Managers' Association, Limited, was formed in March, 1900, by a number of leading touring managers, to advance and protect the interests of touring managers, and by the promotion of a system of arbitration to endeavour to avoid litigation between managers and artists.

The Association has one hundred and seventeen members. The Committee, which is elected annually, consists of twenty-seven members. The present Committee is as follows:—President, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Vice-President, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Honorary Treasurer, Mr. J. Bannister Howard; Honorary Solicitor, Mr. W. Muskerry-Tilson, 26, Southampton Street, W.C.; Mr. A. Clifton Alderson, Mr. Cecil Barth, Mr. Arthur Bertram, Mr. J. A. Campbell, Mr. Louis Calvert, Mr. Silvanus Dauncey, Mr. George Edwardes, Mr. William Greet, Mr. W. H. Hallatt, Mr. Percy Hutchison, Mr. W. W. Kelly, Mr. G. B. Lambert, Mr. M. V. Leveaux, Mr. E. Lockwood, Mr. Lauderdale Maitland, Mr. F. Leslie Moreton, Mr. Norman V. Norman, Mr. Alfred Paumier, Mr. G. Brydon-Phillips, Mr. G. M. Polini, Mr. Herbert Ralland, Mr. Tom H. Taylor, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Brandon Thomas, Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, Mr. John Tully, Mr. Frank Weathersby, and Mr. G. Carlton Wallace. Secretary, Mr. M. Martin.

During the past year the matter that has chiefly been before the members is the question of bill orders and complimentary tickets, which has been considered in conjunction with the Theatrical Managers' Association and the Theatre Alliance; a report has been formulated on the subject.

Arbitration cases, stage plays in unlicensed premises, and the question of cinematograph shows have also been dealt with.

Address, Savoy Mansions, Strand, W.C.

THE THEATRES ALLIANCE.

This Association was formed in the year 1894, under the name of the Suburban Managers' Association. The membership was originally limited to suburban managers, but, it being found desirable to extend the sphere of usefulness of the Association, the scope was enlarged by making eligible for membership all proprietors, lessees, licensees, directors, and responsible managers of theatres receiving touring companies. The name was changed to the present one in 1908.

The objects of the Association are, inter alia, the discussion and settlement by arbitration or otherwise of matters of common interest to theatrical managers or proprietors; the affording to members a central means for inter-communication and encouragement, by meetings or otherwise, of the direct exchange of opinions and ideas regarding theatres; the taking when necessary of concerted action and the institution or defence of proceedings, legal or otherwise.

The officers of the Alliance are:—President, Mr. F. Fredericks; Vice-President, Mr. Milton Bode; Hon. Treasurer, Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett; Hon. Auditors, Messrs. W. Melville and W. Bailey; Hon. Secretary, Mr. J. Moverley Sharp, Criterion Chambers, Jermyn Street, S.W.

The members meet every month at Criterion Chambers, Jermyn Street, S.W., on the second Tuesday in the month to discuss and deal with any matters of general or particular interest that may arise.

In 1905 a fund was established to enable the society to assist its members by taking up cases of interest and moment to the general body, either on a defensive or offensive basis, which fund is contributed to by members on an agreed scale, and in this way the Alliance has at call several thousand pounds for any such purposes, which is a great source of strength to the Alliance generally and its members individually. The Alliance is in touch with and works in harmony with all the other theatrical associations.

The Alliance instituted the standard form of contract between resident and touring managers now accepted by the other associations. Reduced and inclusive insurance rates are obtainable for members under a special agreement with a well-known insurance company, under which many doubtful points in the Workmen's Compensation Act are settled in favour of the insured.

It was in direct consequence of the representations of the Alliance that the prohibitive clause with regard to smoking in theatres under the control of the London County Council was removed, and the representations of the Alliance in connection with the standing-room question have caused the matter to be placed upon a more reasonable and favourable basis.

During the past year the Alliance took a most prominent part in bringing before the Chancellor of the Exchequer the hardships in the original Budget proposals, which were later on modified to the extent that the increased burden proposed was limited to theatres of an annual value of £2,000 and upwards. The Alliance also placed the views of its members before the Censorship Committee.

Applications for membership should be made to the Hon. Secretary at the offices as above. Subscription: one guinea per annum for each theatre in respect of which a member is registered.

ACTORS' BENEVOLENT FUND.

The object of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, which was established in 1882, is to help, by allowances, gifts, and loans, old or distressed actors and actresses, managers, stage characters, and acting-managers, and their wives and orphans.

The President is Sir Charles Wyndham. The Vice-Presidents are Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, Mr. George Alexander, and Mrs. D'Oyly Carte. Mr. Harry Nicholls is Hon. Treasurer, and Mr. Edward Terry and Mr. Beerbohm Tree the Hon. Trustees.

The Executive Committee are as follows:—

Mr. Morris Abrahams.	Mr. J. Bannister Howard.	Mr. Lionel Rignold.
Mr. J. D. Beveridge.	Mr. H. J. Loveday.	Mr. Algernon Syms.
Mr. E. H. Bull.	Mr. Cyril Maude.	Mr. A. B. Tapping.
Mr. Robert Courtneidge.	Mr. Akerman May.	Mr. Edward Terry.
Mr. Charles Cruikshanks.	Mr. M. R. Morand.	Mr. Arthur Williams.
Mr. A. E. George.	Mr. Harry Nicholls.	Mr. Frederick Wright.
Mr. A. Holmes Gore.	Mr. Sydney Paxton.

Actors' Saturday, held for the benefit of the Fund, is held on the last Saturday in January. The Secretary of the Fund is Mr. C. I. Colton, and the offices are at 8, Adam Street, Strand.

The annual dinner was held on December 12, 1909, at the Hotel Metropole, with Sir Herbert Tree in the chair. The subscription list amounted to £1,200.

THE ACTORS' ORPHANAGE FUND.

This Fund, founded in 1896 by Mrs. C. L. Carson, has for patrons the Queen, the Princess of Wales, and the Princess Royal. Mr. Cyril Maude is the President, having been elected to that position on the death of the late Sir Henry Irving, the Fund's first President. Vice-Presidents are Lady Bancroft, Mrs. C. L. Carson, Miss Winifred Emery, Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Edward Terry, Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree and Lady Tree. Trustees are Mr. Arthur Bouchier, Mr. Charles Cruikshanks, and Mr. Harry Nicholls.

Hon. Treasurer, Mr. C. Aubrey Smith, and the Secretary, Mr. A. J. Austin. The offices of the Fund are at 16, York Street, Covent Garden.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Miss Carlotta Addison, Mr. Henry Ainley, Miss Lena Ashwell, Miss Ada Blanche, Mr. Arthur Bouchier, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Rev. Arthur Brinckman, Miss Phyllis Broughton, Mr. Charles Cruikshanks, Miss Vane Featherston, Miss Helen Ferrers, Mr. D. Lyn Harding, Mr. Martin Harvey, Miss Constance Hyem, Mrs. Mangles, Mr. Harry Nicholls, Mrs. Saba Raleigh, Miss Cicely Richards, Mr. Sydney Valentine, Miss Irene Vanbrugh, Miss May Warley, Mr. J. Fisher-White, and Mrs. Fred Wright.

The aim of the Fund is to board, clothe, and educate destitute children of actors and actresses, and to fit them for useful positions in after life.

DEFINITION OF DESTITUTE CHILDREN.—By destitute children is meant—

- (a) A fatherless and motherless child.
- (b) A child, of whom one parent is dead, or incapacitated; the other living, but unable to support it.
- (c) A child whose father is permanently and entirely unable, by reason of mental or physical affliction, to contribute to the support of the child, the mother living but unable to support it.

The Orphanage Homes are at 32 and 34, Morland Road, East Croydon.

ACTORS' DAY.

The initiation of Actors' Day took place on Thursday, October 18, 1906.

The annual collection falls on the third Thursday in October in each year.

Conditions.—All who contribute one night's salary, or fees, once a year are on the register. Actors, actresses, authors, managers, whether actor-manager, theatre manager, touring manager, business or acting-manager, or stage manager, are eligible. The Fund helps no one who is not on the register. All not playing on Actors' Day, but who have, in previous years, when playing, contributed their night's salary, will remain on the register, provided they notify the Committee of the fact. Those on the register may apply for benefit. The Committee may authorise grants or loans to contributors, in case of sickness or urgent need. During 1909 £750 was invested by the Fund. We were informed at the time of going to press with the YEAR BOOK that the income of the Fund for 1909, after paying all expenses and meeting all calls upon the Fund, was £100 in excess of that of 1908.

Trustees: Sir George Lewis, Bart., Sir Squire Bancroft, and Mr. George R. Sims.

The Advisory Board stands as follows:—

Chairman, Mr. Sydney Valentine.	Deputy Chairman, Mr. Henry Ainley.
Mr. Blake Adams,	Mr. Burton Cooke,	Mr. Walter Maxwell,
Mr. George Alexander,	Mr. Alfred Denville,	Mr. W. H. Rotheram,
Mr. Allan Aynsworth,	Mr. Kenneth Douglas,	Mr. H. A. Saintsbury,
Mr. Cecil Barth,	Miss Vane Featherston,	Mr. E. Lyall Swete,
Mr. Arthur Bouchier,	Mr. J. Forbes-Robertson,	Mr. Brandon Thomas,
Miss Fanny Brough,	Mr. C. T. H. Helmsley,	Sir Herbert Tree.
Mr. C. Hayden Coffin,	Mr. Laurence Irving,	Miss Beatrice Wilson.

Hon. Secretary, Mr. A. E. Drinkwater, Dudley House, 37, Southampton Street, London, W.C.

ROYAL GENERAL THEATRICAL FUND.

The Royal General Theatrical Fund was instituted January 22, 1839, and incorporated by Royal Charter January 29, 1853. It is for the purpose of granting permanent annuities to actors, actresses, chorus singers, dancers, pantomimists, and prompters; also acting managers, stage managers, treasurers, and scenic artists. Any member who has regularly contributed to its funds for the term of seven years, at any time afterwards, on becoming incapacitated by accident or infirmity from exercising his or her duties, is entitled to receive such annuity for life as the annual available income of the funds shall from year to year afford; such annuity to be, in each case, calculated and apportioned according to the class of subscription which the member has adopted and paid.

If any member die at any period after the commencement of his or her membership, the sum of ten pounds is allowed and paid out of the funds for funeral expenses.

Trustees, Mr. Alfred de Rothschild, C.V.O., Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. George Alexander. Directors, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Lewis Casson, Mr. Henry Cooper Cliffe, Mr. Charles K. Cooper, Mr. Tom Craven, Mr. Dillon Croker, F.S.A., Mr. Alfred H. Elliott, Mr. Henry Evill, Mr. Douglas Gordon, Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. H. J. Loveday, Mr. M. R. The Guild helps mothers (members of the theatrical profession) during the period of their maternity by a complete outfit for mother and child, in special cases doctors' and midwives' fees being paid. The Guild also provides second-hand clothing for stage purposes and for private wear to the poorer members of the profession.

Bee meetings every Friday.

Secretary, Miss Hammond. Offices: 90, Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, London, W.C.

ACTORS' CHURCH UNION.

The object of the Actors' Church Union is to endeavour to make special provision to meet the needs of those members of the Church who are engaged in the dramatic profession.

The chaplains (nominated by the President with the approval of the Bishop of the Diocese) endeavour to render any service in their power to the theatrical members of the Union, and are glad to be notified of any case of illness or other emergency which may need their help.

The Actors' Church Union is in no sense a mission to the stage. It does not regard actors and actresses as in any way different from other people, nor as needing any "special treatment." It looks upon them simply as members of the Church who, on account of the constant travelling which their profession involves, are deprived of many of those spiritual advantages which are enjoyed by other Churchmen whose mode of life permits them to have a fixed place of residence and to attend some particular church.

In London the Union in many instances, through its chaplains, has been able to co-operate with the Theatrical Ladies' Guild and the Music Hall Ladies' Guild in looking after cases of distress.

One special feature of the work of the A.C.U. is the lodging-house register, containing addresses in the various towns recommended by the local chaplains. The register is published in the A.C.U. Directory, and is issued to all members.

The Union also attempts to organise something in the way of entertainment and friendly social intercourse to alleviate the monotony of life on tour.

Any member of the dramatic profession may become a member of the A.C.U. on payment of an annual subscription of one shilling, which is required to defray the printing and postage expenses connected with the Union.

President, the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Southwark; Vice-President and Chairman of Committee, Rev. Prebendary Pennefather, Vicar of Kensington; Vice-Presidents, Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of London, Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Birmingham, Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Ripon, Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Glasgow, Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Argyll and the Isles.

Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Southampton, Sir Charles Wyndham, Sir Herbert Tree, Mr. Robert Arthur, Mr. Edward Compton, Mr. Ben Greet, Mr. Martin Harvey, Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. Charles Manners, Mr. Cyril Maude; Committee, Rev. W. Alington, Rev. J. Stephen Barrass, Rev. Wm. Cree, Rev. H. F. Davidson, Rev. Wynn Healey, Rev. Thomas Varney, Mrs. H. R. Gamble, Mrs. Donald Hole, Miss C. Chambers, Miss Emily Clarke, Miss Louise Stopford, Miss Lilian Baylis, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Miss Phyllis Broughton, Mr. E. H. Bull, Mr. Charles J. Cameron, Mrs. Carson, Mrs. Edward Compton, Miss Winifred Emery, Miss Harriet Greet, Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn, Miss Eva Moore, Mr. Chris. Walker; Organising Secretary and Treasurer, Rev. PLAY PRODUCING SOCIETIES.

THE INCORPORATED STAGE SOCIETY.

This Society was founded in 1899 and incorporated in 1904. Council of Management:—Mr. J. M. Barrie, Mr. Sidney Colvin, the Hon. Everard Feilding, Sir Almeric W. FitzRoy, K.C.V.O., Mr. H. A. Hertz, Mr. Alderson B. Horne, Mr. W. S. Kennedy, Mr. W. Lee Mathews, Mr. Gilbert Murray, Sir Sydney Olivier, K.C.M.G., Mrs. W. P. Reeves, Miss Louise Salom, Mr. G. Bernard Shaw, Mrs. Bernard Shaw, Mr. Charles Strachey, Mr. W. Hector Thomson (Hon. Treasurer), Mr. Bernard Watkin, Mr. Charles E. Wheeler, Mr. Frederick Whelen, Mr. Ernest E. S. Williams. Mr. A. E. Drinkwater, Secretary. Address, 9, Arundel Street, Strand, W.C.

The year's productions of this Society were as follows:—

"The Rights of the Soul," a play, in one act, by Giuseppe Giacosa; "The Bread of Others," a play, in two acts, by Turgènev, at the Kingsway. February 21.

"Unemployed," a play, in one act, by Margaret M. Mack; "The Fountain," a comedy, in three acts, by George Calderon, at the Aldwych. March 28.

"What the Public Wants," a play, in four acts, by Arnold Bennett, at the Aldwych. May 2.

"A Modern Aspasia," a comedy, in three acts, by H. Hamilton Fyfe, at the Aldwych. June 6.

"Kathleen Ni Houlihan," a play, in one act, by W. B. Yeats; "The Showing Up of Blanco Posnet," by G. Bernard Shaw; "The Workhouse Ward," a comedy, in one act, by Lady Gregory, at the Aldwych. December 5. These three were revivals, and were played by members of the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, company.

"What the Public Wants" was the fiftieth production of the Society. In connection with this a reception was given at the Hotel Cecil in honour of the actors and actresses who had played for the Society during the ten years of its existence. On this occasion "Dull Monotony," a satire, in two short acts, by Gilbert Cannam, was played by a distinguished cast. The Society issued a souvenir book containing reprints of the fifty programmes.

THE PLAY ACTORS.

This Society was formed in June, 1907, amongst several of the more active members of the Actors' Association. The objects of the Play Actors are:—

1. The production of the plays of Shakespeare and other poetical dramatists.
2. The introduction to the public of original plays by English authors.
3. The representation of adaptations of dramatic works by foreign authors.

From these it will be seen that the objects are in a degree similar to those of other play-producing societies, such as the Incorporated Stage Society, but they go further than these, for in their working details they are so arranged as to bring indirect benefit to the Actors' Association. The membership consists of two degrees—acting membership and ordinary or associate. Only professional players who are members of the Actors' Association are admitted to the first, and from these the various plays presented and produced are cast. Associates' subscription are as follows :—£2 2s., entitling the member to two seats (stalls) throughout the season; £1 1s., which carries one stall throughout the season, or two seats in the dress circle and upper circle alternately; and 12s. 6d., which carries one seat in the dress circle and upper circle alternately.

At their annual general meeting, held at 3, Bedford Street, Strand, on January 18, it was resolved to constitute the Society as a club, and to have it registered as such. A proposal to eliminate from the rules the clause respecting the Actors' Association was defeated by a large majority.

During the year 1909 the Play Actors have produced the following :—

January 10.—“John Malone's Love Story,” play, in four acts, by Rachael Penn (Mrs. E. S. Willard). Court.

March 14.—“Sawney,” one-act play, by Sybil Noble; “The Apple,” one-act play, by Inez Bensusan; “Darracott's Wife,” one-act play, by Affleck Scott and Alan Carmichael; and “A Question of Identity,” one-act play, by Archie J. Matthew. Court.

March 28.—“Sister Beatrice,” a Miracle, by Maurice Maeterlinck, translated by Bernard Miall. Court.

April 18.—“Chains,” play, in four acts, by Elizabeth Baker. Court.

May 9.—“The Inspiration of Nance,” by Blanche Wills Chandler; “Love of Woman,” by Mrs. George Norman; “The Purse of Gold,” by J. Sackville Martin; and “How the Vote was Won,” by Cicely Hamilton and Christopher St. John. Court.

May 30.—“His Bounden Duty,” play, in three acts, by P. E. Bodington. Court.

June 27.—“Kit's Woman,” play, in three acts, by Mrs. Havelock Ellis and Joshua Bates, from Mrs. Ellis's novel of the same name.

November 21.—“The Lesser Evil,” play, in four acts, by Elliott Page and Nora Vynne. Court.

December 19.—“The Monk of San Marco,” play, in three acts, by Sybil Ruskin. Court.

Of the above “The Purse of Gold” has since been bought by Mr. Herbert Trench, and “Chains” has been bought by Mr. Charles Frohman.

The Council of 1909 were :—Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn (Chairman), Mr. Fred Annerley, Miss Inez Bensusan, Mr. Herbert Bunston, Mr. Lewis Casson, Mr. C. F. Collings, Mr. Clive Currie, Mr. Clarence Derwent, Miss Cicely Hamilton, Mr. A. M. Heathcote, Miss Rose Mathews, Miss Winifred Mayo, Mr. Edward Rigby, Mr. Farren Soutar, Miss F. Jelf, Gerald Christian, T. Lindrea Mitchell, Edgar Skeet, and Miss Ella Erskine, with the Secretary and Treasurer, ex officio. Secretary :—Mr. N. Thorpe Mayne, 25, Regent Street, W.

THEATRICAL CLUBS.

THE GARRICK CLUB.

The Garrick Club, Garrick Street, Covent Garden, was founded in 1831. Its objects are defined as follows:—"The Garrick Club is instituted for the general patronage of the drama, for the purpose of combining a club, on economic principles, with the advantages of a Literary Society, for bringing together the supporters of the Drama, and for the foundation of a theatrical library with works on Costume." The club possesses a large collection of theatrical portraits and other pictures. Secretary, Mr. Charles J. Fitch.

THE SAVAGE CLUB.

The Savage Club, 6 and 7, Adelphi Terrace, Strand, London, W.C., is for the association of gentlemen connected professionally with Literature, Art, Science, the Drama, or Music. Trustees:—Mr. E. G. THE GREEN ROOM CLUB.

The Green Room Club was founded in 1877 for the association of gentlemen of the dramatic and artistic professions. Secretary, Mr. G. Swann. Address, 46, Leicester Square.

THE MANAGERS' CLUB.

The Managers' Club is instituted for the purpose of bringing touring and resident managers, theatrical proprietors, and all interested in theatrical enterprises and business into touch with each other. The club has 190 members, and the annual subscription is £2 2s., except in the case of members of the Touring Managers' Association, Limited, who pay an annual subscription of £1 1s. in addition to their subscription to the Association. The Committee, which is elected annually, consists of twenty-one members. The present Committee is as follows:—President, Mr. M. V. Leveaux; Hon. Treasurer, Mr. J. Bannister Howard; Assistant Hon. Treasurer, Mr. Frank Weathersby; Messrs. A. Clifton Alderson, Cecil Barth, Arthur Bertram, Edward Compton, E. P. Clift, Wentworth Croke, Peter Davey, E. Bradford Smith. Address, 30, Bedford Street, Strand.

The Club was opened in Beaufort Buildings in 1889 and moved to its present quarters in 1898. This year (1910) marks the coming of age of the Club, and the event will be celebrated on Shakespeare's Day, April 23, by way of a Commemoration Festival and annual dinner.

THE GALLERY FIRST NIGHTERS' CLUB.

The headquarters of the Gallery First Nighters' Club are at the Bedford Head Hotel, Maiden Lane, Strand, W.C. Subscription, 10s. 6d. per annum. President, Mr. Arthur Were; Hon. Treasurer, Mr. John Page; Hon. Secretary, Mr. G. F. Rigden. Committee, Messrs. H. J. Davis, P. L. Jackson, Stanley Jones, H. Major, F. Page, W. O. Summers, H. F. Whitworth, and G. F. Wright. Hon. Auditor, Mr. Frank H. Long.

The Club was founded in 1896, "to maintain the right of playgoers to give free and independent criticism in the theatre, and to afford facilities for social intercourse among gallery first nighters." Genuine gallery playgoers alone are eligible for membership. The Club holds frequent debates on subjects connected with the Drama. Other functions include the annual dinner, held at Frascati's in March, Bohemian suppers, concerts, etc. Ladies are invited to the annual dinner and the debates.

The Club claims to be the most democratic playgoing club, and one of the last strongholds of Bohemianism. Its bugbear is "Respectability." Their presidents, etc., are always genuine gallery "boys," the club having a rooted objection to honorary figureheads.

The club had strong associations with the late Nellie Farren, who always spoke affectionately of its members as "her boys." They entertained their never-to-be-forgotten favourite at a dinner on Saturday, April 29, 1899, when Mr. Cecil Raleigh marvelled at the "weird and wonderful enthusiasm." This, however, is a feature which characterises all their dinners. At the annual dinner, held in March, 1909, the principal speakers were Mr. Robert Loraine, Miss Ruth Vincent, Mr. Hannen Swaffer, and Miss Ellen Terry. Among the other well-known people who have spoken at their dinners are Miss Eva Moore, Miss Kate Rorke, Miss Nina Boucicault, Mlle. Adeline Genée, Sir W. S. Gilbert, Messrs. H. V. Esmond, J. Forbes Robertson, Lewis Waller, Charles Hawtreay, George Alexander, H. B. Irving, Arthur Bouchier, James Welch, Oscar Asche, Cecil Raleigh, Sydney Valentine, Martin Harvey, Louis Bradfield, Spencer Leigh Hughes, T. McDonald Rendle, W. Pett Ridge, James Douglas, Alfred Robins, and the late Mr. C. L. Carson, of THE STAGE—a list of which any club might be proud.

The 1910 annual dinner will be held at Frascati's on Sunday, February 13, when Mr. Rudolph Besier, Miss Gwennie Mars, and Mr. E. F. Spence will be the principal speakers.

THE REHEARSAL CLUB.

The Rehearsal Club (29, Leicester Square) was founded in 1892 with the view to furnishing a quiet retreat to which minor actresses might resort between the hours of rehearsals and matinées and the evening performance.

The member's subscription is 2s. per quarter. The club is open from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m., and contains comfortable reading and refreshment rooms, the former well supplied with books, papers, and magazines. Anyone wishing to see the club will be gladly shown over by one of the committee or the matron.

VARIETY ORGANISATIONS.

VARIETY ARTISTS' FEDERATION.

Founded February 18, 1906. Registered under the Trades Union Acts, 1871 and 1876. Offices, 18, Charing Cross Road, London W.C. Affiliated to the Trades Union Congress, the General Federation of Trade Unions, the White Rats of America, the International Artists' Lodge, the Australasian Vaudeville Association, and Le Union Syndicate des Artistes Lyriques. Officers:—Chairman, Mr. Fred Russell; Vice-Chairman, Mr. James Allison; Trustees, Messrs. Joe Elvin, Paul Martinetti, and Edmund Edmunds; Treasurer, Mr. William Lee; Accountant, Mr. W. H. McCarthy. Executive Committee meetings every Tuesday at 12. London and provincial meetings every Friday at 12. Mr. W. H. Clemart, General Secretary.

The Federation aims at the abolition of all abuses detrimental to the interests and welfare of the music hall profession. It provides its members with financial assistance as regards railroad fares, free legal advice, free legal protection, and a court of arbitration between artists and proprietors—thus saving law expenses. There is also a death levy of 6d. per head per member. Entrance fee, 2s. Weekly subscription, 6d.

The Executive Committee, as constituted at the end of 1909, was as follows:—Messrs. John Alexander, W. H. Atlas, Jas. Alexandre, Barney Armstrong, James Allison, Jas. Atroy, Edwin Adeler, Peter Bijou, Signor Borelli, Sid. Bandon, Harry Bancroft, George Brooks, Bert Byrne, Billy Brown, Winfield Blake, Harry Barrett, Fred Curran, Andie Caine, Tom Costello, J. W. GRAND ORDER OF WATER RATS.

This Society was founded in 1890. Its headquarters are the Vaudeville Club, 98, Charing Cross Road, W.C. In 1909 Mr. Fred Ginnett was King Rat. For the present year the officers are as follows:—

King Rat, Mr. Chas. Warren; Prince Rat, Mr. Harry Tate; Scribe Rat, Mr. W. H. McCarthy; Test Rat, Mr. Dave O'Toole; Bank Rat, Mr. Edwin (Papa) Brown; Musical Rat, Mr. Burt Shepard.

During the year the Water Rats held their Annual Ball at the Trocadero on March 4, a "Motor Run" to Brighton on July 4, and an "Up River" outing on August 15. In the early stages of the Agency trouble they opened an agency under the management of Mr. Joe O'Gorman.

MUSIC HALL ARTISTS' RAILWAY ASSOCIATION.

Founded February 2, 1897. Head offices, 18, Charing Cross Road, London, W.C. Secretary, Mr. C. Douglas Stuart. Branch offices:—Glasgow: Cockburn Buildings. Agent, Mr. Geo. Ripon. Liverpool: 21, Houghton Street. Agent, Mr. Tom McKay. Manchester: All Saints Chambers, 46, Sydney Street, Oxford Road. Agent, Mr. Fred Slingsby. Officers for the current year:—Hon. President, Mr. Joe Elvin; Hon. Vice-Presidents, Sir James Bailey, Mr. Charles Coborn, Mr. Albert le Fre, Mr. Fred W. Millis, and Mr. Douglas White; Hon. Trustees, Messrs. J. W. Cragg, Paul Martinetti, and G. H. Chirgwin; Hon. Treasurer, Mr. Arthur Rigby; Hon. Solicitor, Mr. Eugene Judge (Judge and Priestley).

During the past twelve months the Association has quietly continued on its useful career, and there is but little to record. It may be noted that a new concession has been secured for the 7,000 members—viz., that separate tickets may now be obtained at the stations on the Great Eastern and South-Eastern and Chatham Railways, so that now there is no terminus in the metropolis where this undoubted boon is not granted. The annual dinner and dance were held in April, with Mr. G. H. Chirgwin in the chair, supported by Mr. Joe Elvin, and nearly £500 was collected on that occasion for the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund. The Committee has during the year held two important conferences with the theatrical managers of the railway companies, at which several minor concessions were granted, and the friendly relations between the railway companies and the Association are on an even firmer basis than heretofore. More than £300 has during 1909 been distributed between the railway and music-hall charities, thus making a total amount of £3,500 which has been given since the formation of this Association. In June last it was decided to remove the offices from Wellington Street to larger premises in Charing Cross Road, where there are a spacious board-room and all up-to-date improvements. The Executive Committee is practically the same as last year, and Mr. Fred Herbert and Mr. Harry Blake have been re-elected to the positions of Chairman and Vice-Chairman. Weekly meetings of the Committee are held every Wednesday at 12 o'clock.

THE TERRIERS' ASSOCIATION.

Officers:—President, Mr. G. P. R. Burgess; Vice-Presidents, Mr. J. Alexander, Mr. Andie Caine, Mr. T. C. Callaghan, Mr. H. Conlin, Mr. E. D'Almaine, Mr. H. Gage, Mr. H. Herald, Mr. B. Obo, Mr. J. Obo, Mr. S. N. Salter, Mr. H. Wright; Hon. Trustees, Messrs. H. Gage and S. N. Salter; Hon. Auditors, Messrs. A. Voyce and H. Cory Woodrow; Hon. Treasurer, Mr. Harry Barnard; Hon. Solicitor, Mr. G. P. R. Burgess; Medical Officer, Mr. G. F. McCarthy; Incorporated Accountants, Messrs. Turquand, Turquand and Company; Executive Committee, Mr. R. Abel, Mr. W. H. Atlas, Mr. H. Bent, Signor A. Borelli, Mr. T. E. Box, Mr. G. Cooper, Mr. C. C. Cornish, Mr. A. De Brean, Mr. J. E. Dunedin, Mr. J. Dwyer, Mr. P. Ford, Dr. E. B. M. Frost, Mr. C. F. Gage, Mr. F. Gee, Mr. W. E. Gillin, Mr. H. H. Griff, Mr. E. Karno, Mr. W. King, Mr. C. W. Kloof, Mr. F. Larola, Mr. T. Maxwell, Mr. F. W. Millis, Mr. W. L. Murray, Mr. F. Neiman, Mr. W. Norman, Mr. B. Olrac, Mr. T. Packer, Mr. G. Pearson, Mr. J. C. Pratt, Mr. A. Simmons, Mr. G. Smythson, Mr. J. Sparrow, Mr. W. Welsh, Mr. H. Wheatley, Mr. D. White, Mr. B. Whiteley, Mr. W. Wisper, Mr. B. Woodger; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Were.

The predominant feature of the year has been a revival of interest in the welfare of the Association. A large number of applications for membership have been received. These have been carefully considered by the committee, and over ninety candidates have successfully passed the ballot. The Terriers hold their ceremonial meeting every Sunday evening in the banqueting room of the "Three Stags Hotel," Kennington. Many improvements have been effected in the general appearance at the "Kennel," various gifts having been recently presented by Terriers for its adornment. Officers are duly elected every month for various positions, and there is generally a keen competition for the honours. During the past year the Sunday meetings have been remarkable for the large attendance of Terriers, and for the genial spirit that pervades the gatherings. The Terriers' social functions are well known for their gaiety and enjoyment, and the year 1909 has been one of unbroken success in this respect. The ladies' concerts were held on the first Sundays in the winter months, and these drew crowded attendances. The annual house dinner was held at the Hotel Boulogne in January last. The annual dinner and ball, for Terriers and their friends, followed in March, at the Horns, and were very successful, whilst the annual river outing in June beat all records.

Through the generosity of Terrier Griff, a revival of an old function of the Terriers, viz., a pig's head banquet, was held in October.

In the early part of the year the Terriers lost their old and esteemed member, Terrier Joe Lawrence, the founder of the Association. The past year has also been notable on account of the large number of Terriers who have received sick pay and medical attendance, whilst the benevolent account, in addition, has been heavily drawn upon for the relief of Terriers in necessitous circumstances. Notwithstanding these claims, the Association has a substantial balance on the year's working, and altogether its finances are in an exceedingly satisfactory condition.

THE SKETCH ASSOCIATION.

The constitution of this association was altered during 1909 in order to make membership open to sketch authors and actors as well as managers. President, Mr. George Gray; Vice-Presidents, Mr. R. V. Harcourt, Mr. Arnold Bell, Mr. Frank Gerald, Mr. George M. Marriott, Mr. Herbert Darnley; Hon. Secretary and Solicitor, Mr. Portland Akerman; Assistant Secretary, Mr. Monte Maitland; Hon. Treasurer, Mr. C. Claxton-Turner. Executive Committee:—Managers: Mr. Leonard Mortimer, Mr. Frank Hardie, Mr. Albert Marsh, Miss Florence Creagh, Mr. Charles Baldwin; Authors: Mr. John F. Preston, Mr. Cayley Calvert, Mr. George Unwin, Mr. Dick Cruikshanks, Mr. Gilbert Wells; Artists: Mr. Leonard Robson, Mr. Herbert Terry, Mr. Fred Kitchen, Mr. Harold Brough, Mr. E. Howard Templeton. Office: Room 52, 13, Henrietta Street, W.C.

VARIETY ARTISTS' BENEVOLENT FUND.

This young but thriving society has just concluded its second year, and may well be proud of the good work it has done in that brief period. Its funds have continued to increase, and the amount given away in charity to the poor of the profession averages about £22 weekly. At the M.H.A.R.A. dinner, largely through the instrumentality of the President for the year, Mr. G. H. Chirgwin, nearly £500 was collected, and over £350 was obtained by the extra shilling charged on the cards of membership of that society. Donations have also been received through various other channels, such as the sports, which realised nearly £100 profit, and the matinee at the Coliseum, which Mr. Oswald Stoll so generously placed at the disposal of the Committee, will bring in £150, while Mr. W. H. Broadhead sent a generous gift of £50. Mr. Joe Elvin headed the list at the dinner with £50. Thus it will be seen that the profession can no longer be accused of not supporting their own poor. Week after week the most distressing cases of poverty and want come before the Committee, and in nearly every instance are promptly relieved by grants of loans or by a small weekly pension. The weekly amount of these pensions is over £12. Four artists were buried during the year at the expense of the Fund, and by an additional contribution to the Hospital Saturday Fund letters are obtained for deserving cases for hospitals and convalescent homes. The Committee is most strict in the investigation of every case, and it counts among its members several of the veteran performers who have known the old professionals who come for assistance. By an arrangement with the Music Hall Home Fund four artists are now being cared for under the roof of that excellent institution. The annual dinner and dance will be held on February 20, 1910, when it is hoped that a liberal response will be forthcoming to the urgent cry for donations to enable the Committee to carry on the good work of charity through the twelve months.

THE MUSIC HALL HOME.

The Music Hall Home was founded thirteen years ago by certain prominent members of the Terriers' Association. The objects of the Music Hall Home are to afford shelter to deserving members of the variety profession who have fallen on evil times, and to provide a permanent home for poor performers who, through illness, disablement, or old age, are quite unable to find employment.

At present there are a dozen inmates lodged in the Home, which is situated at 31, Wilson Road, Camberwell, S.E.

The officers for the ensuing year are:—President, Mr. Walter de Frece; Vice-Presidents, Messrs. Harry Barnard, Thos. Barrasford, Harry Bawn, Leon Bassett, W. S. Bassett, Ted E. Box, G. P. R. Burgess, Jas. E. Dunedin, Percy Ford, Harry Gage, Walter Hassan, Malcolm McDowall, Fred Neiman, F. H. Pedgrift, C. J. Bartleet Perry, Jesse Sparrow, C. Douglas Stuart, Chas. Weldon, and Douglas White; Hon. Solicitor, Mr. G. P. R. Burgess; Committee, Messrs. John Alexander, W. H. Atlas, Ernest Ball, Willie Benn, Harry Blake, John G. Brandon, Tom Branson, Geo. Brown, Bert Chapman, C. C. Cornish, J. H. Davy Jim Elmo, T. C. Callaghan, Harry Gribben, H. Griff, Hamilton Hill, H. Hough, W. Kloof, P. A. Lennon, Ernest Leopard, C. Mannering, W. L. Murray, F. W. Millis, Walter Norman, Ben Obo, Jim Obo, George Pearson, Samuel Salter, Arthur Simmons, Geo. H. Smythson, Leo Trainor, J. Traynor, George Vivian, E. C. Webb, Horace Wheatley, B. Whiteley, Jack Woolf, and Harry Wright; Treasurer, Mr. Harry Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Benj. Woodger. The Committee meetings are held at the Empire, Camberwell, on the first and third Thursdays in the month.

MUSIC HALL LADIES' GUILD.

The Guild was founded in 1906. President, Mrs. Fred Ginnett; Vice-Presidents, Mrs. Eugene Stratton, Miss Irene Rose, Mrs. Paul Martinetti, Miss Maude Mortimer, and Mrs. G. H. Smythson; Hon. Treasurer, Miss Belle Elmore. Executive Committee: Miss Marie Lloyd, Mrs. George Gilbey, Mrs. Leoni Clarke, Miss Maude Courtney, Mrs. Morton, Miss Cecilia Macarte, Mrs. C. C. Bartram, Miss Rose Elliott, Miss Alexandra Dagmar, Miss Dot Stephens, Mrs. James Horne, Mrs. Dunedin, Miss Julia Macarte, Miss Amber Wyville, Mrs. Joe Elvin, Miss Ray Wallace, Miss Lottie Albert, Mrs. Lockhart, Mrs. Herbert Shelley, Miss Lil Hawthorne, Miss Marie Loftus, Miss Millie Payne, Miss Kate Vulcana, Mrs. Vernon Cowper, Miss Louie Davis, Miss Victoria Monks. Hon. Committee: Mrs. Lily Bradgate, Mrs. Pettitt, Mrs. H. Maud Gamble, Miss E. G. Clarke.

The above Guild has been formed with the object of assisting the wives of artists who, through lack of employment, illness, or confinement, are in want of help, by supplying proper medical aid, food, coal, or other necessaries as may be required. Also, in cases of confinement, to lend a supply of suitable baby clothes for the first month, to be returned at the expiration of that time. To assist widows of artists to find suitable employment; to find employment for children of poor artists and orphans, as programme sellers, call boys; also office work or other suitable employment, and in cases where possible to assist them in obtaining parts in sketches where children's parts are included; to supply necessitous artists with free clothing; to sell stage and other clothing to artists who may require it, at a very small charge; to visit the sick; to give toys, books, and games to sick children of artists.

Meetings are held every Wednesday at the offices, Albion House, 61, New Oxford Street, London, W. Secretary, Miss Melinda May.

STAFF ORGANISATIONS.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF THEATRICAL EMPLOYEES.

This Association was established on August 20, 1890. It represents those employed in the various stage departments, in the manufacture and use of stage scenery, properties, electrical fittings, animated picture machines, comprising stage managers, heads of departments, carpenters, electricians, kinematograph operators, property men, stagemen, flymen, and others employed in theatres and music halls, or theatrical workshops, resident or touring.

It is affiliated with the General Federation of Trade Unions, the Trade Union Congress, London and Provincial Trades and Labour Councils. The chief office is 29, Wellington Street, Strand, London.

Summary of Objects :—To raise the status of stage employés by maintaining a minimum rate of pay, definite working rules, and the provision of sick, funeral, and benevolent benefits for members. The Association has four branches in London and one each in Birmingham, Bradford, Oldham, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Middlesbrough, Stockton-on-Tees, and Greenock. The entrance fees vary according to branch from 2s. 6d. to 10s. The contributions vary, according to branch and benefit desired, from 2d. to 1s. 2d. per week. Each branch has a benevolent fund, and most of them have sick and funeral funds. The constitution of the Association permits any grade or section of employés eligible to join to form a branch, or all sections to combine in one branch in any locality. The aim of the organisation is to enrol all eligible men with touring companies, and those resident in every theatrical centre in the United Kingdom.

The National Executive Committee is selected from the members residing within twenty miles of the chief office, but it is open to any branch to nominate any member to one of the general offices. This Committee organises the London annual theatrical sports and annual concerts, and has charge of the National Open Benevolent Fund, which is maintained from the proceeds of the theatrical sports and donations received to the annual concert funds, for the benefit of non-members, men and women employés, whose case is recommended by a subscriber to the sports or concert funds, or by any theatrical or music hall association whose rules do not permit them to help such applicants.

The funds of the Association on December 31, 1908, amounted to £1,293 0s. 9d., to which date the Association, in addition to the increase of wages, secured and maintained, and the protection afforded to its members, had paid in cash benefits to members :—

HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS ASSOCIATION.

This Association is a branch of the N.A.T.E. and was established in November, 1902, and consists exclusively of stage managers, master carpenters, chief electricians, master propertymen, and master gasmen of theatres and music halls. Membership is open to those connected with any theatre, music hall, or touring company in the United Kingdom who have held such positions for at least six months, and are otherwise qualified. The entrance fee is 10s. The contribution varies from 1s. to 4s. 8d. per month, according to benefit desired and age of applicant. Sick pay is assured to those subscribing for same from 10s. to 20s. per week for a number of weeks. On the death of a member £20 is paid to the widow of a member in benefit, and on the death of a member's wife £10 is paid to the member, which sums are partly raised by levies.

The Association has also a benevolent fund, and affords free legal advice to members. An annual dinner has been given each year, at which the following gentlemen have in turn presided:—Mr. J. Comyns Carr, Mr. George Alexander, Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, Mr. H. B. Irving, and, on the last occasion, Mr. Edward Terry. The Association assists to organise the London theatrical sports and the annual concerts. The present officers are:—President, Mr. James Cullen, master carpenter, the St. James's; Vice-President, Mr. G. H. Dyball, stage manager, the London Pavilion; Hon. Secretary, Mr. William Barbour, electrician, St. James's; Financial Secretary, Mr. Wm. Johnson; Committee, Mr. Wm. Pullinger, master carpenter, the Garrick; Mr. Philip Sheridan, electrician, the Strand; Mr. John Brunskill, master carpenter, the Savoy; Mr. W. G. Wilton, property master, the Vaudeville; Mr. R. J. Carter, electrician, Terry's; Mr. David Sheridan, electrician; Mr. F. B. Fidge, electrician, the Lyceum; and Mr. G. W. Willcox, property master, the Garrick. Office, 29, Wellington Street, Strand, London.

This Association was established in April, 1907. Its office is at 29, Wellington Street, Strand, London. Its members are qualified operators of animated picture apparatus.

Objects :—(a) To protect and promote the interests of qualified operators, and to raise the status of their profession. (b) To encourage among its members a knowledge of the science of new inventions affecting their business. (c) To establish a standard of proficiency by a qualifying examination or otherwise. (d) To secure the recognition of a minimum rate of pay for each class of work. (e) To establish an employment register, and such other benefits (sick, funeral, or legal aid) as may be hereafter agreed upon.

Entrance fee, 5s. Contribution, 1s. 6d. per month, being for General and Benevolent Funds.

Certificates are issued to members passing an examination, particulars of which are supplied on application.

Present (1910) officers :—President, Mr. J. Wood; Vice-President, Mr. E. Catlin; Hon. Secretary, Mr. H. L. Merritt; Financial Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. Wm. Johnson. Committee: Messrs. C. Mayo, T. C. Field, W. Mason, A. Malcolm, E. H. Mason, J. M. Robinson, L. Gilling, and A. Hughes.

During the past year the Association secured the services of representative exhibitors to act as a Board of Examiners, and to issue certificates for members having a knowledge of (a) electric and limelight; (b) electric only; (c) limelight only.

Three examinations have been held, and fifty-three certificates have been issued to successful competitors.

Full particulars of the Association supplied on application to the Hon. Secretary at 29, Wellington Street, Strand, London, W.C.

MISCELLANEOUS EVENTS OF THE YEAR.

- April 20.—Theatrical managers ranged themselves solidly against Mr. Willett's Day-light Saving Bill, which during the year was advanced in Parliament to the stage that a Select Committee was appointed to hear evidence. On April 20 Mr. John Gatti gave evidence before the Committee to the effect that the Bill, if passed, would prove detrimental to the interests of the theatrical profession. The managers later in the year had the satisfaction of the Committee reporting adversely on the Bill.
- May 11.—Matinée organised by Mr. Cyril Maude and Mr. Arthur Collins in aid of the Queen Alexandra Sanatorium at Davos.
- June 14.—Water Rats' matinée at the Oxford.
- June 26.—Annual Theatrical Sports—Stamford Bridge.
- June 22.—Garden Party in aid of the Actors' Orphanage Fund—Botanical Gardens.
- July 1.—Matinée in aid of Miss Maud Robertson (Mrs. Halingden Russell). "Caste" played. £300 realised—St. James's.
- July 4.—Water Rats' motor-car run to Brighton.
- July 20.—Cricket match between London and Provincial Actors in aid of the professional charities. London Actors won—Kennington Oval.
- August 12.—A deputation from the Theatrical Managers' Association and the Theatres Alliance waited on Mr. Lloyd George at the House of Commons on the subject of the proposed increased taxation under the Licensing Bill. Sir Herbert Tree was unable to be present, but his statement was read by Mr. Arthur Bouchier. Mr. J. B. Mulholland spoke also. The result was that Mr. Mulholland was asked to obtain - statistics as to bar receipts in theatres. These, being placed before the Chancellor of the Exchequer, resulted in an amendment being introduced into the Bill fixing the license duty on theatres taxed under £2,000 at the old rate of £20. Theatres rated at over £2,000 to pay £50.

- August 25.—Annual cricket match between Lords and Actors. Result, a draw—Lords.
- September 15.—Country Fair and Fête held by the Actors' Association at Earlsfield.
- October 8.—Sir Herbert Tree unveiled a memorial tablet to mark the site of Shakespeare's Globe Playhouse—Bankside.
- November 24.—A deputation of English actors, consisting of Sir John Hare, Sir Charles Wyndham, Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. Arthur Bouchier, Mr. Norman Forbes, and Mr. Max Beerbohm (who represented his brother, Sir Herbert Tree), attended at the Comédie Française, and presented a memorial of the late Constant Coquelin. The inscription ran:—"Constant Coquelin, Sociétaire de la Comédie Française, 1864-1887. Homage de la part de ses confrères Anglais."
- November 26.—A memorial to Sir Henry Irving, contributed by Salvini and other Italian artists, was unveiled by the Italian Ambassador, the Marquis of San Giuliano, at Drury Lane. The memorial is placed on the wall of the main staircase.
- December 13.—Church v. Stage Football Match at Stamford Bridge.
- December 21.—Matinée at the London Coliseum in aid of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund and the Variety Institution. Over £300 was realised.

STAGE - FRIGHT!

EXCEPT

Validol.

Validol is largely prescribed by the medical profession for all kinds of nervous disorders. It is no secret remedy, being the valerianate of menthol, a perfectly innocuous and inexpensive compound.

Erratum, 1908. Daisy Morrell, September 8, should have read Dolly Morrell.

THE MIDDLESBROUGH LOCK-OUT.

In January a dispute occurred in Middlesbrough which involved over sixty members of the local branch of the National Association of Theatrical Employés. On Saturday, January 9, all the members employed at the Opera House, the Royal, the Empire, and the New Hippodrome were given a week's wages in lieu of notice, and informed that their services were no longer required. The matter, it was understood, was in connection with a claim made by the men for extra pay on Christmas Day.

At a meeting of the Independent Labour Party, held on February 1, the following resolution was adopted:—That this meeting condemns the action of the managers of the Middlesbrough theatres and music halls in their refusal to attend the conference proposed by the General Federation of Trade Unions to consider the questions in dispute, and calls upon the workers of the town to uphold the principles of trade unionism by refusing to attend the theatres and music halls until the dispute is satisfactorily settled.

Efforts were subsequently made by the Board of Trade to effect a settlement; in the meanwhile, the N.A.T.E. had lodged a complaint that the music-hall managers had committed a breach of the 1907 Award. Mr. G. R. Askwith invited the managers concerned to meet him, and it was finally arranged that a conference should take place between the parties in Middlesbrough on March 23. A settlement not being arrived at at this conference, it was agreed the matter should be referred to Mr. Askwith.

On March 31 Mr. Askwith issued the following Award:—

AWARD.

Middlesbrough Theatres and Music Halls.

At a conference held at the Corporation Hotel, Middlesbrough, on March 23, 1909, it was agreed between the representatives of the managers and of the employés, in the presence of a representative of the General

Federation of Trade Unions and of the Board of Trade, that the questions in dispute be discussed with a view to an agreement being arrived at without reference to the Arbitrator, but, failing agreement, that the points in dispute be left to me, the undersigned, the following undertaking being signed by each manager and union representative present—and the instances in dispute having been referred to me and heard on March 29, my decision is:—

We, the undersigned, hereby agree to loyally abide by the decision of Mr. Askwith.

1. That the employés of the Empire Palace and Hippodrome Music Halls should not have been dismissed by the managers, and are to be reinstated in their former posts on or before April 17.

2. That the employés at the Theatre Royal gave grave reason for the belief of the managers that it was necessary to dismiss them, but that under the circumstances of the case the benefit of the doubt may be given to them, and that they are to be reinstated on or before April 24.

3. That the employés at the Grand Opera House were in fault, and that the managers were within their right in dismissing them, and are not to be required to reinstate any or all of them other than those in the front of the house, who were not concerned in the dispute, and who may have been since dismissed. These latter employés to be reinstated on or before April 24.

4. That for the future good working of the theatres and music-halls it be understood—

(a) That the managers may choose their men, employing union men so long as they are efficient, available, and of good character.

(b) No men to leave work and send substitutes without proper notice to the management.

(c) The men to be under the direct control of the master carpenter, stage-manager, or carpenter, and to carry out their duty as they may direct.

(d) The stage staff to be in attendance at the music-halls for their duty at 6.30 on Monday evening and at 6.45 on other nights, and at the theatres the stage staff to be in attendance for their duty half an hour on Monday night and fifteen minutes on other evenings, before the commencement of the performance, but on nights when called on by the management attendance to be half an hour before the commencement.

(e) The managers to offer no objection to any present employes remaining in their service becoming Union men.

As witness my hand this thirty-first day of March, 1909,

(Signed) G. R. ASKWITH.

J. COLE. - PIRATED MUSIC.

At the Woolwich Police-court, Jack Cole, of Anglesea Road, Woolwich, was summoned for having sold and offered for sale a copy of pirated music at a stall in Beresford Square, Woolwich.

The defendant (who had been fined for a similar offence) was fined £5 with 23s. costs, or one month.

RICHARDS, BURNEY AND CO. v. RUDD. ACTION OVER A TURN-MONEY CONTRACT.

In the Shoreditch County Court, before his Honour Judge Smyly, K.C., Messrs. Richards, Burney and Co., proprietors of the London Music Hall and Collins's Music Hall, sued to recover £9 10s. from Mr. Austin Rudd, damages for an alleged breach of an agreement.

Mr. Whetton was counsel for the plaintiffs, and Mr. Parkes appeared for the defendant.

Mr. Whetton said that on June 8, 1906, the defendant entered into an agreement with the plaintiffs to appear at Collins's Music Hall for a week commencing January 6, 1908, at £9 10s. a week, and it was for damages for the non-fulfilment of that contract that they were now suing, the damages being mentioned in the contract as the amount of the salary. The first the plaintiffs heard that defendant was not likely to appear was on January 6, when he wired: "Really very sorry, cannot do four turns; relaxed throat. Doctor advises not working four turns. Will give Collins's exclusive dates. Same terms in lieu. Stoll pays me £25." Counsel said it was quite clear from this that he was quite willing to give some fresh dates for those that he was missing, but the fact was he was at the same time booked for the Granville, Waltham Green, and actually appeared there, although he was pleading illness. Clause 9 of the contract laid it down that in the event of the non-fulfilment of the engagement through illness a doctor's certificate had to be sent before noon, and that must state precisely what was the matter and when there was a chance of recovery; whilst Clause 10 expressly laid it down that absence left it in the hands of the plaintiffs to cancel the contract. If the defendant was prevented from working for them it was because he was working somewhere else, and, whilst his only proper excuse could be that he was ill, that could not apply here, as he worked elsewhere, and also he never sent a doctor's certificate, as bound to do by the contract.—Mr. Hector Munro said he was the manager of Collins's Music Hall. He had not received a medical certificate in connection with this engagement. Mr. Austin Rudd said that his contract with the Granville was made previous to the one with Collins's Music Hall. The Granville contract was actually at less money than Collins's, to start with, but the house was altered to two-houses-a-night, and it was agreed that he should have a quarter more for doing the two turns. For the past three or four years he had been susceptible to rheumatic attacks which affected his throat, causing relaxation. At such times he had found it very difficult to sing, and many managers had let him off his contracts rather than cause him any trouble. Whenever he found a chance he only did one house a night now. It was no desire of his to break the contract, and he needed the money, and would have been only too glad to earn it. It was nonsense to suggest that a certificate of illness had to be there by noon, as, supposing a person fell in a fit at 7.30 p.m., it was a certainty they would be unable to appear.—Mr. Whetton: Now, think well; had it not been for the Granville you could have fulfilled your engagement at Collins's?—Defendant:—Most certainly. I had no other hall to go to.—Mr. Whetton: If you choose to make half-a-dozen contracts you are expected to appear?—Defendant: Yes; but you see these were turned into double houses a night, which upset things.—Judge Smyly: But the real point is that if you had not turned the Granville contract into a double one, which you did after Collins's, you would have been able to appear at Collins's?—Defendant: Yes, and would have done so. Sometimes we cannot perform because we cannot fit the time in.—Mr. Whetton: But if you make a contract the manager expects you to turn up?—Defendant: Yes, but he takes into consideration how you are booked up—at least, a London manager would.—Mr. Whetton: Do you mean to say that he takes the risk of your being unable to attend?—Defendant: I swear it is so.—Mr. Whetton: That is altogether a fresh suggestion, and I must ask leave to recall my witness on the point, as my instructions are exactly to the contrary.—Judge Smyly: Yes, certainly, when this witness is finished; it is a highly important point.—Mr. Whetton: You were doing, or trying to do, more than you could manage?—Defendant: Well, I suppose so.—Mr. Whetton: Can you tell us why you did not take the honest and straightforward course and say you did not think you would be able to appear?—Defendant: Because I thought I should be able to manage it up to the last moment. I never sent a certificate because they refused to have anything to do with me. I was going to Australia, and I left instructions that my solicitors should accept service. I offered to send a certificate when I telephoned on the Monday.—Mr. Munro was then recalled, and said that the custom was that dates were submitted by the agent, or by the artist himself, and they picked those they wanted. If the times clashed for appearing at different halls, in ninety-nine cases out of 100 an agreement was arrived at, and they naturally expected him to turn up. There was not such a thing in the music-hall profession as "can't be done"; things had to be done.—Judge Smyly: If he dropped out in that way I hardly think he would be liable.—Mr. Whetton: Put not if I prove custom.—Judge Smyly: I do not see that custom has much to do with it: in this case it has mainly to do with the fact that he had contracted to do a double turn at Waltham Green on the same date. He was taking on what he was not physically fit to perform, not that he was too ill to perform at all, and, therefore, why should he not have performed for the plaintiffs as much as at Walham Green?—In giving judgment, Judge Smyly said that the contract before him was a very puzzling one, because it was well known that these artists took several engagements for the same night. "I am inclined to think that when a person makes a contract of this sort he must not play fast and loose with it and leave things to chance." He continued: "I do not think an artist can take a good number of engagements, and then, because his throat is bad and he does not feel inclined to carry them all out, to pick and choose just those that he will do. That would not be fair to those that got left in the lurch by any means. I think, however, there ought to be a clause in this contract to that effect, and the plaintiffs would be well advised to consider the point. I feel sure, as it now stands, there are rocks ahead, as it leaves some most complicated and perplexing points of law to be unravelled. In this case, however, it has been slightly simplified, although it is complicated enough, as I think the defendant has put himself out of Court, as he would have been able to perform at Collins's if he had not done the Granville. There were grave doubts as to his appearing, and his proper course would have been to have let them know of his difficulties at the proper time. As it was, it put them in very great difficulties at the last moment, which was not fair. Even if he had been taken ill at one o'clock, according to the clause, which insisted on being told at noon, they could cancel their contract, although I have my doubts as to whether they would ever be able to recover any money in the event of its being such a thing as paralysis. I think the defendant is liable for damages, as he increased his performances at the Granville after the Collins' contract—in fact, some time after. It is possibly through taking too much work on that this breakdown has occurred; but there it is, a contract has been broken, and by the defendant, to my mind. Looking at this contract, I am sure that some very complicated questions will arise one of these days, which the music-hall profession will be pleased to fight, I suppose, and then perhaps I shall have to go much deeper into the legal possibilities than I have to-day; but this case resolves itself into the fact that it was the second contract at the Granville, and the condition of the defendant's throat that caused the trouble. There will be judgment for the plaintiffs for £9 10s."

HART v. MAIDSTONE PALACE.—CLAIM FOR SALARY.

Before his Honour Judge Woodfall, in the Westminster County Court, George Philip Hart, a comedian, sued the Maidstone Palace of Varieties to recover the sum of £5, being one week's salary alleged to be due to him under a contract to appear at the Maidstone Hippodrome.—Mr. J. S. Merton appeared for the plaintiff.—Mr. Hart said he signed a contract with the defendants to appear at Maidstone Hippodrome for one week at a salary of £5 for the week, but it was not confirmed. He went to Maidstone, however, and took his turn on the stage for the first night of the week's engagement, but after the performance was over he was told by the manager he would not be required any more.—The defendant did not appear, and his Honour gave judgment for the plaintiff for £5, with costs.

ROBEY v. WALDON.—BREACH OF CONTRACT.

Lord Johnston, in the Court of Session, gave judgment in an action by George Robey, comedian, against Richard Waldon, manager and proprietor of the Palace and director of the Pavilion, Glasgow, for £300 damages for alleged breach of contract. The pursuer averred that on March 20, 1907, he entered into an agreement with the defender, under which he agreed to fulfil an engagement at the Palace and Pavilion, Glasgow, for one week commencing March 16, 1908. On Friday, March 13, the pursuer, who was then in Bristol, saw he was not billed to appear in Glasgow in the following week, and sent a wire to ask the reason. In reply he received the following communications:—"You never sent bill matter or notification, consequently contract broken; see rule six of contract"; and, again, "Call in order, your name does not appear. Will not play you owing to breach of contract." In order to minimise the loss the pursuer suffered through this he tried to obtain another engagement, but owing to the shortness of the notice the best he got was at Portsmouth at a salary of £75 for the week.

In a counter action Mr. Waldon sued Mr. Robey for £500 damages in respect that he had, it was alleged, failed to comply with the condition of providing "bill matter," as stipulated for by the contract. The Pavilion Theatre (Glasgow), Limited, also sued Robey for £500 damages for alleged breach of contract.

Lord Johnston found Mr. Robey entitled to damages, and allowed a proof as to the amount, but did not fix a diet of proof, because he thought the parties would be able to settle that matter if they acquiesced in his judgment. His Lordship dismissed the counter actions, and found the pursuer entitled to expenses. His Lordship said Mr. Robey had failed to fulfil the condition requiring him to send bill matter, but while that was an independent covenant, for the breach of which Mr. Waldon might have been entitled to damages, by his own breach of the principal agreement he had rendered it impossible that the incidental damages could ever emerge, and the theatres which he represented were barred from suing the cross actions. [See report, February 4.]

MABE v. CONNOR.

MUSIC ROLL COPYRIGHT DECISION.

Judgment was given in the Divisional Court by the Lord Chief Justice and Justices Bigham and Walton in the case of Mabe v. Connor, an appeal from the decision of the Bow Street magistrate dismissing a summons for selling perforated rolls for use on a piano-player.

It was pointed out by Mr. Danckwerts, who was for the appellant, the owner of the copyright, that, owing to the spread of the use of mechanical piano-players, composers would practically lose their living if this decision were to stand and the rolls were allowed to be indiscriminately multiplied.

Mr. Scrutton, K.C., for the respondent, submitted that the Court of Appeal, in the case of Boosey v. White, had decided that the roll in question was not a copy of music. The appeal was dismissed with costs, and leave to further appeal was given. [See Reports, STAGE YEAR BOOK, 1909, pp. 284 and 293.]

"AMASIS" JUDGMENT.—SCHOLZ (GWENNETT) v "AMASIS," LIMITED, AND FENN.

Mr. Justice Jelf, in the King's Bench Division, delivered judgment, which had been reserved, in the action brought by Mr.

14 William Hermann Scholz (professionally known as W. Gunn Gwennett) against Amasis, Limited, and Mr. Frederick Fenn. The decision was in favour of the plaintiff, who alleged that the comic opera Amasis was copied from The Son of the Sun, and who asked for damages and an injunction. The hearing of the case commenced on November 30 last, and occupied four days.

Mr. Scholz was represented by Mr. Lawrence Hales and Mr. Whitfield Hales, and defendants by Mr. E. F. Spence and Mr. Norman Craig.

Mr. Justice Jelf, in the course of his judgment, said that at the trial it was not disputed that The Son of the Sun was an original play written by the plaintiff between the years 1894 and 1897, and that he had done everything necessary to protect his copyright in it, although he had never, in fact, succeeded in getting it produced. It was further admitted that in August, 1906, the defendants, without the plaintiff's consent, produced Amasis in London, and subsequently in the provinces, and were continuing to produce it. The case, therefore, resolved itself in the question of fact whether, by the performance of Amasis, the defendants had infringed the plaintiff's copyright in The Son of the Sun. He (the learned judge) considered there were some preliminary points which must be observed. In the first place the burden of proof rested on the plaintiff, who had to satisfy the Court that a material and substantial part of The Son of the Sun had been piratically taken by Amasis. Counsel for the plaintiff had at first tried to avoid the necessity of imputing to the defendant Fenn any intentional plagiarism.

Mr. Justice Jelf was of opinion that the real principle had been stated 100 years ago in "Roworth v. Wilkes" (1 Camp., 97) by Lord Ellenborough, C.J., in the following words:—

"It is enough that the publication complained of is in substance a copy whereby a work vested in another is prejudiced; if A takes the property of B, the animus furandi is inferred from the act." That view of the law had not in the present case been seriously attacked by either side. If, therefore, the result of a comparison between the two plays led him (the learned judge) to the clear conclusion that the similarities could not be accidental, and that directly or indirectly Amasis was distinctly borrowed in a material and substantial part from The Son of the Sun, then the liability of the defendants would be established without any extrinsic evidence of intentional copying. The plaintiff had been unable to produce any direct evidence of intentional copying, and Mr. Fenn had denied anything of the kind on oath. On the other hand, there were certain matters outside the text of the two plays in relation to Fenn's conduct which had to be considered in trying to ascertain the truth. The case mainly depended, however, on the comparison of the two plays. It had to be borne in mind that two authors were quite entitled to take what is common knowledge as a foundation. In this case there was a well-known common subject-matter—namely, the fact that in ancient Egypt cats were sacred animals, and that to kill a cat was a capital crime. On this foundation had been built up a good part of such books as "The Egyptian Princess" and "The Cat of Bubastes." In deciding a question of plagiarism it had to be borne in mind that general local colouring might be, and often was, innocently introduced by various authors, and much of such colouring might, without copying, appear in the work of each, and a considerable amount of similarity was to be looked for, especially if, as was the case in comic opera, there were certain recognised rules of construction. In each case it was a question of degree and detail. Given a certain number of similarities of a remarkable kind in plot, characters, etc., the time came, as in other problems depending on circumstantial evidence, when the limit of mere coincidence was reached and the mind was drawn to the absolute conclusion that the one play was a copy of the other. When he (the learned judge) came to compare the two plays, he found that the main characters (except in name) were practically the same in both. The plots, as regards the cat story at least, did not develop along different lines, but were in the main identical. In both plays the hero was betrothed to the King's daughter; in both, while intent on thoughts of love, he killed or apparently killed a cat; in both he confessed to the High Priest, and in both he was condemned to death. In both he was eventually saved from death, though by a different development of the facts of the cat story in each. Nor did the similarity stop there, for in many cases the words were almost, if not quite, identical. There were other coincidences upon which he (the learned judge) did not rely, because they had been either explained or were incidental to any play the scene of which was laid in Egypt. But, apart from these, the evidence of plagiarism was in his view very strong. The learned judge said that the resemblances to which he had referred left no serious doubt in his mind that Amasis did take a substantial and material part of The Son of the Sun, and he could not reconcile the sum total of such resemblances with the theory of accidental coincidence. When full weight had been given to the expert evidence and the able arguments of counsel for the defendants, in his opinion the accumulated evidence of copying had not been got rid of. With regard to the external evidence, the learned judge said that he had carefully weighed Mr. Fenn's denial on oath and felt the responsibility of not accepting it. Mr. Fenn and his musical partner, Mr. Faraday, had been sued early in 1907 by a Mr. Pritchard for piracy by Amasis from a play of his called The Mystic Cat. That action was compromised on certain terms, the plaintiff admitting that "so far as the resemblances were not accidental, they arose solely through a bona-fide misunderstanding." That looked very much like a veiled admission of plagiarism. Again, when in 1906 the plaintiff in the present action learnt from certain "Press preliminaries" that Amasis was coming out and would be extraordinarily like his own play, and had drawn attention to this in the Press, and had hinted at plagiarism, the defendants' then solicitors threatened an action for libel, but backed out of it on a pretended acceptance by Fenn of a supposed withdrawal which was no withdrawal at all, but a reiteration of the charge. This was admitted to have been unsatisfactory. These matters tended to weaken the reliance to be placed on Fenn's denial and to strengthen the inference to be drawn from the resemblances between the two plays. The learned judge said that in all the circumstances, and for the above reasons, he had come to the conclusion and found as a fact that the defendants had infringed in a substantial and material part the plaintiff's copyright. The parties had agreed that, in the event of such a decision, he should assess the damages. That assessment must, in the nature of things, be more or less of a guess, but he thought that a fairly liberal view of the damage ought to be taken contra spoliatores. In the result, therefore, there would be judgment for the plaintiff against the defendants for £200, and an injunction restraining the defendants from representing Amasis without the consent of the plaintiff, so as to infringe the plaintiff's copyright in The Son of the Sun. The defendants must pay the costs.

Mr. Spence asked for a stay of execution, and remarked that the limited company had lost £6,500 in producing Amasis, and that Mr. Fenn had lost £1,400.

His lordship granted a stay on terms. [See report, STAGE YEAR BOOK, 1909, p. 315. Also report of appeal, May 17, 1910.]

BISHOP v. VIVIANA AND CO.—ALLEGED SKETCH PIRACY.

In the King's Bench Division, before Mr. Justice Channell, Mr. William Henry 14 Bishop, music-hall artist, brought an action for damages and an injunction against Viviana and Co. The plaintiff complained that the defendants had performed and passed off as their performance a sketch entitled My Golliwog, of which he held the dramatic copyright. The defendants denied that there was any copyright, or that they had passed off the sketch as their own. Mr. Grimwood Mears appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. E. F. Lever for the defendants.

In opening the case for the plaintiff, Mr. Mears said that in 1899 Mr. Bishop invented a sketch which principally consisted of a dance like a golliwog, and performed the dance all over England and elsewhere more than two thousand times. He had thus acquired a considerable reputation. At first Mr. Bishop gave a representation of a golliwog that was apparently wound up and danced. The machinery then ran down; the golliwog became lifeless and fell to the floor. Later he had the idea of being suspended in mid-air during the performance. In April or May, 1907, Miss Florence Coles, the proprietress of the defendant company, interviewed Mr. Bishop and asked him to arrange a sketch for her company. Mr. Bishop fell in with the idea and the matter fell through. In November, and submitted terms, but they were too high, 1907, Mr. Bishop heard that the defendant company, in a sketch, The Toy Shop, were giving his dance, the dress and make-up being the same. The defendants gave a show at the Crouch End Hippodrome, and it was then seen that the show was similar to the plaintiff's. One point of similarity was the introduction of a page boy who "wound up" the "golliwog," which then began to dance on a pedestal. Counsel went on to say that a curious situation arose. Messrs. Stoll, who had the power to prevent the plaintiff appearing at the Olympia, Shoreditch, sent a representative who saw the defendant company play the sketch there, and then made an affidavit that the plaintiff had appeared. The result was that Mr. Bishop was informed that Mr. Justice Pickford had made an order restraining him from appearing within two miles of Hackney Empire, and adding, "Your appearance at Shoreditch will be a breach, and render you liable to committal."

His Lordship: Why didn't you let them take Viviana, and let them suffer for this injunction?

Mr Mears stated that Mr. Bishop made it clear that there had been a mistake, and he obtained an interim injunction against Viviana and Co.

Mr. W. H. Bishop said the defendant's performance was substantially the same as the sketch performed by him, including the page boy and the gags. The dance was also an exact imitation. On January 16, 1908, he obtained an interim injunction restraining the defendant from giving this performance. Since the injunction the defendant had given substantially the same performance, but had used a wire to suspend the figure instead of a pole. He saw her sketch in November last, and the performers were using the same gags, but the costume of the figure had been altered.

Cross-examined by Mr. Lever: The real point of his entertainment was the dance. The dialogue used was written by him, but not the lyrics. With regard to his allegation that the defendant passed off her performance as his own, he suggested that this was knowingly done by her. He did not object to the defendant's performances since the injunction was granted on January 16, 1908, although the use of a wire for suspending the figure came very near to his own performance.

For the defence, the defendant (Miss Florence Coles) said that she had not taken her sketch from the plaintiff. About six years ago she produced a sketch, Dollyology. It was done in dumb show, the characters being dolls of various nationalities, and there was a golliwog who was a minor character. Later a little talk was put into the sketch, and it was called The Toy Shop.

In cross-examination the witness said that when she appeared at the Olympia, Shoreditch, she had no idea she was deputising for Mr. Bishop, nor that her performance was described on the programme as My Golliwog. She did not see the programme at all.

JUDGMENT.

Mr. Justice Channell said the case was so exactly similar to Tate v. Fullbrook that if there was any distinction to be made it was one that must be made by the Court of Appeal, and not by him. He must therefore assume that the plaintiff had no statutory monopoly in the nature of a copyright in this dance. If his whole sketch had been copied it might have been different, but the case he had mentioned was a clear authority that he could not have a copyright in a dance as a dance. Then there was a second point—namely, whether, although there was no statutory copyright, there was a cause of action for passing off the defendants' performance as the plaintiff's. If that could be proved, it would constitute a maintainable cause of action. The right of a person not to have something that was not his passed off as being his was very much in the nature of a monopoly or right of copyright. It was a right not to have one's goods imitated so as to deceive other people. The right was the right of the person to whom the goods belonged, and not the right of the public not to be deceived. He would take it in the present case that the person who first brought this dance to Miss Coles had seen Mr. Bishop in the dance, and had got the idea from him. He imitated the dance, not for the purpose of representing that he was Mr. Bishop, but for the purpose of copying his amusing tricks. If outside the place where his performance took place there were bills advertising him in an equivocal manner, so as to induce people to suppose that he was the original performer, that would be different. To his mind, for the plaintiff to succeed there must be something beyond the mere similarity in the performance calculated to induce the public to think that the performer was Mr. Bishop—not that he was doing the same thing as Mr. Bishop, but that it was Mr. Bishop who was doing it. There was no ground in his mind for any such suggestion in the present case, except as regarded the performances on December 30 and following nights at Shoreditch. No doubt upon that occasion the manager at the Shoreditch Theatre ought to have told the audience that Mr. Bishop's name was on the programme, and that he could not appear, but that he had been lucky enough to get another turn which was as good or better, and he hoped the audience would be amused. That was not done; and if Miss Coles had been a party to her performance being represented as the plaintiff's performance, he thought she would have made herself liable. But upon her evidence, even if the manager could be supposed to have done anything wrong as concerned the public, he was clearly of opinion that she was not a party to it. He thought she had nothing to do with passing her entertainment off as that of the plaintiff, if it was so passed off. He therefore saw no ground for granting an injunction or damages against her. She was entitled to judgment, and the interim injunction granted against her would be dissolved.

A LICENSING PROSECUTION.—DRINKING AT A THEATRE BAR.

At the Chesterfield Police Court, a licensing prosecution came up for hearing in connection with the Royal, Chesterfield.

Frank Macnaghten was charged with keeping open his licensed premises—namely, the bar at the Royal, Chesterfield—at 11.30 p.m. on December 28, 1908, and with selling intoxicating liquors there at that hour. The local defendants were Dr. J. T. Hurst, medical officer to the Chesterfield Medical Association; James McNulty, reporter on a local paper; and Joseph White, house furnisher. The other defendants were members of a travelling pantomime company, named Frank Wolstenholme, John Johnson, Nance Johnson, Charles Danby, Harry Plowden, Cissie Plowden, Arthur Danby, Laura Mead, Leo Fields, Nellie Danby, and Mabel Fields.

The whole of the defendants pleaded guilty. Mr. John Middleton (town clerk) prosecuted, and Mr. A. E. Hopkins appeared for the defendants, with the exception of Dr. Hurst and Mr. McNulty, who were unrepresented.

Mr. Middleton stated that on the night of December 28, which was the first night of the pantomime Cinderella, the performance finished a few minutes before eleven o'clock, and after the public had left, the outer doors were closed, with the exception of a door leading to the private parts of the theatre, such as the dressing-rooms, stage, and so on.

Soon afterwards a constable who was on duty in the vicinity was attracted to the place by hearing a conversation in that part of the theatre where the bar was situated. Somebody said, "A whisky, please."

Bottles of stout were ordered, and there was a jingle of glasses and the passing of money. About half-past eleven two constables went into the theatre by way of the stage entrance and passed along the passage to the bar. It was fully lighted, and the two barmaids were standing behind the counter. All the persons present had drink before them.

The local manager, Mr. Armstrong, was summoned from his office upstairs; his attention was called to the time, and he was asked, "What are all these people doing here and the bar going on just as at ten o'clock at night?" Mr. Armstrong replied: "These people (meaning Dr. Hurst and Messrs. McNulty and White) are my guests, and have not paid for anything, and the others are members of the company."

For the defence, Mr. Hopkins contended that although there had been a breach of the law, it was a perfectly innocent transaction. The theatre bar was undoubtedly a different place from a public-house, which was open to all comers all day long. This difference seemed to have been recognised when the eleven o'clock limit was made in the Licensing Act of 1872, for it was provided in that Act that "nothing in this Act shall apply to (amongst other things) the sale of intoxicating liquors by the proprietors of theatres."

For a long time, said Mr. Hopkins, it was thought by theatre managers and others that this was a saving clause in the Act, and took theatres completely out of the operation of the Act on this point. It was not until the case of Gallagher v. Rudd, in 1897, that the law was finally made clear upon this point. Even then one of the two judges who heard the case said he had had great difficulty in coming to a conclusion on the point. In this particular case Mr. Armstrong gave orders, before going up into his office, for the bar to be closed, and, as a matter of fact, the performers were merely having something to cheer them up a bit before going from the theatre to their lonely lodgings. He pleaded that there should be no conviction, and said it would be a very serious thing indeed for the defendants, especially the three Chesterfield defendants.

Two of the last-named were in great danger of losing their appointments, whilst Mr. White would be seriously handicapped as a respected tradesman in the town. Mr. Macnaghten himself was managing director of twenty theatres in this country, and had an unblemished reputation extending over fifteen years. Naturally he was very anxious not to have a conviction recorded against him. In fact, all defendants would rather pay anything in the way of costs than be convicted.

The Bench retired, and, on returning, the Mayor announced that they had decided to "err on the side of leniency." Each defendant must pay his own costs, and Mr. Macnaghten would be called upon to pay the advocate's fee, and two guineas in addition.

KARNO v. PATHE FRERES, LIMITED.—ALLEGED INFRINGEMENT BY KINEMATOGRAPH.—APPEAL DISMISSED.

In the Court of Appeal, Lords Justices Vaughan Williams, Farwell, and Kennedy heard the case of Karno v. Pathe Frères, Limited, which was an appeal by the plaintiff from a decision of Mr. Justice Jelf. The plaintiff, Mr. Fred Karno, who, with his troupe, produced the sketch The Mummified Birds, brought the action against the defendants, Pathe Frères, makers of kinematograph pictures, on the ground that they had reproduced his sketch by the kinematograph, and thereby infringed his playwright. Mr. Justice Jelf tried the action, and, before giving judgment, witnessed both the performance and the kinematograph representation at the Oxford. Subsequently, when giving judgment, he stated that the kinematograph picture was undoubtedly copied from the plaintiff's sketch, but he held that the sketch was not a dramatic piece, a repetition within the meaning of the Copyright Act. On the point whether the defendants had caused the sketch to be reproduced, he held that they were not liable. Accordingly judgment was entered for the defendants. The plaintiff now appealed.

Mr. T. E. Scrutton, K.C., said that he appeared with Mr. Mackinnon in support of the appeal. His client, Mr. Fred Karno, was the proprietor in Great Britain and Ireland of the sole right of representing or performing the farce or pantomimical sketch, The Mummings Birds; or, Twice Nightly. The defendants, in whose favour judgment had gone in the Court below, carried on business as makers of and dealers in cinematographs and films and accessories, and they had made and sold a cinematograph film which, when worked on a screen, substantially produced a representation of the incidents on which The Mummings Birds was founded as to be an infringement of the plaintiff's copyright in that piece, if the piece was capable of being the subject of copyright. Whatever might be the legal position of the piece, it certainly was a very paying property.

The defendants, it seemed, said Mr. Scrutton had seen the plaintiff's troupe act this piece, and they got together a similar troupe in France, and after many rehearsals took a cinematograph film 330 ft. long of a performance. This film they included in their catalogue, drawing the special attention of public entertainers to it as being one of their most amusing productions. This announcement proved to be correct, and it was sought after by many music hall managers and produced all over the country at various places of public amusement. This fact greatly diminished the value of the piece to the plaintiff, because either by accident or design the films had often been exhibited the week or so before at the halls at which the plaintiff desired to give his sketch, and he was told that his sketch would not draw because there had been a cinematograph production of it quite recently, and people did not care to pay to see the same thing twice.

Lord Justice Farwell asked if the defendants called their piece by the same name as the plaintiff advertised his under.

Mr. Scrutton replied that the defendants catalogued it under the name of At the Music Hall. The defendants by their defence raised three points, each of which their lordships would have to decide. First they said that the depicting by means of a cinematograph of the gestures of actors on a screen was not a "representation" of a dramatic piece within the meaning of the Copyright Act, 1833. The learned judge found that point in favour of the plaintiff. He attended at the Oxford Music Hall a special private performance. The plaintiff first presented his piece, and then the cinematograph "representation" was given, and the judge, to make quite sure that the film representation really represented what the plaintiff's company had acted, encored it.

The second point was this, assuming this to be an infringing representation, the defendants said they had not made the representation or caused it to be made, and that the plaintiff's right, if any, was against the "showman." At first his lordship was inclined to decide against the defendants, but, finally, following a decision of this Court, he held that the defendants would be liable for the acts of the showman as being their agent. That was important, because the plaintiff could hardly rush all over the country, taking proceedings against this man and that, and obviously he should be entitled to stop the original offender.

Thirdly, the defendants said: "Assume we are wrong on both the first and the second defences, nevertheless you cannot restrain us from continuing to exhibit these films, because the representation by cinematograph cannot be a 'dramatic piece' within the meaning of Section 1 of the Act of 1833, since the term 'dramatic piece' means a composition which is capable of being printed and published. It cannot consist of scenic effects and dramatic situations without words." And that is all that this representation is."

That, continued counsel, was the decision in "Tate v. Fullbrook," which was decided in 1903 by this Court, consisting of Lords Justices Vaughan Williams, Farwell, and Kennedy. "If that case is held by your lordships as governing this case," added counsel, "argument from me is useless, and the matter must go before a higher tribunal. My submission is that Mr. Justice Jelf misunderstood your lordships' decision, and carried it further than your lordships intended. It is to get a ruling on that point that I so gladly came before this Court of Appeal, as I thought it would be better to get your interpretation of the judgment than that of the other division of the Appeal Court on it."

Mr. Mackinnon followed on the same side.

JUDGMENT.

Lord Justice Vaughan Williams said they would not require to hear Sir Robert Finlay, K.C., and Mr. E. A. Bennett for the respondents.

The Court dismissed the appeal.

Lord Justice Vaughan Williams said that the point really was whether the defendants were responsible for those who put the sketch on the stage. As Mr. Justice Jelf said, he was bound by the decision of the Court of Appeal and the Court of Appeal could not undo that decision. He entirely agreed with what Mr. Justice Jelf had said:—"But on further consideration, and after perusing the case of Russell v. Briant (8 C.B., 836), and comparing it with Marsh v. Conquest (17 C.B., N.S., 418). I have come to the opposite conclusion, and I think there is no evidence on which I could properly hold the defendants liable. In the former case Chief Justice Wilde says:—"No one can be considered as an offender against the provisions of the Act so as to subject himself to an action of this nature unless by himself or his agent he actually takes part in a representation which is a violation of copyright," and the same view is taken in Lyon v. Knowles (3 B. and S., 556). It might, indeed, be plausibly argued that the defendants who make and sell the infringing instrument without which the infringement could not take place, and do so with the knowledge and intention that it will and shall be used for that purpose, do take an important part in the infringement itself, but I think on the whole the inference would be held to be too remote and too far-reaching in its consequences to be accepted. If this view is correct, then, even if the action were otherwise maintainable, it ought to have been brought, not against the defendants, but against the actual proprietors of the piratical performance impugned. He only wished to add that in Marsh v. Conquest (17 C.B., N.S., 418) the case turned on the question whether those who put the representation on the stage were the agents of the defendant. That case was distinguished from the two prior cases of Russell v. Briant (8 C.B., 836) and Lyon v. Knowles (3 B. and S., 556) by the fact that the actors and actresses who went on the stage were paid by the defendant, and could only go on the stage by his orders and directions. In these circumstances he was of opinion that the appeal failed.

Lord Justice Farwell and Lord Justice Kennedy delivered judgments to the same effect. [See report of the King's Bench action, p. 272, STAGE YEAR BOOK, 1909.]

RUSHBROOK v. GRIMSBY PALACE.—WHEN IS A STAGE MANAGER A "WORKMAN."

In the Court of Appeal, before the Master of the Rolls, Sir Gorell Barnes, and Lord Justice Buckley, came on the case of 25 Rushbrook v. Grimsby Palace Theatre and Buffet, Limited, which was an appeal by the defendant company against an order of the Divisional Court.

The plaintiff was Mrs. Sarah Rushbrook, and she sought to recover damages under the Employers' Liability Act, 1880, for the loss of her son, Frank Rushbrook, who was killed by the fall of the counter weight to the fireproof curtain at the defendants' theatre while he was working the lever by which the curtain was controlled. The action was brought in the Grimsby County Court in July, 1907. The jury awarded £150 damages, but the county court judge held that the deceased man was not a "workman," and therefore that the action was not maintainable under the Act of 1880, and gave judgment for the defendants with costs.

The plaintiff appealed, and on May 14, 1908, in the King's Bench, Mr. Justice Darling and Mr. Justice Phillimore held that he was a workman, and entered judgment for the plaintiff with £150 damages, and costs.

The defendants now appealed, and argued that whether the deceased man was a workman or not was not the only ground on which the appeal must be decided. The liability of the employer only arose if negligence was proved, and here there was no evidence that there was any defect in the machinery. It was suggested that the accident was wholly due to the man's own carelessness.

Mr. Atherley Jones, K.C., and Mr. W. H. Owen appeared in support of the appeal, Mr. H. M. Given for the respondent.

JUDGMENT.

The Master of the Rolls, in giving his judgment, referred to the agreement the deceased had with the defendants, from which, he said, it appeared that the deceased was employed as a stage manager, to shift scenery, to do rough carpentering, some billing, and certain work with the electric lighting. Deceased was nothing more than a foreman carpenter or scene shifter, earning 25s. per week. He was almost entirely engaged in manual labour, and was a "workman" within the meaning of the Act. The deceased met his death from the fall of the counter-weight to the curtain. Appellants argued that there was no evidence of any defect in the machinery or negligence on the part of the Grimsby Palace Company. But the jury in the original action had seen the machinery before giving their verdict, and he therefore held that the decision of the Divisional Court in this respect could not be interfered with. The appeal, therefore, failed.

Judgment was given dismissing the appeal. [Reports of the cases in the County Court and the Divisional Court are to be found in THE STAGE YEAR BOOKS, 1908, page 199, and 1909, page 280, respectively.]

DAVIES v. TULLOCH.

At Northwich County Court, Mr. Coleman Davies sued Miss Augusta Tulloch for the 28 recovery of manuscripts, music, scenery, and properties, relating to the play The End Crowns All, or their value, estimated at £5, together with £1 commission due. Judgment was given for plaintiff, with costs, and delivery of goods ordered to take place within seven days.

LONDON AND PROVINCIAL ADVERTISING AGENCY v. COOK—ADVERTISING ON THEATRE CURTAINS.

In the Westminster County Court, before his Honour Judge Woodfall, the case of 29 the London and Provincial Advertising Co. v. Cook sought to recover a balance of £3 18s., which they alleged to be due to them from the defendant, Mr. Stanley Cook, in respect of an advertisement on the curtain at the Shephard's Bush Empire.

Plaintiffs' representative was called, and said the defendant signed a contract in the usual way, and had paid money on account, but he refused to pay the balance due.

The defendant appeared in person, and said the reason why he refused to pay was because his advertisement was placed in such a position on the curtain that the audience could not see it, and consequently it was quite useless to him. As a matter of fact, he had paid a visit to the hall, and could not see the advertisement from the second row of the stalls.

In the result, his Honour said it was clear that defendant was liable on the contract, but he should reduce the amount and give the plaintiffs judgment for three guineas, with costs.

FEBRUARY.

LONDON MUSIC HALL v. KITTS AND WINDRUM—LONDON COLISEUM GARNISHEE.—ATTACHING A SALARY.

The case of the London Music Hall v. Kitts and Windrum, London Coliseum garnishee, which was before Deputy Judge 1 Bevan in the Westminster County Court, was a dispute with reference to the right to salary earned by defendants at the London Coliseum, the London Music Hall having obtained judgment against Messrs. Kitts and Windrum for £10 damages for breach of agreement in October last. That was not satisfied, and they sought to garnishee their salary at the London Coliseum.

The evidence of a witness from the Coliseum was taken to the effect that Kitts and Windrum performed at the Coliseum for one week, starting November 30 last, the salary being £22 10s. for twelve performances. The money would be due after the twelfth performance.

Mr. Martin O'Connor, counsel for the judgment debtors, cited several cases in support of his contention that the evidence before the Court proved his case, that the judgment debtors were entitled to their salary, the notice having been served on the Thursday, which was a date at which the salary had not been earned. Salary could not be garnished before it was due.

Having heard Mr. Chisman, counsel for the judgment creditors, the deputy judge found in favour of the judgment debtors, with costs.

WALFORD v. HANS ALTMAN.

In the Basingstoke County Court Mr. S. E. Walford, lessee of the Basingstoke Corn 1 Exchange, sued Hans Altman and Company of 445, Strand, London, proprietors of a variety entertainment which was carried on at the Corn Exchange from December 7 to December 13, 1908, under the name of The Palace, to recover the sum of £28 6s. 9d. being a month's rental of the hall and compensation for engagements which the plaintiff had had to cancel in order to let the defendants have the hall. The defendants engaged the hall for three months, but plaintiff only claimed for a month. At the end of a fortnight, Mr. Walford said, the defendants disappeared, leaving the artists unpaid.

A solicitor applied for an adjournment on behalf of Hans Altman and Co., but this his Honour would not allow unless the amount claimed was paid into court.

Eventually judgment was entered for the plaintiff for the full amount, with costs.

COHEN v. SMITH.—QUESTION OF LIABILITY.

In the Westminster County Court his Honour Judge Woodfall tried the case of Cohen

4 v. Smith, in which the plaintiff, Mr. Michael Cohen, a costumier, carrying on business at 30, Shaftesbury Avenue, sued the defendant, Mr. H. R. Smith, in his capacity of manager of the Waldorf Productions, Limited, to recover the sum of £14 3s. 6d. in respect of two costumes supplied by him to Miss Jose Collins, engaged in The Antelope, produced at the Waldorf in November.

Mr. Martin O'Connor was counsel for the plaintiff, and Mr. G. R. Sharman (barrister) appeared for the defence.

Mr. O'Connor said Miss Collins objected to the costumes which were supplied to her, and appealed to Mr. Smith, the defendant. He told her to get others made and send in the account to him, and he would pay it. Acting upon those instructions, Miss Collins went to the plaintiff firm and ordered the dresses in the name of Mr. H. R. Smith, and they were duly delivered to her at the Waldorf, together with an invoice made out to Mr. Smith, but upon being pressed for payment he disputed his liability.

Miss Collins bore out counsel's statement.

Mr. H. R. Smith admitted that when Miss Collins complained of her dresses he gave her authority to have others made, but said he only did so in his capacity of manager of the Waldorf Productions Syndicate, and not on his own responsibility.

After hearing the evidence of several other witnesses, his Honour said there was a great conflict of testimony, but he must find a verdict for the plaintiff. The whole question was as to whether or not the defendant had pledged his own credit, and after hearing the evidence of Miss Collins he (the judge) was satisfied that he had done so by saying that he would pay. There would be judgment for the plaintiff for the amount claimed, with costs.

WHYE v. WATTS.—QUESTION OF BALLET SHOES.

In the Shoreditch County Court, before his Honour Judge Smyly, K.C., Messrs. P. 4 Whye and Sons, of 346, Bethnal Green Road, E., theatrical boot manufacturers, sued Messrs. S. B. Watts and Co., Limited, of 37 and 39, Oxford Road, Manchester, boot dealers, to recover £14 9s. for goods supplied. Mr. Farleigh, barrister, appeared on behalf of the plaintiffs and Mr. Samson was counsel for the defence. In opening the case for the plaintiff, Mr. Farleigh said that the case had reference to the supply of theatrical ballet shoes. The claim had been reduced to £8 8s., the other amount having been paid, the £8 8s. being the amount for one gross of pairs of ballet shoes at 1s. 2d. a pair. The defendants admitted that the price was all right, but had written to say that the goods were wrong.

Mr. Whye said the order was executed according to the sample supplied. The shoes were sent in, and they got a letter complaining of the quality of the shoes, but not rejecting them. The complaint was that the shoes were "too stiff on the top of the toes, as instead of the stiffening being an inch only above the top of the toes, it comes up 2½ to 3 ins. Please cancel all orders you have in hand of ours."

Mrs. Mabel Brooks said she was a baller dancer, and considered she was an expert. The two sorts of shoes were handed to her for inspection, and she said she had danced in one sort just as often as she had in the other. The three inches deep of stiffening across the toe did not make the slightest difference to a girl who knew how to dance.

Mr. Samuel Godfrey Watts, managing director of the defendant company, said that the girls who did ballet dancing danced on the tip of their toes, and the little stiffening, about an inch, was to protect the toes. Those sent with about three inches of stiffening were absolutely no use to them. He heard Mrs. Brooks give her evidence, and doubted her ability to do any proper dancing in the shoes.

Mr. Henry Bogzis, a shoe maker, was called as an expert. He said dancing shoes had to be made round and smooth at the toe, with a little stiffening, but it was very necessary to see that the stiffening did not come too high.

In giving judgment, Judge Smyly said he had listened very carefully to the evidence of the ballet dancer Mrs. Brooks, and heard her say that she could dance in either shoes, but he could not help thinking that dancing in the stiffened shoe, one stiffened almost to the top of the cap, would be a most painful and trying experience. Taking into consideration the probabilities as to the difficulties in the way of easy and comfortable dancing with these highly stiffened shoes, he had come to the conclusion that the defendants were entitled to refuse the shoes, and on that account he would enter a verdict for the defendants on the £8 8s. claim. He would enter a verdict for the plaintiffs on the balance of the claim, as it had not been paid into court, which would carry costs. Judgment was entered accordingly.

JOHNSON v. CAMBERWELL PALACE OF VARIETIES.

In the Lambeth County Court, before his Honour Judge Emden, Mr. Fredk. 4 Thomas William Johnson, an insurance inspector, of 24, Bird-in-Bush Road, Peckham, sued the Camberwell Palace of Varieties, Limited, for £1 ls., being for the return of 4s. for four seats to the stalls, and loss of time, trouble, and inconvenience.

The plaintiff said he, on January 14, 1909, went with his wife and two friends to the theatre and took four 1s. seats, and on presenting the same at the entrance to the stalls he was informed that there were no vacant seats. He then went to the box office for the return of his money, but that was refused, the cashier saying that he would be able to use them on another night during that week. Plaintiff then interviewed the manager, who informed him that he could not return the money, but that he could have seats during the remainder of that week, or, if he cared, on the next week. Witness not being satisfied, sent for a constable, who advised him to bring the present action.

The case was adjourned for a week as the secretary of the defendant company stated that they were not the owners of the hall at the time. It had been taken over by the London Theatre of Varieties, though by a mistake their name, the Camberwell Palace of Varieties, appeared on the bill. It was stated on the 16th that the case had been settled, the defendants paying the plaintiff the amount claimed, £1 ls., and all costs.

ROBEY v. WALDON.—QUESTION OF SENDING IN BILLING MATTER.

In the Glasgow Court the Division gave judgment in this case.

4 The Lord President said that in 1907 George Robey entered into a contract with Richard Waldon, whereby he agreed to perform in the year 1908 for a week from March 16 at a certain salary in theatres in Glasgow. A week before the performance was to take place Robey noticed that his name was not in the bills, and he telegraphed to Waldon. To that telegram he got an answer, "You never sent bill matter or notification, consequently contract broken. See Rule 6 of contract." The attitude taken up by the defender in these telegrams was perfectly clear. He said that Robey had broken the stipulation in Rule 6, which was as follows:—"The artists engaged at the Palace Theatre, Glasgow, must give fourteen days' notice prior to such engagement, such notice to be accompanied by bill matter. The whole point was whether that was a stipulation a breach of which would entitle the defender without more ado to declare the contract at an end. His Lordship was of opinion very clearly that this was a stipulation which did not go to the root of the contract, and he thought that the Lord Ordinary had come to a right conclusion in giving judgment for Robey. [See report January 12.]

DANKS v. SHEREK AND BRAFF.—AN ENGAGEMENT IN BUENOS AIRES.

In the King's Bench Division, before the Lord Chief Justice and a jury, was commenced an action brought by Mrs. Mamie Danks (Miss Mamie Stuart) against Messrs Sherek and Braff, agents of Leicester Square, for damages for alleged breach of warranty, misrepresentation, and breach of duty.

10 Mr. McCall, K.C., for the plaintiff, said that Miss Stuart entered into a contract through Messrs. Sherek and Braff, which was drawn up in French, a language she did not understand. In fact, counsel continued, it was not until she returned to England after her adventure at Buenos Aires that she understood the exact terms of the agreement.

There was a clause in the agreement by which M. Seguin, the proprietor of the theatre in Buenos Aires, had absolute power over her, and if the money she had advanced to her for the purpose of enabling her to go out to Buenos Aires was not paid back she was liable to be arrested, and also she was bound to go anywhere in South America Mr. Seguin chose to send her. Miss Stuart journeyed to Buenos Aires in August, 1907. Her first look at the Casino convinced her that it was by no means the place she had been led to believe it was. In fact, said Mr. McCall, it could not be described as a decent theatre at all. She was requested to give one of her songs and dances, and the first she sang was a composition which had been very popular in England, but Mr. Seguin said that it was not suggestive enough. She could not agree to a suggestion he made with regard to another song.

Miss Stuart was put into communication with the British Consul, who gave her an introduction to a solicitor, the result of which being that, upon her taking legal action and paying a sum of money into court, she was allowed to leave the country. The plaintiff claimed damages, consisting of the money paid into court at Buenos Aires (£125) and other amounts.

Miss Stuart said that she was given to understand that Miss Ada Reeve, Miss Kittie Gordon, and Mme Tetrazzini had performed at the Casino in Buenos Aires, and Mr. Braff told her that it was a first-class place, and was on a level with the Palace in London.

Mr. James Savill Foster stated that he had visited the Casino at Buenos Aires, and was of the opinion that the performance was absolutely disgusting.

Mr. Lennard said there were a substantial number of items in the performance at the Casino which could be called respectable, but there were other items quite the opposite.

DEFENCE.

Mr. Rawlinson, K.C., for the defence, said the Casino was one which held a high reputation, and Mr. Seguin, who was a banker and owner of the theatre, as well as the Royal Opera House in Buenos Aires, was a gentleman of good standing. He would call evidence which would refute the statements made by witnesses as to the "turns" given at the Casino.

Mr. Harold Braff, one of the defendants, said none of the artists had complained to him of the character of the performances.

Mr. Bernard Sherek said the Seguin tours were recognised as being of first-class order.

The hearing was continued on the next day, when Mr. Ernest Rotenberg, Mr. Seguin's European representative, said he read over to Miss Mamie Stuart the contract, which was in French. He translated it.—In answer to Mr. McCall, witness explained that the clause which referred to the passage money was translated as, "If you do not give the money back you will be a thief."—Mr. McCall: And did you advise defendants to have Miss Mamie Stuart arrested on her return to London, and that you would take the responsibility?—After some explanation witness replied in the affirmative.—Mr. Woodfield, director of the orchestra in connection with Mr. Seymour Hicks's South American tours, said he visited the Casino Theatre on Sunday nights and saw nothing indecent.

Miss Ethel Morden, one of the Five Broadway Girls, said she was at the Casino for six weeks, and nearly always saw the other turns from the front. She considered the Casino a first-class house. She did not see anything that an artist in her position could object to.

The Lord Chief Justice: Or any person?

Miss Morden: No. She also visited the other halls on the Seguin tour in South America, and the same statement applied to them.

Evidence to the same effect was given by other artists.

Mr. Wilson, theatrical agent, informed the Court that he had acted for Mr. Seguin for nine years, and had sent quite a hundred music-hall artists on the Seguin tours. Some of them were expensive. He had received no complaint from any of them as to the performances at the Buenos Ayres Casino.

His Lordship said he should leave to the jury the questions:

Did the defendants warrant the contract they offered to be one that an artist of her standing and reputation could accept?

Did the defendants make any fraudulent representation as to the position of the Casino, as to the artists performing there, and as to the class of entertainment?

Mr. Rawlinson urged that there was not a single case which could be stated of an artist who had complained to the defendants as to the improper character of the performance at the Casino, and he contended that defendants acted with perfect honesty and belief that the hall was a first-class one. The fact that the hall was a first-class one had been spoken to without hesitation by a great number of witnesses who had performed in the place. He put it to the jury that Miss Stuart was prejudiced against the Casino before she reached Buenos Aires, because of statements made to her on her voyage out.

Mr. McCall spoke of the remuneration and prospect which the plaintiff sacrificed by leaving Buenos Aires. One rehearsal was enough for her. "My learned friend," continued counsel, "said she had performed at Stratford and Islington, and after that it was not possible for a woman to be so squeamish; but I wish to emphasise the fact that although she has appeared at these halls, which bear good reputations, she gave up money and, what was more valuable, her future prospects, because in the Casino there were things happening which she could not stand."

THE SUMMING UP.

In summing up, the Lord Chief Justice said he thought the plaintiff acted with the best possible motive when she left Buenos Aires, because she was of the opinion that the Casino was not a place in which she could appear. They could honour a lady who so respected her reputation as to put herself into a difficult position; but at the same time they would have to deal with the case as it had been put before them: "A great deal that is too light," continued his lordship, "is said about the position of these professional people, who have to earn their own living, and who cultivate their voices and their powers for the purpose of entertaining the public. They are exposed to a very great deal of temptation, but there is no reason to suppose that the standard of morality is lower than is generally found. Just because they appear in an atmosphere to which, as we know, some people object, and things go on which perhaps you would not like to have go on in your own homes, yet this does not prevent these people telling the truth. A music hall is a music hall, and ladies do appear there in light costumes and make gestures which we should not like among our daughters. It was almost impossible, if Mr. Braff's evidence were true that he had sent out hundreds of respectable artists to the Casino, to believe that all these were so fallen or blind as not to notice indecencies and to protest against them." Dealing with the half-caste gentleman Miss Stuart complained of at the Buenos Aires Casino, his Lordship said it would be idle for them to shut their eyes to the fact that "flash" people did hang about theatres and wait for girls for the purpose of corrupting them. It had become a craze among young men, and they must assume that it was fashionable in Buenos Aires for young men to do this. The plaintiff, if these things were true, had not acted prudently. She had acted with proper caution. They could not, however, dismiss the evidence on the other side as untrue.

JUDGMENT.

After deliberating an hour and a-half, the jury found that the defendants did warrant the contract, and that the contract was not one which a lady of plaintiff's standing and reputation could accept; that there was false representation as to the position of the Casino, but not as to the artists; that there was false representation as to the class of entertainment, but not false to the knowledge of the defendants; that the representations were recklessly and carelessly made. They assessed damages at £250.

Mr. Rawlinson asked for a stay of execution, and on the application of Mr. Edwards his Lordship directed that the case should be mentioned to him on Friday.

On the following day, Mr. McCall applied for judgment for the plaintiff upon the findings of the jury.

Mr. Rawlinson, for the defendants, asked for judgment on the issue of fraud, which had been left to the jury, and on which they had found in favour of the defendants. Further, he argued that his clients were entitled to be put into the position of the plaintiff as against Mr. Seguin in respect of the £124 paid by her into court at Buenos Aires, and that she should give them a letter of renunciation of her claim to that amount. Mr. Rawlinson also asked for a stay of execution on payment of damages into court.

His Lordship said he must decline to consider questions which were not within the case. If defendants had any rights by virtue of paying damages, they must have recourse to those who had the matter before them. The case had been one of great difficulty, and was extremely doubtful, both as to the law and the facts. There was, in his opinion, no evidence of fraud, but it was not possible to withdraw the issue from the jury. The evidence also as to recklessness was very slight. The jury had, however, found that there was warranty, and he could not give judgment for the defendants, although he thought the case merited further consideration. He granted stay of execution on payment of damages into court and on payment over of costs, with leave to give notice of appeal within fourteen days.

THEATRE QUEUES. — LEGALITY QUESTIONED. — MANCHESTER PROSECUTION FAILS.

At Manchester, Mr. John Hart, of the Prince's, Manchester, was proceeded 11 against on two informations alleging the committal of an obstruction and a public nuisance outside the theatre.

The prosecution was instituted by Mr. A. E. Wachter, on behalf of the Theatre Reform League, and it was stated by counsel that the complaint in this case was that there had been continual obstruction to the footway on that side of the road. That had been brought about in this way. The defendant had advertised certain plays for representation, and admission by certain doors at certain prices. Of course, it was perfectly lawful to have a theatre, and no one would contend that it was unlawful to advertise the performances. In order to constitute a nuisance it was not necessary to show that the act in itself was unlawful, but if the doing of that act resulted in an obstruction, and that result was known to the defendant, then he was guilty of the commission of a nuisance whether or not his original act was lawful or not.

Mr. Wachter (complainant) in his evidence said he had had occasion to observe the numbers of people outside the Prince's, and on January 18, at a quarter to six in the evening, he counted sixty-five persons waiting in a line to go in at the half-a-crown door. There were also eight waiting outside the two-shilling door, which opened at seven o'clock. All these people were standing in twos along the kerb, and he noticed persons coming from the opposite side of Oxford Street who could not get on to the footpath at the point they crossed. He also noticed especially two persons who had to cross over the road from the theatre because they could not continue along the path. Ladies in evening dress coming from the Central Station and going to the Prince's had to go on to the road when the queues were moving into the theatre, and the policemen had to stop the people going into the theatre while the ladies passed.

Cross-examined, Mr. Wächter said he belonged to a society which desired to alter the methods of the theatre, and he went on the days complained of so that he might get evidence.

Other evidence having been given, counsel for the defence urged that the witnesses had proved conclusively that, except on infrequent occasions, there was space through which the general public might pass.

The Stipendiary declined to send the case for trial, holding that the state of things that had been proved was not a nuisance.

WALTER WRIGHT.—THE IRVING MEMORIAL CLUB.

Before the Liverpool Stipendiary Magistrate, Walter Wright (51), pleaded guilty to 11 the charge of obtaining by false pretences one guinea from Mr. Stafford Hall, the scenic artist at the Royal Court, Liverpool, and to attempting to obtain one guinea from Mr. Frank Joseph, a member of the City Council. The prosecuting solicitor said Wright, who had appeared in the comic opera Falka no fewer than 1,440 times in one particular part, had been engaged for the past eighteen months appealing to leading people interested in the theatrical profession for subscriptions to aid him in founding at Liverpool an Irving Memorial Club. The Duchess of Sutherland's name appeared on his circular as patroness, and Sir Frederick Pollock and other distinguished persons also. It was true that they had given their consent to that course, as well as subscribing handsomely to the fund. The false pretence was as to the formation of the club, for there was no such thing, and the prisoner admitted to the police that he had spent all the money he had received, including ten guineas from Mr. J. M. Barrie.

Dealing with the prisoner, the magistrate said it was a mean fraud. In consideration of his previous good character and the plea of guilty, the prisoner would be merely bound over to come up for judgment when called upon.

BRAYNE v. BATTY.—BREACH OF CONTRACT.

In the Westminster County Court, his Honour Judge Woodfall had before him the case of Brayne v. Batty, in which 11 the plaintiff, Mr. Henry Francis Brayne, the owner of a sketch, sued the defendant, proprietor of the Grand, Stockton-on-Tees, to recover damages for breach of contract.

The defence was that the plaintiff's contract was put an end to in consequence of the music hall strike, and that in any event the plaintiff could not recover the full salary of £20, as he filled in that particular week by appearing at another hall at a salary of £10.

In giving judgment, his Honour said it was upon the defendant to show that he was entitled to put an end to the plaintiff's contract, and that he had failed to do. It was admitted, however, that the plaintiff fulfilled another engagement for the same week at a lower salary, and, taking that into consideration, he (the judge) should give him a verdict for the sum of £7, but he would not make any order as to costs.

MICHEL v. COLLINS AND BRITNA. STORAGE OF "PROPS."

In the Lambeth County Court, before his Honour Judge Emden, Mr. John Michel, 11 a warehouseman and contractor, of 11, Denmark Hill, Camberwell, S.E., sued Mr. Stanley Collins, of 15, Clifton Crescent, Asylum Road, Peckham, and Mr. Bert Britna, of the Beeches, Herbert Road, Hornchurch, Essex, music-hall artists, for the recovery of £2 12s. for storing their "props," etc., for twenty-six weeks at 2s., and 12s. for removing the same with horse and van.

His Honour found that the defendants had not proved the damage alleged to have been done to their property while at the plaintiff's warehouse, and gave judgment for the plaintiff, with costs, for £2 4s., and dismissed the counter-claim.

ROBERTSON v. GRUGGEN.—AN ILLUSION SKETCH.

In the King's Bench Division, before Mr. Justice Sutton and a common jury, was 12 concluded the hearing of the case in which Mr. John Fergusson Robertson sued Mr. Frederick William E. Gruggen, a solicitor, for misrepresentation.

Plaintiff stated that he was induced to enter into an agreement with a Mr. John Wellesley Lynn in regard to the production of an illusion sketch entitled Tharsei; or, The Doctor's Experiment, on the strength of the defendant's recommendation, and that he had lost £450. Misrepresentation was denied by the defendant, who pleaded that if he did induce the plaintiff to enter into the agreement he did so bona-fide, believing that the statements he made were true.

Mr. H. E. Duke, K.C., Mr. Holloway, and Mr. Quicke represented the plaintiff, while Mr. Lewis Thomas, K.C., and Mr. Thorn Drury appeared for the defendant.

In his summing up, his Lordship stated that it was for the jury to say whether or not the plaintiff had, in their opinion, been induced to enter into the agreement by misrepresentation. If they came to the conclusion that he had been so induced by misrepresentation, they must assess the damages. The claim was for £479 9s. 8d., being £350 paid in respect of the agreement with Mr. Lynn and the balance of travelling expenses and odd payments connected with the exhibition of the illusion. If they came to the conclusion that there had been no misrepresentation, then there was no necessity to consider any portion of the plaintiff's claim, as that would be a verdict for the defendant.

After an absence of thirty-five minutes, the jury returned into court, and gave a verdict for the plaintiff, with £400 damages. Judgment was entered accordingly.

UNITED COUNTY THEATRES v. DURRANT AND OTHERS.—ALLEGED LIBEL.

Before Mr. Justice Lawrence and a special jury, in the King's Bench Division, the 15 hearing was commenced of an action brought by the United County Theatres to recover from Messrs. William Durrant, A. A. Sennington, John Curle, F. Jenkins, and Joseph B. Williams damages for the publication of certain defamatory statements. By their defence the defendants denied publication, but said if they were published the statements were not defamatory; that they were true in substance and in fact; that they were published on privileged occasions; and the defendants also relied on the Trade Disputes Act, 1906.

Mr. Lush, K.C., and Mr. Henn Collins appeared for the plaintiffs, and the defendants were represented by Mr. Roskill, K.C., and Mr. Clement Edwards, M.P.

Mr. Lush, in opening the case, said the plaintiffs were a limited company, incorporated about ten years ago to acquire music halls in various parts of the country, and the defendants were five in number, two of them being officials of the Amalgamated Musicians' Union, two officials of the Bristol Trades Council, and the fifth the printer of the documents complained of. The music halls that the Court had now to deal with were two—at Plymouth and Bristol. Between the musicians and the company there was absolute accord and satisfaction (said counsel) until the trade union officials chose to interfere and create what they called "a labour dispute."

The trade union at Bristol thought they had the power to compel the plaintiffs to pay a bigger salary to the musicians than the musicians were asking for themselves. Because the plaintiffs, after consulting their musicians, would not be dictated to by the trade union officials, the defendants made up their minds they would do what they called "hit" the plaintiffs—or, in plain English, would punish them for not submissively acquiescing in the commands of the trade union—and boycott the plaintiffs' halls. To do this the defendants had handbills printed and distributed outside the plaintiffs' halls, and these handbills contained most libellous and untrue statements for the purpose of injuring the plaintiffs. In the year 1905 the plaintiffs acquired the music halls at Plymouth and Bristol, and changed the method of management, turning the houses into what were known as "two houses a night." For the extra work put upon the musicians all but three received an extra 2s. 6d. each to the usual payment, and with this the musicians were perfectly well satisfied. The trade union, however, took the matter up, and made demands on the plaintiffs to alter the rate of pay. This was resisted by the plaintiffs. Considerable correspondence took place between the plaintiffs and the defendants, which culminated, however, in the issue of the statements complained of.

The first (continued counsel) was a document issued to the trades unionists of Bristol by the Bristol Trades Council, and signed by Mr. A. A. Sennington, the president, and Mr. J. Curle, the secretary. In that statement appeared the following:—"We ask our fellow unionists to assist the Musicians' Union in their claim for the payment of the union rates and the full and free rights of the musicians to combine and protect themselves. If a trade unionist wishes an evening's enjoyment in a music hall we recommend him to patronise the Empire. All the musicians are union men, and all are paid the union rate. It will help to speed the victory for the union if all the branches of organised labour and other bodies pass the enclosed resolution."

After that a handbill was distributed. It ran:—"Music Hall Dispute.—To the Trade Unionists of Bristol.—Fellow Unionists.—We desire to call your attention to the dispute at the People's Palace, Baldwin Street, Bristol.

About two years ago the Palace changed to a two-show-a-night house, and we asked them to pay the union rate. Negotiations continued until a few months ago, when a definite demand was made and a refusal made by the management to recognise the union or its rates. The musicians were informed that any dissatisfaction on the part of the men would be considered by the management direct, and not through any officials of the Musicians' Union. All possible efforts were made to obtain the payment of the union rates. The assistance of the Bristol Trades Council was called in, but as they also failed to effect any peaceful settlement the, recommended the trade unionists of Bristol to take united action in the matter to assist the Musicians' Union. Just recently a sample of the consideration individuals generally receive when they express dissatisfaction has occurred. The managing director of the Palace called two members of the orchestra before him. No explanations or discussions were allowed. They were simply told to answer 'Yes' or 'No' to his questions as to whether they were satisfied. The first one (who receives the union rate) answered that he was satisfied. The other one (who does not receive the union rate) said he was not. The following week he received his notice. We leave these facts to speak for themselves, and confidently appeal to the trade unionists of Bristol to help the Musicians' Union to win the dispute, to establish their very modest union rates at the Palace, and retain the elementary right of combination to protect their interests and occupation. We recommend our fellow-unionists to patronise the following places of amusement, which pay the union rate, and are therefore on the fair list of the Musicians' Union:—Empire, Theatre Royal, Prince's Theatre."

At the close of Mr. Lush's opening,

Mr. Roskill submitted that the officials, acting as the executive of the union, came within the Trades Disputes Act of 1906, and that an action against them could not be maintained.

Mr. Lush submitted that the Act of 1906 did not apply to a case of this kind, and therefore the defendants could be sued.

Mr. Justice Lawrence said there was very great doubt upon the matter, but as this was an important case he thought it would be better for the evidence to be taken.

Mr. Alfred Moul, managing director of the plaintiff company, stated that when the Palace at Bristol was taken over the performances were changed to two a night, and on that occasion some of the orchestral performers were paid extra. His orchestra was satisfied with their payments, and at no time had he ever had a dispute with any orchestra at any of his halls. When he saw the first document he went to both Plymouth and Bristol and inquired into the matter, when he found that the only member of the orchestra who was dissatisfied with the pay and conditions of his employment was a man named Ford. After he discovered that the handbill complained of was being delivered he at once instituted these proceedings.

In cross-examination by Mr. Roskill, the witness said he did not answer any letters from the Musicians' Union, as he resented all interference between his band and himself.

On the 16th Mr. Moul was cross-examined with regard to his refusal to have any communication with the union or its officials respecting extra payment to members of the orchestra at the People's Palace, Bristol.

Letters which had passed between Mr. Moul and his managers at Bristol and Plymouth were read. On December 13, 1907, Mr. Liver-more, manager at Bristol, wrote to Mr. Moul:—"We have two members of the union in the orchestra now, and my advice is to now discharge all union men. They cannot do us one shilling's worth of harm here; they over-rate their power, and boast of having 8,000 or 10,000 workpeople here, but even if they have we have only to reckon the population of Bristol 8,000 or 10,000 less."

Mr. Moul replied to Mr. Livermore:—"I have this morning received from Plymouth two letters, one sent by the whole of the members of my orchestra there, in which they inform me that they wish to express their entire satisfaction with the conditions under which they are at present employed."

Asked who drafted the letter from Plymouth, the witness said he went down to Plymouth, was told there was no dissatisfaction, though the union circular had said there was, and he made a suggestion to his Plymouth manager as to what he wanted put into writing. He had approved of "good-bye" being said to a man named Ford, a flautist at Bristol, because that man had stated he was not satisfied with the payment. The fact that Ford was a union man had nothing to do with his discharge.

Mr. Horace Livermore, manager of the Palace, Bristol, gave evidence. All the other theatres and music halls in Bristol, he said, paid less to musicians than was paid at the People's Palace. It was not true that he ever tried to induce the manager of the Empire to reduce the salaries of the orchestra.

Cross-examined: The letter from the Bristol Palace orchestra to Mr. Moul was written voluntarily. At first he formed the opinion that the boycott was doing no damage, but it was afterwards shown that it did no end of damage. In one of his reports to Mr. Moul he accounted for the bad takings of the week by the fact that Tommy Burns was at the Empire. His report was a "white lie," told because he did not wish to make things look too bad.

Re-examined: The boycott had partly ruined the business at the Palace.

Mr. George Harding, a member of the orchestra at the Palace, Bristol, said he had been a member of the union and had agreed to accept the extra 2s. 6d. given by the plaintiffs on the theatre being converted into a "two-shows-a-night" house. Subsequently the union considered the matter, and he and other members were expelled from the union, which he had not since rejoined.

Mr. J. H. Grigg, conductor at the Palace, Plymouth, denied that he had coerced any member of the orchestra into signing the document which said they were satisfied with their rates of payment. He had simply placed the paper before them.

On the 17th Mr. J. H. Grigg, musical director of the company's hall at Plymouth, cross-examined by Mr. Roskill, K.C., said that some time after the members of his orchestra signed statements expressing satisfaction with their conditions of employment, their salaries were increased, but this had nothing whatever to do with the fact that they signed the statements. He denied threatening them to the effect they would have to choose between the Union and the company.

Similar evidence was given by Mr. John Field, the company's manager at Plymouth.

THE DEFENCE.

On the 18th, Mr. Durrant, giving evidence, said some time in November a meeting was called to consider what action should be taken regarding the boycotting of the Palace in consequence of the action of the management. It was about this time the man named Ford was discharged, and he wrote to Williams regarding it. Ford was the only one who frankly said to Mr. Moul that he was not satisfied with the terms of his employment. After the orchestra had signed a letter of satisfaction and sent it to Mr. Moul he wrote to Mr. Williams a letter, in which he said, "The ——— would sign anything."

Mr. John Curle, J.P., another defendant, was called. He said he was present at a meeting in Bristol at which Mr. Williams stated that the musicians had settled the dispute without reference to the union. He denied that at an interview with Mr. Livermore they threatened to boycott the Palace if half-a-crown all round was not paid. The copies of the circular which were sent out by Mr. Durrant were sent out on behalf of the Bristol Trades Council.

Cross-examined, witness said he would certainly have disapproved of the circular if he thought it was untrue; but he did not take the responsibility of issuing it. No doubt the defendants' bill which was claimed was a libel did suggest there was a dispute between the management and the orchestra. They thought the discharge of a man named Ford was a high-handed proceeding. It was not intended that the circular should hurt the plaintiffs in their business.

On the 19th Mr. Alfred Arthur Sunnington, an ex-President of the Bristol Trades Council, a member of the Bristol Corporation, and one of the defendants, stated that he believed the statements in the circulars to be true.

Mr. Clement Edwards: What was your object?

Witness: Well, evidently to injure the profits of the Palace. He explained that the Trades Council were asked to help the Musicians' Union.

Cross-examined by Mr. Henn Collins, witness said that two solicitors had assured the Trades Council that the circular they issued was not libellous.

Mr. Joseph B. Williams, General Secretary of the Amalgamated Musicians' Union, stated that he drafted the circular containing the alleged libels, and issued it with the approval of the Union's solicitor, who, however, added in his letter:—

Of course, there is always some risk in issuing circulars of this kind, in view of the opinions of some judges and juries concerning trade unions.

Mr. Roskill: What was the object of issuing the circular?—To bring legitimate pressure to induce plaintiffs, or compel them, if you like, to observe our trade union rates. Mr. Williams admitted that he thought the circulars would injure the plaintiffs' business.

Louis Francis Ford, flautist at the Bristol Palace till January 4, 1908, when he was dismissed, spoke of the dissatisfaction among the orchestra at being required to give two shows a night instead of seven performances a week for the same money. He stated that he was dismissed because he refused to say he was satisfied with the terms.

On the 22nd Mr. Rawlinson, one of the band of the Plymouth orchestra, said he remembered Mr. Grigg, the conductor of the orchestra, complaining early in October, 1907, of someone having given away the salaries of the orchestra, and remarking that he did not care who did it, whether it was one, two, or three, he would sack them. Just before the second performance that night Mr. Grigg asked who belonged to the Musicians' Union. Two men said they did, and nothing further occurred until a few nights afterwards, when Mr. Grigg said, "We have been having trouble with the Union men at Bristol, and we will have none of it here." Mr. Grigg also said they would have to choose between the Union and the Palace. The witness asked why he was so prejudiced against the Union, as the men could be loyal both to the Union and the Palace, and Mr. Grigg replied, "That cannot be. You must decide between one or the other." In December, 1907, the orchestra were asked if they would sign a letter to the effect that they were satisfied with the terms of employment. They considered the matter, and the next day they signed the letter. When they were asked to sign it, Mr. Field, the manager, said, "You will not be losers by it." At the time he signed it the witness said they were stabbing the Bristol men in the back, and Mr. Grigg replied, "There it is, and it has got to be signed."

In further examination, the witness said that after he signed the document Mr. Field whispered to him that at the commencement of the year he would have an increase of 2s. 6d. a week, and he was glad to say that was done.

In cross-examination, the witness said he felt in this matter in an awkward position, as he was going against his firm. Though he signed voluntarily, he did so because he was afraid of the consequences if he refused. Mr. Field told them the letter was only wanted to show to Mr. Moul, and not for any legal purposes.

Mr. Ernest Bryant, a member of the Plymouth Branch of the Musicians' Union, said that some of the men in the Palace orchestra told him they were "rushed" into signing the letter of satisfaction.

Mr. J. Perry, clarinet in the Plymouth orchestra, said he was engaged at the Palace. He had heard the evidence of Mr. Rawlinson, and agreed with what he had sworn as to what Mr. Grigg had said. Mr. Grigg had said to the witness, "I want to know by to-morrow night—the Palace or the Union?" He also heard Mr. Grigg say, "If I find out who it is—one, two, or three—I will sack him." This referred to the question who had given away the salaries of the orchestra.

On the 23rd, Mr. Charles Mutton, secretary of the Plymouth Branch of the Amalgamated Musicians' Union up to 1908, said he remembered the four men who were members of the Plymouth Palace orchestra and the Musicians' Union coming to him at the end of 1907 and reporting they had been threatened with dismissal unless they gave up being members of the union. He (the witness) had heard the evidence given by Rawlinson and others, and said it accurately represented what occurred.

Other witnesses having given corroborative evidence,

Mr. Henn Collins submitted that the Trades Disputes Act did not apply, on the ground that the members of a musicians' union were not workmen, and, therefore, the Act could not apply.

Mr. Roskill contended that the Musicians' Union came within the definition clause of the Act of 1871, and as that Act was not repealed by the Trades Disputes Act the Musicians' Union was included.

JUDGMENT.

Counsel then addressed the jury. On the 24th, in reply to Mr. Montagu Lush, K.C., his Lordship said he would leave to the jury the question of libel. As to the point of law that might be raised, he added, he would rather it was dealt with by others.

In his summing up, his Lordship described the Trade Disputes Act, 1906, as the most ill-drawn, inartistic, and ungrammatical Act of Parliament that he had ever come across.

The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiffs, with £550 damages. Judgment was entered for plaintiffs on the following day, when a stay of execution was allowed pending an appeal.

[See Report of Appeal, June 29.]

JAMES CAMERON.—FRAUD ON THE V.A.F.
At Bow Street, before Mr. Marsham, James Cameron was charged with fraud.

15 Mr. C. J. Doughty, who prosecuted on behalf of the Variety Artists' Federation, said that during the recent dispute between variety artists and certain agents in the first week in December the prisoner was performing at the Royal, Shrewsbury, and he got a friend in London to send him a telegram purporting to come from Fritz's Agency offering him £24 for two week's work. He sent this telegram to the Variety Artists' Federation, and at the same time wrote to say that he had declined the offer, and was short of money. The V.A.F. sent him £6, and on receiving a similar letter in the following week they forwarded him another £6. They afterwards found that the prisoner had received no such offers from the agency named, and the prisoner was arrested in Manchester.

Mr. Marsham said it was a grave offence to send a bogus telegram, and he could not overlook it. The prisoner would be sentenced to two months in the second division.

"NORMAN CRAIG."—ALLEGED FRAUD.

At Westminster Police Court before Mr. Francis, Frederick John Morgan, alias 15 "Norman Craig," was brought up in custody on remand charged with obtaining money by fraud and false pretences. Mr. T. Duerdin Dutton appeared for the prisoner.

Ida Mary Steele, of 168, Dover Road, Folkestone, young lady formerly in employment as a cashier, deposed that in October last she advertised in THE STAGE for a theatrical engagement. In reply she received a letter signed "Norman Craig," offering her a situation in his touring company. She was requested to pay a premium for a part in The Sorrows of Satan. She was promised a salary of £1 a week. She sent 11s.—all she could afford—to Craig. She came to town from Folkestone on November 9 with Mr. William Standley, a young man who had also been in communication with the accused for a stage part. The accused met them, and said that they were to "open" at Enfield on the 16th. They rehearsed on several days at St. George's Hall, Westminster Bridge Road. On the day she came to London the accused drew 5s. from her as part payment for an evening dress which was stated to be required for her part in The Bondman. The accused was absent from the final rehearsal, and she never saw him afterwards.

Evidence was also given by William Standley, who said prisoner had various small amounts from him.

Mr. Victor Hugo Chrisfield said he replied to an advertisement in a daily paper on November 5, and was thus placed in communication with the accused, who asked for a "cash security of £10." The accused said he would pay a salary of 30s. a week, and all railway fares, and that he should require a deposit of £2 at once. According to an arrangement made by letter, the witness went to St. George's Hall, Westminster Bridge Road, and had an interview with the accused. The accused spoke about his banking account and his advance bookings, but as there was nothing definite he got no money from the witness.

Evidence was given that the accused received letters at a fee of 1d. each at a news-agent's shop at Chelsea.

Mr. Edwards, lessee of St. George's Hall, Westminster, proved that the accused hired that place on one or two afternoons for rehearsals at a shilling an hour, and failed to pay for the final hiring when some young people were waiting by appointment to see him.

Detective-Inspector Draper said the accused was formerly employed at Harrod's Stores. There were many complaints from young people who had parted with money to go on the stage. On one occasion the accused got a number of young people to perform at Harrow. They had some sort of a performance on one occasion, and then it was alleged that he left the company in the lurch, and they waited all day at the railway station. The police would like another remand to further investigate this matter and other complaints.

Mr. Francis said he thought it very desirable. The prisoner was remanded for a week when further evidence was offered by John Featherstone, a clerk, who deposed that in March, 1908, he parted with sums amounting to 22s. 6d. to prisoner, understanding that he was engaged for a part at a salary of £1 a week. The rehearsals took place at the Bay Matton, Great Portland Street. Finally, prisoner deserted the "company," and nothing more was seen of him.

Prisoner was committed for trial, Mr. Francis offering to accept bail.

[Report of trial March 10.]

MACKNEY v. FRED KARNO.

In the Lambeth County Court, before his Honour Judge Emden, Tom and Emily Mackney, music-hall artists, of 109, Boyson Road, Camberwell, sued Fred Karno. They claimed £50 damages for breach of an agreement, and in the alternative a claim for their wages at the rate of £3 per week from December 19, 1908, and the sum of £c. being two weeks' wages due to them in lieu of notice.

Mr. Martin O'Connor, barrister, appeared on behalf of the plaintiffs, and Mr. Storry Deans appeared for the defendant.

Mr. O'Connor said the plaintiffs agreed with the defendant to join the sketch, The Yap Yaps, and tour the country, and, according to the agreement, two weeks' notice was to be given to terminate the agreement. Everything went right until December 11, when the male plaintiff received a letter terminating his engagement in the sketch. Counsel contended that the defendant had no right to discharge them without the fortnight's notice.

Mr. Storry Deans, for the defendant: They were not intoxicated, and I go under Clause 9 in the agreement. The question for the judge and jury is whether they were drunk while in the theatre.

Mr. Tom Mackney said that before the present engagement he worked for defendant in 1904 for six months. On November 11, 1908, witness was engaged by defendant for The Yap Yaps. The tour began on November 13 at Margate, and he went through the week without a complaint, and then they went to the Paragon, Mile End, for a week, and everything went on well until Friday, December 11, when he heard that an accusation of drunkenness had been made against him to Mr. Karno. Later in the evening of that day he received his salary and a notice that his engagement ceased on the next day (Saturday), but that Mr. Karno would give him another engagement before long. He worked his part on the Saturday, and after it was over Mr. Rickards, the manager of the troupe, said to him, "You have notice to leave the troupe, but you may appear at the Canterbury next week," which was up to December 18.

In reply to Mr. O'Connor, the plaintiff said that Mr. Rickards had never suggested to him during the whole of the tour that he had ever been drunk while in the theatre. He had never been drunk on the stage. He was dismissed because Mr. Karno wanted to cut down expenses.

Mrs. Emily Mackney said she assisted in the piece, and took the part of the fish-wife. She always did her duty so far as she knew. There was never a complaint made against her, and she had never been drunk in the theatre at any town where the piece was performed.

Mr. Frank Rickards, manager of The Yap Yaps company, Mme. Grace, Margaret Cecil, May Hawthorne, and Nellie Noble, of the same company, gave evidence that they had seen the plaintiffs drunk at the theatre on more than one occasion.

The jury retired, and in a few minutes returned stating that they all agreed but one.

His Honour: What, disagree on the evidence before you? All the witnesses for the defence have not been shaken in the least, and not inspired to give false evidence. I can't understand it.

Eventually counsel on both sides decided to take the majority.

The jury gave a verdict for the plaintiffs for nine weeks' salary at £3 a week, as contract and for a fortnight's wages in lieu of notice.

Mr. Storry Deans gave notice of appeal for a new trial, as the verdict was against the weight of evidence. The appeal was allowed. [See report of new trial, March 25.]

COCHRAN AND ANOTHER v. LONDON PAVILION.

In the Court of Appeal, before the Master of the Rolls and Lords Justices Moulton and Buckley, came the case of Cochran and Amery-Parkes v. the London Pavilion Company, Limited which was an appeal by Mr. John Amery-Parkes from a judgment of Mr. Justice Ridley.

In January, 1907, Mr. C. B. Cochran, an undischarged bankrupt, entered into an agreement with the defendants to produce a number of wrestlers. His wife, Mrs. Evelyn Cochran, entered into a contract with Zbysoo for his appearance at the music hall between certain dates whenever she chose to direct. A deed was entered into between Mr. and Mrs. Cochran, which recited that Mr. Cochran had acted as agent for his wife, and that he assigned the benefit of the contract to her. On January 2, 1908, being in need of money, Mr. and Mrs. Cochran obtained an advance of £115 from Mr. Amery-Parkes, their solicitor, and mortgaged to him their rights under the contract. Mr. Amery-Parkes at that time did not give notice of the assignment to the defendants.

On January 3, 1908, a special wrestling match was arranged between Zbysoo and Kara Sullivan. The combatants were unable to finish in the time limited by Mr. Cochran, and at this the audience got angry, and threw elec-

'ric light globes and whatever else they could find on to the stage.

The management of the London Pavilion refused to allow Zbyseo to go on again, and terminated the contract with the Cochranes.

The action was brought by Mrs. Cochran and Mr. Amery-Parkes for an alleged breach of the contract for the appearance of Zbyseo. Defendants pleaded justification, and also said that the contract had been made with Mr. Cochran and not with the plaintiffs. The jury found that the contract was not made with Mrs. Cochran, but with her husband. They also found that the defendants had no right to terminate the performance, and they assessed the damages at £170. Mr. Justice Ridley, however, set aside the verdict, and entered judgment for the defendants.

Mr. Rawlinson, K.C., and Mr. Tindal Davis appeared in support of the appeal; Mr. Horridge, K.C., and Mr. Greer for the respondent company.

Without hearing counsel for the respondents, the Master of the Rolls, in giving judgment, described the appeal as "hopeless," and said he entirely agreed with the decision appealed from.

The Lords Justices concurred, and the appeal was dismissed with costs.

CHILDREN AND THE STAGE.

At Preston, Louisa Schlossal was summoned for allowing her daughter, a child of 19 seven to take part in the performance of Madame Butterfly, at the Royal, Preston; and J. St. Clair, the manager of the Moody-Manners company, was summoned for procuring the child for that purpose.

The accused were fined 5s. each, with costs. Mr. St. Clair, in the course of his defence, said the child had been playing with the company since August, 1908, and they had not been interfered with except at Birkenhead, where the case was dismissed.

The Chairman (Sir W. Ashcroft) said the law was perfectly clear. A child under ten years of age could not perform, and the defendants ought to know it. They must take care the offence did not occur again.

STOREY v. CAMERON.—BREACH OF CONTRACT.

Before Mr. Justice Hamilton, in the King's Bench Division, Mr. Fred Storey sued 19 Mrs. Wilkie, professionally known as Miss Iné Cameron, to recover damages for an alleged breach of contract. The defendant denied liability, and alleged that the contract was rescinded by mutual consent.

Mr. Barrington Ward appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Boydell Houghton for the defendant.

Mr. Barrington Ward said in January, 1908, the defendant engaged the plaintiff to take part in a tour at a salary of £15 a week, from February 17 to June 13, with 50 per cent of the profits. The plaintiff had also to provide certain scenery and costumes, and to enable new scenery to be obtained, the defendant undertook to advance to the plaintiff the sum of £50, which was to be repaid by the plaintiff out of his salary. The agreement came into force on February 17, and the tour began on the 19th at Oxford. On February 23, at Bridlington, the defendant posted up a fourteen days' notice terminating the tour. At Harrogate, on February 28, the climax came. At the suggestion of the defendant the plaintiff and some of the artists went to Blackpool, the defendant saying she would go to London and see if she could raise any money for the tour. The defendant now said that the contract was terminated by mutual consent when the plaintiff undertook to carry out the engagement at Blackpool. The plaintiff denied that anything was said to lead the defendant to believe that he would abandon his claim under the contract. If the contract had been carried out plaintiff would have received £255 in salary. The defendant advanced the plaintiff £25 out of the £50 for scenery, and paid him £7 10s. on account of salary while on tour.

Mr. Storey gave evidence. He said that at her request he took the company on to Blackpool, where she had a date booked. He did not, however, agree to terminate this contract. He only received £32 10s. under the contract.

The defendant said that when the company was at Harrogate she received a letter from her solicitors, stating that a reversion on which she had raised money could not be sold immediately. She had an interview with the plaintiff, who agreed to take some of the members of the company on to Blackpool, and she understood that the contract with the plaintiff was rescinded. The plaintiff told her not to worry about his contract. She had advanced the plaintiff £35 for scenery.

Mr. Justice Hamilton, in giving judgment, said the action was practically undefended. The plaintiff was engaged for a specified period at £15 a week, and that contract had been broken. The defendant had been unfortunate, and it might be that the plaintiff was exacting his pound of flesh, but he (his Lordship) had nothing to do with that. It was simply a question of damages. Certain deductions would be made from the amount Mr. Storey would have received had the contract been carried out, and judgment would be for the plaintiff for £198 10s., with costs.

CADBURY v. BEARDMORE AND OTHERS.

In the King's Bench, before Mr. Justice Hamilton, was commenced the hearing of 23 an action brought by Miss Violet Cadbury (Mlle. Sahara) against John P. Beardmore and Miss Violet Hope for an injunction to restrain them from using the name of Mlle. Sahara in such a way as to lead the public to suppose that Miss Hope was the plaintiff, also for the return of dresses, scenery, "properties," and music score, or their value, and damages for the detention and conversion of the goods. She further claimed £8 10s. and £2 10s., as sums due to her from Beardmore, and an additional sum of £2, which he is alleged to have received to settle a debt due to an agent. Damages were also claimed. Mr. Vaughan Williams appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Beardmore appeared in person.

Mr. Vaughan Williams said that his client was a well-known dancer. She had first performed in the employment of a Mr. Peterman, who also employed the defendant, Mr. Beardmore. After she left the services of Mr. Peterman she decided to start touring on her own account, with her own costumes and scenery, the defendant Mr. Beardmore to act as her manager. At South Shields she met with an accident, injuring one of her knees, and was unable to appear at Hastings. An understudy was engaged in the person of Miss Violet Home, and after she had been taught she used the costumes and scenery of Miss Cadbury. Certain arrangements were made with Mr. Beardmore to fill two dates at Dublin and Belfast, but he ignored the arrangements, and after playing at those towns went on tour with Miss Hope, and her (Miss Cadbury's) scenery and properties as though they were his own, and Mr. Beardmore paid her nothing. At Gloucester, Porth, Edinburgh, and Iotherham Miss Hope was advertised as Sahara and as a pupil of Mme. Cavallazzi, which statement was untrue. Poole's Theatres, Limited, were joined in the action as defendants, but they had behaved properly and had submitted to an injunction. Plaintiff's prospects were injured by this use of her name, and she was unable to take engagements without her scenery and properties, and in particular a valuable snake.

Miss Cadbury gave evidence bearing out her counsel's statements. When she made the arrangement for her understudy, Miss Hope, to take her place in the Dublin and Belfast engagements, Mr. Beardmore had promised to write to the managers of the halls in those towns and obtain their consent to the arrangement.—Cross-examined by Mr. Beardmore, she said she might have heard of a dancer named Ayesha Hara who gave a Salome dance. She (plaintiff) took her name of Mlle. Sahara from a picture.

On the following day Mr. Beardmore, in his evidence, said that he was in partnership with Miss Cadbury from the time of the Hull engagement in July to the time he and Miss Hope went to Belfast. At first the arrangement was that each should have an equal share of the salary received, but afterwards, when the plaintiff began the snake dance, she wanted rather more, and he agreed. When he and Miss Hope went to Belfast, he said, he intended to pay Miss Cadbury the £8 10s. a week for that and the Dublin engagement, and probably would have continued to pay her £5 a week to stop out of it, because Miss Hope had so improved the "show." He claimed a proprietary interest in the scenery, and said the dresses had been returned in good condition. He also claimed a right to conduct his entertainments under the name of Mlle. Sahara.

In cross-examination, he denied that a partnership with Miss Cadbury was to be contingent on his paying £50.

Miss Hope said she was receiving £5 a week from Mr. Beardmore now, and did not want to be known as Mlle. Sahara, preferring her own name.

His Lordship gave judgment for the plaintiff for £119 and costs, and ordered that the injunction against Mr. Beardmore's use of the name Mlle. Sahara should be made perpetual.

[See report, injunction, STAGE YEAR BOOK, 1909, p. 207.]

E. A. ESMONDE.—ALLEGED FALSE PRETENCES.

At Runcorn, Ernest A. Esmonde was charged on a warrant with obtaining £5 2s. 6d.

24 from Norman Bott Williams by false pretences with intent to defraud. Mr. H. A. Linaker defended.

Mr. Williams said in January he saw an advertisement in THE STAGE—"Wanted, an assistant manager, resident, for an important theatre in the Midlands; previous experience not absolutely essential.—Address, Mackenzie, Running Horse, Winchester." He interviewed the prisoner at the Running Horse Hotel, and it was arranged that he should be engaged as assistant manager at £2 per week at the Grand, Runcorn, and pay a premium of £10. He paid £5 2s. 6d. down, and was to pay the balance in three weeks. He received an agreement on those terms. The agreement was signed "E. A. Esmonde, per pro Mackenzie." On January 16 the prisoner and he travelled to Runcorn, and the theatre was opened on January 25. From the commencement he found that prisoner and Mackenzie were very short of money. The next week the advertisement he had repaid to was repeated in THE STAGE. A number of applications were received and repaid to, and one applicant, named Morris, deposited £10 with the prisoner. After this he (witness) was called advertising manager without his consent. He had never acted as assistant manager, because nothing was left to him except the advertising. He complained of this, and the prisoner said advertising manager was a better position than assistant manager. He refused to pay the rest of the premium, because someone else was put in as assistant manager. The first three weeks he received £1 a week as wages, paid in odd sums. Knowing that there were a number of creditors, and seeing he had a very poor chance of getting any money, and hearing that they intended to remove out of the town suddenly, he issued a warrant. The false pretence was that prisoner obtained his money upon the condition that he would have an engagement at £2 a week for twelve months. There was no prospect of that coming on.

Mr. Linaker submitted that no case of false pretences was disclosed. The prosecutor was assistant manager, and as he was of absolutely no experience the premium of £10 was to teach him his business. £5 was paid, and it was arranged that £1 a week should be deducted from his wages. There was £2 still owing—the prosecutor refused to pay it.

The magistrates dismissed the case, saying it was one for a civil court.

MARINELLI v. SELBINI.—A CLAIM FOR COMMISSION.

In the Westminster County Court the case of Marinelli v. Selbini came before Deputy Judge Bevan as a claim by Messrs. Marinelli, agents, Charing Cross Road, against Miss Lina Selbini for £33 1ss. 4d. for commission on an engagement at the Empire, Leicester Square.

Mr. H. Storry Deans was counsel for the plaintiffs and Mr. Cranstoun for the defendant.

Mr. Arthur Aldin, acting-manager of the Empire, produced two forms of contract between the Empire and defendant, and said that one contract was a prolongation of the other. The salary was £35 a week.

Mr. Walheim, London manager of Marinelli, Limited, said that plaintiffs had a general contract with defendant for three years for 10 per cent. commission on all her engagements. He saw Miss Selbini in Paris about an engagement at the Empire, and the matter was fixed up and defendant performed.

The case was adjourned till the 27th for defendant's attendance.

Mr. Cranstoun said that the claim was on two contracts which plaintiffs declared were made at their office in Charing Cross Road. That was incorrect, and an agreement was now set up to pay plaintiffs 10 per cent. on all engagements. That agreement had only been stamped a few days ago, after relying hitherto on the two contracts between defendant and the Empire. Plaintiffs approached the Empire for a contract for June next, but defendant's mother got her the engagement now in dispute direct from the Empire, without any assistance of the plaintiffs.

Defendant said that she was the wife of Willie Panzer, and her stage name was Lalla Selbini. She had performed at the Empire since she was a little girl, and her mother, father, and sister had also performed there. Her performances were singing, dancing, cycling, and juggling. In May last she was performing in the States. Plaintiffs had offices there, and also at Berlin, Paris, and Vienna. She was seen by plaintiffs there, and again in Paris, where she was performing last August. Mr. Marinelli said, "Have you signed your life away? If so I am going to give you trouble. The only way is to sign with us." That was arising out of a seizure of her clothes, jewellery, etc., at Vienna because she had failed to perform there under a contract four years old. He said, "If you don't sign with us when you get to Germany a man will seize you in the street and take the very clothes off you. We are the only people who can settle for you." Mr. Marinelli said, "You had better sign this; it's a mere matter of form." She signed for three weeks under coercion, fearing what might happen to her when she got to Germany. Passing on to the matter in dispute, she stated that she refused to sign any contract with plaintiffs with reference to the Empire engagement. Her mother got the contract for three weeks, and it was prolonged for a further five weeks.

Cross-examined by Mr. Macaskie, who now appeared for the plaintiffs, she said that she had been performing a good many years, but did not know a great deal about the business side of the profession. The agreement produced was to pay plaintiffs commission on all engagements, whether they obtained them or not. When she signed she did not think what she was doing. She could not explain how her mother came to refer to plaintiffs in a letter to the Empire as "her agents." She could not remember receiving an offer for the Empire through plaintiffs at Dresden in September.

Documents were put to defendant with a view to showing that she had regarded plaintiffs as her agents, but she denied signing one dated at Leipzig, and stated that she had never been there.

The Deputy Judge pointed out that if she signed one of the documents she had made a mistake in the spelling of her own name.

Mr. Cranstoun: She denies signing it.

In further cross-examination, defendant said that she broke some contracts four years ago because she had to stay with her husband in America. In Vienna two men broke into her room at 7 a.m. without any sort of notice she heard of or proceeding, and stripped it because she broke a contract in Berlin—not a contract in Vienna. It was about those broken contract Marinellis were to avert all unpleasantness if she signed the agreement. She complained to her mother that undue influence had been brought to bear upon her to make her sign the agreement in Paris.

Re-examined: She got her things back by paying for them in Vienna. The signing of Marinelli's agreement did not end the bother about the broken contracts.

The hearing was adjourned until March 20, when Mrs. Selbini, the mother of the defendant, said she arranged the engagement with Mr. Dixon.

Miss Mispah Selbini, a sister of the defendant, said in July, 1908, she and her sister were appearing in Vienna, and on the 17th of that month, and in the early morning, two men broke into their room and searched the whole place. They took her sister's money and jewellery. They came in under a judgment of the Court in respect of a breach of contract. She and her sister then went on to Paris and called at the plaintiffs' office, and saw Mr. Clifford Fisher, and told him what had happened. Mr. Fisher pressed her sister to sign a contract to make them her sole agents for three years. Her sister objected at first to sign such a contract, and Mr. Fisher said that if she did not do so she would have worse trouble when she went to Germany. At the same interview Mr. Marinelli came upon the scene, and said that if she signed the contract appointing them her sole agents she would have no more trouble. He also said that it was only a matter of form and that all artists did it. After some further discussion her sister agreed to sign the contract on the assurance of Mr. Fisher that he would obtain engagements for them both to appear at the same theatres, and it was upon that promise that they relied. In cross-examination the witness said she was aware of the fact that her sister had broken engagements in Germany.

At this point of the case Mr. Marinelli was called. He said he told Miss Selbini that he could not do business for her unless she gave him a contract to act as her sole agent.

In giving judgment the Deputy-Judge said the case turned upon what took place at the interview between the plaintiff, the defendant, and Mr. Fisher in Paris. He (the judge) had no doubt that the defendant did not wish to sign the contract to make the plaintiffs her sole agents, but she did so for the purpose of obtaining engagements, and in order that her sister might be employed at the same halls as she was. As to the Empire contract, he had no doubt that it was procured by the plaintiffs, and that they were entitled to be paid, in spite of the fact that Mrs. Selbini might have taken a part in it. He did not think for a moment that the defendant when she signed the contract with the plaintiffs did so under feelings of terror or duress. It followed, therefore, that there would be judgment for the plaintiffs for the full amount of their claim of £23 18s. 4d. on the Empire contract, with full costs.

MARCH.

HOWARD v. MACNAGHTEN—BREACH OF CONTRACT.

At the Bloomsbury County Court, before Judge Bacon, Amos Howard, a coloured comedian, sued Frank Macnaghten to recover £10 16s. 8d. alleged to be due in respect of an engagement at the Palace, Bradford. There was a counter-claim for damages amounting to £10 through the plaintiff not appearing at the defendant's music hall, the Palace, West Hartlepool.

Mr. C. J. Doughy, barrister, represented the plaintiff, and Mr. Martin O'Connor the defendant. The plaintiff's claim was admitted, and it was in respect of the counter-claim that the case came before the judge.

Mr. O'Connor explained the circumstances of Howard's agreement. He had accepted an engagement at Bradford, and a telegram was accepted to appear at Hartlepool. To this there was the acceptance: "Hartlepool accepted; please send me other date." That, said Mr. O'Connor, was a distinct acceptance of the Hartlepool engagement. The defendant was billed and advertised, but on the Friday at Bradford, when Mr. Macnaghten's manager and the agent of the plaintiff were there, the plaintiff said he did not intend going to Hartlepool. The defendants were put to considerable inconvenience. There was fresh printing and another artist had to be engaged at a salary of £10. Mr. Macnaghten, however, only claimed £10, the amount to be paid to the plaintiff.

Mr. Frederick Baugh said he was manager for Mr. Macnaghten. No one had any right to make an offer of payment to artists except Mr. Macnaghten or himself. He was at Bradford on January 29 when he heard a conversation between Howard and the agent. He heard Howard say to the agent that he would not go to Hartlepool. Howard was already billed for Hartlepool and duly advertised. When he knew that Howard would not go to Hartlepool, he refused to pay him the salary for that week.

Amos Howard, the plaintiff, said he understood there was to be an arrangement for the tour. He had contracts for more. At Portsmouth, for instance, £12 to £15.

His Honour interposed, and said that the question of damages was to his mind covered by the rules. The plaintiff was billed and advertised to appear. The manager had to keep faith with his public, and to pay for a substitute. Could it be contended that the measure of damages of forty shillings was enough?

Mr. Doughty said the agreement was only entered into on the Monday previous, and broken on the Friday. There was ample time to get someone else. Forty shillings as the measure of damages was quite enough.

His Honour gave judgment for the amount claimed on the counter-claim, and a discussion ensued as to costs to be awarded. Eventually his Honour decided that the costs must go to the defendant.

WARREN v. NATION.—ACTION FOR WRITING A PLAY.

In the Westminster County Court, before the deputy-judge, Mr. Thomas Gideon
4 Warren sued to recover the sum of £25, balance of account for translating and adapting a French novel into a play to the instructions of the defendant, Mr. W. H. C. Nation, manager of the New Royalty.

The defence was that the play was not completed to the satisfaction of the defendant, and that as the plaintiff declined to make certain alterations which were suggested to him, he was not entitled to be paid for it.

Plaintiff said he agreed to do the work for £30. He in due course delivered it to the defendant, and was paid a sum of £5 on account, but when he pressed for the payment of the balance of £25 the defendant returned the MS. to him and suggested certain alterations, and at the same time suggested that he (plaintiff) should consult the works of Shakespeare, Dickens, Thackeray, and Douglas Jerrold in order to find inspiration. He made what alterations he considered were reasonable or necessary, but it was quite impossible for him to consult the works of the authors whose names the defendant had mentioned and import their work into the play. He absolutely denied that he undertook to write the play in question on approval, or that he ever did his work on those terms.

The defendant was called, and said he employed the plaintiff to adapt the play in question, and he did so, but after reading it he (witness) desired certain alterations to be made, and as the plaintiff declined to comply with his wishes he returned the play to him, and got it written by someone else. It was true the plaintiff had been paid £5 on account, but that was done as a personal favour, as he said he was short of money.

His Honour found that the plaintiff had not completed his contract to prepare a play which would be approved of, and gave judgment for the defendant, with costs.

HESSE v. POPPLEWELL AND ANOTHER—NOTICE OF CLOSURE.

Before his Honour Judge Emden, in the Lambeth County Court, an action was heard in which Mr. Paul Hesse, head of the Hesse Trio of acrobats and knock-about, sued Messrs. Benjamin Popplewell and Robert Hingworth of the Queen's Palace, Briggate, Shipley, Yorkshire, for £12, one week's salary, according to contract. The defendants denied liability, stating that they considered they had given the plaintiff due notice.

Mr. C. J. Doughty, barrister, appeared on behalf of the plaintiff and the defendants were represented by Mr. Freeman, solicitor.

Mr. Doughty said the engagement was entered into in January, 1908. The defendants disposed of the theatre at Shipley and, therefore, the contract was never entered upon by the plaintiff at all. According to the agreement the plaintiff was prevented from appearing at another hall within ten miles of the defendants' place during a period of fifteen months previous.

Mr. Paul Hesse said that he did not sign the agreement. It was his agent, Mr. Leo Fritz, and it was he that did all his business. His agent entered into the agreement, and there were over twelve months to elapse before he was to appear at the Queen's for one week commencing on January 25 of this year. He sent, according to the terms, his bill matter two weeks before he had to turn up on the stage, and as he heard nothing from the defendants he presumed that he was going on at the stated date. Some time after the contract was made the witness went abroad and was away some considerable time. During the whole of that time and for months afterwards the witness did not hear anything from the defendants about closing the theatre. He added that he lost that week's work because he did not have any intimation from the defendants that they were going to or had closed the theatre.

His Honour: There are unreasonable clauses in the agreement. Fancy barring a man from appearing at another hall for fifteen months before the engagement within ten miles, and beside not allowing him to perform nearer than the ten miles. It is to me absurd. Do people in the North of England go over ten miles to a music hall?

Mr. Doughty: I cannot tell you, your Honour, but that is the agreement.

DEFENCE.

Mr. Benjamin Popplewell said he lived at 49, St. Mary's Road, Bradford, and was one of the defendants. He and his partner decided to close down in May of 1908. When the contract was entered into the plaintiff did not put his address to the document, and it was owing to the witness not knowing his private address that he could not communicate with him to inform him what action he (witness) was about to take with regard to closing the music hall. The only way that witness could let the plaintiff know was to advertise the shutting up in a trade paper, which he did. After the house was shut up he put it into the hands of an agent to dispose of, and it was only closed for a week, and then it was let to a firm with animated pictures. Later on it was let to a Mr. Griffiths, and finally sold to Messrs. Mercer, Turner, and Carver, the Franco-British Animated Pictures Company, in November, 1908.

In answer to his Honour the defendant said his experience was that to put a notice in a trade paper was quite enough to let anyone know what was going to happen.

His Honour: You think that is enough, do you? Well, I do not—that's the difference. What you should have done was to send a letter to the plaintiff's agent if you could not get hold of the plaintiff.

Mr. Popplewell, continuing his evidence, said that the hall was a large coffee house, and he turned it into a music hall, which cost £2,000 to reconstruct. Trade was bad in the district, and they lost between £40 and £50 a week. The money that he had lost was his life's savings.

His Honour: I am sorry for you. You know that the plaintiff should have had a written notice from you.

Mr. Freeman was about to refer to a case tried at Stockport and reported in THE STAGE YEAR-BOOK, but his Honour said that the decision in that case would not influence him in any way.

Mr. Freeman: If this case goes against my client he may have a great number of actions brought against him. It is very hard on my client, considering the money he has lost over the theatre.

Mr. Freeman informed his Honour that the action was brought by the Variety Artists' Federation.

JUDGMENT.

The judge said that the only notice given by the defendants about the hall being closed was an advertisement inserted twice in a newspaper. No notice was given by word of mouth or in writing. As it was, the plaintiff did neither see the advertisement nor get any other indication, and as some notice should have been given of the closing of the hall other than the newspaper one, or even a notification sent to the plaintiff's agent, Mr. Leo Fritz, saying that the music hall was being shut up, the defence must fail. It was not sufficient to advertise in the Press of what was going to take place, and, therefore, he must give judgment for the full amount claimed, with costs.

Mr. Freeman: I give notice of appeal.

His Honour: Yes, if you lodge the costs up to date, and a reasonable sum towards the appeal.

Mr. Doughty: I think that should be done, because my clients who have taken the matter up—the Variety Artists' Federation—want to see some of their costs back.

His Honour: Oh, yes; I think that is only fair. To Mr. Freeman the judge said: Will you pay the costs up to the present and some reasonable amount towards the appeal within a week?

Mr. Freeman: I cannot say that for certain, but I will see what can be done, and then inform the Court.

SMITH v. DANGERFIELD.—ALLEGED LIBEL.

In the Westminster County Court his Honour Judge Woodfall had before him the case of Smith v. the Dangerfield Printing Company, in which the plaintiff, known on the music hall stage as Miss Minnie Letta, sued the defendants, a firm of theatrical printers, to recover damages for libel in having exhibited or sold for that purpose a poster bearing her photograph without having obtained her consent, and in connection with a performance with which she was not associated. It appeared from the opening statement of counsel that in 1904 the husband of the plaintiff, Mr. Albert Smith, was approached by the defendant firm with a view to their producing a poster bearing a photograph of his wife, which was to be supplied to the managers of all the halls where she was engaged. The suggestion was agreed to, and Mr. Smith paid the defendants a sum of £10 on the understanding that the posters were to be sold to the managers at one shilling each, and that when a thousand of them had been sold the deposit of £10 was to be returned. It came to the knowledge of the plaintiff some time ago, however, that the poster bearing her picture was being exhibited at the Hammersmith Palace in connection with a show known as the New York Walking Girls, and although her name did not appear upon it she considered it was detrimental to her reputation, as she was known in connection with a production called the "Sporting Girls," and that was the libel of which she now complained.

The defence was that the poster in question was produced at the plaintiff's request, but that it was the property of the defendants.

Miss Minnie Letta said when she gave the order for the posters in question she did so on the distinct understanding that they were to be supplied only to the managers of the halls where she was to appear. In cross-examination the witness said that what she complained of was that posters bearing her picture should be used in connection with another performance, and with another title printed on the top of them.

The Judge: Have you suffered any loss of salary in consequence of the posters being exhibited as you say?

The Witness: I cannot say, because I have had a new production since then.

In further cross-examination the plaintiff said she considered her reputation was damaged by the use which had been made of the posters.

Mr. Albert Smith, husband of Miss Letta, corroborated what she had stated in evidence.

The hearing was adjourned until the 15th, when Mr. Smith in cross-examination said he did not know to whose inception the idea of "The New York Girls" was due, but it was certainly not his nor his wife's, as they had never been associated with "The New York Girls" in any way.

Counsel for defendant: Do you contend that you have a copyright in this poster?

The Witness: Yes, I do; inasmuch as it was taken from a photograph; and Miss Letta has suffered, to my knowledge, in her reputation and obtained less engagements in consequence of it having been exhibited for other performances.

The Judge: How have you been damaged by the use of the posters?

The Witness: Well, your Honour, we have lost engagements in consequence.

The Judge: How do you show that that is so.

The Witness: I say that the defendants had no right to sell or make use of my wife's picture at halls where she did not appear.

The Judge: Do you know of any case where you have lost engagements in consequence of the sale of the posters?

The Witness: Well, as we knew that our reputation was damaged we did not try so many halls.

Judge Woodfall said that as the evidence stood it was perfectly clear that there was a publication of a libel, and that the plaintiff had suffered a very serious wrong, but there was no evidence of a farthing of damage. He

(the Judge) thought the plaintiff had misconceived her right of action, and therefore judgment must be for the defendants with costs. A stay of execution would be granted for a month with leave to apply in case of an appeal.

LAW AND ANOTHER v. PEPI.—MUSIC HALL ARTISTS' CONTRACTS.—A SUCCESSFUL APPEAL.

Mr. Justice Walton and Mr. Justice Coleridge had before them, in the King's Bench Division the case of Law and another v. Pepi, on appeal by the plaintiffs from a decision of his Honour Judge Temple at the Middlesbrough County Court. Mr. Montagu Lush, K.C., for the appellants, said the plaintiffs, music hall artists, sued for salary due to them under a contract with the defendant, who was the proprietor of the New Hippodrome at Middlesbrough. By the contract the defendant Pepi agreed to pay the plaintiffs, whose professional names are Otto and Olga, £18 a week for one week. Plaintiffs were to give performances twice nightly, and at matinées if required, subject to certain conditions, of which the following was the important one in this case:—"In the event of the hall closing from any cause whatever, it is distinctly understood that this agreement shall be immediately cancelled, and the management absolved of liability in respect of salary due or prospective." The engagement of the plaintiffs was to commence on August 3, and they were bound not to perform in Middlesbrough, or within a radius of ten miles, prior to or during this engagement, or within six months after finishing the engagement, without certain permission. The answer to the case was that the Hippodrome, which was in course of construction when the contract was made, was not finished in time for this engagement to be performed, and consequently there was no theatre in which to allow the plaintiffs to perform. He (Mr. Lush) submitted that that was no defence at all. The fact that the Hippodrome was not finished was the fault of the defendant, who was responsible for what his contractor did or did not do.

Mr. Barnett said it was well understood by plaintiffs' agent that if the hall was not finished the agreement came to an end. It was absurd to suggest that the defendant warranted that the building should be ready by August 3.

Mr. Justice Walton: Why? He chose to enter into this contract, and the plaintiffs by it were prevented for a time from earning their living in this place, or within a given radius of it, from the moment the contract was made.

Mr. Barnett contended that to decide otherwise than the County Court judge had done would be to impose a serious burden on the providers of entertainments.

Mr. Justice Walton, in giving judgment, said he could find no sufficient evidence in the case to support the finding of the County Court judge that it was known to plaintiffs' agent that the contract was not to be binding if the Hippodrome was not finished by August 3. He did not think the performance was rendered impossible owing to causes over which the management had no control. The Hippodrome was not ready by August 3, but, in view of this contract, it was the duty of the defendant to have it ready, and there was nothing to show that he could not have had it ready. The appeal must be allowed, and judgment entered for the plaintiffs for the amount claimed, with costs in that court and in the County Court.

Mr. Justice Coleridge concurred.

Mr. Barnett, in view of the importance of the case to music hall proprietors, asked for leave to appeal.

The Court refused leave.

NORMAN CRAIG SENTENCED.

At the London Sessions Court before Mr. Wallace, K.C., Frederick John Morgan 10 (otherwise Norman Craig) was found guilty of having obtained money from various stage aspirants under false pretences, and was sentenced to six months' imprisonment in the second division. [For report of Police Court proceedings see February 15.]

ROSS v. FIONI.—ACTION FOR DAMAGES.

At the Liverpool Assizes before Mr. Justice Sutton and a special jury, an action was 11 brought by James Ross, an acrobatic performer, against James Fioni, proprietor of the Stalybridge Hippodrome, to recover damages for injuries said to be due to the defendant's negligence.

The case for the plaintiff was that he had entered into an agreement with the defendant for himself and his troupe to perform twice nightly in defendant's Hippodrome in December last. The allegation was that the structure of the stage was defective, and that as a result during the first performance plaintiff in descending from a jump struck with his foot an obstruction to the stage in the form of a staple which had not been driven home, in consequence of which he sustained a dislocation of the ankle of his right foot, and severeaceration and strain of the ligaments. In consequence he was laid up for three weeks, losing engagements during that time, and the effect of the accident still materially affected his business.

Evidence was then called to show the existence of the staple or bent nail.

The defence was a denial that such an obstruction existed.

Two witnesses for the defence had been examined when the foreman of the jury interposed, and said that the jury were satisfied that the nail existed.

Mr. Acton, who appeared for the defence, said this announcement placed him in a very difficult position, as he had still evidence to call. After this intimation he could not possibly proceed before the present jury.

His Lordship pointed out the expense and inconvenience of a retrial, and invited counsel to a conference.

In the result Mr. Acton said the record would be withdrawn on terms which his Lordship had been good enough to suggest.

FOX v. ROOKE.—WRONGFUL DISMISSAL.

At the Sessions in Dublin, Miss Lillian Fox, sued Mr. Henry L. Rooke for £50 for 16 alleged wrongful dismissal, breach of agreement, and wages due.

Plaintiff's case was that she was engaged as a ballet dancer by the defendant for Robinson Crusoe pantomime, at the Gaiety, Dublin. In the course of the performance on New Year's night one of the garlands in the ballet got entangled with another. It was difficult to separate them, and eventually they were parted rather violently. Plaintiff, as a consequence, was dismissed on a charge of drunk-eness. She was engaged at a salary of 18s. a week.

Miss Nolan, also in the ballet, gave evidence to the effect that Miss Fox was not intoxicated. She said she was in the bar with her after the performance on that night.

The Recorder inquired what bar it was, and, being answered that it was the Gaiety, pointed out to Mr. M'Grath, who appeared for the defence, that if this woman was drunk on the stage the proprietor of the bar had no right to give her drink after the performance. That would have to be explained to him (continued the Recorder) if this case was true. Did Mr. M'Grath not see the importance of the fact that in the house itself, where, if she had been drunk, it must have been observed, drink was supplied to Miss Fox? Was not that a very material matter for Mr. M'Grath to consider? He (the Recorder) must assume that the persons behind the bar would not supply drunken people with drink.

Mr. M'Grath said he had no doubt the bar was properly conducted, but, at the same time, he did not appear for the Gaiety.

His Lordship: It may be my incapacity to make myself intelligible or your own desire not to follow what I am saying. It is a very material point. You may think differently. However, I will act on my own view.

For the defence, Mr. M'Grath, who said Mr. Rooke was too ill to be present, called Miss M'Quern, who said plaintiff was "a bit jolly," and others, including Miss Carew, who said plaintiff was competent enough to go through her work.

The Recorder, in giving his decision, said in his opinion the dismissal was wrong, and, in addition, it was cruel. The plaintiff had been trained for the work for which she was engaged, and, even if she did take some drink, it was very plain to everyone, including the stage-manager, that she was perfectly capable and competent to do her work. The fact that these two garlands got intertwined was, in his opinion, no ground on which the lady should be dismissed and her livelihood taken away from her. The man who dismissed her should have been there to tell the Court what was in his mind, or the stage-manager should have been there. "I think this woman has been wrongfully and cruelly dismissed," continued the Recorder, "and, having regard to the facts of the case, I give a decree for the wages due for the period during which the pantomime ran—£7 4s.—and costs."

CROSLAND v. DAVIES.—BREACH OF CONTRACT.

In the Lambeth County Court, Edward Crossland was awarded £9 1s. 10d damages 18 with costs against Cadivor Davies for breach of contract. Davies, it was stated, gave plaintiff three days' notice and went off "to better himself." The case was undefended.

POOLE'S THEATRES, LIMITED v. GROGAN.

At the Bristol County Court, Poole's Theatres, Limited, sued Sam Grogan for 18 the sum of £40 as liquidated damages. The case had been remitted from the High Court.

Mr. Weatherly, who appeared for the plaintiffs, said the action was brought against Sam Grogan, who was engaged to appear in the Glenroy Troupe, under a contract by which it was stipulated that any artist failing to fulfil his engagement forfeited twice the amount of salary. No excuse of illness would be accepted unless accompanied by the certificate of a medical practitioner. The contract was for an engagement to begin on April 6, 1908, at the Tivoli, Pentre. At the rehearsal, instead of the troupe coming in altogether, two ladies of the company entered, and it was said that Mr. Grogan was not well. It was suggested that he was suffering from influenza, but the suggestion was also made that he was suffering from nothing less than drink. As he did not come, the two ladies retired. The week's performance went through, and, as a result, the takings were seriously diminished, for instead of taking £200 or £300, Mr. Poole took £140, and there were £169 expenses.

Mr. Gouldsmith stated that during the whole of March, 1908, the defendant was suffering from influenza, and the after-effects produced weakness and deafness.

Defendant said on April 5 he went from Barry to Pentre. He felt very weak when he arrived at Pentre, and his deafness had become more severe. It was not true that he was drunk when he reached the station at Pentre. He was not drunk. All the week he felt ill.

Ellen Grogan, sister of the defendant, spoke to his having been ill with influenza.

Mrs. Baxter, another sister of the defendant, and a member of the Glenroy Troupe, spoke of his suffering from influenza. There was no suggestion at the theatre made to her about his drunkenness.

His Honour, in giving his decision, said by the terms of the contract, however ill a man might be, he would be liable for damages unless he produced a medical certificate. But he had to inquire if that was an absence from illness or something which supervened upon the illness. He was of opinion that the defendant was the worse for liquor when he got to Pentre. He broke his contract without reasonable excuse, and there must be a verdict for the plaintiff for 40s. and costs.

GIBBONS AND OTHERS v. BRITISH CINEMA COMPANY, LIMITED.

In the King's Bench Division, before Mr. Justice Coleridge and a common jury, 19 Mr. Walter Gibbons, of the London Theatre of Varieties, Limited, proprietors of the Balham Hippodrome, claimed an injunction and damages against the British Cinema Company, Limited, proprietors of the Balham Empire. The plaintiffs' case was that in May, 1906, when Mr. Harry Lauder was due to appear at their hall, the defendants advertised Mr. Lauder on posters on the auxetophone in such a manner as to mislead the public that Mr. Lauder was appearing at the Balham Empire.

The jury found for the plaintiffs with £50 damages. His lordship gave judgment accordingly and granted an injunction.

C. V. HOSKINS.—EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE.

At Tunbridge Wells, C. V. Hoskins, for some time business manager at the 22 Opera House, Tunbridge Wells, during the de Frece "Hippodrome" season, was charged with embezzling the sum of £8, the money of his employer, John Egginton, professionally known as Welton Dale, at the Opera House on February 27. Prisoner was remanded until March 25, when he was sentenced to three months hard labour.

CADLE v. JUNO.—CLAIM FOR COMMISSION.

In the Westminster County Court his Honour Judge Woodfall had before him the case of Cadle v. Juno, in which the plaintiffs, a firm of dramatic agents, sued the defendant, Peter Juno, a music hall artist, to recover payment of commission for procuring an engagement for him.

Plaintiff's solicitor said the defendant had written a letter to his clients promising to pay the debt, and therefore he did not see what possible defence he could have to the claim.

The defendant appeared in person, and said that when he wrote the letter he was not referring to the matter which was the subject of this action.

Plaintiff's solicitor said that in consequence of the defendant's letter he had no evidence in court by which he could prove his case.

His Honour: The defendant puts you to strict proof of your claim, and as you are not prepared to go on you must be non-suited with costs.

HINTON v. LYNN.—A STAGE ILLUSION.

In the Westminster County Court, before his Honour Judge Woodfall, Mr. Arthur Hinton, an actor, brought an action to recover the sum of £12 10s. paid to the defendant, Mr. Wellesley Lynn, of 119, Fielding Road, Bedford Park, Chiswick, as part payment in respect of a stage illusion which he now alleged was useless.

His Honour, in giving judgment, said defendant had admitted having agreed to return the plaintiff's money if the illusion was not a success. It was quite clear on the evidence that it was not satisfactory, and therefore it appeared to him that the action was really undefended on the defendant's own evidence. It therefore followed that there would be judgment for the plaintiff for the return of the £12 10s., with costs.

MACKNEY AND KARNO.—A NEW TRIAL.—VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT.

In the Lambeth County Court, before his Honour Judge Emden, the case of Tom and Emily Mackney v. Karno, in which the plaintiffs sought to recover £50 damages for breach of agreement, and in the alternative a claim for their salaries at the rate of £3 per week, against Mr. Fred Karno, was re-tried.

At the first trial the jury found for the plaintiffs, and on the application of Mr. Storry Deans, counsel for the defendant, a new trial was granted by his Honour, on the ground that the verdict was against the weight of evidence.

Mr. Martin O'Connor, barrister, instructed by Messrs. Blackwell and Co., appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mr. Storry Deans, barrister, represented the defendants.

Mr. Tom Mackney said that he and his wife were engaged by the defendant to play in The Yap-Yaps. They commenced their duties at the Hippodrome, Margate. No complaint was made by anyone until December 11, when he received a letter terminating the engagement on the following day. No one ever suggested that he or his wife were drunk at any time.

Cross-examined by Mr. Storry Deans, the witness denied absolutely that he and his wife were drunk on the last night of the show at Margate.

Witness later said he was discharged because they wanted to cut down the expenses—that was the sole reason.

Miss Jane Edwards, dresser at the Canterbury, said that she saw the Mackneys during the week they were there, and to her recollection never noticed them the worse for drink.

Mr. John Lawrence and Mr. H. J. Brown, members of the company, gave similar evidence.

Mr. Frank Richards, the manager of the company; Miss G. Hawthorne, Mme. Greer, the wardrobe mistress; Miss Maggie Ceell, Mr. Ernest Foster, the general manager to Mr. Karno; Mr. George Chewd, the stage-manager to The Yap-Yaps; Miss Nellie Noble, Miss Florence Day, and Mr. Jack Winn, all gave evidence that they had seen the plaintiffs drunk at Margate, the Paragon, and the Canterbury.

Mr. Fred Karno said Mackney was not discharged in order to cut down expenses. The company cost more now that it did when he was travelling with it.

His Honour said there were only two questions for the jury to consider: Were the plaintiffs drunk in the theatres, and if so, did they break the agreement. The jury, after a few minutes' deliberation, found for the defendant.

His Honour: I quite agree. Judgment for the defendant, with costs of the two actions, was then entered.

[See report of first trial, February 16.]

FERGUSON AND ALLEN v. DRESSLER.—BREACH OF CONTRACT.

In the Westminster County Court, before his Honour Judge Woodfall, Ferguson and Allen, music hall artists, brought an action to recover the sum of £100 as damages against Miss Marie Dressler for breach of contract.

Mr. C. W. Nicholson said Miss Marie Dressler signed a contract to engage what was known as This Quartet at the Aldwych for the run of her production there at a salary of £30 a week. They attended at rehearsals from February 1 to February 8, and were then told that they would not be wanted any more. As a result they had been kept out of an engagement for nine weeks.

Mr. Edward Allen and Mr. Alexander W. Ferguson gave evidence. His Honour said the defendant was not present to support her defence if she had any. The plaintiffs could take judgment for the sum of £100, with costs, payable in fourteen days, subject to leave to the defendant to apply for a stay in the event of a new trial or appeal.

DREWRY v. MACNAGHTEN.

At Bloomsbury County Court, Mrs. Ethel Winifred Drewry, professionally known as Gwenne Llewelyn, wife of Edward Gwyther Drewry, of Kenworth Court, Putney, sued Mr. Frank Macnaghten to recover £35. The claim was for £35 due from the defendant for breach of a contract made about December 16, 1906, in respect of services as vocalist at the Palace, Southampton, for the week commencing February 15, 1907, at a salary of £35.

The plaintiff said that she attended the Palace, Southampton, and was prepared to go through the rehearsal, but for some reason or the other the rehearsal did not take place, and she did not appear. She now claimed for the week's salary.

There was no appearance on the part of the defendant, and Judge Bacon said plaintiff could take judgment for the amount claimed, to be paid forthwith.

ELLIOTT v. POPULAR PLAYHOUSES, LTD. LYCEUM REFRESHMENT CONTRACT.

Mr. Justice Swinfen Eady, in the Chancery Division, decided that the notice given 31 by the Popular Playhouses, Limited, to Mr. George Samuel Elliott to terminate the contract for the supply and sale of refreshments in the Lyceum was a sufficient notice.

Mr. Elliott had asked for an injunction to restrain the company from interfering with his rights under the contract. The company, having decided to take over and carry on the catering business in the theatre, gave notice to terminate the license, and the term expired on March 31.

Mr. Elliott contended that the notice given on February 26 was not sufficient.

FORREST v. SANGER.

At the Ramsgate County Court, before his Honour Judge Shortt, Mr. Dan Forrest, 31 theatrical manager, St. Mildred's Road, Ramsgate, sued Mr. George Sanger, proprietor of the Royal Palace Theatre, Ramsgate, for £58 9s. 9d., arrears of salary and commission, and amounts paid on behalf of the defendant. There was a counter-claim for £19 16s. 9d. as the balance of accounts between the parties. Mr. J. Thorn Drury appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. Whitehead for the defendant.

Plaintiff stated that in the last week of July, 1908, defendant engaged him as manager of the Palace, Ramsgate, at £2 a week and 20 per cent. commission on the clear profits. During August and September plaintiff sent in weekly statements, showing his salary and commission, and defendant raised no objection. On October 6 defendant suggested he should pay 5 per cent. of the losses. He demurred, but eventually agreed. On October 9 he received a letter from defendant saying a mistake had been made, and that plaintiff would have to bear 20 per cent. of the losses and take 20 per cent. of the profits after all expenses had been paid. Defendant added that if there was a deficiency he would make up plaintiff's remuneration to £2 a week for the year. In reply plaintiff wrote, "I quite understand, and note your remarks respecting my salary and commission."

Plaintiff, continuing, stated that on November 28 the defendant let the theatre to Mr. Mansell for £10 a week for six weeks, Mr. Mansell to have plaintiff's services free. He claimed his salary from defendant for that period and commission on the rent paid by Mr. Mansell. There was a sum of £7 17s. 10d. which he had paid for tradesmen's bills, which he also claimed. His claim was therefore made up as follows:—Commission on profits, £23 19s. 11d.; money paid on defendant's behalf, £7 17s. 10d.; commission on Mr. Mansell's rent, £9 12s.; salary during Mr. Mansell's tenancy, £12; total, £58 9s. 9d.

His Honour held that the plaintiff was entitled to £2 salary and 20 per cent. commission to October 9, as the defendant, though he might have thought the agreement was for 20 per cent. only, did not object to the weekly sheets, which showed that both salary and commission were being charged. From October 9 there was a fresh agreement that plaintiff was to be paid 20 per cent. on the net profits only, therefore during Mr. Mansell's tenancy plaintiff would be entitled only to commission on the rent and not to salary. In calculating the net profits the insurance and rates would have to be included in the expenses, and this would apply to the whole period of the engagement.

REGINALD TAYLOR SENTENCED.

At the Aberdare Police Court, Reginald Taylor, formerly manager of the Grand, 31 Aberaman, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment for embezzling money, the property of his employers, the Welsh Halls, Limited.

APRIL.

SMITH v. WILDE, WILLIE, AND WEST.—THE ILLNESS CLAUSE.

At Salford, before his Honour Judge Roskill, Mr. John Tysoe Smith brought an 1 action against Wilde, Willie, and West for £8 13s. commission.

It was stated that Mr. Smith obtained an engagement for Wilde, Willie, and West, at the Grand, Bolton, on May 25, 1908, at £14 a week, with an agreed agency fee of 10 per cent. commission. He also obtained them engagements at Oldham Opera House, in April, 1907, at the same salary, and a re-engagement in October, 1908, at a salary of £22 10s.

Wilde, Willie, and West did not appear at Bolton, and the reason given was that they were prevented by the illness of a child of one of the members of the troupe, who had scarlet fever. But they were offered another date at the same salary, and they afterwards refused to accept it, as in the meantime they had become better known, and were earning much larger salaries.

There was a clause in the agreement that the defendants were bound to fulfil the engagement except when prevented by illness. The defendants relied on a contention that the meaning of the clause was any illness preventing their appearance, and not necessarily the illness of any of the contracting parties.

The Judge remarked that, although the clause might operate harshly in the case of an artist called away by the illness of a relative, he held it only referred to personal illness. He gave judgment for the plaintiff.

CURZON v. BERKELEY.—"AN ENGLISHMAN'S HOME."

In the Chancery Division, before Mr. Justice Swinfen Eady, an application was made 2 ex parte for an injunction to restrain further performance of a play already twice performed at Sherborne and advertised for April 2 at Warminster and for April 3 at Basingstoke. The bills announced that An Englishman's Home would be played. The play was stated to be in some measure a colourable imitation of that performed in London, the names of the principal characters and the titles of the acts being the same; and the ground for relief was that it constituted a "passing off" and a fraud on the general public.

Mr. Justice Swinfen Eady granted an injunction restraining the performance advertised for April 3 at Basingstoke, continuing it over Monday, and giving leave to serve short notice of motion for that day. On the Monday it was stated that Mr. F. G. Berkeley, the defendant, had informed the plaintiff that he did not intend to perform the play again. His Lordship continued the injunction till the hearing of the action, or further order. [See report of judgment, May 8.]

WINDSOR v. THE WALDORF THEATRE, LIMITED.

In the Westminster County Court, before his Honour Judge Woodfall, the case of 6 Windsor v. The Waldorf Theatre, Limited, came on for hearing by way of an application for an award under the Workman's Compensation Act.

It appeared that the applicant was engaged as a fly-man at the Waldorf, and that in the course of his duties he met with an accident which incapacitated him for a period of five weeks.

The respondents did not offer any opposition, and his Honour directed that the applicant should be awarded £1 a week for five weeks, and he also allowed counsel's fee.

SPENCER v. DARE.—COMPANY STRANDED AT BOSTON.

At Boston Borough Police Court before the Mayor and other magistrates, 6 Ernest Dare was sued by Philip Spencer, described as a baggage man, lodging in Dolphin Lane, under the Employers and Workmen's Act, for £1 18s. 6d. for services rendered and work done between March 13 and 27.

Mr. E. Waite appeared for the defendant, and disputed the jurisdiction of the Court.

Plaintiff said defendant engaged him for the position of baggage man, and to play small parts in In the Soup. After performing at Exeter they had a week out doing nothing, and he asked the defendant what was going to occur. Defendant said they had an engagement at Weston-super-Mare, and asked him if he was willing to go. He said he was, and they went to Weston-super-Mare for a fortnight. The first week he got his salary, but the second week he only received 5s., and he had a great deal of trouble to pay his way with his landlady, and to people he owed money to in the town. Defendant then said he was coming to Boston to a certainty, which was guaranteed by the lessees of the theatre, and in consequence of that statement the company all agreed to come with him. But for the statement the company was going to break up. When they arrived in Boston they found the statement was not true, and that there was no guarantee. They played for two nights, and on the third night some members of the company, who had a little money in their pockets, would not go any further, and went back to London. The others who joined, unfortunately, like himself, had to stop to play. At the end of the week defendant gave him 6s. 6d., and that was all he received to pay his way—11s. 6d. in a fortnight. On the Sunday he asked defendant what they were going to do, and received the reply that they were going to Kidderminster and an order to be at the railway station on Monday morning. Dare said the fares were guaranteed, but when he (plaintiff) got to the station on Monday he found that the arrangement had fallen through, and the company had to come back again.

Mr. Waite admitted that the defendant owed the plaintiff £1 18s. 6d., and said he was simply objecting to the jurisdiction of the Court.

The Clerk (to the plaintiff): All you have to do is to show you are a workman under the Act.

Plaintiff said he was employed mainly as baggage man, and discharged the duties when he came to Boston. In addition to being baggage man he was employed to play small parts. Plaintiff was cross-examined by Mr. Waite with a view to showing that he was engaged to play small parts and to supervise the removal of the baggage, and that he was not a workman within the meaning of the Act.

The Mayor: We cannot enforce the claim. We have come to the conclusion there must be a non-suit. There can be no jurisdiction in this Court. The point rests entirely upon whether the plaintiff was engaged to do manual labour or not. We have come to the conclusion, on his own statement, that he was engaged to act in minor parts, and to look after the baggage and to see that it was transported from place to place. Any labour he did in the way of actually helping to transport the baggage was merely incidental, and was not within his engagement and was not work which was demanded of him. Under these circumstances his only remedy is in the County Court, but at the same time we feel your client does not come out of the case at all decently or well. He still persists in going on with a speculation which is a losing one. It is like a trader going on when he knows he is bankrupt. He has dresses and property and cash in hand. It is evident that the defendant has money or money's worth. He is going on with a business which is a bankrupt business. The plaintiff is in a difficult position. If he took County Court proceedings, when the case comes on we cannot know where the defendant might be, and it might be extremely difficult for the plaintiff himself to appear. We have every sympathy with the plaintiff. We think the defendant has acted extremely badly, but we are bound to say it does not come within our jurisdiction. We hope the defendant will stick to his offer and provide for the plaintiff's railway fare to London.

The Bench entered a non-suit, without costs. Defendant paid plaintiff his railway fare to London, and subsequently the plaintiff was assisted by the magistrates.

WELCH v. REDFORD.—EFFECT OF ADVERTISING ON RECEIPTS.

At Cardiff County Court, before Judge Owen and a jury, Mr. James Welch sued Mr. 15 Robert Redford, proprietor of the New Cardiff, for damages for alleged breach of contract in not advertising the play When Knights Were Bold in the South Wales Echo. Mr. Ivor Bowen (instructed by Mr. W. B. Francis) was for the plaintiff; Mr. John Sankey (instructed by Mr. F. H. Gaskell) for the defendant.

Mr. Ivor Bowen, in opening, said the dispute was whether Mr. Redford, having contracted "to do all matters and things appertaining to local publicity," was justified in not advertising in the paper in question because its critic had had a personal squabble with Mr. Redford. Mr. Welch complained that the effect was to reduce the receipts during the first nights and to affect adversely the general run of the piece during the week. Mr. Welch was taking this up as a test case, to have it determined whether a local manager could do as he liked and not advertise in a particular paper in which it had been his custom to advertise.

His Honour asked if plaintiff had a personal interest in the takings.

Mr. Ivor Bowen read the contract, according to the terms of which Mr. Welch was entitled to 60 per cent. of the gross takings. The gross receipts were more than £600, and Mr. Welch took 60 per cent.

The plaintiff then gave evidence, and in reply to Mr. Ivor Bowen said he had been damaged by the non-insertion of the advertisement in the Echo. Witness said the takings on Monday were £78; Tuesday, £87; Wednesday (when Mr. Welch himself advertised the play), £141; Thursday, £146; Friday, £147; matinée on Saturday, £102; Saturday night, £162.

How much do you say you suffered?—I think the receipts would have been another £100 if the play had been advertised.

Cross-examined, Mr. Welch said that the takings for the week were £867, and his share at 60 per cent. was £484. The theatre was not full on Monday and Tuesday. The piece, he admitted, was advertised all over Cardiff, but he took exception that it was not advertised in the particular paper referred to. That no other company had complained was no business of his.

Mr. Arthur Whittaker, Mr. Welch's general manager, said Mr. Redford, upon being asked by witness his reason for not advertising, replied that he had "quarrelled with a reporter." Witness calculated that the general loss in the gross takings would be "anything between £50 and £100."

Mr. Sankey said this was a matter which was left to the discretion of Mr. Redford. Mr. Redford thought to put pressure upon the paper because of the unfavourable notices. If Mr. Redford had thought an advertisement would have been any good to him it would have been to his interests to have inserted it, because he also shared in the profits.

Mr. Redford, in his evidence, said he considered he had treated Mr. Welch's company exceptionally well.

Addressing the jury, his Honour pointed out that the agreement did not bind the theatre manager as to the way in which he should advertise.

The jury found for the defendant.

His Honour: I agree with you, gentlemen. I don't think you could have returned any other verdict. Judgment for defendant, with costs.

THE WATER BOARD AND A THEATRE'S HYDRANTS.—A TEST CASE.

Before his Honour Judge Woodfall, in the Westminster County Court, the Metropolitan Water Board claimed from a Mr. J. B. Mulholland twelve guineas, a year's rate for twelve fire hydrants at defendant's premises, the King's, Hammersmith.

Mr. A. B. Shaw, for the Board, said that the London County Council was at the bottom of the whole matter. To get the license from the L.C.C., hydrants had to be fixed at the theatre, and they were fixed under an agreement with the West Middlesex Waterworks, one of the undertakings taken over by the plaintiffs. Under the Board's new Act notice was given that the old agreement would terminate on a specified date and the charge would be made under the Act. There was a voluminous correspondence, and the Board informed the defendant that all theatres and music halls were to be rated under Sections 8 and 9 of the Act of 1907. There were two supplies, the ordinary one for dressing-rooms and other purposes and a supply from special high-pressure mains for hydrants. There were two agreements, and the Board gave notice to terminate the one concerning the ordinary supply, the hydrant agreement remaining in operation. That agreement, entered upon in 1902, was still in force, and was now sued upon.

Formal evidence was given.

Mr. Drucquer called no evidence for the defence, submitting that the Board's Act of 1907 determined all theatre agreements. That Act provided for uniform charges for all consumers and abolished agreements. Under the Act of 1847 the Board must supply water for fire extinction. Theatre proprietors had objected to pay for hydrants, water from which was never used. The hydrants were all sealed, and the proprietors were under a penalty if the water was used for any purpose except fire extinguishing. Very little water was used in theatres, but the charges were now based on the high rateable value of the building, and, in addition to having to pay in that way for the ordinary supply, was this charge of a guinea a year for every hydrant. The demand note was for water supply, not for the mere instrument through which it would be supplied if required. The Board could not charge for a bath, or for garden hose, all they could charge for being water. Defendant was obliged to have the hydrants, and the Board was obliged to supply water in case of fire.

His Honour held that the agreement was still alive, and found for the Board, with costs, granting a stay, in view of a possible appeal.

BRUCCIANI v. SMITH.

At Clerkenwell County Court, Messrs. D. Brucciani and Co., Limited, of Goswell Road, E.C., sued Mr. Henry R. Smith, manager-director of the Waldorf Productions, Limited, for £6 6s, as the price of a statue of Venus de Milo supplied to order, and 7s. 6d. in respect of work done to the statue.

His Honour gave a verdict for plaintiffs for the amount claimed, with costs.

PIRATED MUSIC.—GOTTFRIED MARTIN AND HORACE TAYLOR SENTENCED.

At the Old Bailey, before the Common Sergeant, Gottfried Martin, aged 22, a waste paper merchant, of Baroness Buildings, Baroness Road, Shoreditch, and John Horace Taylor, printer, of Red Lion Passage, Holborn, were indicted for conspiring to produce and distribute pirated music. Martin, who pleaded guilty, was also accused of having in his possession 32,173 pirated copies of various musical works.

Taylor was found guilty, and was sentenced to six months' imprisonment with hard labour. Martin, who had been twice previously convicted, was sent to prison with hard labour for twelve months.

SHIELS v. HACKNEY AND SHEPHERD'S BUSH EMPIRES COMPANY. — THE BANANA FALL.

Before Judge Woodfall and a jury in the Westminster County Court Mrs. Sarah Shiels, an elderly widow, sued the Hackney and Shepherd's Bush Empire Palace Company for damages for personal injuries sustained through slipping on a banana skin in the Hackney Empire.

Mr. Coumbe, counsel for the plaintiff, said that she met with the accident on October 6, 1905, and since that date her husband, a scavenger in the employ of the Hackney Borough Council, had died. She witnessed a performance from the balcony, and on leaving had only got to the second step of the staircase when she slipped on a banana skin and went down several steps, cutting her knee. She was taken home, and had to remain in bed for fifteen months. The claim was based on the negligence of the defendants in permitting their premises to be in a condition that made them a trap for the people they invited there, it being contended that defendants were bound to keep their premises in a reasonably safe condition during the time they were open and for a reasonable period before and after the time they were open, so far as reasonable care and skill could make them safe.

Mr. E. F. Lever, counsel for the defence, submitted, at the close of plaintiff's case, there was no evidence of negligence to go to the jury.

Judge Woodfall upheld the objection and non-suited the plaintiff.

ZAHL v. SYLVESTER.—BREACH OF CONTRACT.

Before his Honour Judge Woodfall, in the Westminster County Court, Mr. Harry 27 Zahl, proprietor of a troupe known as the "Russian Whirlwind Dancers," brought an action to recover a week's salary from the defendant, Mr. Thos. Sylvester, proprietor of the Watford Hippodrome.

Mr. C. Doughty for the plaintiff said his client entered into and signed a contract to appear at the Watford Hippodrome for one week, commencing on November 30, 1908, but he subsequently found, by a notice that appeared in the professional papers, that the Watford Hippodrome would not be open in that particular week. He thereupon did his best to procure another engagement for that week, but failed to do so, and he now claimed to recover the week's salary from Mr. Sylvester.

Mr. Walter Payne for the defence argued that the plaintiff was not entitled to recover on the ground that under the contract which he had signed he could only claim payment of salary if he actually performed, and as the hall in question was closed for that particular week it was, of course, impossible for him to do so.

His Honour, without hearing any evidence for the defence, said the case was not even open to argument. The plaintiff had signed a contract to appear for a certain week, and it was now contended that because the defendant closed the theatre for that particular week the plaintiff was not entitled to his salary. In his opinion there was no defence of any kind to the action, and therefore judgment would be for the plaintiff for the amount claimed with costs.

BICKHAM v. RICHARDS.—"A FORT-NIGHT'S NOTICE."

Miss Ethyle Mary Bickham, singer and dancer, of New Street, Kennington, sued 28 Mr. Sam Richards, of 27a, Electric Avenue, (Brixton, in the Lambeth County Court for £1 5s. the amount of one week's wages.

Plaintiff said she was engaged by defendant, who ran sketches, and worked till the time she left the company and was paid till the time she left. She had no agreement.

Defendant said in the music hall profession the rule was "no play, no pay." The troupe did not play for the week plaintiff was claiming. Plaintiff received two weeks' notice and the troupe only played for the first week.

His Honour said the rule no play no pay would not help defendant if he had given plaintiff a fortnight's notice.

Defendant said he gave plaintiff two weeks' notice although she was only entitled to one week.

His Honour: You fixed your own time by giving her a fortnight's notice when a week's notice would have been sufficient. You have been over-cautious in giving her a fortnight.

Judgment was given for the plaintiff.

HAYWOOD v. RUFFELL.—CLAIM FOR WRONGFUL DISMISSAL.

The case of Haywood v. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope Syndicate was tried at the 28 Westminster County Court, and was a claim by a cinematograph operator for damages for wrongful dismissal.

The plaintiff was given judgment for one week's money, 30s., with costs.

OCEAN ACCIDENT AND GUARANTEE CORPORATION, LTD., v. J. KIERNAN.—IRVING, SEACOMBE, FIRE.

Before Mr. Justice Hamilton and a special jury at the Liverpool Assizes, an action 28 brought by the Ocean Accident and Guarantee Corporation, Limited, against Mr. James Kiernan, proprietor of the Irving Theatre, Seacombe, for fraudulent representation, was commenced.

Mr. Horridge, K.C., M.P., and Mr. Cuthbert Smith (instructed by Messrs. Ayrton Radcliffe and Wright) appeared for the plaintiffs, and the defendant's case was conducted by Mr. E. G. Harrnerde, K.C., M.P., and Mr. Lindon Riley (instructed by Messrs. Donnison and Edwards).

Mr. Horridge said the plaintiffs contended that Mr. Kiernan obtained a sum of money from them by deliberate and wicked fraud. On March 6, 1908, about one o'clock in the day, the plaintiffs received a message through the telephone to say there had been a slight fire at the Irving, Seacombe, and that message undoubtedly came from Mr. Kiernan. A representative of the insurance company named Mr. Don went and saw Mr. Kiernan, who explained that the engineer's assistant, Jones, had noticed that some oil waste near the exhaust of the engine had caught fire. He had got some water to put the flames out, and in his hurry a spanner which he placed by the side of the engine was washed into the crank race. Consequently the action of the shaft was arrested and the machinery of the engine was thrown out of gear and broken. In corroboration of the story some oil waste was pointed out on the floor near the engine. A formal fire claim was sent in by Mr. Kiernan for £150, and the company settled it for £108. In December of the same year a very much larger fire occurred, and the company began to make inquiries, and in consequence of those inquiries they came upon information which led them to take these proceedings, and which led them to the conclusion that there had never been a fire on March 5—that what happened was that the engine broke down naturally, that Mr. Kiernan had no insurance against accident to the engine, and for the purpose of recovering the damage he suffered by that accident he put forward a fraudulent story. The real facts were, counsel stated, the youth Jones was in the engine-room when suddenly he heard a bad knocking in the engine, and shortly after that the engine got adrift. The head of the connecting rod came apart from the crank shaft, and carrying it round caused it to dash against the end of the connecting rod to the cylinder, with the result that the water running down the cylinder poured out on the floor of the room, and the light in the theatre went out. Mr. Kiernan himself was not there at the time, but came back about half-past nine, was very angry, and said that these things did not happen without — carelessness. On the following morning Jones went to work as usual, and Mr. Kiernan saw him. Mr. Kiernan told Jones he could not afford to lose the money that the engine would cost him, that he was only insured against fire, and asked Jones to light a fire round the damaged engine with waste or any other rubbish that would burn, so as to get something from the insurance company. Some waste was put near the exhaust pipe and lighted. Mr. Kiernan told the boy to spread the waste out a bit and make it appear more natural and to get a spanner. The boy took a spanner off the wall, and one end of this implement was broken. He then told him to put this in the engine, which the boy did, and the burnt waste and the broken spanner were then shown to the company's representatives as evidences of the alleged fire.

The case was continued on April 29, 30, and May 3. Arthur Henry Jones bore out counsel's statements as to the accident, and said that Mr. Kiernan told him to light a fire around the engine to make it appear as though the engine had been broken through fire, and witness did so.

Herbert Harrison, John Hay, Harold Helme, William Harrison, T. E. Cavanagh, and Wilkinson, gave evidence for the plaintiffs, bearing out counsel's statements.

DEFENCE.

For the defence Mr. James Kiernan said on the night of March 5 he was in Liverpool when he had a telephone message in respect of the fire. When he got to the theatre it was explained to him by Jones and Harrison how the fire had happened. There was no truth in the statement that he had conspired with Jones and Harrison to make up the appearance of a fire.

Dominic Peeney related the scene in the engine-room on the night of March 5, and said he asked Jones what had caused the accident. The boy replied that some waste had caught fire, and he threw some water on the flames and the engine smashed up. Later on that night he saw Harrison, who told him a telephone message had been sent to Mr. Kiernan with reference to the accident, and that a spanner had been found in the engine.

George Gibson also gave evidence of a similar character.

His Lordship, in summing up, remarked that there had been some uncommon hard swearing. He advised the jury not to allow the question of the effect the verdict might have upon the character of Kiernan, or what cost it would be to Harrison, to weigh with them, but to scrutinise the evidence and the demeanour of the witnesses with the utmost care. Whether there was a fire or not they would have to estimate and weigh as well as they could these witnesses one with another. If the fire was an invention it was an invention of an amateur rather than an engineer, and was very clumsily invented. If Jones had invented this story about the plot, what was his motive for inventing it? There was plenty of motive, if Mr. Kiernan was wicked enough to entertain the scheme, in the clear fact that he was not insured against accident. It might, on the other hand, appear improbable to the jury that a man would be likely to sell his honesty and good name for a matter of £150. The jury must also bear in mind that Harrison and Jones were tainted witnesses, and in going into that box to tell a story that was false they would be undergoing a serious risk. The jury must find no verdict against Mr. Kiernan upon surmise, suspicion, doubt, or prejudice. They would first have to have it brought home to their minds as business men with reasonable satisfaction that he was guilty of fraud which was alleged against him. On the other hand, if they were satisfied that the story of Harrison and Jones was false, it was their duty to act upon their convictions and think no more of the consequences.

After an absence of three hours the jury returned into court and announced that they were unable to agree.

The jury were then discharged.

THE DELEVINES v. MARINELLI, LTD.

In the Westminster County Court, the Two Delevines sued to recover the sum of 29 £4 18s., which they alleged to be due to them from Messrs. Marinelli, Limited, agents, of Charing Cross Road, in respect of an engagement at the Olympia, Paris. It appeared that the claim was in respect of a day when the house was closed down for some reason which did not transpire.

Mr. John E. Fowle (secretary to Messrs. H. B. Marinelli) said that if the plaintiffs had any claim they had sued the wrong party. Messrs. Marinelli, Limited, were not the proprietors of the Paris Olympia, which was conducted by Messrs. De Calton and Marinelli quite apart from the firm of Marinelli, Limited.

The plaintiffs did not appear, and after hearing the evidence of Mr. Fowle the case was struck out, with costs.

MAY.

GEORGE GRAY AND THE WATER RATS.

In the King's Bench Division, before Mr. Justice Lawrence and a special jury, was commenced an action brought by George Gray against James Allison, Joe O'Gorman, W. H. Clemart, and W. H. McCarthy, members of the committee of the Grand Order of Water Rats, for a declaration that a resolution expelling him from the Order was null and void, and for an injunction restraining the defendants from interfering with the use and enjoyment by the plaintiff of the Vaudeville Club and its premises as a member of the Order of Water Rats, also for damages. The defendants pleaded that the resolution came to was in accordance with the rules of the club: that plaintiff had not been wrongfully excluded; that his conduct was injurious to and brought discredit upon the Order, and in expelling the plaintiff they had only acted in accordance with natural justice.

Mr. M. Shearman, K.C., and Mr. Walter Payne (instructed by Messrs. Morris and Rickards) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Marshall Hall, K.C., and Mr. Charles Doughty (instructed by Messrs. Judge and Priestley) were for the defence.

The hearing occupied two days. In the end his Lordship intimated to the jury that the case would be settled on a point of law, the consideration of which would take place later. All they (the jury) were to do was to assume that the verdict was for the plaintiff and assess the damages. The jury gave 100 guineas damages.

Counsel then addressed the judge, and his Lordship, in giving judgment, said he had come to the conclusion that the plaintiff was entitled to judgment. The question was whether what was done when the plaintiff was expelled from the club was contrary to natural justice. He decided that no notice was given to the plaintiff of the charges against him. The plaintiff's letter of June 12 was to the effect that the plaintiff would not be in town till July, and the plaintiff stated that if they would let him know the business he would make strenuous endeavours to be present. According to that letter no charges had at that time been brought to his notice. The plaintiff then wrote asking to know what the important business was. The plaintiff pointed out that he was not told what it was, but that he had heard that it was connected with the V.A.F. The plaintiff said that as that had nothing to do with the Water Rats he declined to discuss it. Up to that time he had no intimation of a charge being brought against him. [His Lordship read the minutes of June 23.] From the minutes it appeared no notice was given that a charge was preferred against him, but instead it was decided that he should be expelled. In conclusion, he wished to say to the Water Rats that it was not in his judgment in accordance with natural justice to say that the person expelled had the right to appeal to Mr. Clemart and Mr. O'Gorman, the persons who had already decided the case against him. Judgment was given for plaintiff for a declaration and injunction and costs, with liberty to apply as regards the damages.

[Mr. Gray subsequently applied for the damages which we understand he gave to theatrical charities.]

EDDLESTEN v. TUBB.—CLAIM FOR COMMISSION.

In the Westminster County Court his Honour Judge Woodfall had before him the case of Eddlesten v. Tubb, in which the plaintiff, a dramatic agent, of Charing Cross Road, sued the defendant, a variety artist, to recover the sum of £12, being 10 per cent. commission for procuring him a ten weeks' engagement at the Royal, Leeds, with Mr. John Tiller.

The plaintiff was called, and gave evidence as to having procured the engagement in question for the defendant to appear at Leeds and give his performance for the run of the piece. He never carried out the contract, however, but took another engagement with Mr. Fred Karno in London.

For the defence it was contended that there was really no contract as between plaintiff and defendant.

His Honour said he was of the same opinion, and the case was so simple to him that his only surprise was that the plaintiff had been advised to bring it into court. The plaintiff had totally failed to prove any contract between the defendant and John Tiller, and therefore judgment would be for the defendant, with costs.

DAY v. COTTON.—CLAIM FOR COMMISSION. JURY DISAGREE.

In the King's Bench Division, before Mr. Justice Grantham and a special jury, Mr. Harry Day sued Miss Ada Reeve to recover the sum of £76 15s. commission on engagements obtained by his agency.

Mr. W. J. Waugh, K.C., Mr. Charles Mellor, and Mr. E. F. Lever (instructed by Messrs. Roberts, Seyd, and Co.) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. R. J. Atkin, K.C., and Mr. J. D. Crawford (instructed by Messrs. Cohen and Cohen) defended.

Mr. Waugh explained that in 1906 Mr. Day agreed that he should act on behalf of Miss Reeve for 5 per cent. commission. He obtained many contracts for her, commission on which was duly paid. Subsequently a dispute arose. The amount he claimed was made up as follows:—Eastbourne, £4 5s.; Southampton, £15; Warrington, £10; Edinburgh, £7 10s.; Cardiff, £10; Sheffield, £10; Leeds, £10; Brighton, £10.

His Lordship: I understand two of the engagements were cancelled.

Mr. Waugh said that the facts in regard to the cancelled engagements were: On December 31 Mr. Macnaghten telephoned to Mr. Day asking if Miss Reeve would cancel her engagements for Warrington and Cardiff, and was told to wire direct to Miss Reeve, as at such short notice Mr. Day could not cancel. Miss Reeve wired cancelling the engagements. Plaintiff had obtained the contracts, and was entitled to the commission, as far as those places were concerned. With reference to Eastbourne, Miss Reeve was to be paid by a percentage on the receipts. Her share for the whole week amounted to £55 6s. 11d. She made certain allegations against the management at Eastbourne. But, so far as Mr. Day was concerned, he had nothing to do with those disputes. There appeared to be an allegation that plaintiff had an interest in the Eastbourne hall, but there was not a shadow of foundation for such a suggestion. He had no interest whatever in the finances at the music hall at Eastbourne.

Mr. Day then gave evidence supporting counsel's statements. Cross-examined by Mr. Atkin, Mr. Day admitted that at the time of the engagement he was described on the bills of the Eastbourne Hippodrome as "general manager," but in fact he was nothing of the kind, and had only power to make arrangements for the hall. He had been manager under the receiver.

Counsel produced a letter to Mr. Cotton in which plaintiff said: "I am writing by this post to my manager at Eastbourne." Why, asked Mr. Atkin, did you call him "your" manager?—Taking a little kudos, I suppose.

Had Miss Reeve complained bitterly that she was being robbed at Eastbourne by proper (ticket) returns not being made?—I believe so.

Another letter, written by Mr. Cotton to plaintiff on December 30, 1907, was then read. Mr. Cotton wrote:—

"My wife asks me to send you enclosed cheque for £21 5s., settling your commission account, and to say she will not pay another commission falling due from that day until you have thoroughly investigated the various breaches of agreement on the part of the resident manager at your Eastbourne house."

The letter proceeded:—

"Who was responsible for the dishonesty that was rampant in the matter of receipts for payment? I quote three well authenticated instances. At the first house on the 26th inst. the gallery door returns were 100 short of the actual number of people who went in by that door. The excuse made for this was the idle one that a window had been wrongly 'tapped.' At the second house on the 26th inst. about forty-five were returned short in the pit stalls. The excuse made by Mr. Winter was that he passed them in free from the pit, and he had a perfect right to do so if he wished. At the second house on the 27th inst. there were 191 seats in the stalls, and only 128 were 'returned.'

To this plaintiff said he replied as follows: "I have handed your letter to Mr. Winter, and he will take the matter up. I have explained to you my connection does not carry me far enough to interfere with him."

Witness said he was acquainted with Mr. Valentine, a director of the King's, Edinburgh, who was also connected with the management of the Glasgow Pavilion.

Did you say to Mr. Valentine, "Why do you book Miss Ada Reeve through other agencies"? No.

Or, "I have booked her for my own hall for £200, and can get her for £150"?—Certainly not.

Did you say, "Let me do your booking, and you will get her or others on better terms"?—The suggestion is ridiculous.

THE DEFENCE.

Mr. Atkin, for the defendant, said the complaint made with regard to Edinburgh was that in order to get the engagement the plaintiff had given the defendant's interests away, that he had said to the management, "I will get Miss Reeve cheap if you will do your bookings through me." Under these circumstances the defendant contended that the commission charged by the plaintiff was not due to him.

Mr. Alfred W. Cotton, husband of the defendant, was called, and said that he attended to his wife's business affairs, and arranged with the plaintiff that no commission should be paid upon any engagement that was cancelled. In regard to the engagement at Eastbourne, where the defendant was to receive a proportion of the receipts, he relied on the plaintiff to see to the checking of the number of persons who were admitted. He estimated the loss on the takings through bad checking at from 50 to 60 per cent. Though the house was packed, his wife complained that the takings were abominable.

Mr. Matthew Valentine said that he had been a director of the company which owned the Edinburgh Theatre, and was chairman of the Glasgow Pavilion. One day when Mr. Day was speaking of artists on his books he said: "Why don't you book Miss Reeve through me?" Mr. Day said he could secure Miss Reeve for £150.

Counsel: Was the Glasgow Pavilion engagement at £325 a week a success?—The best answer to that is that we re-engaged her at the same price.

Mr. Waugh: And it was after Mr. Day's offer that you considered the matter of engaging her for Edinburgh?—Yes.

Cross-examined, witness said it was through Mr. Day's influence that he considered the matter. It was true that Mr. Day tried to get a guaranteed salary of £250 and a share for Miss Reeve, but witness said it was absurd. Ultimately witness asked Mr. Day to try and get Miss Reeve for £150 and 50 per cent. of gross receipts over £500. All his contracts with Mr. Day were for two performances a night at Glasgow. They wanted to ensure that they could get the artists for two performances if they wanted them. Artists would go to the provinces for two performances at the same price as they would go for one. While Miss Reeve was at Glasgow, however, the best plan was to have only one performance.

Mr. Justice Grantham: I can't help commenting on the carelessness with which these things are done. I have had an agreement handed up to me which says:—

"Each week's engagement to consist of twelve performances nightly." (Loud laughter.)

Miss Ada Reeve, in the witness-box, said it was clearly understood at the first interview that Mr. Day was only to receive commission on salary paid, and not on unfulfilled engagements.

In summing up, his Lordship said the defendant could not found a charge of negligence on what took place at the Glasgow theatre. But the defendant made a most serious charge against Mr. Day as a theatrical agent. It was that he deliberately sold his client, and it was founded on what took place between him and Mr. Ballantyne. Mr. Ballantyne, in his evidence, however, explained the whole thing. He knew that Miss Reeve would command a high figure in Glasgow, but not in Edinburgh. So far as his Lordship could see Mr. Day did what he should have done for his client. He could not see how the defendant could claim damages with regard to that. With regard to the engagements at Warrington and Cardiff, the question was not easy. It was whether the payment was on "engagement" or on receipts. Upon the whole, however, he thought that the defendant's construction was correct.

The jury, after an absence of more than an hour, informed the judge that they could not agree. They were accordingly discharged.

CUNNINGHAM v. WARDEN, LTD., AND OTHERS.—SHORT DRESSES IN PANTOMIME.

In the Dublin Nisi Prius Court before the Lord Chief Justice and a city special jury, the trial of the action, Cunningham v. Warden, Ltd., was heard. The plaintiff, Miss Minnie Cunningham, claimed £500 damages against the defendants for breach of agreement, by which she was engaged to take the part of principal girl in the pantomime of Jack and Jill for an eight weeks' season, or longer, beginning on Christmas Eve, at the Opera House, Belfast, and subsequently at the Royal Dublin. She was to be paid £20 per week, and attended rehearsals at a remuneration of £15, and she was to provide wigs, tights, and boots or shoes. The defendants were to provide dresses.

Serjeant Moriarty, who appeared for the plaintiff, said the contract was entered into on April 29, 1908. The question for the jury was whether defendants were willing to provide proper, decent dresses.

Miss Minnie Cunningham, the plaintiff, said the engagement was made through Mr. George Brooks. She sent measurements for her dresses on in advance to Mr. Warden. She had rehearsed for two days when the dresses were given her, and she took them home and tried them on in the presence of her mother. Some of them were too short. She saw Mr. Warden the next day and told him that they were indecently short.

The Lord Chief Justice: Are the dresses of columbines shorter or longer than the dresses you objected to?—About the same length.

According to you, they would be indecent on a columbine?—No. Ballet dancers wear those short dresses. I was not in any part like that.

Witness, in further evidence, said that the wardrobe mistress offered to lengthen the dresses, but Mr. Warden would not allow her.

The Lord Chief Justice: Did Mr. Warden suggest at any time that indecency was not your real ground—that you were at something else?—No, my Lord.

Cross-examined by Mr. Healy, K.C., M.P. for the defendants, the witness said the agreement was that she was to give ten clear days to rehearsals, for which she was to receive £15. She admitted that she was late in arriving at Belfast to commence rehearsals. Miss Fink, who took her part in the pantomime, wore the dresses she objected to, but Miss Fink was much shorter.

Mr. Healy: Miss Fink is a married woman—the wife of Mr. George Lashwood. Do you suggest she wore indecent dresses before five thousand persons?

The witness said they were not indecent on her. She would be greatly surprised to hear that Miss Fink was taller than herself.

Lord Chief Justice: Do you believe Mr. Warden wanted to get rid of you?—Yes.

And that in order to get rid of you he tried to get you to wear an indecent dress?—Yes.

Lord Chief Justice: Why did he want to get rid of you?—Because of its being too much expense to the pantomime.

Mrs. Cunningham, mother of the plaintiff, said three of the dresses were indecently short. They did not reach to the knee.

Mr. George Herbert Marsh, manager of the Empire, Dublin, examined by Serjeant Moriarty, said that Miss Cunningham had just closed an engagement at his theatre at 45 guineas a week and extra for matinée.

In case of such an artist, if her services are suddenly dispensed with, is it calculated to injure her reputation?—Yes, in the absence of explanation.

This closed the case for the plaintiff.

CASE FOR THE DEFENCE.

Mr. Hanna, in opening the case for the defence, said the pantomime had been produced in 1907 at Bristol by Mr. Chute. Miss Mabel Russell wore these particular costumes which were in question. The Belfast and Dublin joint proprietors arranged for the production of the same pantomime in their respective cities. When Miss Cunningham's contract was signed, Miss Cunningham said that if Miss Dorothy Ward appeared in the same pantomime with her that Miss Ward would outshine her. Mr. Warden said that that was all nonsense. The case really was that the plaintiff had at the back of her mind an idea that the part did not suit her, and that the company did not suit her. She did not attend the rehearsals as she should have done. The part of Jill was that of a young girl and not that of a grown woman—a part for a short dress and not long skirts. The whole of Mr. Warden's conduct was only consistent with his being anxious to please her in every way. Mr. Warden in the end was obliged to engage another lady, Miss Fink, at £16 a week.

Mr. Hart said he was a theatrical manager for nearly twenty years in Leeds, Birmingham, and other cities. He had also had charge of the Gaiety theatre under Michael Gunn, Limited. In the matter of costumes, unless the manager had control there would be confusion.

Lord Chief Justice: You would not force anyone to wear an indecent dress?—Certainly not.

You saw the dresses used in Bristol in the pantomime Jack and Jill?—Yes.

Was the dress of Jill indecent?—No.

Mr. James Elliston said he saw the pantomime at Bristol. The costume of Jill was quite decent.

The case was continued on May 7, when, on the suggestion of the Lord Chief Justice, Miss Cunningham retired to a room adjoining the court and put on the shortest of the dresses, and the judge, counsel, and jury later retired to view the dress.

Miss Scott, wardrobe mistress to Warden, Limited, Belfast, stated in reply to Mr. Healy, that since she saw the dress, which had just been fitted on Miss Cunningham, in Belfast it was not altered or shortened in any way. She was quite clear about that. The dresses had come from the Bristol pantomime, and she had altered them to suit Miss Cunningham. Witness further stated that when Miss Cunningham complained that the dresses were too short she (witness) said they were not, and that she had made them according to her own measurement. Miss Cunningham tried on the dresses again, and Mr. Warden came in and he failed to see anything the matter with them. Witness did not remember Miss Cunningham using the word indecent at any time in respect of the dresses. Miss Cunningham was 54 ins. from shoulder to the ground and Miss Fink 55½ ins. The dress would not therefore be shorter on Miss Fink than on Miss Cunningham, as the former had a longer body.

As a result of further discussion Miss Cunningham and Miss Fink, minus boots and hats, stood up on counsels' table, when the foreman of the jury stated that Miss Cunningham was undoubtedly the taller of the two.

Mr. F. W. Warden was then examined by Mr. Healy, and he stated that he had been in the theatre business all his life, and he never had a case like this before. It was usual in his company for the artists to attend rehearsals free, but Miss Cunningham would not, and he gave way. The plaintiff said to him, "I don't think I would like to be in the same pantomime as Miss Ward. She would outshine me." He said, "Nonsense." At a subsequent interview he asked her what she intended to do—was she going to carry out her threat not to appear in the pantomime? She replied, "If I have to wear these dresses I do not intend to play the part." He told her he would not alter them, and Miss Cunningham said, "I don't want you or your part either," and she handed him the book part.

Cross-examined: Miss Cunningham had never said the dresses were indecent.

Mr. Thomas Hill, assistant stage manager during the production, also gave evidence corroborating Mr. Warden's. Mr. John McMahon also gave evidence.

Miss Fink, in her evidence, said the only alterations to the dresses were to make them smaller in the waist.

Mr. George Miller and Mr. W. A. Salmon were also examined.

The Lord Chief Justice, in summing up, said the only question the jury had to consider was to whether the dresses were so short as to be indecent. If a theatrical manager insisted on indecent dresses he would, independently of all questions of high morality, ruin the play.

The jury, after an absence of thirty-five minutes, returned to court and announced that they could not agree.

They were then discharged.

STAGE PLAYS IN MUSIC HALLS.—COLISEUM FINED £40.—AN APPEAL ENTERED.

At the Bow Street Police-court Mr. Mars-ham resumed the hearing of the summons against the Coliseum Syndicate, Ltd., for producing two stage plays without the authority of letters patent or the license of the Lord Chamberlain.

Mr. A. H. Bodkin supported the summons on behalf of the Theatrical Managers' Association; Mr. C. F. Gill, K.C., appeared for the defence.

The proceedings were taken under Section 2 of the Theatres Act of 1843. The plays or sketches complained of were The Queen of the Fairies and Papa's Wife. It was stated, when the summons was first heard, that the former play was in two scenes, with thirteen characters, and occupied the stage for thirty-seven minutes. Papa's Wife, it was said, took thirty-two minutes to perform, and counsel for the Theatrical Managers' Association remarked that the two plays occupied more than one-third of the time devoted to the whole of the entertainment. This, it was said, was both a breach of the law and a breach of the arrangement arrived at in 1906 between the Theatrical Managers' Association and the representatives of the music-halls.

The magistrate said he had no doubt the sketches complained of were stage plays. The music hall proprietors reaped the benefit of such productions, which lent variety to their programmes and attracted the public, and he (the magistrate) did not see why the theatrical managers should be blamed for taking proceedings. The Act was still on the Statute-book, and he thought it ought to be carried out. He ordered the payment of fines amounting to £40, costs for the prosecution to be allowed out of that amount.

Mr. Gill gave notice of appeal to Quarter Sessions, which was allowed. In consequence of this application a similar summons against the London Hippodrome was adjourned sine die.

CURZON v. BERKELEY—"AN ENGLISHMAN'S HOME."

In the Chancery Division, an action by Mr. Frank Curzon against Mr. F. G. Berkeley came before Mr. Justice Neville.—Mr. Maughan stated that it was a motion for judgment in default of appearance, and it asked for relief against the defendant, who had infringed Mr. Curzon's rights in An Englishman's Home. Under the same title the defendant had produced a colourable imitation of the characters and incidents of An Englishman's Home, and in his advertisements described the author as a patriot, and the company as a London company, leading the public to believe, said counsel, that the play was that of Mr. Curzon. This constituted piracy and infringement, and Mr. Curzon asked for the usual judgment to an inquiry as to damages and costs.

Mr. Justice Neville made the orders asked for.

WRIGHT v. STEWART.—A FORTNIGHT'S NOTICE.

In the Edinburgh Sheriff Court, before Sheriff Guy, the case of Wright v. Stewart was tried. It was an action by Mr. Stewart Duncan Wright, theatrical manager and agent, of 87, Overdale Street, Langside, Glasgow, to recover one week's salary, namely £2 6s. The pursuer said that he was engaged by Mr. Walter J. Bayliss, general manager for Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart's Sherlock Holmes company to act as advance manager for tour of above, as per letters produced in Court dated December 23 and 25 respectively, with the usual fortnight's notice on either side to terminate the engagement. He also said that as the company finished the tour at Greenock on February 6 he should have got his notice on or about January 18, which he did not; but that he received a letter (also produced in Court, along with the envelope showing post mark) from Mr. Bayliss, dated January 25, intimating the finish of the tour, thus only allowing pursuer one week's notice. Defender's agent explained that pursuer had received the usual notice that the company were finishing the tour at Greenock, and that there was nothing for an advance manager to do on the last week.

His Lordship, in giving judgment, said it was clear that defender's general manager had not given pursuer the full fortnight's notice contracted for in the letter of December 23, and that he had no difficulty in giving decree for the amount claimed with expenses. Agent for pursuer, Mr. Frank J. Trotter (of Hampton and Trotter). Agent for defender, Mr. J. Ferguson Reekie.

SCHOLZ v. AMASIS, LIMITED.—APPEAL ALLOWED.

In the Court of Appeal, before the Lord Chief Justice and Lords Justices Moulton and Farwell, was commenced the hearing of the appeal in the case of Scholz v. Amasis, Limited, in which the defendant appealed from a verdict and judgment for £200 damages entered by Mr. Justice Jelf in the King's Bench Division.

Mr. Eldon Bankes, K.C., stated that Mr. Spence appeared for the appellants; Mr. Montagu Shearman, K.C., Mr. Hales, and Mr. Haye represented the respondent.

Mr. J. Eldon Bankes, K.C., stated that Mr. Scholz was the author of a musical comedy called The Son of a Sun, and the defendant was a company formed to perform a play called Amasis, written by Mr. Fenn. There were two versions of Mr. Scholz's play, and both were registered. The second version came out in 1901. In 1900 and 1901 a Mr. Pritchard wrote The Mystic Cat, Mr. Farraday supplying the music and inducing a friend to write the lyrics. It was not suggested that Mr. Pritchard copied Mr. Scholz's play. After a time Mr. Pritchard and Mr. Farraday "fell out." Their play was not then completed, and Mr. Farraday claimed to have an assignment from the writer of the lyrics, who was dead. Mr. Farraday then suggested to Mr. Fenn writing a play, and Egypt was agreed upon as the scene. Mr. Fenn began his work in 1904, and the first stageright performance took place at the St. James's in that year. The piece was at first called Pharaoh; afterwards the name Amasis was adopted. During 1905, and down to 1906, Mr. Fenn was engaged in revising the play. The Amasis Company was registered in June, 1906, and the play was actually produced for the first time on August 9, 1906. Mr. Pritchard started an action against Mr. Fenn and Mr. Farraday for copying his play, but the action was settled.

Mr. Farraday made a payment in the action, and Mr. Fenn contributed towards the payment, it being part of the terms of settlement that Mr. Pritchard acknowledged that Mr. Fenn did not copy any portion of the play. The present action was commenced on August 2, 1907, being in respect of scenic similarities, and similarities in plots and words in the two plays above-mentioned. Counsel, before proceeding to read in detail the plots of the respective plays, submitted that there was no copying. There was no similarity between the plays when they were taken as a whole, and, that being so, questions of similarity in details here and there did not arise.

The case was continued on May 18, when Mr. Bankes said there were four witnesses called for the plaintiff at the trial. The plaintiff was called, and his sister was called to speak to the part she had taken in helping the plaintiff to write the play, and two persons were called to say that in their opinion the two plays were similar. The only importance of the plaintiff's evidence was that he told the judge that he had sent his play round to different people to induce them to take it. There was a difficult question which the plaintiff had to get over—viz., as to how it was that anybody could possibly have got the materials in which to copy from the first and second editions of the plaintiff's play? The correspondence showed that in 1897 the plaintiff sent the first edition of his play to Mr. Lowenfeld, of the Prince of Wales's, and in 1898 to Mr. Greet, of the Lyric, and to Mr. George Edwardes, of the Gaiety. The plaintiff, in 1900, sent it to Mr. Musgrove and to a Mr. Nightingale. The plaintiff did not write the second edition until 1901, and sent it round to some of the same people. Not one of these persons was called at the trial to say that Mr. Fenn had had any opportunity of seeing the plaintiff's play while it was in their possession. Mr. Fenn was called, and said most positively that he did not know one of those persons, and had had no communication with any one of them, directly or indirectly, except Mr. George Edwardes, to whom he wrote asking for his permission to have the services of a certain actress for the first performance of his play. Counsel contended that the appeal should be allowed, and judgment entered in the defendants' favour.

The Lord Chief Justice: I am not in the least impressed with what are called verbal similarities, but was it your case that Mr. Fenn had never seen The Son of the Sun?

Mr. Bankes: Absolutely.

The Lord Chief Justice: Has the learned judge found that Mr. Fenn had seen it?

Mr. Bankes: The learned judge said that Mr. Fenn was called and denied having seen plaintiff's composition. He added that this made his difficulty greater, but looking at the verbal similarities in the particulars, he was forced to the conclusion that the person who wrote Amasis must have seen the other piece.

Mr. Shearman, on behalf of the respondent, contended that the judgment of Mr. Jelf was right and should be affirmed. The serious and important part of the case which the defendants had to answer was the allegation as to the taking of the plot from the plaintiff's play. The books which Mr. Fenn had vouched as the source of his play were taken home by the learned judge, who read them carefully, and he arrived at the conclusion that there had been a deliberate copying by Mr. Fenn.

JUDGMENT.

In giving judgment, the Lord Chief Justice said that it was clearly established by the series of cases that in order that there might be protection the thing which was the subject of the copyright must be embodied in the words. This doctrine had been recognised by many decisions, and more particular in "Tate v. Fullbrook," which was a case which came before the Court of Appeal. The plaintiff's particulars were divided into four heads, the first group being as to the similarities in plot, the second as to the similarity of the principal characters, the third as to the similarity of ideas, and the fourth as to the scenic similarities. For the purposes of infringement only the third group—and possibly the second—had to be considered. The first and fourth only became material on the question if an animus furandi was established. Both points had been dealt with in "Tate v. Fullbrook," and he would refer to the judgment of his brother Farwell in that case, where he said:—"It follows, therefore, that scenic effects, taken by themselves, and apart from the words and incidents of the piece, are not the subject of copyright, because they cannot be the subject of printing and publication. I am far, however, from saying that, in dealing with the question of infringement of copyright in the case of two pieces the words of which are more or less alike, similarity of scenic effects and the make-up of the actors, and such-like matters, may not be regarded, though not by themselves subjects of protection under the Act, as being evidence of an animus furandi on the part of the defendant, which, though it is not a necessary element in such cases, may have an important bearing on the view taken by a Court on the question whether the defendant has been guilty of plagiarism and has thereby infringed the rights of the plaintiff. Nor do I say that scenic effects may not be protected as part and parcel of the drama. . . ." It was necessary to refer to that judgment because reference had been made by the plaintiff to the particulars in supporting both points which the plaintiff had to prove to show infringement. It seemed to him that, assuming there was an amount of similarities sufficient to establish copying, scenic incidents might be taken into consideration as being of importance to show an animus furandi. In the case before the Court he was unable to agree with Mr. Justice Jelf that there was an infringement by copying any material or substantial part of Mr. Scholz's play by Mr. Fenn. His lordship was also unable to agree with Mr. Justice Jelf that because there was identity of certain portions and similarity of plot and scenes, Mr. Fenn was not telling the truth when he said he had never seen or heard of the plaintiff's play before he wrote his play. Taken by themselves, similarity in the principal characters was not sufficient proof of copying, quite apart from coincidences. His lordship came to the conclusion that there was no such imitation of the plaintiff's play as would amount to infringement of copyright. He thought there was no more similarity than would occur where people dealing with a plot, which in its leading features were very much the same, had intentionally described in common language the incidents of the play they put upon the stage. He saw no reason to doubt that Mr. Fenn told the truth when he said he got his ideas from the books he had mentioned. He was of opinion that the evidence was insufficient to establish infringement, and that the appeal should be allowed and judgment entered for the defendant with costs there and below.

Lord Justice Moulton concurred. He saw no similarity between the plots, except that the plaintiff and Mr. Fenn used common ideas which had been published before. There was not the slightest ground for saying that there had been any infringement by Mr. Fenn whatever.

Lord Justice Farwell concurred, and the appeal was accordingly allowed, with costs.

STROBACH AND WIEDMAN v. MACNAGHTEN.—TRANSFERRING ARTISTS.

In the Bloomsbury County Court, before Judge Bacon, Carl Strobach and 17 Franz Wiedman, described as "trading as" Olms and Carbett, sued Mr. Frank Macnaghten for £60, which they claimed as damages in respect of the non-fulfilment of a contract.

Mr. Doughty was counsel for plaintiffs, and Mr. Martin O'Connor was counsel for the defendant.

It was explained in the opening statement by counsel that the plaintiffs were Germans, and they were suing upon a contract which was made out by Mr. Baugh in March, 1908. It was agreed that they should go to several provincial towns. The terms were to be £15 per week for provincial halls and £9 per week for London halls. According to their contract they went to Lincoln, where they were to open, but upon arrival they found that they would not be allowed to appear, the manager at the Lincoln hall stating that according to instructions which he had received he had not billed them. They were informed that they could go to Gateshead instead of Lincoln, but, as that was a place not stipulated in the contract, and was a hall not belonging to the syndicate for which they were working, they decided not to go, and they hung about Lincoln all the week. Then they had a telegram that they were to go to Bristol instead of to Cardiff, and further complications in regard to their engagement ensuing they decided to give up altogether and to sue the defendant for damages.

Mr. Baugh, defendant's manager, was called, and he gave evidence and made statements as to why it had been proposed to move the plaintiffs about in the manner that had been described.

Judge Bacon: Are actors, vocalists, and theatricals generally to be regarded as mere chattels and to be transferred to any music hall regardless of their convenience or without any consideration whatever?

The witness said the business of organising programmes was a very difficult and trying experience and necessitated a lot of changes and manipulation.

Mr. O'Connor submitted that a servant in such a case as this was not entitled to damages on the ground of wrongful dismissal, if, through alterations, he had placed in his way a situation equally advantageous to the one upon which he first entered.

Judge Bacon: Surely a man, or, for the matter of that, say, any artist, has some sense of his or her position, and it is hard to suppose that artists will quietly assent to the system that if they are not considered good enough for one place they can be packed off to another.

Mr. O'Connor: You see a person may be very good regarded from the point of view of the Palace in London, but the same person might be practically useless at, say, Newcastle.

Answering some questions, Mr. Baugh explained that Mr. Macnaghten's halls were associated with certain other halls, and occasionally they transferred artists from one set of halls to another.

Judge Bacon: That gives you power, you urge, to put a label on anyone—say, a lady artist—and direct. "Deliver her soundly at Southsea, for instance?"

Mr. Baugh: The artists in question were asked to go to better halls—that is, better halls than those which they were originally booked for; and there is no hardship in that.

Mr. Bliss was then called and he stated that he wrote and told the plaintiffs in this action that owing to certain circumstances he had arranged to have them transferred to other places, and that for the rest of the provincial tour they would be transferred to other halls. He understood them to agree to go to the Hartlepool hall, and they said they would go to other towns, but they wanted confirmation from Mr. Baugh. Consequently he put himself in telephonic communication with Mr. Baugh, who was then at Burnley, and he said it would be all right.

Mr. Martin O'Connor, addressing the judge on behalf of the defendant, submitted that the plaintiffs were not entitled to any damages, because they had practically sustained no loss, having been transferred to somewhere else. The defendants, he contended, were not entitled under the circumstances to say that they would go and open at Lincoln, and nowhere else, and all that kind of thing.

Mr. Doughty pointed out that the plaintiffs had absolutely refused to go anywhere else than the places which Mr. Baugh had stipulated, and it was the reverse of dignified for artists to be just slipped into a programme at the last moment as if they had been dug up from anywhere.

Judge Bacon said the plaintiffs were engaged for a tour plan, and to appear at three or four stipulated halls. They were to perform a certain act, but were not allowed to perform and, altogether, he thought they were entitled to their money. It had been urged that the management under which they were engaged had the right to transfer the services of these artists to someone else, but his opinion was that such changes should not be made without the consent of the artists. The artists in this case had told him why they did not consent to the proposed change. It was made to appear to them, and to himself, that they were not in every way consistent with what was regarded as necessary at Mr. Macnaghten's genteel halls. Plaintiffs decided that they were not going to be dealt with in that way. They were, in his opinion, entitled to damages. He did not think they had had a chance of finding anything else to do. He gave judgment for the plaintiffs for the £60 claimed.

[See Report of Appeal, December 8.]

FRASER v. ARTHUR AND MCCREA.—UN-AUTHORISED USE OF ARTIST'S NAME.

In the King's Bench Division, before Mr. Justice Joyce, Mrs. Amy Ruth Fraser, 18 professionally known as Miss Ruth Vincent, sued Mr. Donald Arthur and Mr. Frederick McCrea, theatrical and concert agents, of London and Gloucester respectively, for an injunction to restrain the unauthorised use of her name and for damages for alleged libel. Mr. Norton, K.C., and Mr. P. F. Stokes appeared for plaintiff. Mr. Cotes-Predy for Mr. Arthur, and Mr. D. D. Robertson represented Mr. McCrea.

Mr. Norton stated that, without any authority from the lady, the defendants had advertised her to appear at Ilfracombe, Taunton, Weston-super-Mare, and Newquay during Whitsuntide of last year. Miss Vincent also complained that they had not given her the prominence and large type in their bills which her position in the profession entitled her to. She further complained that it was libellous to connect her name with second class companies and second-class plays; and she also asserted that by being advertised and not appearing her reputation in the eyes of the people in the West of England had suffered damage. The defendants did not deny that they had no authority to use Miss Vincent's name.

His lordship, in giving judgment, said that Miss Vincent had undoubtedly acquired considerable fame as a prima donna in comic opera, and what had happened must have been extremely annoying to her, and also injurious to her in her profession. The offending bills were published by Mr. McCrea, and against him, at all events, Miss Vincent was entitled to succeed. He assessed the damages against Mr. McCrea at £10, and ordered him to pay Miss Vincent's costs. He did not decide that Arthur did not authorise McCrea to publish the bills, but his order would be without prejudice to any question between the two.

Holding that Arthur was in a great degree morally responsible for what happened, he ordered him to pay his own costs.

VOKES v. PHILLIPS.—"GAGGING" ON LAST NIGHTS.

Before his Honour Sir William Selge and a jury in the Marylebone County Court, 18 an action was brought by Mr. William Vokes and Miss Alice Vokes, variety artists, of Cartwright Gardens, W.C., who claimed £10 in respect of one week's salary from Mr. George Brydon Phillips, theatrical manager and lessee, of Brondesbury. Mr. R. Moritz was counsel for the plaintiffs and Mr. Irvine Harie, solicitor, represented the defendant.

Mr. Moritz said that towards the end of 1908 Mr. and Miss Vokes were engaged by the defendant in connection with a pantomime which he was taking on tour in the provinces. After visiting various places the company, in the first week in February, reached Maidstone, where the pantomime was to be given for six nights and for the last time. On February 4 a dispute arose between members of the company and the defendant as to the payment of their fares back to town. Mr. and Miss Vokes had been engaged at a weekly salary of £10, and in their contract it was stipulated that they were to be conveyed "by rail or steamer while on tour." Mr. Phillips, however, objected to paying the plaintiffs their full return fares to London, and some temper was shown on both sides. Two nights later was the last night of the pantomime, and as was common on such occasions, the company indulged in a lot of "gag." One of the members of the company was Mr. De Solla, who played the part of a lawyer, and a very successful catch phrase of his, when a question was asked him on the stage, was to reply "That will cost you six-and-eightpence." Being the last night of the pantomime, fresh catch phrases of "gag" were freely indulged in, and Mr. Vokes, who played the part of the Squire, came on in a barrister's wig, and, addressing Mr. De Solla, said: "I shall have to charge you 6s. 8d. for two fares to town at 3s. 4d. each." Later, when Mr. Vokes went to draw his money and that of Miss Vokes, the defendant said that he was stopping £3 from their salary. Mr. Vokes strongly objected to this and, refusing to accept less than the £10, the present action was commenced.

Mr. Vokes said that the gagging about the two fares back to town was only an innocent bit of fun and the name of Mr. Phillips was never mentioned.

Cross-examined, witness said that he certainly did speak strongly to male members of the company about Mr. Phillips refusing to pay full fares back to town, but he did not advise the ladies of the company not to go on the stage and, because they declined to take his advice, say: "Then you are not sports."

Mr. H. Blackmore, secretary of the Theatrical Managers' Association, expressed the opinion that, in accordance with the terms of the agreement, there should have been no objection on the part of the defendant to pay the full return fares to town.

For the defence, it was contended that Mr. Phillips acted within the terms of the contract, as he had imposed a fine for unseemly conduct, consequent on the behaviour of the plaintiffs when on the stage.

The defendant said the fine imposed was in consequence of what he considered improper behaviour.

The jury found for the plaintiffs for £8 and costs.

CRAIG v. UNITED COUNTIES THEATRES.

Two artists sued the United Counties Theatres, Limited, in the Westminster 18 County Court in connection with the conversion of the Palace, Sunderland, into a picture show. Mr. Doughty, counsel for the plaintiffs, said that the first was Mr. Craig, a music hall artist and juggler, and he claimed £14 for breach of contract under which he was to perform at Sunderland. Whilst performing at Leeds in December he received a notice that he would not be required to start at Sunderland in February. He tried to get something else, but failed, and therefore lost the £14 salary.

Mr. A. Story Deans, for the defence, produced a copy of the notice given by Messrs. Rosen and Bliss, agents, stating the theatre would not be in the occupancy of defendants after January 2, and he must therefore consider the date arranged for vacant. The contract contained a clause that it became void if the theatre ceased to be in the occupancy of the defendants.

Plaintiff gave evidence, and in cross-examination said that he went to Sunderland and found a picture show on—not run, he believed, by defendants. Picture shows were rather cutting into the music halls. He was a member of the V.A.F., and knew the term of contract was the one settled at the arbitration. It contained a clause that he was engaged subject to the theatres mentioned in it being in the possession of the defendants at the date mentioned for the engagement.

The defence was that the lease had been surrendered because the house was not paying. If the master could not make a place pay the workman had to sink with him.

Mr. Doughty submitted that the defendants could not enforce the clause by their own act. Had the place been burnt or the license lost it would have been different, and they would have been brothers in misfortune, but here they parted with their hall for their own benefit. He cited many cases in support of his submission, and said that the artists could have been transferred from Sunderland to any of the other theatres under the same management.

Judge Woodfall said that he found no difficulty in the case, which did not come within the facts of the cases cited. The contract was subject to the conditions, one of which was that it should be void if the management ceased to be the occupants of the theatres for which the contract was made. Whether it was a prudent or good contract for artists to sign he was not there to inquire into. He gave judgment for the defendants, with costs.

In a second case the facts were admittedly the same, and judgment was entered for the defendants, with costs.

ROSEN AND BLISS v. THE BROS. BRADSHAW.

In the Westminster County Court his Honour Judge Woodfall had before him the case of Rosen and Bliss v. Bradshaw, in which the plaintiffs, dramatic agents, sued defendants, the Bros. Bradshaw, to recover commission on engagements.

Mr. Doughty (barrister) appeared on behalf of the defendants, and said he did not think plaintiffs would proceed with their claim. The fact of the case was that there had been a good deal of friction between the plaintiffs and his clients, with the result that the latter inserted an advertisement in the professional papers to the effect that the plaintiff firm were no longer acting as their agents. That appeared to have given some annoyance to the plaintiffs, and some letters passed between the parties, in one of which the plaintiffs said they would punish his clients for what they had done. As a result this action was brought, but the plaintiffs did not appear to be in court.

His Honour said that as the plaintiffs did not appear the case would be struck out, with costs.

COHEN v. EMERALD.

In the Leeds County Court, Jacob Cohen, costumier, sued Miss Nell Emerald for 19 £9 14s. for dresses and hats supplied to Miss Emerald when she was playing principal boy at the Grand, Leeds, pantomime in December. Judgment was given for the plaintiff.

LEVINE v. CRAWFORD.

In the Westminster County Court, before his Honour Judge Woodfall, Miss Ethel Levine, a costumier, carrying on business at South Molton Street, sued to recover the sum of £45 in respect of work done and materials supplied to the defendant Miss Alice Crawford, in connection with her dresses in The Dancing Girl at His Majesty's.

Miss Crawford said she gave the order for the costumes on the understanding that they were to be completed by February 6, and as they were not ready on that date she had to get others at very short notice in order to be ready for a dress rehearsal.

His Honour said he thought the contract was to have the dresses ready on a given date, and that the plaintiff failed to do so. Judgment, therefore, would be for the defendant, with costs.

A STAGE LICENSE REVOKED.

Before Mr. W. H. Maude and other magistrates at the Leeds West Riding Police 25 Court, an application was made by Superintendent Knight, under Section 9 of the Theatre Act of 1843, to revoke a twelve months' stage license granted to the Mechanics' Institute, Horsford. The superintendent said the place was visited by the police on the night of Saturday, April 17. A performance of a piece entitled Phyllis, the Farmer's Daughter was in progress, and the room was crowded to excess. The exit, a staircase with three bends in it, had doors at the bottom which opened inwards, and these, contrary to the undertaking given by the licensee, Alexander Hazley, that they should be removed, had been left on their hinges.

It was urged on behalf of the defendant that a joiner had been specially employed to remove the doors on the night in question, but, unfortunately, he failed to carry out the instructions. The Bench decided to revoke the license then in operation, and the defendant was told that in future he must make application on each separate occasion on which he proposed to use the premises for stage performances.

JUNE.

NEVILLE v. BRUCE.—AN I.O.U.

Mr. Sydney Neville, described as actor and baggage man, was the plaintiff in an 7 action heard by Judge Willis, K.C., at the Southwark County Court. Plaintiff sought to recover £5 in respect of money said to have been lent to Mr. Harry Bruce for the purpose of taking a company of artists to Colchester and paying the initial expenses for the production of a piece he had written called Balaclava.

The defendant counter-claimed for £5 in respect of money lent and board and lodging and necessaries supplied. His signature on the I.O.U. produced was, he alleged, a forgery.

His Honour found that the I.O.U. was a perfectly honest document, and found for the plaintiff on claim and counter-claim, with costs.

BIRCH v. RODGERS, LIMITED.—ACCIDENT IN A THEATRE.

At the Birmingham County Court Lydia Ann Birch claimed damages from Rodgers, 7 Limited, proprietors of the Prince of Wales's, Birmingham, in respect to injuries suffered by her through falling down certain stairs. It was alleged that her fall was owing to negligence of the defendants in not seeing that the theatre was properly lighted.

Mr. Maddocks, for the plaintiff, said that on February 5 the plaintiff, accompanied by her husband and children, went to an afternoon performance of the pantomime Boy Blue. At the entrance to the gallery a porter said, "That's the way." The performance had started, and plaintiff said, "This place is in total darkness." Her husband, stepping out, felt his feet go from under him, but saved himself by sitting down, but the plaintiff pitched forward right down the whole length of the gallery, and was only prevented from being thrown over into the pit by the fact that there were some people at the front of the gallery and some iron railing. Her arm was broken, and she was attended at the General Hospital.

For the defence it was contended that there was no negligence, and evidence was given that there were two gas lights at the back of the gallery, which were always kept on during the whole of the performance.

The jury found for the defendants, and judgment was entered accordingly.

UNITED COUNTY THEATRES v. DUPREZ.

In the King's Bench Division, before Mr. Justice Pickford, an action was brought 8 by the United County Theatres, Limited, against Miss May Moore Duprez to recover damages for alleged breach of contract. The defendant denied liability.

Mr. Shearman, K.C., and Mr. Henn Collins appeared for the plaintiffs; while Mr. C. Doughty and Mr. L. Tyfield represented the defendant.

Mr. Shearman, in opening the case for the plaintiffs, said the defendant entered into a contract under which she was to appear for a week at the Palace, Aberdeen, in July, 1908, and for a week at the Palace, Dundee, in the following month, at a salary of £20 per week, with an extra £5 for travelling expenses. There was a clause in the contract providing that if the defendant was prevented through illness from performing on the specified dates the plaintiffs had the right to treat the engagements as postponed to later dates. There was also a duty on the defendant to send to the plaintiffs a list of her vacant dates, in order that they might determine when she should appear. The defendant was prevented from appearing on the dates stated in the contract, as she was suffering from a sore throat, and she failed to supply the plaintiffs with a list of her vacant dates. As a matter of fact, said counsel, when she was asked to supply the list the defendant repudiated the contract, and said she was booked up for some years to come. He (the learned counsel) contended that the defendant repudiated the contract because she found more lucrative engagements.

Miss Duprez, in her evidence, stated that in 1906 she entered into a contract with Messrs. Rosen and Bliss, who were proprietors of certain musical halls in the North of England and in Scotland, to appear at two of their halls. When the plaintiff company took over the halls in 1908 she was asked to sign the contract in question, and she did so under the impression that she would be bound by the terms of the contract of 1906, which did not contain a clause to postpone her engagements in case of illness.

Mr. Justice Pickford, in giving judgment, said the 1908 contract contained a statement that it was to be deemed to take the place of the earlier one. He did not suppose that the defendant took the trouble to read it all or to make out what it meant, but even if she did, she signed it. He was of opinion that the plaintiffs were entitled to succeed in the action. He awarded the plaintiffs the sum of £50, with costs on the High Court scale.

A stay of execution was granted.

THE CHILDREN ACTS.

At the Bootle Police Court, before Messrs.

R. W. Hall and J. J. Metcalf, Mr. Dennis James McCarthy was summoned for allowing his daughter Winifred Lillian McCarthy, being under the age of ten years, to be in the Muncaster, Bootle, for the purpose of singing; and Mr. Harry Pennington, the licensee of the theatre, was summoned for procuring the said child for the same purpose.

Mr. J. H. Farmer, Town Clerk, who conducted the case for the police, stated that on a number of occasions, but particularly on June 2, the child, who was four years of age, was heard taking part in a song which her elder sister was singing from the stage of the Muncaster. The child herself was not upon the stage, but was sitting in the front row of the dress circle, and at a certain part of the entertainment she stood up and sang the chorus of a song while the lights were lowered.

Mr. Berry contended that the police had failed to prove that the management of the theatre had procured the child; in fact, the management had no knowledge of it.

Mr. Young, acting manager for Mr. Pennington, said that no arrangements whatever had been made with regard to the child.

The Bench found that there had been a breach of the Act, and Mr. McCarthy would be fined 10s. and costs and Mr. Pennington 20s. and costs.

HALE v HICKS.—"TOUR" AND THE FORTNIGHT'S NOTICE.

Before Mr. Justice Channell and a special jury, in the King's Bench Division, Mr. 8 John Robert Hale Munro, professionally known as John Robert Hale, claimed damages £155 10s. for alleged breach of contract against Mr. Seymour Hicks.

Mr. M. Lush, K.C., and Mr. S. A. Cohen appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. C. F. Gill, K.C., and Mr. J. D. Crawford for the defendant.

It was explained by Mr. Lush that Mr. Hale had been engaged for an autumn tour (1907) with My Darling, in which Miss Marie Studholme played the principal part, and the question was whether in the middle of the tour Mr. Seymour Hicks was entitled to put an end to the engagement because he said the tour was not successful. It was arranged that Mr. Hale should play the part of Jack Hylton. Mr. Hale saw Mr. Charles Thorburn, who was the general manager under Mr. Hicks for the provincial tour, and it was then arranged that his salary should be £30 per week. The draft agreement provided that two weeks' notice could be given to terminate the engagement. Mr. Hale objected to this, and he had the two weeks' notice taken out of the agreement, Mr. Thorburn wiring "Alter contract to autumn tour. Two weeks' notice out, with our option to renew from September. Sign. Send to me. Regards."

The tour began at Southampton, and at Nottingham a notice was posted to terminate all engagements in a fortnight, making thirteen weeks' tour. Mr. Hale then wrote to Mr. Hicks asking what it was proposed to do with him until his engagement expired. In reply he was told that his contract was for the autumn tour, which would finish on the Saturday week, due notice having been given of the termination. Mr. Hale wrote saying that the fortnight's notice had been taken out of the contract, and reminding the defendant that he (plaintiff) had left the Gaiety in order to join this tour. Mr. Hicks wrote pointing out that the contract did not stipulate for twenty weeks, and the tour was not a success.

Mr. Hale gave evidence in support of his case, and said he engaged himself to go for twenty weeks. He said the towns where he was to go were named during his interview with Mr. Thorburn, and were all No. 1 towns. By the breach of contract he lost £210, but as during the seven weeks he earned £54 10s. he was claiming only £155 10s.

In cross-examination by Mr. Gill, the witness said the tour card which members of a company got was for convenience, and it was also a sign of good faith. In London engagements for the run of the piece were common. There was a difference between the run of a piece and an engagement for a tour. The tour of My Darling was not a success, but he would not say it was disastrous.

Mr. Gill: I suggest that an engagement for a tour is the same thing as for the run of the piece.

Witness: No. The very first thing to be ascertained in making an agreement and fixing the salary is the duration of the tour.

Mr. Gill said that the question for the jury was whether a piece on tour must be played in every place originally contemplated, or whether there was a custom that the tour could be terminated by a fortnight's notice if unsuccessful.

Mr. Justice Channell said that the question was what was the meaning of "tour" in theatrical circles.

Mr. Charles Thorburn, manager of the Ellaline Syndicate, Limited, which ran the tour, said Mr. Mouillot had booked the tour. He (Mr. Thorburn) expected the tour would last until Christmas, and might have told the plaintiff so, but he had no authority from Mr. Hicks to stipulate the towns which were to be visited. The tour was a failure, about £6,000 being lost. A "tour" meant in the theatrical circles as long as it was successful.

Cross-examined by Mr. Lush, a proprietor could terminate a tour if it was not successful.

Witness added that he doubted whether the piece would succeed on tour, as it was a "frost" in London. Each other member of the company, with the exception of the plaintiff and a French artist, had the fortnight's notice clause in his contract.

Mr. Henry Dana said a "tour" meant as long as the tour lasted.

Mr. James Welch said: "An autumn tour" was a tour beginning on a specific date, whereas "a tour in the autumn" might begin on any date.

Mr. J. H. Barnes said an autumn tour might begin and end at any time in the autumn.

Mr. Lockwood said the custom was that engagements were terminable by a fortnight's notice.

Mr. Seymour Hicks's evidence, taken on commission, Mr. Hicks being in Scotland, was then read by Mr. Gill. He said a "tour" meant fourteen days at least. He agreed with the other witnesses in regard to custom.

On the following day Mr. Gill, K.C., for the defendant, called Mr. Hayden Coffin, who had been subpoenaed. He stated that he was under an agreement with Mr. Hicks at the present time. If there was nothing specified concerning the length of a tour he thought fourteen days' notice in case of failure was permissible.

Mr. Lush, K.C. (for the plaintiff): Can you divide yourself into an actor and someone who is not an actor, and say if the word has a different meaning in your two capacities?

Mr. Coffin: I should say the tour was at the discretion of the management, unless specified that it was for a period.

Mr. Lush: Would you draw any distinction or not between the words "engagement for an autumn tour" and an "engagement for a tour in the autumn"?

His Lordship: That is a distinction which you have been able to find out, Mr. Lush, and no one else.

Mr. Coffin: Personally I can see very little difference.

Mr. Lennox Pawle said there was a special meaning to the word "tour" from an actor's point of view. If he were given a list of dates on an autumn tour card he would consider they indicated the length of the tour, otherwise he would take it the tour would last until the pantomime season. Unless there was a specific clause in the contract he did not think there was any custom, as claimed by the defendant, whereby a proprietor was justified in terminating a tour by a fortnight's notice.

Under cross-examination, Mr. Pawle said he did not agree with the evidence of Mr. Coffin.

Mr. Loring Fernie said an autumn tour would finish about the second week in December. He had never been on a tour when this was not the case, except once, and then the manager ran away.

Cross-examined, he also differed from the view expressed by Mr. Hayden Coffin, who, he said, had more experience of London than the provinces.

Mr. Richard Green said he disagreed with the evidence of Mr. Hayden Coffin, because he said that gentleman was not what might be called a provincial actor. This witness also thought that a tour could not be terminated as in this case.

JUDGMENT

Counsel then addressed the jury.

(1) Is there any special meaning long known and understood in the theatrical profession of the words "tour" or "autumn tour," or any custom long known and understood in the profession by which the tour may be terminated if a loss is sustained?

(2) If such custom does exist, was there any special contract, outside the written contract, by which such special meaning was excluded?

(3) Is there any special understanding in the profession that an autumn tour lasts until December unless it is otherwise specified in the contract?

The jury answered the first question in the negative, and the second and third in the affirmative.

On these findings his lordship entered judgment for the plaintiff for the amount claimed—£155 10s.

His lordship granted a stay of execution for eight days, pending an appeal.

BROOKS v. EMNEY.—CLAIM FOR COMMISSION.

In the Westminster County Court, before his Honour Judge Woodfall, Mr. George H. Brooks, dramatic agent, sued to recover the sum of £31 2s. 6d. commission for procuring an engagement for the defendant, Mr. Fred Emney, to appear in the pantomime at the Marlborough, Holloway, at a salary of £60 a week. The defence was that the engagement was procured through Messrs. Blackmore's Agency, and that the plaintiff was not entitled to claim commission upon it.

Mr. Druquer was counsel for the plaintiff, and Mr. Stewart Bevan appeared on behalf of Mr. Fred Emney.

The plaintiff said he saw the defendant with reference to an engagement at the Marlborough, and he (defendant) said his terms would be £60 a week. Subsequently he saw Mr. Fred Karno on the matter and he took exception to paying £60, but said he was prepared to pay £50. There was some delay in getting the matter completed, however, as Mr. Karno said he wished to retain Mr. Kitchen for the part if he could get him. In the result, however, the defendant did fulfil the engagement at a salary of £60 a week, and it was upon that basis that this claim was brought for commission. In cross-examination the witness said he was not aware that Messrs. Blackmore's were the special agents for Mr. Fred Emney, and had been for some years. The defendant asked him at their interview if he would negotiate for him.

Mr. Fred Emney did not deny having had a conversation with the plaintiff in respect of the engagement in question, but said his case was that the contract was obtained and carried through by Messrs. Blackmore's.

At this point of the case his Honour said the plaintiff had failed to prove that the contract for the engagement in question was obtained through his agency, and therefore judgment must be for the defendant, with costs.

MARINELLI v. THE MARTINEKS.

In the Westminster County Court, before his Honour Judge Woodfall, an action was brought by Messrs. H. B. Marinelli, Limited, dramatic agents, of Charing Cross House, Charing Cross Road, to recover payment of commission in respect of engagements procured for the defendants, the Martinek Bros., under a Stoll tour at Manchester and Glasgow.

Mr. R. Storrey Deans was counsel for the plaintiff firm, and Mr. Seyds appeared for the defence.

It transpired, on behalf of the plaintiffs, that they procured the defendants an engagement at the London Hippodrome for seven weeks, and had been paid their commission on it.

Mr. Wolheim was called on behalf of the plaintiffs, and produced the office copy of the contract, under which he contended that the defendants were liable to pay commission not only in respect of the London Hippodrome, but for any engagements under the Stoll tour.

The defendants' case was that the contract to pay commission only applied to the London Hippodrome, and that the other engagements at Manchester and Glasgow were procured by another firm of agents.

His Honour, after having seen the office copy contract, said he had no doubt the plaintiffs had done a good deal of work for the defendants, and it was rather hard upon them that they should not be paid their commission in respect of the provincial engagements; but they had failed to make out their case, and, therefore, judgment must be for the defendants, but under the circumstances of the case he (the judge) should not allow any costs.

WALLIS v. RUSSELL.—COMPANY STRANDED AT PORTLAND.

At Poole County Court before the deputy judge (Mr. P. B. Durnford), Winifred Wallis and Ruby Wallis (mother and daughter), described as actresses, of 5, Whatleigh Terrace, Poole, sued Jesse Russell, landlord of the "Harbour" Inn, Poole, and until recently proprietor of a portable theatre, for £4 8s. 1d. in respect to salary, whilst Frank Wells, the husband of Mrs. Wallis, had a claim against defendant for £3 10s. 3½d. salary, in lieu of notice, for services rendered as musician. The plaintiffs conducted their own case, but defendant was represented by a solicitor.

Mrs. Wallis explained that in December last she accepted an engagement on behalf of herself and her daughter from the defendant, through his manager, to play in a different piece nightly at a portable theatre at Upper Parkstone, near Bournemouth, at a joint salary of 3s. weekly, money sure, they were told. The custom of the profession was a fortnight's notice, but no time was specified when the engagement was accepted. "There never is in cases of this kind," added witness. The company, numbering nine, subsequently removed to the Masonic Hall, Portland, but after playing for one week and three nights the defendant "finished," and they were all left stranded absolutely penniless and had to get out of it the best way they could. Business had been very bad, but up to the Saturday previous to the final performance they received their salary regularly with the exception of a reduction of 5s. each, whilst for the last three nights they were paid 2s. 2½d. each, which, with the two weeks' wages sued for in lieu of notice, brought the claim to £4 18s. When they found themselves stranded the whole of the company walked from Portland to Weymouth (where the defendant was then staying) and asked him what was to be done, as they wanted to pay their landladies and get off the island. Defendant replied that they must do the best they could, and told them to tell the landladies "the tale."

Defendant declared that the arrangement to play at salaried terms ended at Portland, where the company, upon being told that the speculation was not paying, agreed to profit-sharing terms.

The Deputy Judge said he was not at all prepared to accept as entirely accurate defendant's statement that there was a profit-sharing arrangement, and he held that the plaintiffs were entitled to succeed, but as Mrs. and Miss Wallis succeeded in getting another engagement in a few days he only allowed them a week's salary (35s.) and the arrears (18s. 1d.), but as Wells was out three weeks he awarded him the whole of the amount he claimed.

BART v. WADE.—CLAIM FOR COMMISSION.

In the Westminster County Court, before his Honour Judge Woodfall, the case of 15 Bart v. Wade was tried. It was an action by the plaintiff, Harriss Samuel Bart, dramatic agent, carrying on business at Bedford Street, Strand, to recover the sum of £10 0s. 3d., balance of account in respect of commission alleged to be due to him from the defendant, Mr. Walter Wade, music hall artist, for procuring him engagements.

The plaintiff said he based his claim on the fact that he had a written agreement with the defendant, under which he was appointed his sole agent, and, although he did not obtain all his engagements, his contention was that he was entitled to be paid commission upon them.

Mr. Lloyd Humphreys (solicitor) appeared for the defendant, who said he admitted the plaintiff's claim to the extent of £1 18s., in respect of Stoke, Derby, and the Camberwell Empire, but as to the other engagements he contended that they were obtained for him through another agent. His case was that the plaintiff did not procure him his engagements with the Stoll tour, but that they were obtained by another agent named Brown.

In giving judgment his Honour said it seemed to him that the plaintiff might have sued the defendant for breach of contract to employ him as his sole agent, and claimed damages for loss of commission, and he should deal with the case in that way, and award the plaintiff five guineas damages, with costs.

CRELLIN v. FLOOD.—COLE HAMILTON, THIRD PARTY.

In the Westminster County Court, before his Honour Judge Woodfall Mr. Frederick 17 William Crellin, theatrical manager, brought an action to recover eight weeks' salary at £6 a week for a theatrical tour arranged on behalf of the defendant, Mrs. Cole Hamilton by Mr. Alec Flood.

The defence was that the tour was given up owing to the illness of the defendant, and that therefore the most the plaintiff could claim would be two weeks' notice.

His Honour, on giving judgment on the following day, said he had arrived at the conclusion that the plaintiff was entitled to two weeks' salary, on the footing that the tour never started, and that therefore he could not claim for the run of a tour which never existed. He should also allow him a further sum of £5 for out-of-pocket expenses, and give him judgment for £17 as against the defendant Flood, but he directed that the third party should indemnify defendant Flood for the amount of judgment and costs.

WARNER v. TORTAJADA.—CLAIM FOR COMMISSION.

Before his Honour Judge Woodfall, in the Westminster County Court, Messrs. Richard 18 Warner and Company, Limited, dramatic agents, of Shaftesbury Avenue, sought to recover the sum of £40 as commission for procuring an engagement for La Tortajada at the Coliseum.

Mr. Frank Dodd was counsel for the plaintiff, and Mr. R. Storrey Deans appeared for the defence.

The defence was that the engagement in question was obtained by Messrs. Marinelli, and that the plaintiffs' offer was never accepted.

Mr. Richard Warner, managing director of the plaintiff firm, said that in July of last year he was in Paris and saw the defendant go through her act. He afterwards saw her husband and had a conversation with him as to an engagement in London. They discussed terms, and upon his return to London he (witness) through his manager communicated with a number of managers, including Mr. Alfred Butt and Mr. Oswald Stoll, and as a result he obtained an offer from Stoll's for October, 1908, for four weeks at a salary of £100 a week. The defendant never fulfilled it, however, but she took another one at the Coliseum in January of the following year, and it was upon the first introduction that he now claimed his commission.

In cross-examination the witness said he did not suggest that his firm were the sole agents for the defendant, but his contention was that the engagement in question was brought about in consequence of what they did. He agreed also that they had not got any commission note from the defendant, and said it was not customary to do so until the contract was signed.

Counsel for the defence submitted that, so far as the plaintiffs were concerned, the negotiations with the defendant and her husband never went beyond the stage of discussion, and that the actual contract which the defendant did fulfil at the Coliseum was procured for her through Messrs. Marinelli, and their name was stamped upon it.

His Honour, in giving judgment, said he thought the plaintiffs had failed to make out their case, and he was rather surprised that they should have brought the action. Judgment, therefore, would be for the defendant, with costs.

WEST v. BELL.

In the Tenterden County Court, before his Honour Judge Short, Arthur West, of the 18 Royalty, Tenterden, sued Arthur Bell, of Borough Green, and formerly stage manager of the Royalty, Cranbrook, for the return of the manuscript copy part of Le Loup, in the copyright play The Face at the Window, and in the alternative for £50 damages; also for an injunction to restrain him from using the part of the play, the copyright of plaintiff.

Defendant, in reply to the judge's questions, said he played the character and had the copy. It was a common thing for parts to become missing. He did not know whether he had lost it or not.

His Honour gave judgment for plaintiff for 5s. and costs, remarking that was all he could do.

LARDNER v. BEACH—ACCIDENT ON A TRAPEZE.

At the Marylebone County Court, before his Honour Sir William Selje, Margaret 22 Lardner, a laundrywoman, living in Blachyndon Street, Notting Hill, sought to recover £50 from William Beach, described as an amusement provider, of Uxbridge, for personal injuries sustained through the negligence of one of the defendant's servants.

Mr. Oswald Hanson, solicitor for the plaintiff, said the action arose out of an accident which occurred on Easter Monday, 1909. The defendant was the proprietor of an out-of-doors diversion which consisted of a trapeze swinging on pulleys attached to an overhead wire. The sensation of travelling through space was obtained by payment of a penny, and at the end of the "fly" were two buffers and also a man who was supposed to see that no harm came to those who indulged in the exhilarating pastime. On Easter Monday the plaintiff, when at Wormwood Scrubbs, thought to have a pennyworth of excitement, and was carried along by the trapeze in the usual way, but in consequence of the man stationed at the end of the journey not arresting her flight, and the fact that one of the buffers was inadequately padded, her left leg struck a hard substance, her knee-cap was seriously injured and her ankle sprained. Since the date of the accident she had only been able to do a few days' work.

Plaintiff said that immediately after she met with her accident a little boy fractured one of his legs through going on the trapeze.

For the defence, Walter J. Holloway said that he had managed the trapeze for the defendant for fifteen years, and had never known an accident result from the use of it. On Easter Monday he was on the ground at Wormwood Scrubbs all day, but heard nothing of the accident. The buffers used in connection with the trapeze contained straw and shavings, and, in his opinion, striking them could not result in injury. Some 600 people used the trapeze on Easter Monday without a single complaint being heard.

His Honour held that the plaintiff's case had been made out, and he awarded her £21 damages and costs.

THE "PERFORMER" v. BAILEY.

In the Westminster County Court, his Honour Judge Woodfall had before him 24 the case of the proprietors of the Performer v. Bailey, and on the case being called Mr. O. Kuhn, counsel for the plaintiffs, said the case was against Mr. and Mrs. Bailey, but it had been withdrawn as far as Mrs. Bailey was concerned, and Mr. Bailey had paid the amount claimed. There was a counter-claim against the three registered proprietors of the Performer for salary, the male defendant having been secretary of the Variety Artists' Federation, of which the Performer was the official organ. The employment was by the V.A.F. and by the Executive Committee of that society, which was a trade union.

Mr. Seyd (solicitor) said Mr. Bailey was a member of the V.A.F., and was appointed secretary. There was no suggestion that he did not perform his duties properly, but a dispute arose in connection with agents' commission, and there was some friction among the performers. On November 3 last the defendant tendered his resignation to the Executive Committee, which was meeting that day, about twenty members being present, and the resignation was accepted. He (Mr. Seyd) now submitted that the members present had no power to accept it, as the rules provided for a ballot of the whole of the Committee.

The defendant gave evidence in support. The Judge said that there was nothing in the counter-claim, and dismissed it. It was clear on the rules that the members had power to do what they did, and it would be a perfect farce if every little thing was to be submitted to members all over the kingdom. By his own act the defendant gave up in the middle of the week. The claim against Mrs. Bailey was withdrawn with no order as to costs, and there was judgment with costs against Mr. Bailey.

BOOTHROYD v. MACNAGHTEN.—BADLY LIGHTED THEATRE.

At the Leeds County Court, Mrs. Boothroyd, of Sutton, near Birmingham, sought to 24 recover the sum of £50 from Mr. Frank Macnaghten, late proprietor of the Royal, Leeds. Mr. Arthur Willey appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Clifford Bowling for the defendant.

Last Boxing Day plaintiff and some friends visited the theatre to witness a matinée performance of the pantomime. They paid the "early door" admission to the pit stalls, and were assured that there was plenty of room further on. The theatre, said Mr. Willey, was improperly lighted, and plaintiff did not notice a step in the gangway, down which she tripped and sprained her ankle. The drop was some eight inches. Owing to the darkness she failed to see the step. A gentleman who followed her also tripped, but was able to save himself from a fall.

Judgment was given for the plaintiff for £25.

KINEMATOGRAPH SHOWS.

Alexander Penny, of 146, Barking Road, Canning Town, was summoned at West 24 Ham Police Court for occupying and using the premises as a place of public resort without their being substantially constructed and supplied with ample, safe, and convenient means of ingress and egress.

Mr. G. E. Hilleary presented for the West Ham Town Council; Mr. Hugh V. Harraway defended.

Mr. Hilleary said the defendant was the proprietor of a cinematograph exhibition, and in February of this year the council directed that a notice should be served upon him and eight other cinematograph proprietors calling upon them to comply with the provisions of Section 36 of the Public Health Act of 1890. Other notices were sent, and the committee visited the premises, and as the defendant did nothing to meet with the council's requirements, he was notified on June 3 that unless he did so proceedings would be taken. Nothing being done, a summons was issued on June 15, and the defendant took no steps till the next day.

Mr. Hugh V. Harraway said that his client consulted him on June 16, and he afterwards immediately applied to Mr. John Morley, the borough engineer, to ascertain the actual requirements of the council. But Mr. Morley pool-pooled the idea that anything could be done to the premises to adapt them to the requirements of the council.

Mr. Hilleary: It is a fact that the place could not be made to meet the requirements of the council.

Mr. Harraway said his client would do anything that was wanted, but they wanted to know what was required.

Mr. Gillespie: The point is that not having satisfied the requirements of the council the defendant has kept this place open, and proof of that is all I need now. However unreasonable the requirements of the council may be the section of the Act says they must be satisfied.

Mr. Harraway said his client was willing to do what was necessary. He was not a borough engineer and did not, therefore, know what to do. This exhibition was his only means of livelihood.

Mr. Gillespie: Well, if he earns his livelihood by endangering the lives of others the sooner he loses that livelihood the better.

Mr. Harraway handed in a plan of the building and a report of his surveyor, and said the defendant had done all he could to make the place reasonably safe. The total frontage of the shop was only 18 ft., of which 8 ft. was used for exits. The place would only hold from fifty to sixty people, and the dangerous machinery was out of sight and separated from the audience by two sheet-iron doors, and it was at the rear of the people.

Eventually Mr. Gillespie said the full penalty was £20, and he thought the offence sufficiently serious to justify a fine of £5, distress, or a month's imprisonment.

Arthur Burgoyne, the keeper of a cinematograph show at 137, Barking Road, was similarly summoned. Mr. Gillespie imposed a like penalty of £5.

NEILSON v. HORNIMAN, LOVEL, AND OTHERS.

Before Mr. Justice Ridley, in the King's Bench Division, Mr. Harold V. Neilson 28 sought to recover damages from Miss Annie Horniman, proprietress of the Gaiety, Manchester; Mr. Leigh Lovel, theatrical manager, and others for infringement of the plaintiff's right of the production of one of Henrik Ibsen's plays, John Gabriel Borkman. Mr. C. J. Dwyer appeared for the plaintiff, and Miss Horniman was represented by Mr. Powell, K.C.

Counsel, in opening, said Mr. Heinemann, of the firm of publishers, Heinemann and Co., was owner of the copyright of most of Ibsen's plays, among them being John Gabriel Borkman. In June last year Mr. Heinemann assigned to the plaintiff, Mr. Neilson, the sole right of the representation of John Gabriel Borkman, with one of Ibsen's other plays, excluding London and the suburbs. It was with great surprise that plaintiff found that in December, 1908, the various defendants were producing in Manchester that very play, John Gabriel Borkman. He went to the theatre, and told Mr. Hayes that he was the sole proprietor of the provincial rights, and wanted them to stop the play there and then. They did not choose to do so, but proceeded with the play.

His Lordship: Do you dispute the copyright? Mr. Powell: I want them to prove it.

Mr. William Heinemann was the first witness called for the plaintiff. He said he published the play John Gabriel Borkman, which was produced in Norwegian prior to its production in English. He produced the agreement between himself and the plaintiff, giving the latter the right of the production, with the exception of London and the suburbs, of Ibsen's play, John Gabriel Borkman and another play.

Mr. Harold V. Neilson, the plaintiff, next gave evidence, and bore out his counsel's statement.

Mr. Powell submitted that the plaintiff had made out no case. There were two points: First, plaintiff had no right to sue; and, secondly, if he had a right to sue Lovel, he had no right to sue Miss Horniman. Counsel submitted that it was a mere licence that Mr. Heinemann gave; it was not an assignment, but a mere licence. It was not even a lease. He would not trouble his lordship with the terms and conditions except to say that there was a certain percentage of the gross takings which was to go to Mr. Heinemann, the publisher, 5 per cent. if under £200 weekly, 10 per cent. on the gross takings if over £200 weekly, 12½ per cent. if over £500 weekly. There was no power, counsel contended, to do more than have the right to produce the play.

His lordship said it seemed to him that there was an exclusive license in the hands of the plaintiff which enabled him to say he had the rights for twelve months so far as Mr. Heinemann was concerned, which enabled him to get the royalties or the profits for the purpose of the plays. The author was Dr. Ibsen, and the assignee, Mr. Heinemann. His opinion was that the plaintiff was not the assignee, but the holder of an exclusive license, the person whom one would expect would have right to receive a share of the profits upon the production of a play. But it was another thing to say that he was the person who had the right to sue in that action. The real question in the case was what was the effect of the license. The cases which had been cited compelled him to hold that whatever might be the rights between the parties, the plaintiff in this case was not in a position to sue. It was with some regret that he said so, and therefore there must be judgment for the defendant. As it was a question of law, added his lordship, if the plaintiff wished to raise any question upon it he ought to have liberty to do so.

[Report of Appeal, December 16.]

BROMHEAD v. CARLTON.

Before his Honour Judge Woodfall, in the Westminster County Court, the case of 28 Bromhead v. Carlton was decided, and was an action by the plaintiff, Mr. R. Bromhead, chartered accountant, to recover the sum of £70, which he alleged to be due to him from the defendant, Mr. Arthur Carlton, for professional services rendered to him in adjusting the accounts of various theatres in which the defendant was interested at Plymouth, Devonport, Worcester, and other places. Mr. Barrington Matthews was counsel for plaintiff.

The defendant conducted his case in person, and said his case was that the plaintiff had been paid all, and even more, than was due to him, and he (defendant) counterclaimed for a sum of £97 6s. 3d. in respect of a cheque paid to the plaintiff, which did not appear to have been taken into consideration.

The plaintiff said that the cheque in question had been disbursed on behalf of the defendant and his company.

After hearing the case at some length, his Honour gave judgment for the plaintiff for the £70 which he claimed, less the sum of three guineas which had been paid into court, and certified for costs.

UNITED COUNTY THEATRES, LIMITED, v. DURRANT AND OTHERS.

In the Court of Appeal, before the Master of the Rolls and Lords Justices Farwell 29 and Kennedy, the hearing of the case of the United County Theatres, Limited, v. Durrant and others was commenced on the defendants' appeal from the verdict in the action which was tried before Mr. Justice Lawrence and a special jury.

This was an action for alleged libel. The plaintiff company were the proprietors, among other places, of the Palace, Bristol, and the Palace, Plymouth. The defendants were William Durrant, A. A. Sennington, John Curle, F. Jenkins, and Joseph Williams. Durrant and Williams were the secretary and general secretary of the British Amalgamated Musicians' Union, Sennington and Curle the president and secretary of the Bristol Trades Council, and Jenkins the printer of the alleged libels. All the defendants were sued personally and not as representing the trade unions to which they respectively belonged.

The libels complained of were contained in documents circulated in Bristol after a dispute with reference to the wages of musicians at the Palace at Bristol, the disputes arising subsequent to the arrangement for two houses a night at the Palace.

The defendants denied that the alleged libels bore any defamatory meaning. They further contended that the action was not maintainable by reason of the Trades Disputes Act, 1906.

The trial resulted in a verdict for the plaintiffs for £500 damages.

The grounds of the appeal were that under the provisions of the Trades Disputes Act, 1906, the action was not maintainable; that the publication of the circular did not constitute a libel; that the learned judge ought to have withdrawn the case from the jury, and had misdirected the jury in his summing-up.

The case was adjourned until July 5, when Mr. Roskill, K.C., in support of the appeal, read from the shorthand notes of the trial in order to show that the verdict was against the weight of the evidence. The defendants, he said, took up the position that every word which appeared in the circular was justified by the evidence.

JUDGMENT.

Mr. Clement Edwards followed, and at the close of his argument, without calling on Mr. Lush, K.C., and Mr. S. O. H. Collins, for the respondents, the Master of the Rolls gave judgment dismissing the appeal. He said the defendants were sued as individuals, and the fact that they happened to be officials of trade unions and of a trade council did not make the provisions of the Trades Disputes Acts apply to the present case and prevent the plaintiffs from seeking redress in a court of law for what was undoubtedly a libel. That was the only point of interest that this appeal raised. There was ample evidence on which the jury could find in favour of the plaintiffs. As for the plea of misdirection, he absolutely declined to criticise through a microscope every word uttered by the learned judge in his summing up of a trial lasting nine days. The learned judge was not asked to put any particular question to the jury. He could find nothing approaching misdirection, nor was anything omitted by the learned judge, which, in his lordship's opinion, would have had any weight with the jury. He was satisfied himself that there had been no miscarriage of justice here. The question of fair comment was touched on; but that could not be pleaded, because the defendants admittedly intended to injure the plaintiffs by the course they had adopted of drawing public notice to the dispute. Nor was the circular accurate, for the dispute had in fact ended, and the orchestra had expressed themselves perfectly satisfied with the treatment they were receiving at the hands of the management. The present application for a new trial must be dismissed with costs.

Lords Justices Farwell and Kennedy gave judgment to the like effect.

The appeal was accordingly dismissed with costs.

PORTER v. LAWRENCE.—A SHAKESPEARE ORCHESTRA.

In the West London County Court, Mr W. Bell Porter, musician, sued Mr. Gerald Leslie Lawrence, actor manager, for £65, fees claimed for the services of an orchestra.

Mr. Ricardo, in opening the case, said that at an interview it was arranged that plaintiff should furnish an orchestra of twelve instruments for the Court at a cost of £20 per week of seven performances. The rehearsals were attended by Mr. Lawrence, who on several occasions complimented the performers and expressed approval of the music. After the performance of April 26, Mr. Langley, the business manager, told him to see Mr. Lawrence, as he wanted to "cut" the orchestra. At the subsequent interview in Mr. Lawrence's room that gentleman told him that he would not require the orchestra after Saturday. Thereupon plaintiff pointed out that his orchestra had been engaged for six weeks. On the 29th plaintiff got a letter from Mr. Langley confirming the conversation of April 26, and the amount due for salaries was paid on that date. Being dissatisfied with this sudden dismissal this action was brought.

Plaintiff, in his evidence, bore out this statement.

Mr. Thorn Drury submitted there was no case to answer. Plaintiff had obtained this appointment on false pretences. Defendant in his evidence, said that plaintiff said nothing about what notice the band would want. After the first performance on the Monday he told plaintiff that the music was execrable, and that he must arrange to go on the following Saturday.

Answering Mr. Ricardo, witness said he accepted plaintiff's statement that he had conducted under Mr. F. R. Benson in the Shake-spare week. He had made constant complaints about the music.

In giving judgment, his Honour found that the defendant had been induced to enter into this contract by misrepresentation. It was also proved that defendant had from the first been extremely dissatisfied with the orchestra. There would be judgment for the defendant, with costs.

JULY.

FOX v. MOORE.

At the Londonderry Petty Sessions, Albert and Nellie Fox, music-hall artists, sued Mr. W. Moore, proprietor of the social Bijou Theatre of Varieties for salary.

Mr. Scott, who appeared for the Foxes, explained that his clients had been engaged for a week's performance at Moore's hall for £4 10s. After their first turn they were told that their business was not suitable to a Londonderry audience, and Moore said he could only pay them £2. The Foxes refused to continue the contract under the circumstances, and issued a summons for the £4 10s.

Mr. Maxwell, who defended, raised the question that as the claim was for breach of contract it was not within the jurisdiction of the magistrates to determine the matter.

It was decided to hear the case.

Albert Fox said that no complaint was made about the performance on the Monday night he opened. On Tuesday word was left at his lodgings that Mr. Moore wanted to see him that morning. At the interview which took place, Moore said witness's business did not suit a Londonderry audience, and asked that it should be changed. Witness agreed to make a change, and on Tuesday night went to work and got dressed for the performance. Moore then sent word that they were not to go on the stage unless they accepted £2, and to this witness and his wife would not agree. They had appeared in Dublin, the witness added, with the same business, and it was all right there.

In cross-examination witness admitted that he was asked to change a song entitled "Put 'em down," in which he impersonated an old lady crossing a street.

In answer to further questions, witness said the engagement had been entered upon as the result of an advertisement in THE STAGE.

Mr. Maxwell (reading the advertisement): "Fox and Fox, refined comedy duettists." (To witness): Is there anything refined in a lady in skirts singing "Put your skirts down"?

Witness: That's not in our duet.

Mr. Moore, the defendant, asked what objection there was to Fox's song, said it was scandalous.

The magistrates granted a decree for the full amount claimed.

Mr. Maxwell gave notice of appeal.

GOLD v. BEAUCHAMP.—PITCHES ON MARGATE SANDS.

In the Chancery Division before Mr. Justice Neville, Mr. Harry Gold, of the "Dandy Cynos," sought an injunction to restrain Mr. R. Beauchamp from performing for the "Smart Serenaders" or any other rival entertainment on the Margate sands.

Mr. Justice Neville continued an interim injunction previously granted until the trial of the action.

LYNN v. ROBERTSON.—CLAIM FOR THEATRICAL PROPERTIES.

In the West London County Court, an action was brought for the return of certain stage furniture, scenery, and theatrical properties, or £100 damages. The plaintiff was Mrs. Marguerite Lynn, 119, Fielding Road, Bedford Park, S.W., and the defendant, Mr. J. F. Robertson, Mostyn House, Hendon.

Mr. Lost Williams (instructed by Mr. Cyril Broxholm) said the articles sued for were required for the production of the sketch A Doctor's Experiment (written by Mr. Lynn). She had borrowed £90 from Mr. Lowry to purchase the properties, etc., now claimed. Mr. Robertson said he had a cheaper place in which to store the goods, and they were removed to that receptacle, Mr. Lynn keeping the key. In January, 1908, Mrs. Lynn discovered that the defendant was producing a sketch at the White City, Manchester, and on her going down there she saw that the whole of her goods were being used in the production. On being applied to defendant refused to deliver up the goods, and this action was brought.

After evidence by the plaintiff, Mr. John Wellesley Lynn, and Mr. H. A. Snow, and by the defendant and Mr. Conrad Franklyn, counsel for the defence submitted that whatever the plaintiff's title to the goods she was now stopped from claiming them. She was present when her husband said that they were his, in order that he might obtain money, and she did not say that the goods were hers.

His Honour adopted this view, and gave judgment for the defendant with costs.

FORTUNE AND GRANVILLE v. FERNANDO. A CLAIM FOR COMMISSION.

Before his Honour Judge Woodfall, in the Westminster County Court, the case of Fortune and Granville v. Fernando was tried, and was an action by the plaintiffs, dramatic and music-hall agents, to recover the sum of £92 as commission for procuring engagements for the defendant in respect of three Stoll tours.

The defendant, who was described as a ventriloquist, disputed the plaintiffs' claim on the ground that he never accepted the engagements which were offered to him, and that the dates and salaries did not meet with his approval.

Mr. Martin O'Connor was counsel for the plaintiffs, and Mr. Walter Payne appeared for the defendant.

Mr. Granville was called, and said he was a member of the plaintiff firm, and the contracts in question were made with Mr. Scoll to suit the defendant's dates. The defendant wrote to them to the effect that the contracts must be as and when he wanted, and his wishes were complied with as far as possible.

Mr. Payne, on behalf of the defendant, submitted that there was no case for him to answer.

His Honour said the plaintiffs had not made out a case for commission, but they might recover on a question of damages.

The defendant was then called, and said it was quite true that the plaintiffs made him certain offers in respect of three Stoll tours, but he declined to accept them when he found that they did not fit in with his other dates, and that the salaries were not what he required.

His Honour, after a lengthy hearing, said the case was one of very considerable importance, and it was with great reluctance that he had come to the conclusion that there must be judgment for the defendant. He thought the plaintiffs had been very hardly treated by the defendant, but their claim was for commission, and they had failed to substantiate it, and had also failed to make out any claim in respect of damages. The result therefore would be that there must be judgment for the defendant with costs.

ROBINSON v. GREAT SOUTHERN AND WESTERN RAILWAY (IRELAND).—RAILWAY COMPANY AND THEATRICAL LUGGAGE.

At Wexford Quarter Sessions, before his Honour Judge Barry, K.C., Richard Robinson, otherwise known as Dicky Clare, brought an action against the Great Southern and Western Railway Company, his "properties," scenery, and company's dresses having been conveyed by an error of the defendants to Bournemouth in January, 1909, when the company were billed to appear at Wexford; £50 damages were claimed.

Mr. M. J. O'Connor, solicitor, in stating the case for the plaintiff, said that the luggage had been booked on a special truck from Limerick on January 22. The theatrical people received special rates for the carriage of their luggage at their own risk, as in this case, and the conditions laid down by the company that the consignor agreed on behalf of himself and the respective members of his company to relieve the railway company, in consideration of these special rates, and all other companies over whose lines the goods passed in the operation of transit, of all liability for loss, damage, misdelivery, detention, or delay from whatever cause arising. The goods were sent on, but, unfortunately for Mr. Robinson, at the same time there were five trucks coming from Cork for Bournemouth for Mr. F. R. Benson's company. One of Benson's trucks went on by express to Ballygeary, and the five should have gone on together, but four of them came to Wexford South Station. Mr. Robinson's separate waggon also came on from Limerick, and by a gross mistake on the part of someone in charge they took on Lucky Liza's company's waggon and sent it on to Ballygeary with Benson's. That meant for plaintiff that, as he had no scenery, his company were unable to appear, and the theatre was closed that night, and they had to wait until the next night when it came back.

His Honour: That is a tremendous condition that the railway company lay down. How do you get out of that, Mr. O'Connor?

Mr. O'Connor: I say that when the waggon arrived here the luggage was no longer in transit.

His Honour: That seems to cover even negligence. This, at most, was negligence—stupidity if you like.

Mr. O'Connor: They are relieved of liability only while the goods are in transit.

His Honour read the company's conditions, which were to the effect that in the case of goods not delivered the company charged for warehousing them.

Mr. O'Connor: In these cases the theatrical company do the carting, and when the goods are not delivered the company take upon themselves the obligation of warehousing them, but they did not discharge that duty on this occasion, as they sent the luggage away again.

His Honour held that as long as the goods were on the waggon they were in transit, and the plaintiff was subject to the conditions he had signed. When the railway company gave them less than ordinary fares and carried the luggage free they made this company relieve them of all responsibility. As to the conditions being unreasonable, they were reasonable inasmuch as they afforded an advantage to the people who were in a position to make use of them. These goods were in transit as they were left on the waggon; they were sent to the wrong place; there was loss, damage, mis-delivery, detention, and delay, and although everything of that kind occurred the company, by their conditions, were not liable. The things were sent to the wrong place, and that was the thing the railway company guarded themselves against from whatever cause arising. It was very hard upon Mr. Robinson to be put to so much loss and inconvenience, but his Honour did not see that he had any way out of the contract he made, and which he (plaintiff) signed himself, and he must dismiss the case on the merits.

OVERCROWDING.—MR. JASPER REDFERN FINED.

Before Messrs. C. Taylor and R. Montgomery, at the City Police Court, Liverpool, Mr. Jasper Redfern, of the Grand Tivoli, Lime Street, was summoned for permitting a breach of the theatre rules by allowing persons to stand on the right and left back passages of the pit at the Tivoli.

The defendant admitted the offence, but said it had always been customary to allow people to stand so long as a clear passage was kept.

The Chairman pointed out that the plans showed that the only standing room allowed was two rows at the back.

Mr. Redfern was fined 40s. and costs.

UNITED COUNTY THEATRES v. FER-GUSSON.—BREACH OF CONTRACT.

In the case of the United County Theatres v. Ferrusson and Mack, which came before Judge Woodfall in the Westminster County Court as a claim for damages for breach of contract, Mr. Walter Payne, counsel for the plaintiffs, said that the defendants were engaged through Messrs. Rosen and Bliss, plaintiffs' booking agents, to appear at the Hippodrome, Devonport, for one week at £25, and they afterwards asked to be released, as they were engaged for the pantomime at the Camden. Defendants were told that they could be released on payment of the amount of the salary. They did not perform, and had not paid the £25.

The defence was that the salary at the pantomime was £30 a week and extra for matinées, and Mr. Bliss, in a conversation with Mr. Goodson (Day's Agency) at the Oxford, agreed to arrange a future date, so that the defendants could accept the pantomime engagement.

To rebut this Mr. Bliss said that he remembered the conversation with Mr. Goodson, and he told him distinctly that the Devonport engagement could not be postponed. He most emphatically refused to discuss any alteration in the date. The turn that took the defendants' place at Devonport cost £40.

Mr. Doughty, counsel for the defence, submitted that the balance of evidence was in his favour, and referred to the correspondence, upon which he contended that the engagement of the turn to take the place of the defendants' at Devonport was immediately following the release of the defendants.

His Honour held that the defendants had failed to prove that the contract was waived. He said that he was sorry for the defendants, but the judgment would be for the plaintiffs, with costs. He would consider what the amount should be and communicate it to the Registrar.

On the 15th His Honour completed his judgment and awarded the plaintiffs £25 with costs.

SMOKING IN THEATRES.—A STOCKPORT PROSECUTION.

At the Stockport Peace Court, William George Gilmore, the manager of the Stockport Empire, was summoned for permitting smoking in the theatre when the premises were solely used for dramatic entertainment, contrary to the rules, on June 9, 14, 22, and 26. Mr. Hall, the Deputy Town Clerk, prosecuted, and Mr. Briggs defended.

Mr. Hall stated that one of the rules read, "No smoking shall be permitted within that part of the theatre set apart for spectators when the premises are solely used for dramatic entertainments." He had two points to establish. One that smoking was taking place and was not stopped, and secondly that whilst smoking was going on the premises were used solely for dramatic entertainments. He should prove that on the four days in question, although Mr. Gilmore had been warned and his attention drawn to the rule, smoking was not stopped.

Inspector Lee, Sergeant Brierly, and other officers gave evidence as to the smoking taking place.

For the defence Mr. Briggs pointed out that though smoking was permitted and was not stopped in the early stages, subsequently Mr. Gilmore made an attempt to prevent smoking taking place. The theatre was licensed for the performance of stage plays, and the definition of stage plays given in the Theatres Act included those entertainments which were given at the Empire Theatre. It was upon the word "solely" in the rule that everything hinged. When the matter was brought to the knowledge of Mr. R. O. Gilmore, the solicitor to the company, he wrote a letter on June 15 to the chairman of the Watch Committee, contending that "we are strictly within the rule, as the premises were not used solely for dramatic entertainments." Bioscope pictures and music-hall turns were also given. The Lord Chamberlain, it was pointed out, now allowed smoking in London theatres confined to the legitimate drama, and it was allowed under similar circumstances in Birmingham, Liverpool, and other places.

Mr. Gilmore, in the box, said smoking was permitted at Manchester theatres. The difference between the sketches produced at his theatre and those dramas known as legitimate dramas was that at his theatre the drop screen was up during the whole of the performance, and in the other cases the performance was divided into acts. He contended that the premises were not solely used for dramatic entertainments. After the letter from the Watch Committee he took steps to prevent people smoking by stopping them himself and instructing the staff to do the same. Notices were also printed on the programmes and bills.

Cross-examined: Smoking had continued since the receipt of the letter from the Watch Committee, but not with his consent, and against his wishes and best endeavours to stop it.

The magistrates retired, and after a few minutes' absence the Chairman said they had considered the case, and it would be adjourned for seven days in order to see if the management of the theatre could stop smoking during dramatic performances.

Mr. Briggs said he might have to appeal.

The Chairman added that they did not want to take very strong measures. "If you like to appeal after we have given you our decision we shall not stop you. It is a ticklish point. The whole thing stands on the meaning of "dramatic" and "solely." As Mr. Gilmore has said he has done his best to stop smoking we will give him another week.

When the case again came before the Bench it was dismissed on payment of costs.

[A point worthy of note in connection with this case is that the only penalty the magistrates can impose on conviction is to order the theatre to be closed. No alternative such as a fine can be inflicted.—Editor, STAGE YEAR BOOK.]

KINEMATOGRAPH ENTERTAINMENTS WITH MUSIC.

At Westminster Police Court, at the instance of Mr. J. L. Graydon, hon. secretary of the Entertainments Protection Association, Mr. George Washington Grant, theatrical manager, of Aldwych Mansions, W.C., appeared before Mr. Horace Smith on a summons for keeping and using the premises at Wilton Road, Victoria, S.W., for public music without a license, contrary to the 25 Geo. II., chap. 36, sec. 2.

Mr. Walter Payne, counsel in support of the summons, said that the entertainment provided was a cinematograph show of various popular events to the accompaniment of music.

Mr. Harold Brandon, counsel for the defence, said that the real point was whether they came within the Disorderly House Act, and whether the playing of a piano in a perfectly dark room was a substantial part of the performance.

Mr. Horace Smith.—You do not dispute that the piano is played, and played during the entertainment?

Mr. Brandon.—No, but we say it is merely accessory, and therefore comes within the section of the Act which says no license will be required.

Mr. Horace Smith said that he did not think there was any case made out at all, and the summons was dismissed. He did not think the music was any essential part of the performance.

VARIETY THEATRES CONSOLIDATED v. TATE.

In the King's Bench Division, before Mr. Justice Bucknill, Mr. Storry Deans, on behalf of the Variety Theatres Consolidated, moved for judgment, in default of appearance, in an action against Harry Tate, and for an injunction restraining him from performing until February, 1913, at any hall within two miles of the South London Palace. In breach of the agreement Mr. Tate appeared at the Camberwell Palace, and the plaintiffs commenced an action for an injunction to restrain him from committing any further breach. Mr. Tate had not put in an appearance to the action, and the plaintiffs now asked for judgment for an injunction.

An injunction was granted, with costs.

KELLY v. NEVILLE.—INFRINGEMENT OF COPYRIGHT IN "A ROYAL DIVORCE."

In the King's Bench Division, Mr. Justice Bucknill heard an action by Mr. William Wallace Kelly for an injunction and damages against Mr. P. H. Neville for infringement of his copyright in the play by W. G. Wills, A Royal Divorce. It was alleged that a piece called Napoleon's Divorce was in various respects a reproduction of the former play, and had been performed, among other places, at the Star, Liverpool, and the Royal, Stratford. The defendant had not put in an appearance to the action. The plaintiff asked for the minimum statutory damages as for one performance only—namely, 40s.

His Lordship granted the injunction, with damages for 40s. and costs.

JONES AND OTHERS v. COHEN.—STAGE CARPENTERS' NOTICES.

In the Whitechapel County Court, before Judge Bacon, Mr. Cohen, manager of the 12 Yiddish Theatres, Limited, was sued by Herbert Jones, who had been master carpenter at the Pavilion, Mile End Road, by four stage carpenters named Barnard, Sanderson, Holland, and Bachelor, and two electricians named Simmons and Jerwood, for wages in lieu of notice.

Mr. Frowd Phelps, solicitor, appeared for the defendant.

The master carpenter claimed that he was entitled to a fortnight's notice. That was the custom, he urged, throughout the trade. He was engaged by Mr. Brown on behalf of Mr. Cohen, and then was suddenly informed that his services were no longer required. He was not satisfied with that dismissal, especially as there was certain money owing to him in respect of articles which he had bought and paid for in the course of his work, and such money had not been refunded to him.

Judge Bacon intimated that he would allow the master carpenter £1 16s. 8d. in respect of the money he had expended, but he could not recognise his claim to a fortnight's notice.

The other cases were then proceeded with, and the master carpenter, giving evidence in support of these men, who had worked under him, said that stage carpenters were entitled to a week's notice just the same as artists.

The judge found that the stage carpenters were not entitled to any further notice than that which they had received.

BENSON v. LEIGH GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME, LIMITED.

This action appeared in the list at the Manchester Assizes, the plaintiff being William Benson, musician, of Wigan, and the defendants the Leigh Grand Theatre and Hippodrome, Limited, and the claim entered was for £900 for alleged wrongful dismissal of the plaintiff from the position he had held in the defendant company as managing director. The case appeared in the list for hearing before Lord Coleridge and a special jury, but on July 13 there was an announcement in court that an amicable settlement had been arrived at. Counsel engaged for the plaintiff were Mr. Langdon and Dr. Atkinson (instructed by Mr. Doolson, of Leigh), and Mr. E. Acton (instructed by Messrs. Peace and Ellis, Wigan) was retained for the defendants.

Making the announcement in Court of the settlement of the action, Mr. Langdon said the defendants had consented to a judgment for a sum mentioned on his brief. There was one matter he would like to mention, he proceeded, which had given rise to considerable talk in Leigh, where the defendants came from. The talk arose out of a defence that had been put in the pleadings alleging that the plaintiff, who had been managing director for the defendants, had been receiving secret commissions for the engagement of artists. Of course, it was a serious imputation upon the plaintiff, and one he was fully prepared to disprove. During the course of the proceedings the defendants had allowed the part of the defence referring to that matter to be struck out, but that fact, and that there was no shadow of substance in it, was not known to the public.

Mr. Acton said that as soon as the defendants found out that the information they had received was not correct, as his lordship had heard, that part of the defence was, of course, struck out. The defendants gave notice to the other side that they were not proceeding with it and preferred it to be struck out, and all imputations with regard to that matter were unreservedly withdrawn.

Judgment according to the terms of the agreement was entered.

ENTERTAINMENT FRAUDS.—ALFRED VEO SENTENCED.

At Hampstead Police Court, Alfred Veo, aged forty, entertainment agent, of Tyllor's Avenue, Southend-on-Sea, was charged on remand with obtaining by false pretences £14 10s. from Harry Cox, amusement caterer, of the Vale of Health, Hampstead, and £10 from Robert Thomas Harris, a traveller, of Peckham.

Mr. Cox said that on May 15 he saw advertisements offering ground for the placing of amusement shows at Wembley Park, for which application had to be made to "Mr. Clarke, 24, Oakley Square, N.W." He went to Oakley Square and saw the prisoner, who stated that he was the managing director of "The Imperial Amusement Syndicate," which was run by Mr. Keith, an American millionaire. He suggested that they should go together to Wembley Park to view the ground, and they did so. The witness arranged with Veo to take over the ground for the season from Whit Monday, May 31, until the end of September, and agreed to pay £55 for the season. He actually paid £14 10s., and subsequently discovered that Veo had no interest in Wembley Park, and that he had disappeared.

Mr. R. Jacobs, of Wightman Road, Haringey, secretary to Wembley, Limited, said that his company received a letter from a Mr. Clarke, of Oakley Square, offering £40 a week for certain ground for the season from Whit Monday to the end of September, but they had never received any part of the money.

In the second case, Mr. Harris said that on April 29 he saw an advertisement in THE STAGE offering a situation for a young gentleman who could give security to take charge of amusements at the White City. He replied to the advertisement, offering £10 as security, and subsequently had some correspondence with Veo, whom he also met on several occasions. Eventually he paid Veo £10, and was told that he had been appointed. He was to look after four shows and the men and receive £2 10s. a week. Later on, as Veo did not keep certain appointments, witness called at Veo's address and found that he had left. Becoming suspicious, he communicated with the authorities at the White City, and was told that Veo had nothing to do with it.

He was sentenced to six months' imprisonment on each charge. Previous convictions on similar charges were proved against the prisoner.

MARINELLI v. BOGANNY, AND THE PROPRIETORS AND PRINTERS OF "THE PERFORMER" ACTION FOR ALLEGED LIBEL.

A music hall libel action came up for assessment of damages before Under Sheriff Burchell and a jury at the London Sheriff's Court in Red Lion Square.

The plaintiff was Mr. Hermann Buettner Marinelli, variety agent, of 29a, Charing Cross Road, W.C.

The defendants were Mr. Joe Boganny, of the troupe The Royal Lunatic Bakers, Messrs Edmund Edmunds, Joe Elvan and Paul Martinelli (representing the Variety Artists' Federation, the registered proprietors of The Performer), and Messrs. O'Hanns, Limited, of 93 and 94, Long Acre, the printers of that journal.

The alleged libel was contained in an advertisement which occupied the whole of the front page of The Performer on Thursday, January 21, 1909. Under the heading "Joe Boganny's Royal Lunatic Bakers, Palace Theatre, Shaftesbury Avenue, London, until further notice," was reproduced a photograph of members of the troupe, standing beside a placard of the "Orpheum," Boston, U.S.A., with the name of the troupe heading the bill. On each side of the photograph was letterpress, and the part which contained the alleged libel read:—"Variety.—New York, October 17, 1908.—Boganny made good.—A story was current this week which explains the presence on this side of the Boganny Troupe of Lunatic Bakers, now playing the Morris time, and a big success at the Lincoln Square this week. When the Morris agency was booking for the Klaw and Erlanger vaudeville enterprise the Boganny Troupe was placed under contract, but when they appeared over here it was discovered a poor substitute had been palmed off on the American managers. Boganny is said to have lent himself to this deception at the behest of H. B. Marinelli. When William Morris was in London some months ago he sent for Joe Boganny, and in the Morris London office expressed his opinion of the big acrobat, afterwards demanding that the original troupe be brought over this year by way of making good for the former substitution. Boganny thereupon showed Morris his date-book, and agreed to fill in as much American time as his home engagements would permit."

In The Performer of the following week the defendants (the proprietors of the paper) published an apology in a conspicuous position, and when the action was entered apologised again, and also paid 40s. into Court.

Plaintiff was represented by Mr. R. Storry Deans, and the defendant was not represented.

Mr. Storry Deans said that Mr. Boganny was the author of the libel, the others being merely the proprietors and publishers of the paper. They had apologised and paid a certain sum into court, expressed their regret for the libel, and offered to pay costs. That had been accepted as far as the publishers and printers were concerned by the plaintiff, they being comparatively innocent parties in the matter. Counsel said he was not at all certain that Mr. Boganny would not be able to add to his title of "Lunatic Baker" that of "maniac advertiser." He imputed to Mr. Marinelli a very grave and deliberate fraud. Through him Mr. Boganny obtained an engagement with Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger. Before the artist left Mr. Marinelli heard a rumour that Mr. Boganny had booked himself for the same date as in New York for Vienna, and had undertaken to take the original troupe, including himself, to Vienna. Plaintiff saw Mr. Boganny, and said he hoped Mr. Boganny was not going to do a thing of that kind, because plaintiff had engaged for New York the original troupe, and not a Number 2 company. There had been of late years a great growth in the number of musical sketches. Mr. Boganny sent over to America a Number 2 troupe, which was not a gigantic success. It was prettily heavily slated in the New York Press. Subsequently Mr. Boganny secured another engagement in America through another agent, Mr. Morris, and this time did go himself, taking an efficient troupe, and secured a very great success. He was interviewed by the New York papers, and he appeared to have given certain information to some of the trade papers, including Variety, which circulated among music hall agents and performers. To bring a libel against a paper in New York was the most hopeless of hopeless enterprises, but Mr. Boganny came back to England and advertised in The Performer, the organ of the Variety Artists' Federation. In his advertisement in The Performer he inserted the paragraph complained of, to the effect that he had swindled the New York variety people and the public, and had done so at the behest of Mr. Marinelli. That was a very serious matter, because it not only accused Mr. Marinelli of the grave offence of swindling, but of swindling in such a way that if it were true he would lose, and deservedly lose, the whole of his business.

The Under-Sheriff told the jury to give such a verdict that the trade would know that there was no foundation for the report, and to take into consideration how much plaintiff's good name had been injured.

The jury assessed the damages at £150. Judgment was entered accordingly, with costs.

DANKS v. SHEREK AND BRAFF.—APPEAL. NEW TRIAL GRANTED.

In the Court of Appeal, before Lords Justices Vaughan-Williams, Moulton, and Buckley, the defendants in this action, Messrs. Sherek and Braff appealed from the decision given in the action which was tried before the Lord Chief Justice and a jury in February last.

The plaintiff, an actress whose professional name is Miss Mamie Stewart, sued the defendants for damages, alleging breach of warranty, misrepresentation, and breach of duty in connection with an engagement they secured for her at Buenos Aires. The defendants denied this, and counterclaimed for £9, fees for procuring her an engagement.

The plaintiff's case was that in June, 1907, she was introduced to the defendants for the purpose of their procuring her a theatrical engagement, and that Mr. Braff persuaded her to accept an engagement at the Casino, Buenos Aires, to be followed by an engagement in Paris. She, by the contract, which was written in French, agreed to perform at the Casino for two months, at a salary of £12 a week.

She contended that the Casino was not a respectable theatre, and she determined to leave Buenos Aires, but as, under the terms of her contract, this might have led to her arrest, she went to the British Consul for advice, and afterwards did leave the country on paying into court £124. The jury at the time assessed the damages at £250.

Mr. Rawlinson, K.C., on behalf of the appellants, said that the main grounds of the appeal were that there was no evidence of fraudulent misrepresentation by the defendants or of any warranty. The plaintiff had no cause of action against the defendants, as they were simply the agents introducing her to the owner of the Casino. There was no evidence that there was anything wrong at the Casino at the date of the statements by the defendants concerning the character or reputation of the hall, upon which the plaintiff relied.

The hearing was continued on the 18th.

Mr. Rawlinson, continuing his arguments, said that what he pressed most strongly was that where they had an agent advising a client, all the probabilities were that there was no contract making the agent personally liable. An artist went to an agent to get her an appointment, and he gave her advice but no warranty. His point was that in this case there was no evidence of fraudulent misrepresentation, or that Mr. Braff knew of any complaints in connection with the Casino.

Lord Justice Moulton: But you must assume that the jury came to the conclusion that it was at the time and had been an improper place. They practically said, "You ought to have found it out; you cannot be representing a place like that for seven years without knowing. He must either have known or have wilfully shut his eyes."

Mr. Rawlinson: That was never put to him. It was not suggested that he was "recklessly" shutting his eyes. I fancy the jury had a vague sort of idea that he ought to have made further inquiries when he was taking money as an agent. Of course, the charge is a serious one for people like this who have big places in New York and Vienna as well as London. I submit that the finding was completely against the weight of evidence. We had a large number of artists to show that the Casino up to July was a proper place in every way, and that different artists in the music hall world of good standing had been there. It was regarded as a first-class music hall. Of course, you cannot warrant that improper things will never occur at music halls abroad. I say that there was no evidence of fraudulent misrepresentation or shutting of eyes to facts. There is not a scintilla of evidence to that effect. You have, on the contrary, both partners called producing books extending over a large number of years, calling seven or nine out of the hundreds of witnesses they might have called who knew all about the place. The Lord Chief Justice was against the evidence of fraud all the way, but did not explain quite as fully as possible the question of recklessness and carelessness—such carelessness as amounted to want of honesty. That was never pointed out. All that Mr. Braff is alleged to have said is that the Casino was a place of high standing, that good artists went there, and that it was a refined entertainment. That is surely a mere statement truthfully made, and made in the honest belief that it was a true and simple statement made by agent to client who asked for advice. He simply said, "It is on my books, and I can offer it to you. It is a first-class entertainment. If you care to take it I can offer it you." Nothing was said about "I will not go unless you assure me so-and-so."

Lord Justice Buckley: She said "I relied upon Mr. Braff; I would not have gone but for what he told me."

Mr. Rawlinson: Yes, she said Mr. Braff told her the Casino was on the same footing as the Palace Theatre, London, and mentioned that Miss Ada Reeve, Miss Kitty Gordon, and Mme. Tetravzini appeared there; also that it was a refined entertainment, and that her turn was the kind of performance that would suit the audience.

Mr. Edwards proceeded to address himself to the question of warranty. He submitted that from the evidence given by the plaintiff and the admissions of the defendant Braff there was clearly direct evidence of warranty. Referring to the point that the defendants' representations regarding the Casino were recklessly and carelessly made, counsel said that if Mr. Braff did not know the true state of things that went on he ought to have done.

Lord Justice Buckley: It won't do to say he ought to have known. You have got to show that at the time he affirmed the truth of a fact that he had any knowledge, true or untrue, and took upon himself to say, "I say this is true."

JUDGMENT: LORD JUSTICE VAUGHAN WILLIAMS.

Lord Justice Vaughan Williams: We are of opinion that there must be a new trial in this case. The claim is based upon an alternative basis; one is an allegation as to warranty and the other is an allegation of fraud, or of a condition of mind in making the statements which are said to be false. At all events, there was evidence which is only consistent with a fraudulent mind. As I said, whatever people may say when they are dealing with a question of abstract morality, and therefore abstract fraud, in law if a man makes an affirmative statement (a negative one for the matter of that, but we have to deal with an affirmative statement), and makes it recklessly, without caring whether it is true or false, indifferent as to the truth of the statement that he is making, the law regards that and binds us to regard that as evidence of a fraudulent mind—that is, evidence of a fraudulent mind when the statement is made which is false. It may be that if you had to deal with it as a mere question of morality, some moralists might hesitate to say that a man who made a statement without knowing it to be false and indifferent as to whether what he stated was true or false was guilty of fraud; but whatever moralists may say about it, ever since the decision in Peak v. Derry in the House of Lords it has been settled in point of law that to make a statement in the frame of mind I have just described—that is, recklessly and without caring whether the statement is true or false—is evidence of fraud.

QUESTION OF WARRANTY.

Now, I will deal first with the question of warranty. I am not sure, but I think that the summing-up of the learned judge to the jury in respect of the matter of warranty was not very easy for the jury to understand. If the jury had been lawyers it might have been a different thing; but what he says is this: "If, on the other hand, the young lady said to him, 'I am rather doubtful about taking this engagement,' and the agent said, 'You can take it safely. I will undertake that it is a thoroughly good place,' the jury, on those sort of facts, find that there was a contract." I agree in every word of that. "It is very important that you should bear in mind the distinction. I hope I have made my meaning clear. It is not very easy to follow, and I have known juries sometimes have great difficulties about it. You have to make up your mind that whatever you are satisfied the defendant said was said as an undertaking or promise by him. The word 'warranty' need not be used"—that is quite accurate—but you must be satisfied that it was an undertaking or promise by the defendant as distinguished from a representation which must be honestly made." Then, again, he says later on: "I hope I have made my direction clear to you as to the distinction between warranty and representation. If not, and if any of you will ask me any questions upon it, I shall be glad to make it clearer. I have done my best, and I will leave it there, hoping and trusting that I have been sufficiently clear, and that you, with your commercial experience, will be able to follow. I now come to the question of what the evidence is on each part of the case. Let us first consider what the plaintiff has proved with regard to the question of warranty. The evidence with regard to warranty or contract does not involve any of the evidence of these artists who have been called before us, and therefore it is better to keep it separate. It is spoken to by Mrs. Danks, and it is spoken to on the defendants' part by Mr. Braff, Mr. Rottenburg, and Mr. Cochran. The plaintiff says that she went to the place on the introduction of Mr. Cochran (who was called by the defendants), that she on one occasion saw Seguin—she thinks she was there two or three times—and she relied entirely upon what Braff told her, which is probably perfectly true." It is necessary to observe there the learned judge does not say, and accurately does not say, that the plaintiff said she told the defendant Braff that she relied entirely upon what Braff told her. Then the learned judge goes on: "Mr. Braff says he knew that she was not acquainted with Buenos Aires, and he did make certain statements which he says were quite true, and which he was entitled to make. Of course, he is her agent to find her an engagement, and the commission he earns is for finding her an engagement, and therefore his duty is honestly to advise her." Everyone will agree that he honestly advised her, but that is a very different thing from saying that every statement which he makes is intended as between the parties to be a warranty. "He does not make a contract with her as a rule. Therefore you must be satisfied that the plaintiff has proved on the evidence that he made a contract with, or a promise to, her as to the character of the engagement." Then he goes on to give an idea of what the engagement was, and then when he is coming towards the end of the case he says, after setting out the evidence: "The plaintiff having given that account, of course it depends upon her own statement, and you really must take that account." That is accepting that account as far as it goes, I suppose. "Even assuming Mr. Braff to have said everything she said, do you consider, in your judgment, and do you find that there was a contract? It is just the sort of thing that the agent would say." I do not think I need, upon this question of warranty, read any further part of the learned judge's summing-up.

SOME AUTHORITIES.

There is some authority upon this matter of warranty. We had cited to us to-day the case of De Lassalle v. Guildford, which is reported in 1902 King's Bench Division at page 215, and we were told that it is an authority in this case which is perfectly accurate. At page 221 there is this: "To create a warranty no special form of words is necessary. It must be a collateral undertaking forming part of the contract by agreement of the parties, express or implied, and must be given during the course of the dealing which leads to the bargain, and should then enter into the bargain as part of it." Then the case is cited; but that statement, although perfectly true as far as it goes, does not really state the whole law with reference to it, and there is in the judgment of Mr. Justice Buller, in Pasley v. Freeman, a passage I am going to read which appears on page 72 in the second volume of "Smith's Leading Cases," where he says: "But the cases cited on the part of the defendant deserving notice are Yelv. 20; Carth. 90; 1 Salk 210. The first of these has been fully stated by my brother Groves; but it is to be observed that the book does not affect to give reasons on which the Court delivered their judgment, but it is a case quoted by counsel at the Bar, who mentions what was alleged by counsel in the other case. If the Court went on a distinction between the words 'warranty' and 'affirmation,' the case is not law; for it was rightly held by Chief Justice Holt in the subsequent cases, and has been uniformly adopted ever since, that an affirmation at the time of a sale is a warranty provided it appear on evidence to have been so intended." Having read that passage, I want to say just one word about the relation of the parties here. The relation here is not the relation of vendor and purchaser. The rule that I have just read applies to the full whether it is vendor and purchaser or whether the relation is something else. But here the relation is a relation between two people—an actress wishing to get an engagement and a commission agent who is prepared to try and find one—but I do not think it ought to be left out of consideration that the prima facie object of such an agent is to procure one. It may perfectly well be that in the course of giving his advice the conversation may be such as would make it plain to him, from the words used by the person he is advising, his client, that the person advised wants distinct information of fact upon a particular point, and is not asking for a mere opinion or advice. That is a digression as to the different questions which would arise in one relation and the other in the relation of vendor and purchaser, and in the relation of actress seeking an employment and an agent to procure. Of course, one might give numberless instances of somebody wishing a house and an agent taking a commission to find a house for the client. But, however, what you have to deal with is the intention which is to be inferred from the interview between the person seeking to get something and the agent who is the agent to procure.

The proposition that I have been seeking to lay down will be found to be affirmed in Power v. Barham in 4, Adolphus and Ellis, page 473. The subject matter there was a picture. The picture had been said to be stated in a bill of parcels: "Four pictures, views in Venice, Canaletto," and under those circumstances the question arose whether that statement was a question of warranty or a question of opinion. Lord Denman, in delivering judgment, said: "We must take the learned judge to have stated to them the language of Lord Kenyon in Jendwine v. Slade was merely the intimation of his opinion upon such a contract as was then before him. It may be true that, in the case of very old pictures, a person can only express an opinion as to their genuineness, and that is laid down by Lord Kenyon in the cases referred to. But the case here is that pictures are sold with a bill of parcels containing the words, 'Four pictures, views in Venice, Canaletto.' Now, words like these must derive their explanation from the ordinary way in which such matters are transacted." Then the learned judge goes on to point out that it might not be a mere statement of fact. Then Lord Justice Littledale says: "The case was rightly sent to the jury; though, as to their decision, I think that all the auctioneers in London would be alarmed if they thought that such words as these were to be understood as a warranty."

That being the state of the law, I do not think that Mr. Edwards, in his argument before us, has suggested, nor do I think that it was suggested at nisi prius, that if people stand in the relation that the plaintiff and defendant did, somebody seeking an engagement and an agent carrying on the business of procuring engagements, that the mere fact of that relation carries that everything the agent says in the course of conversation with his client amounts to a warranty. I do not think it was even argued, and, it not being argued, the whole of the question here is this: We have to find evidence of an intention by the parties to this conversation that these statements made about the engagement which was to be offered to this lady at Buenos Aires were warranties. In my opinion there is no evidence really here to rely upon that these statements were intended by the parties here to be a warranty. It is quite true that we have the first essential here which the plaintiff has to prove in order to constitute a warranty—that is, it is true that this was a matter as to which the agent had a great deal of information and to his knowledge the lady had none. That being so, it opens the door to finding a warranty if afterwards when one looks at the evidence we find that the representations were made under such conditions and after such conversation that you may fairly come to the conclusion that this statement was intended to be a warranty. In my opinion, when one looks at the evidence, there is no such evidence to be found. I think, on the contrary, that if one reads the whole of the conversation and the evidence of it, it is tolerably plain that neither party regarded this matter in respect of which the information was sought to be given as a matter which was intended by the parties to be a contract or a contractual warranty. In my judgment, the questions put and the answers given were both upon the basis, not that the plaintiff was asking for information which was intended by her to determine whether she should accept the engagement or not. It is tolerably plain, I think, from this evidence, that neither party could have thought or intended that that conversation should be so treated. But I do wish, having said this, to add that I share with the Lord Chief Justice the doubt whether the jury quite understood that the question whether there was a warranty or not depended entirely upon the relation of the parties (because that had to be taken into consideration), but also upon what took place at the interview between the parties, and I cannot help thinking that if the jury had really appreciated the importance of that question they would never have arrived at the verdict which they have. I do not propose saying anything more about warranty. I think, in the case of the warranty, the trial has not been satisfactory, and I think there must be a new trial.

QUESTION OF FRAUD.

Now, in respect of the charge of fraud, it is not charged specifically as fraud, but I have called it fraud because fraud is of the basis, or, if not actually fraud, a fraudulent mind at least is of the basis of the charge that is made here. It is desirable that one should read the evidence of the jury upon this matter and the questions. I do not wish to read the questions more than is absolutely necessary. The questions appear very much from the answers. The first question was: "Did the defendants warrant that the contract which they offered to the plaintiff was one which a lady of her standing could accept?" and the jury has found "Yes." I think there is no evidence, and I have said why I think there is no evidence; but I say also I do not think, on that part of the case, there is any evidence in fact of such a statement having been made as is set out here. Then, secondly: "Was the contract which the defendants offered the plaintiff one which an artist of her standing and reputation should accept?" The answer is "No." With regard to that part of the case I will not disturb the verdict of the jury in the answer to that question, and, of course, as the Chief Justice said in his summing-up, that being the true character of the business as carried on, and the representations given at this Casino, it is perfectly clear that this English lady declined in any way whatsoever to give her sanction by her presence on a stage on which this improper behaviour was being exhibited in public entertainments. The third question is: "Did the defendants make any false representation to the plaintiff—(a) As to the position of the Casino? Yes. (b) As to the lady artists who had performed there." The answer there is "No"; there is no dishonesty as to that. "(c) As to the class of the entertainment?—(A.) Yes." "Were such representations, if any, made by the defendants (a) Falsely to the knowledge of the defendants?—(A.) No. (b) Recklessly and carelessly made, not knowing or caring whether they were true or false?—(A.) Yes." Then damages £250. With regard to the express fraud, these answers, to my mind, are conclusive in favour of the defendant, because with regard to the statements being false to the knowledge of the defendants the answer is "No." "Recklessly and carelessly made, not knowing or caring whether they were true or false." To my mind the first answer disposes of the case of simple fraud, and we only have to consider the question of recklessly and carelessly made, not knowing or caring whether they were true or false. As I have already said, carelessly does not mean negligently. It means without caring; recklessly and without caring whether the statements made were true or false, indifferent as to the truth. But if it only meant carelessly in the sense of negligently, negligence is not fraud. What the decision in Peak v. Derry decided was that there is a frame of mind which, though it does not involve absolute knowledge that what you are saying is untrue, yet is so consistent with truth or with honesty that it is evidence of a fraudulent mind. It is quite obvious that the word "carelessly" there cannot mean simply negligently, but means without caring whether the statement was true or false.

With regard to this part of the case, I can say that, in my opinion, it is much easier to deal with. I think that when one bears in mind the facts which were relied upon on behalf of the plaintiff by Mr. Edwards, it is perfectly plain that this gentleman, having been an agent for so many years and had the placing of these artists at the Casino, had most ample reason for supposing that his experience justified his statement. It is quite true that the jury have now found, and I am very far from saying improperly, I find, that the present exhibitions at the Casino Theatre are of an improper character, but they have also found that when the defendant Braff made those statements about the representation at this theatre as to what the engagement involved he was not making any statements which were false to his knowledge. So we have here a man who not only has an opportunity of knowing about this Casino Theatre, but we know the materials he had before him, materials which included the programme book running over many years, and that highly respectable actors and actresses of good reputation for years past had without objection performed at this place. I say that, taking into consideration that he had all those materials to judge from, it is impossible to say there was any evidence that he made such statements as he did make recklessly or carelessly. In my opinion, there is not a tittle of evidence that these statements were either reckless or careless. Under these circumstances I do not feel that this verdict and judgment can stand; but at the same time, inasmuch as I am not sure whether the jury, when they made the answers which they did to the questions, really understood what the questions were which they had to answer, I think the safer course is not to order judgment for the defendants, but to say that there shall be a new trial.

LORD JUSTICE FLETCHER MOUTON.

Lord Justice Fletcher Moulton: I am also of opinion that the verdict and judgment in this case cannot stand. The jury have found that the defendants made a false representation as to the position of the Casino, and as to the class of entertainment. So far as that finding is concerned, it cannot be said that there was not evidence on both sides, so that that finding, if it stood alone, would be one we could not alter. But I feel satisfied myself, in view of the great preponderance of evidence on the other side, that the jury could not have been properly conscious that that which they had to decide about was the position of the Casino and the nature of the entertainment at the time when the alleged representation was made, and I think that they must have been influenced by the evidence as to what the plaintiff found when she arrived at Buenos Aires—that is to say, by a matter subsequent to the making of the representation—and that would not be, generally speaking, legitimate evidence on the issue. If you look at the evidence as to the position of the Casino, and as to the nature of the entertainment at or before the time the representation was made, and look at that only, I think there is so great a preponderance of evidence in favour of the defendant that probably the jury would not have made this finding if they had understood the issues. But when they go on to say that these false representations were not false to the knowledge of the defendant, but that he made them recklessly and carelessly, not knowing or caring whether they were true or false, in my opinion there is no evidence whatever to support that finding. Inasmuch as the representations were not false to the knowledge of the defendants, they would not prima facie be fraudulent unless they were made with a fraudulent mind in the sense that the defendants did not know whether they were true, but alleged that they were. Mere negligence would not support that finding. As it has been sometimes said, if a man in making a statement is careless so that it is false, that does not support a charge of fraud; but if he makes the statement careless whether it be false, that does. Now, in the present case I am satisfied that the defendants were perfectly entitled to suppose that they knew what the position of this Casino was and what the character of the entertainment there was. They had practically been engaged in supplying it with artists for the last seven years, and as a matter of business they were justified in supposing that they knew its position and the character of the entertainment there. The statement, then, with regard to that was, if it were not untrue to their knowledge, a statement which they had a right to believe was correct. The jury have found that what they said was in accordance with their knowledge, and the suggestion that they ought to have realised, or that they did realise, that they had no knowledge of the subject seems to me to be absolutely unsupportable on the evidence. I am therefore of opinion that that, which is the most material finding for the defendants, because it goes to character, is a finding that cannot be supported on the evidence.

There remains the finding as to warranty. I do not propose to go into the question of the law as to warranty any further than is necessary for me to decide as to whether this finding ought to stand. The judge's note leaves us to some extent in doubt as to what really passed at the interview, and one might have thought that the judge's record was compatible with something which would sustain warranty. But we have had the advantage of reading the shorthand notes of the actual evidence given, and in my opinion there is nothing there which would support a finding that there was a warranty. A warranty is a contract. You cannot make a contract of warranty without there being the intention that the statement made shall be the basis of the contract. You must have the animus contrahendi as much for a warranty contract as for any other. Now if you look at the position of these parties, the plaintiff covenanting with the defendant as the agent wanting to find some employment, you would realise that it would be the most natural thing in the world, and you would expect the defendants would give to her all the information they possess: but it would be most unreasonable to say that when they give her all the information they possess that they are warranting the actual truth of everything that they state in good faith to her for the purpose of gain. No doubt something might be said in a way which would constitute a warranty. If, for instance, the plaintiff had said: "Now, I will not go out there unless you tell me that so-and-so is true," then if the defendants were to say, "You may rely on it that it is true," that would probably be warranty. But I can find here nothing more nor less than the defendants telling the plaintiff what they knew about the place, and so long as they did that in good faith, I am perfectly satisfied that no contractual responsibility arose between them and the plaintiff by reason of what they told her. For these reasons I think that no one of the findings can stand. At least two of the findings must go, and the third with them, and on that there ought to be, therefore, a new trial.

LORD JUSTICE BUCKLEY.

Lord Justice Buckley: I also think that there ought to be a new trial in this case, and that for the reasons already assigned. I do not think it necessary to go through the matter again, and, indeed, I think it inexpedient to do so, because I think it is not useful to comment on the facts when there is going to be a new trial. I content myself with saying that to my mind the most salient point of the case is that I am not satisfied the jury were sufficiently directed upon the difference between making a statement careless whether it be true or false, and making, through want of care, a false statement which the speaker, nevertheless, believes to be true.

[See report of trial, February 10.]

BEECHER v. JOHNSON AND ROLT.

In the King's Bench Division, before Mr. Justice Phillimore and a common jury, 16 Mr. Trevor St. John Beecher, theatrical manager, brought an action to recover damages for injury to scenery and loss of dresses, etc., from Mr. Claude Johnson, proprietor, and Mr. Henry Garnett Rolt, manager, of the Kursaal, Bexhill-on-Sea.

The evidence given on behalf of the plaintiff was that he sent a pantomime company with The Babes in the Wood to the Kursaal at Bexhill in the beginning of January, 1908, for a week's stay. The weather was very bad, and the houses played to were very thin—on one night they even played to a seventeen-shilling house. After the matinée on Saturday two of the principal artists, not having been paid up, refused to play in the evening, and no performance took place. Mr. Rolt advanced some money to the company to enable them to get back to London, and plaintiff's witnesses stated that he declined to allow the scenery and properties to be taken away. It was further said that the properties had disappeared, and that the scenery had been so improperly stored as to be greatly damaged. Mr. Beecher said he discovered the damage to the scenery on visiting the Kursaal in July, and refused to take it away.

Defendants' evidence was to the effect that Mr. Rolt gave no order to detain the scenery or properties, and that Mr. Beecher might have had the scenery at any time. As to the properties and dresses said to have been left, it was given in evidence that one of Mr. Beecher's company took them away on the Sunday. Evidence was also given that some of the scenery was slashed and damaged when left at the Kursaal, and that it had been properly stored away from that time to this.

His Lordship, in directing the jury, said that Mr. Beecher charged the defendants with improperly detaining his goods under such circumstances that they could not now restore them to him in the condition in which they were when detained, and if the jury found that that was so they should give plaintiff such damages as would replace what he had lost. The defendants, on the other hand, said they never detained them at all, and that they were left there merely because the plaintiff's employees could not provide means to take them away. They said, therefore, that they were not liable. The burden of proof lay on the plaintiff, his Lordship said, and, so far as the detention of the goods was concerned, it was quite clear that he would have raised no question if he had got all his goods in good condition when he went there in July.

The jury found a verdict for defendants, and judgment was given accordingly, with costs.

FERGUSON v. MULLEN.—COMPOSERS AT LAW.

Before his Honour Judge Woodfall, in the Westminster County Court, Miss Ferguson, a musical composer, of Australia, sought to recover damages for breach of contract, or conversion, from Mr. Fredk. Mullen, another musical composer, and there was a counter-claim for 7 guineas.

Mr. A. J. David was counsel for the plaintiff, whose case was that when she came over from Australia she was introduced to the defendant, and became his pupil. She composed a march, "The Commonwealth," and paid the defendant 7 guineas for revision, scoring, and publishing and supplying to her 100 copies. He failed to carry out his contract within the specified time—three weeks. Weeks and weeks went by, and she was unable to get her MS. or to sail for Australia last November, and had to get her ticket extended. The last day her ticket would be available now was the 29th inst., and the delay in her return caused by the defendant had cost her £50 for lodging, etc. She wanted the march for a festival in Australia.

Mr. Nimmo, solicitor for the defendant suggested that two-thirds of the composition was the defendant's, but the plaintiff denied this, and stated that the MS. only needed "touching-up." Mr. Nimmo admitted payment of the 7 guineas and failure to carry out the contract; but he produced the plaintiff's MS., and said that she could have it if she paid defendant for writing the band parts and other work he had done and counterclaimed for.

His Honour gave plaintiff judgment for 10 guineas, with costs, and dismissed the counterclaim.

CREDIT BY FRAUD.—CHARLES HARTLEY.

At Bromley (Kent) Petty Sessions Charles Hartley, a society entertainer, and Ethel Gordon Hartley were charged with unlawfully obtaining credit by means of fraud.

Arthur Blom, manager at the White Hart Hotel, Bromley, said the prisoners stayed with him for sixteen days, and when they left they gave him a cheque, which was returned from the bank marked "Refer to drawer." After he had sent to the bank he received a telegram from the male prisoner asking him to hold the cheque over.—Cross-examined, the witness said the prisoners took his assembly-rooms for an entertainment. The affair was not a success.

Detective-inspector Hawkins said the prisoners had issued a number of cheques which had been dishonoured, and the male prisoner was wanted at Redcar on a similar charge.

The Bench sentenced the prisoners to one month's imprisonment each in the second division.

ALLEN v. MACHIN.—A CLAIM FOR PRINTING.

In the Manchester County Court, a claim for £91 13s. 4d. for theatrical posters and 20 lithographs was made by Messrs. David Allen and Sons, Limited, against Mr. Charles E. Machin, theatrical proprietor, of Sunderland. Mr. T. B. Leigh was counsel for the plaintiffs.

Mr. Leigh stated that some time ago the defendant advertised in theatrical and other papers that he had made a Mr. Daly his manager, and had directed communications to be sent either Mr. Daly or himself. Mr. Daly called at the Manchester office of the plaintiffs and said he was empowered by Mr. Machin to order printing to be done for one of Mr. Machin's dramatic sketches, known as The Gorilla's Revenge. Messrs. Allen did the work as directed. Later Mr. Machin repudiated "the whole business," saying that if he had meant to order anything he would have done so in writing. As a matter of fact there was an order in the writing of a lady clerk employed by the theatrical company of which Mr. Machin was the managing director.

The Judge said there was evidence to show that Mr. Daly, in ordering the goods, was acting as the representative of Mr. Machin, and entered judgment for the amount claimed, with costs.

THACKERAY (RA LESLIE) v. "ENCORE."—ALLEGED LIBEL.

In the King's Bench Division, Mrs. Ethel Thackeray, known as Ethel Ra Leslie, brought an action for alleged libel.

Mr. Jellicoe, in opening the case, explained that the plaintiff was married at the age of nineteen to Mr. Francis Henry Thackeray, ventriloquist, whose stage name was Lieut. Travis. She had separated from her husband. The plaintiff had a little property to sell, and it was the completion of the contract of sale that was made the occasion of the publication complained of. The lady was then in Belfast, and Mr. Thackeray telegraphed to her: "You might instruct your solicitor here (London) to give me what you are allowing re the house." Apparently, proceeded counsel, Mrs. Thackeray ignored this, and later the following appeared in the Encore:—"Take notice, that Ethel Rebecca Thackeray, professionally known as Ethel Ra Leslie, lawful wife of Francis Henry Thackeray, professionally known as Lieutenant Travis, of 37, Thornton Avenue, Streatham Hill, of the County of London, ventriloquist, is no longer authorised by him to make any purchases or enter into any contract on his behalf, and he will not be responsible for the performance of any engagement she may enter into or any debts she may incur after this date, she having left him, and being now located in Belfast, Ireland."

Several witnesses were called to speak to the injurious effect the publication of such statements must have on plaintiff as an artist.

For the defence, Mr. Martin O'Connor argued that there was no animus on the part of the defendants, and asked the jury to say that the publication was not a libel, as the lady was, in fact, living apart from her husband.

Mr. Charles Francis Reed, booking manager of the London Theatre of Varieties, Limited, was then called. He said that with four co-committee men he engaged about 250 artists a week at salaries ranging from £250 downwards. The publication of the matter complained of could, in his opinion, do the plaintiff no harm in her profession.

The case was continued on the following day when the jury returned a verdict for the defendants, and judgment was given accordingly.

FOSTER v. ROBERTS.—A CLAIM FOR COMMISSION.

In the Westminster County Court Mr. George Foster, agent, of Coventry Street, sued Mr. Arthur Roberts for £40 alleged to be due as commission on bookings. Mr. G. M. Bilberry, counsel for the plaintiff, said that Mr. Foster did Mr. Roberts's music hall bookings on special terms of 5 per cent., instead of the usual 10 per cent., and he booked for him the Barrasford tour. Defendant asked the plaintiff to book a return tour with Barrasford's, and he sent him on the contracts, but Mr. Roberts did not return them, and he saw him about it at the Shepherd's Bush Empire. On July 24 last the defendant wrote setting up that he had got the bookings for himself, and was dealing direct with managers, without the services of agents.

The defendant gave evidence that he had had engagements through plaintiff, and had paid him commission. He gave him no authority to book him for 1909. Witness fixed up the tour direct. He told plaintiff he was not satisfied with the way he was doing his (defendant's) business.

His Honour said plaintiff failed to make out his case. He was satisfied defendant got the engagement for himself, and gave judgment with costs.

ASHTON AND MITCHELL, LIMITED, v. VAN BIENE.—QUESTION OF "NEXT ENGAGEMENT."

In the King's Bench Division, before Mr. Justice Phillimore, Messrs. Ashton and Mitchell, agents, sought to recover from Mr. Van Biene the sum of £170, being commission claimed on engagements which they alleged they had procured for him.

Mr. Lush, K.C., and Mr. S. O. Henn Collins appeared for the plaintiffs and Mr. Holman Gregory for the defendant.

Plaintiffs secured engagements for the defendant with Moss's Empires, Limited, in 1907 and 1908, at salaries ranging from £40 to £50 per week. The commission note ran—

"I agree to pay you (plaintiffs) or your assignees 10 per cent. commission on the salary above referred to, and on all moneys which accrue under the said engagement, or a prolongation of the same, and a like commission on the salary of the next engagement at the said establishment, or any other establishment under the control of Moss's Empires, Limited."

Defendant afterwards booked himself for another engagement in 1909 with Moss's Empires, Limited, and he contended he was not liable to pay commission to plaintiffs in respect of that engagement.

Mr. Lush asked his lordship to rule that the next engagement meant the whole tour.

His lordship, in giving judgment, said he did not think the word "prolongation" could be used as applied to the prolongation of a tour. He must construe the word "engagement" as meaning "engagement for the tour." Prolongation meant prolongation of an engagement at a particular place. As to the words, "the next engagement at the said establishment," each of the theatres was a separate establishment, and "the next engagement at the said establishment" could not mean, as the words stood, the next engagement at twenty-three halls, or even a smaller number. He was not prepared to read the word "establishment" as meaning establishments. If the contract was ambiguous, he must construe it against the plaintiffs. His lordship gave judgment for the plaintiffs for £17 6s. 10d., which included the amount paid into court. Costs on the county court scale were allowed.

HICKS v. THE SURREY VAUDEVILLE COMPANY, LIMITED.

In the Southwark County Court, the Surrey Vaudeville Company were sued by Robert Hicks, a general dealer, and his wife, of Red Cross Street, Borough, who claimed damages for personal injuries.

The plaintiffs, it appeared, entered the gallery one night while an uproarious scene was in progress. Hicks, as the attendant pushed past his seat, said to him, "Mind my wife's feet." The attendant turned and struck him in the face. Mrs. Hicks rose from her seat. The attendant struck her a blow which broke her jaw, and she was treated at a hospital for twenty-eight weeks. At the police court the attendant was fined for the assault.

Judge Willis said there was no case to go to the jury. The defendants were not responsible for an assault committed by their servant, when the order to clear the gallery did not authorise violence. If a man at a theatre, whether orderly or not, was requested by the manager to withdraw, he must do so; he might then bring an action to recover the admission money.

The case was dismissed with costs.

GEDDES v. SURREY VAUDEVILLE THEATRE, LIMITED.—AN ACTION FOR ALLEGED FALSE IMPRISONMENT.

An action was heard by Judge Willis, K.C., and a jury in the Southwark County

27 Court, Geo. Geddes, formerly a signalman telegraphist in the Navy, and recently sergeant-major in a Glasgow regiment, seeking to recover damages in respect of alleged malicious prosecution and false imprisonment from the Surrey Vaudeville Theatre Co., Limited. Mr. Martin O'Connor (instructed by Messrs. W. B. Blackwell and Co.) appeared for the defence, and Mr. Wickham was counsel for the plaintiff.

Geddes's counsel explained that his client had had a long and honourable career, had received the freedom of the City of Glasgow, and was hardly a man likely to be guilty of taking a sixpence—the crime with which he was charged. At the subsequent police-court proceedings the plaintiff was discharged, and was told that he left without a stain on his character. Plaintiff had been employed by the defendants as caretaker for some time when, on May 29, he was called before Mr. Baugh, a director of the company, and accused of robbing the company by "putting the checks down" that he had received. He was told that if he admitted it he would simply be discharged, but that otherwise he would be given in charge. Thinking of his wife and large family and not valuing the position very highly, Geddes thought that it would save a good deal if he did as requested. A policeman was at once called in and he was led off to prison, in spite of the promise made.

Judgment was given for the defendant company.

GEOFFREY v. RUFFELL.—ARTIST'S CLAIM.

The case of Geoffrey v. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope Co., which was disposed of by 29 his Honour Judge Woodfall in the Westminster County Court, was a claim for £4 1s., balance of salary.

For the plaintiff, it was stated that he was the proprietor of a music-hall sketch, and was engaged for a week at £16 for the Palace, Sunderland, by Mr. Rameses. Defendants were the proprietors, and plaintiff understood that they were running the hall under a "sort of partnership." Rameses paid him £3 on account, and, finding that other artists were refusing to go on, he asked Mr. Ruffell's manager, Mr. Phillips, to guarantee his money. Mr. Phillips said that it would be all right, and he performed. When he went for his money he was paid £8 19s., which he was told was all that was left of what Rameses would be entitled to. He now sued defendants, as guarantors, for the balance.

The defence was that Rameses engaged all the artists, and the contract with him was produced. Phillips, it was said, had no authority to give a guarantee.

His Honour held the defendants liable, on the ground that Phillips was in a position, in the interest of the defendants, to give the guarantee. Plaintiff and others were refusing to perform, and Phillips was anxious, in the interest of his employers, to prevent a row between the audience and the stage. He gave plaintiff judgment, with costs.

SAFETY OF THEATRES—POLICE-COURT SUMMONS.

Before Ald. Oulton, Ald. J. Duncan, and Mr. E. Banner, at the Liverpool Police Court, 29 Frederick Edward Weisker, licensee of the Roscommon Music Hall, appeared in answer to two summonses for having neglected the rules made by the city justices relating to the prevention of fire in theatres. Mr. Duder, who prosecuted, stated that on the 5th ult. the fireman in the house, contrary to the rules, did other duty than that of fireman, inasmuch as he was outside the building regulating a number of children who were about to enter the theatre. The other complaint was that the defendant neglected to have the book in his house kept for the fireman's report signed by the proper person as required by the rules.

The Bench inflicted a penalty of 20s. and costs in each of the two cases.

ALEXANDER v. LORAIN.—VOICE SPECIALIST'S CLAIM.

The case of Alexander v. Loraine, which came before Judge Woodfall, in the Westminster County Court, was an action by a consulting voice specialist on a verbal contract to give lessons to the defendant.

Mr. Fletcher, counsel for the plaintiff, said that the plaintiff was called by the defendant to his address by telephone, as he thought that he was in danger of losing his voice temporarily, which was very undesirable, for he was performing in The School for Scandal. The plaintiff attended him, and a course of thirty-five lessons was contracted for. The price agreed to was one guinea per lesson at the client's chambers, and fifteen lessons were given. The defendant, he said, offered fifteen guineas for the lessons he had, and wanted no more, but the contract was for thirty-five lessons.

The defendant said that he had a cold and lost his voice and called in the plaintiff after a performance one night. He stayed about an hour. In a sense it was true that thirty-five lessons were fixed, but he did not agree to the plaintiff's suggestion. Plaintiff said that he would charge extra for calling, but he did not mention any amount, and when witness received the bill on April 1 he thought it a joke. His cold departed and he recovered his voice in the natural way in about a fortnight. He was very busy and could not keep up the lessons, and offered to pay a guinea a lesson for those he had had.

His Honour found for the plaintiff for thirty-two guineas, with costs, made up of two guineas damages and thirty guineas for lessons.

AUGUST.

"HOOPLA" WHEN A GAME OF CHANCE.

At Acton Police Court, Frederick J. King,

25, described as a canvasser, of Galena Road, Hammersmith, was charged with playing at a game of chance at Essex Place, Chiswick. Sub-divisional Inspector Crocker deposed as to watching people playing a game called "Hoop-la" at prisoner's stall. There was a sloping board on which were boxes of chocolates, etc. The people bought hoops—somewhat lighter and smaller than those generally used—and threw towards the board, but not one was successful in encircling a box, and he arrested the prisoner. Witness explained that the reason of the failure was that the boxes were grouped in such a manner that the hoop was prevented from falling round a box by the one next to it. In one case only by bending the corners of a box would it pass through the hoop.

Prisoner submitted that it was a game of skill according to a decided case, which the bench read.

The bench, after seeing the boxes arranged in court as they were on the board, and the box that would not pass through the hoop except with the corners bent, were satisfied that as played by the prisoner it was a game of chance, and that skill was not a predominant factor in it. Fined 40s. or one month.

ELLIMAN v. EDWARDES.

Dissatisfied with the performance of A Heart's Desire by Messrs. C. and H. 18 Elliman's company at the Hippodrome, Stoke-on-Trent, during the week which commenced on June 14, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes, the proprietor, instructed his manager to deduct £5 from the price arranged for the production. The company proprietor refused to submit to such treatment, and the result was an action in the Derby County Court, heard on August 18 before His Honour Judge Walter Lindley, when Mr. Elliman sued the theatre proprietor, who resides at Derby, for £10 balance of amount agreed upon in the contract, and Mr. Edwardes put in a counterclaim for £15 for breach of agreement. Mr. Freeland (of Messrs. Freeland and David, Birmingham) appeared for the claimant, and Mr. R. S. Clifford defended.

Mr. Charles Elliman said that in June he signed a contract with defendant for the appearance of Messrs. C. and H. Elliman's company at the Hippodrome, Stoke, to perform A Heart's Desire twice nightly for six nights, for the sum of £35. The engagement was carried out, and on the Saturday morning he received £25 from defendant's manager with which to pay the artists. Later when he applied for the balance of £10 the theatre manager informed him that £5 was to be stopped because the contract had not been fulfilled, and when he was offered £4 1s. in settlement he refused to accept it.

On behalf of the defendant, Thomas Wm. Moyes, acting-manager for Mr. Edwardes at the Stoke Hippodrome, said that he was dissatisfied with plaintiff's "show." The artists who took part were not very competent, one being a girl of about fifteen years of age and another seventeen. Plaintiff only brought one piece of scenery—a picture of a caravan painted on canvas.

His Honour held that there had been a breach of contract on the part of plaintiff through not providing proper scenery and a full company. He therefore dismissed the action of the plaintiff, and gave judgment for £5 and costs on the counterclaim.

SEPTEMBER.

KINEMATOGRAPH ENTERTAINMENTS.— MUSIC ILLEGAL WITHOUT LICENSE.

At the London Sessions, before Mr. Robert Wallace, K.C., Mr. John Thomas Hallinan, proprietor of the King's Hall, Tooting, surrendered to his bail, and pleaded not guilty to having kept unlawfully the hall named for public music and other public entertainment without a license from the London County Council. Mr. Fitch prosecuted; Mr. George Elliott, K.C., and Mr. Sidney Lamb defended.

Mr. Fitch explained to the jury that at the hall, which was also known as the Tooting Picture Palace, cinematograph entertainments were given twice nightly, with the addition of a matinée on Saturdays and a special entertainment on Sundays. At all these displays a piano was played and gramophone selections were given. Counsel's contention was that to all intents and purposes the hall was being conducted at the time complained of in a similar manner to a music hall without any license. The real question was whether the music given formed a material part of the entertainment.

For the defence it was contended that the music was not a substantial part of the entertainment, and witnesses were called to prove that they paid to see the pictures, and not to hear the music.

In summing up, Mr. Wallace said that the proceedings were instituted under the Disorderly Houses Act, 1751, which was passed because "a multitude of places of entertainment for the lower sort of people" had sprung into existence, and they "were tempted to spend their small substance in riotous pleasures." In order to do away with these temptations, "any house, room, garden, or other public place kept for public dancing, music, or other public entertainment of a like kind," was compelled by the Act to have a license. The jury had to decide whether the facts disclosed that the defendant should have had a license. The matter had brought about discussion during the past fifty years, and learned judges, among them the most distinguished the country had ever known, had differed about it, and the whole question was whether the music was merely a subsidiary part of the entertainment. If so the jury would acquit. If it was the principal or an essential part of the entertainment they ought to convict.

The jury, after retiring for a few minutes, returned a verdict of guilty.

Mr. Wallace: There is nothing against Mr. Hallinan. The entertainment was one for the public in every sense, and I do not propose to fine him more than a nominal fine—a shilling—and let him go at once. But, having regard to the fact that the Borough Council were bound to prosecute, he must pay the costs. I should like to say that I do not think that any authority which has to deal with the question of granting a license ought to consider that he has ruined his right to apply. I say that in the plainest possible way. The point is one which he was perfectly justified in fighting out, and I should be amazed if any authority said that, because he has up to now conducted this hall as he has done, that he should be deprived of a license when he applies for one.

LAZARUS v. BADMAN.—ILLEGAL CONTRACT.

At the Rhyl County Court, on September 10, before Judge Moss, Mr. H. Lazarus, Rhyl, father of a little girl known on the stage as "Wee Cissie," aged six years, sued Mr. F. A. Badman, described as a theatrical manager, of the Birmingham Gaiety Theatre of Varieties, for recovery of £2 12s., being expenses incurred in "Wee Cissie" journeying to Birmingham to fulfil a contract which was not carried through.

The plaintiff alleged that defendant agreed that "Wee Cissie" should appear for one week at £5 5s., but when she went before the justices they refused a license.

Mr. Walthall contended that the contract was void in law, and that an illegal contract could not be enforced. As a matter of fact, the justices were prevented by the Employment of Children Act from granting a license for a child under ten years of age to appear at all at the theatre. That being so, no contract could be entered into.

The Judge held that this was so, and found for the defendant, but when Mr. Walthall asked for costs for defendant the judge refused, saying he thought the defence was a rather mean one. The people at the theatre must have known.

OCTOBER.

MATES v. DARE.—IS AN ELECTRIC THEATRE A NUISANCE?

In the Isle of Man Chancery Division of the High Court the Clerk of the Rolls gave judgment in the action brought by William Frederick Mates against Charles Dare, in which an injunction was sought restraining the defendant causing several alleged nuisances to the plaintiff by carrying on an electric theatre. His Honour held for the defendant on all the points raised, pointing out that the crowds were only such as could be expected at the outside of a theatre.

JOHNSON v. GINNETT.

In the West London County Court, before Judge Bray and a jury, Ernest George Johnson, described as a "showman," sued Fred Ginnett for £50 for breach of contract. Mr. Martin O'Connor, who appeared for the plaintiff, said that in June, 1909, plaintiff was engaged at £2 10s. per week by the defendant to open a show at Earl's Court Exhibition under the title of the smallest horse in the world. He was dismissed at a moment's notice. His contention was that his engagement was for the season.

Mr. Ginnett, the defendant, said that early in June when plaintiff saw him he asked for a job. Witness replied: I can't at present, but I'll take your name and address, and if I can find you anything to do I will.

Mrs. Ginnett gave evidence to a like effect.

The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff for £22 10s., and judgment for that amount with costs.

PLAYS IN AN UNLICENSED BUILDING.

At Rye, Arthur West, proprietor of the Royalty (portable) Theatre, was summoned for acting and presenting stage plays without licenses at Rye.

There were two summonses—one for acting and presenting a play entitled Maria Martin, and the other in respect of the performance of Dick Turpin. The proceedings were taken under Section 11 of the Theatres Act, 1843. The license had only been granted by the Town Council up to and including September 30.

Defendant submitted that his company were a company of strolling players, and that the theatre was a booth within the meaning of the Act.

The Chairman said the magistrates could not agree with defendant's interpretation of the Act. They further thought that, in continuing to play without a license after the Council had refused the application, he had ignored the authorities in the town altogether. He would have to pay a fine and costs of £1 15s. 6d. in each case.

STAGE PLAYS IN MUSIC HALLS.—COLISEUM APPEAL DISMISSED

At the London Sessions, before Mr. Loveland, K.C., and other justices, the Coliseum 14 Syndicate, Limited, entered appeals against a conviction by Mr. R. H. B. Marsham at Bow Street Police Court on May 6, 1909, for that it being the owner and occupier and keeper of the London Coliseum, St. Martin's Lane, did on March 8 and other days unlawfully keep open the said place for the public performance of stage plays without authority from the Lord Chamberlain. The conviction was followed by a fine of £10 for the offence of March 8, and fines of £3 for each of the ten subsequent days.

Mr. Horace Avory, K.C., and Mr. Bodkin supported the conviction on behalf of the Theatrical Managers' Association. Mr. C. F. Gill, K.C., and Mr. S. M. Knight represented the appellants.

Mr. Gill, K.C., argued that an Act should be enforced nowadays only for the public benefit. The prosecution was not instituted by a public authority, and he suggested that it was desirable that the Court should discourage cases of this kind.

Mr. Loveland: In this case we have not to look at what legislation might be in contemplation, but to act on what the law is at the present time. That being so, the simple matter for the Court to determine is whether the two performances, The Queen of the Fairies and Papa's Wife, brought the appellants within the meaning of the Act of 1843. Upon this point we have no doubt whatever that they have done so. Therefore the appeal will be dismissed, with costs.

[See report of case, May 6.]

MOSS EMPIRES v. LLOYD—A DISPUTE SETTLED.

In the Court of Session, Edinburgh Lord Guthrie was informed of the settlement of the action by the Moss Empires, Limited, against Miss Marie Lloyd.

It was stated that defendant had entered into contracts in lieu of those said to have been broken, and in respect thereof was absolved from the present action.

DOVER v. GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY. ARTIST'S LOST PROPERTIES.

At the Bloomsbury County Court, before Judge Bacon, Mr. Thomas Dover, of 20 Brixton, a music hall artist, who, with Miss Cora Deane, was appearing in The Messenger Boy and the sycamore, sued the Great Northern Railway Company for £20 for loss of luggage.

Mr. Barrington Ward was counsel for plaintiff, and Mr. Basil Watson for the defendant company.

Plaintiff, on arrival at King's Cross, on January 31, spoke to a porter who had his luggage, went for a cab, and, on returning with the latter, the porter and the luggage had gone. He failed to find the luggage in the cloak-room.

Judge Bacon gave judgment for plaintiff for fifteen guineas.

FORD v. BARNSELY EMPIRE PALACE CO., LIMITED.

On Thursday, before his Honour Judge Dodd, K.C., in the Barnsley County 21 Court, Mr. Percy Ford sued the Barnsley Empire Palace Co., Limited, for £20 damages for breach of contract. There was a counter claim for a similar amount.—Mr. Mellor, barrister, appeared for Mr. Ford, and Mr. J. Hewitt represented the company. Mr. Mellor stated that the parties agreed that the plaintiff's sketch, The Spy, should be performed at the Barnsley Empire Palace on August 30 and twice nightly for one week. There was a counter claim by the company for breach of contract, Mr. Percy Ford not playing as per contract, which stipulated Mr. Ford as the Spy. Mr. Ford, Mr. Mellor stated, was not an actor himself, but he was the proprietor of various sketches. When the company came to the Empire Palace to rehearse the manager came forward and said, "Where is Mr. Ford?" It was perfectly true that the agreement was between the company and Percy Ford, and not Percy Ford and Co., but that was in accordance with a common practice, and Mr. Smithson had the bill matter showing exactly who were the people who were going to act in the sketch a fortnight previous to the performance. In spite of that he would not let the company play.

Mr. Percy Ford said he wrote The Spy, but had never performed on the stage. Ernest Ball was the principal artist in The Spy.

His Honour looked through the contract and the bill, and asked Mr. Mellor if he was suing on the contract; if so, he must non-suit him. The defendants fancied they were going to have Mr. Ford, and they had a right to say that, as they did not get that, the contract should be terminated.

Mr. Mellor said that was explained by the bill matter, which stated that it was Percy Ford and Co. appearing.

His Honour: But there is a contract.—Mr. Mellor: In this contract it means not the individual but the company.—His Honour: Then when the contract says Percy Ford, "hereinafter called the artist," it is not the artist?

Mr. Mellor: I shall show by evidence that Mr. Smithson agreed to accept Percy Ford as if it was Percy Ford's company, and that he had the bill matter.

His Honour: Your action is either brought on the contract or is not. If your action is brought on this contract you fail, because the contract must be taken to mean what it says—that is, that Percy Ford is the artist, and Mr. Ford appears as The Spy. He did not appear in it.

His Honour ordered a non-suit with costs. The counter claim for £20 damages was withdrawn by Mr. Smithson.

HERZEBERG v. NEW TIVOLI, LIMITED. BILLING OF ARTISTS.

In the King's Bench before Mr. Justice Ridley and a special jury, Miss Sadie Jerome (Mrs. Sadie Christine Herzeberg) sued the New Tivoli, Limited, for alleged breach of contract. She complained that she was not "starred" on the Tivoli's bills. The defendants denied that they had promised to "star" Miss Jerome, saying that they had the right to determine the position which any performer's name occupied on the bill.

Mr. Whiteley and Mr. W. Van Breda appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Low, K.C., and Mr. H. Campbell Johnson represented the defendants.

His Lordship said Miss Jerome had signed a contract which was completely at variance with the plaintiff's case. If people signed agreements they must abide by them. There would be judgment for the defendants, with costs.

NOEL v. MACNAGHTEN.—PLAYING BY DEPUTY.

At the Bloomsbury County Court, before Judge Bacon, Toff Noel, of Teesdale Lodge, Brixton Hill, sued the Macnaghten Vaudeville Circuit. The plaintiff claimed the sum of £28 10s. for salary alleged to be due under a contract entered into by him with the defendant dated January 21. In the alternative he claimed damages for breach of contract.

Mr. J. D. Cassels, barrister, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Martin O'Connor, instructed by Messrs. Blackwell, for the defendant.

Mr. Cassels explained that the plaintiff was to go to fifteen halls, ten of which were in the provinces and five in London. During the first part of the tour, which was the provincial part, he was ill, and only able to attend three of them. These were Southport, Bradford, and Warrington. It was at Warrington that the trouble arose. His performance consisted of a song, followed by a song and dance, and he required a darkened stage. At two of the provincial halls a darkened stage was provided. At Warrington he was refused a darkened stage for the song and dance. He said he could not go on unless the stage was darkened, and the manager ordered the curtain to be rung down, and refused to allow the plaintiff to perform. He returned to London and made arrangements to continue his performances at the halls under his contract, but this also was not allowed.

The plaintiff was called, and said he appeared under the name of Toff Noel. His real name was George F. Swan. He entered into the contract. He was taken ill, but he attended three—Southport, Bradford, and Warrington.

Mr. Cassels: Why didn't you attend the other provincial towns?—I was very ill.

Did you send a doctor's certificate?—Yes. Did you attend Halifax?—I did not.

Judge Bacon: Why didn't you?—I was ill, and I sent to a man on the Sunday to attend for me. I found one at the last moment.

Mr. O'Connor: We say that the certificate was never sent.

In reply to Mr. O'Connor, he said that he was to have opened at Cardiff, but he sent a doctor's certificate. The certificate, he said, from Liverpool was enough for three or four weeks in accordance with the doctor's instructions.

You sent a man to play in your name?—He must have used my name.

You never told the defendant that you were sending him?—Quite so.

Don't you think it would be fairer to the defendants to ask them whether they would take this deputy?—Gus Brown went down on the Monday morning.

Have you ever sent a man to play in your name?—Never.

Is it a common trick by artists to send down without notice to proprietors?

Judge Bacon: Isn't "trick" an ugly expression?

Mr. O'Connor: Very well, I won't use it. (To plaintiff): Have you ever done it?—No, but I have known people do it.

Mr. O'Connor: I submit that there is no case against the defendant. Plaintiff was engaged for his personal service, and he sent a substitute. This is misconduct under a contract. Mr. Baugh did not terminate the contract. The answer to this claim for damages is, You have been guilty of misconduct. As far as Brown was concerned, he was obtaining money by fraud. Plaintiff had no right to send down a substitute and impose upon a manager.

Mr. O'Connor said that the manager at Halifax did not know Gus Brown or the plaintiff. It would not be done in London. There had been given a receipt in Noel's name.

Mr. Baugh was called. Witness said that he would not have engaged a substitute.

His Honour gave judgment for the defendant, with costs.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED, v. CLENSY AND THE HACKNEY AND SHEPHERD'S BUSH EMPIRE PALACES, LIMITED.—QUESTION OF AN INJUNCTION.

In the Court of Appeal, before Lord Justices Vaughan Williams, Buckley, and Kennedy,

Mr. G. H. Beyfus, for the Palace Theatre, Limited, asked for an injunction to restrain Mr. Cyril Clensy from appearing at the Shepherd's Bush Empire or elsewhere in London than at the Palace until the trial or further order and a similar injunction against the defendant company.

The injunction was granted. Lord Justice Buckley thought there was a substantial question to be tried as to whether the term "London" extended to Shepherd's Bush or not.

AN ENTERTAINMENT LOTTERY.

At the Radstock Police Court, Harry Deaborough, of the Merry Mascots was 25 summoned for unlawfully conducting a lottery at the Drill Hall, Midsomer Norton, on October 1. This was down for hearing at the last Kilmerston Police Court on October 11, when the evidence of P.C. Hembury and P.S. Gingeli (for the prosecution) was given. Defendant on that occasion sent a telegram to the clerk saying he could not arrive at the Court until 1.15. The business was all over before that time, so the magistrates adjourned their decision till the Radstock court, the defendant to be given the opportunity of tendering himself as a witness.

The case for the prosecution was to the effect that defendant advertised to give away certain gifts at a variety entertainment at the Drill Hall, Midsomer Norton. During the performance he distributed copies of a song enclosed in envelopes to each member of the audience, and on the back of a certain number of the songs was a mark which indicated that the holder was entitled to a prize. One young man (George Gilson) won a china tea service, and several others received consolation prizes. This method was held by the police to be a lottery.

The defendant did not answer the summons when the case was called, but Mr. H. E. Ames appeared for him and the evidence was read over. Mr. Ames pointed out that the defendant was at Radstock one week and the following week at Midsomer Norton. At both places he gave an entertainment each night, and he pointed out the method adopted by defendant. He contended that defendant could not be convicted for a lottery, because the prosecution had failed to bring before the Court any person who was prepared to swear that he purchased a ticket and went to the entertainment with the hope and expectation of gaining a prize. A lottery was an arrangement for the distribution of prizes by chance among persons purchasing tickets. Before they could convict there must be some person brought forward who purchased a ticket. Where was the young man Gilson? asked Mr. Ames. If he came forward and stated that he went there on Friday night instead of any other night in the week because he knew prizes were to be given away the case might be different. Mr. Justice Darling had held that a free, gratuitous distribution of presents could not be held to be a lottery. He submitted it was a free, gratuitous distribution, and no person had been brought forward to prove that when he bought a ticket he knew he was purchasing a chance in a lottery.

The Bench, however, thought otherwise, and fined the defendant 10s. and costs.

SMITH v. THE DANGERFIELD PRINTING CO., LIMITED.

This case came before a Divisional Court, consisting of Mr. Justice Darling and 25 Mr. Justice Bucknill, by way of appeal by the plaintiff (professionally known as Miss Minni Letta) from a decision of Judge Woodfall giving judgment for the defendants.

The action was for damages for libel, the alleged libel consisting in the fact (as alleged) that the defendants had, over a poster representing the plaintiff as a "Walking Girl," pasted a slip of paper obliterating the original title, "Miss Minni Letta's Walking Girls," and bearing the words "New York Walking Girls," the suggestion on behalf of the plaintiff being that she was thereby depreciated as a "star" turn, and made to appear merely as one of a troupe.

Mr. Wing (instructed by Messrs. Osborne and Osborne) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. G. R. Hill (instructed by Messrs. Crawley and Co.) for the defendants.

Their Lordships, without calling upon counsel for the defendants, dismissed the appeal, with costs.

Mr. Wing applied for leave to appeal further, which was refused.

DE VERE v. STELLA.—A CLAIM FOR COMMISSION.

At the Southwark County Court, Mr. E. de Vere, music hall and variety agent, 26 sued Miss Esta Stella, a music hall artist, for the sum of £15 in respect of commission said to be due to him under an agreement entered into by the defendant.

Mr. Mawby (for the plaintiff) said that Mr. de Vere in 1907 acted as agent to Miss Stella, who was an eccentric dancer, and obtained for her an engagement with Moss's Empires, Limited. Under an agreement she was to pay Mr. de Vere 10 per cent. on the engagement, 10 per cent. on a prolongation of the engagement, and "a like commission on the salary of the next engagement."

His Honour: You take a good grip on the persons for whom you obtain a situation. (Laughter.)

Mr. Mawby (continuing his opening statement): After Miss Stella signed this agreement she wrote to Mr. de Vere: "I am sorry I have not been able to call on you. Have been very busy and very queer, and am still bad. No doubt you will be surprised to hear I have accepted Day's agency, as he seems to get much more money for me." The plaintiff (continued) Mr. Mawby had brought this young lady out a dozen years previously, and she had performed on Moss's Empires tour on several occasions. She became known to the public through the efforts of the plaintiff.

His Honour: No, no; she became known through her eccentric dances. You cannot take her body and soul. The services you rendered were in introducing her to the public. This agreement says that if the young lady does not fulfil her engagement no matter from what cause, unless it was the default of the proprietor, she must pay, although she gets no money herself.

Mr. Charles Doughty (for the defendant): That is the material clause in the agreement. This young lady has never performed at all under the contract entered into under the direction of Mr. de Vere.

His Honour: We must take it that she has entered into a new contract with Mr. Day.

Mr. Doughty: Yes, at an increased salary. Without calling upon Mr. Doughty, His Honour, in giving judgment for the defendant, with costs, said that the contract entered into in 1907 did not entitle the plaintiff to any commission for performances in 1909. The word "prolongation" in the agreement with Mr. de Vere would not reach Miss Stella's performances in 1909, and with regard to the words in the agreement, "commission on the salary of the next engagement," did not apply to an engagement procured by the lady herself or any other agent, but only to any engagement which directly arose out of the contract made by Mr. de Vere.

NORTON v. BOLAM.—ALLEGED BREACH OF CONTRACT.

In the Westminster County Court, before his Honour Judge Woodfall, Mr. Richard 26 Norton, an actor, sued Mr. F. W. Bolam to recover a balance of salary alleged to be due under a verbal agreement by which he and his wife were to take parts in Marriages of Mayfair on tour.

His honour, in giving judgment, said he had come to the conclusion that the plaintiff had failed to prove that his wife was engaged in conjunction with himself, and therefore there must be judgment for the defendant with costs. He remarked on the mischief of making agreements without putting them into writing.

RIHILL v. ASHTON AND MITCHELL.

In the Westminster County Court, before his Honour Judge Woodfall, the case of 28 Rihill v. Ashton and Mitchell was tried.

It was an action by Louis Rihill, the proprietor of a troupe known as The Tatlers, to recover the sum of £32 due to him under a contract with the defendants, Messrs. Ashton and Mitchell, of Bond Street, in respect of an engagement to appear at Leamington.

Mr. Harold Simmonds was counsel for the plaintiff, and Mr. Hastings appeared for the defence.

The case for the plaintiff was that his troupe were engaged by the defendant firm to play at Leamington, and that the performances were given in due course, and gave every satisfaction; but the defendants now refused to pay him what was due.

For the defence it was urged that the plaintiff did not supply the troupe which he undertook and contracted to supply, and that consequently it was not worth the money which was to have been paid for it under the contract.

His Honour, after having heard the evidence, said it might be that the plaintiff did not supply the exact troupe as was contracted for by the defendants, but at the same time the troupe was accepted, and performed. The evidence which had been given went to show that the hall at which the troupe appeared was crowded night after night, and there was no evidence to show that anybody had suffered any damage in consequence of the plaintiff not having taken a part in the performance. In these circumstances there would be judgment for the plaintiff for the amount claimed, with costs.

ROSEN AND BLISS v. WATSON.

The case of Rosen and Bliss v. Watson, which was before his Honour Judge Woodfall, in the Westminster County Court, was a claim by Messrs. Rosen and Bliss, of Henrietta Street, Covent Garden, against Mr. G. Howard Watson, of Buckingham Street, Strand, for £4 14s. 6d., money received for and on behalf of plaintiffs.

Mr. Ridgeway was counsel for the plaintiffs, and Mr. Dyer for the defendant.

The dispute arose over artists' engagements to perform at the Palace, Reading, Mr. Bliss, trading as Rosen and Bliss, claiming commission under an agreement with the defendant personally, and denying any agreement with Stanhope and Company.

The defendant said that he was a theatrical agent and managing director of Stanhope and Company. The contract in this case was with the company and not with him. There was no stated commission, only that Stanhope and Company would share commission with the agents.

His Honour said that the plaintiffs had to prove that the defendant received the money, and they had entirely failed. He found for the defendant, with costs.

METROPOLITAN WATER BOARD v. MULHOLLAND — SUPPLY OF WATER TO THEATRES.

In the Divisional Court of the King's Bench Division before Mr. Justices Darling 29 and Bucknill, Mr. J. B. Mulholland appealed from the decision of Judge Woodfall, at the Westminster County Court, who had entered judgment for the Metropolitan Water Board for twelve guineas in respect of the annual charge for a high pressure water supply to twelve fire hydrants at the King's, Hammersmith.

The defendant alleged that under the Act of 1907 his agreement to pay for fire hydrants was determined, and that the charges should be included in the ratable value of the theatre, upon which the charge for water supply was based. The Board, on the other hand, contended that the hydrants were supplied from a high-pressure main, while the domestic supply was obtained from a low-pressure main, which was distinct from the other service. The County Court judge held that, in spite of the Act of 1907, the original agreement remained in force, and that the defendant was liable to pay separately in respect of the fire hydrants. Mr. Drucquer appeared for the defendant in support of the appeal, while Mr. Shaw opposed it in behalf of the Water Board.

Mr. Drucquer contended that the agreements with the water companies were cancelled in toto by the Water Board's Act, or it would have been impossible to carry out the provisions of the Act with regard to uniform charges. There was a question of supply for domestic purposes, and whether the charge for baths in one part of London was a charge for a domestic purpose and in another part was not.

Mr. Shaw, for the Water Board, contended that the Act of 1907 specially preserved the section of the Act of 1902, and that therefore the contracts were not cancelled.

Their Lordships dismissed the appeal, holding that the Water Board's Act did not put an end to the agreement.

Leave to appeal further was granted.

SHIELDS v. HACKNEY, ETC., PALACES, LIMITED. — ACCIDENT AT A MUSIC HALL.

In the King's Bench Division, before Justices Darling and Bucknill, sitting as a 29 Divisional Court, was the appeal in the case of Shields v. Hackney, etc., Palaces. The plaintiff, Mrs. Shields, laundry worker, appealed from the decision of Judge Woodfall at the Westminster County Court, who had non-suited her in an action which she had brought against the defendants for personal injuries sustained while leaving the Hackney Empire.

Mr. Coumbe appeared for the plaintiff in support of the appeal, while Mr. Lever opposed it in behalf of the defendants.

Mr. Coumbe, in opening the case for the plaintiff, said on the evening of September 6, 1908, the plaintiff and her daughter went to the Hackney Empire and occupied seats in the balcony. On leaving the hall the plaintiff trod on a piece of banana skin and fell down a flight of stone steps, receiving severe injuries. She brought an action against the defendants, alleging that they were guilty of negligence in not keeping the stairs clean. The county court judge, however, held that there was no evidence of negligence and nonsuited the plaintiff. He (the learned counsel) contended that the presence of the banana skin on the stair was in itself evidence of negligence.

Mr. Justice Darling: You say the skin was on the stair when the people entered the hall?

Mr. Coumbe: I say it might have been.

Mr. Justice Bucknill: If a person had dropped the skin in front of the nose of this unfortunate lady, do you put it as a proposition of law that there ought to have been some person standing in front of her ready to sweep it out of her way?

Mr. Coumbe said he was afraid that the people who patronised this particular part of the hall would not go if such restrictions were imposed. There was strong evidence that the place was only swept once a week.

Mr. Justice Bucknill remarked that there was no evidence of that.

Their lordships, without calling on counsel for the defendants, dismissed the appeal, holding that there was no evidence of negligence on the part of the defendants.

[See report of case, April 22.]

SMITH v. THE DANGERFIELD PRINTING CO., LIMITED. — ALLEGED LIBEL BY POSTER.

Lords Justices Buckley and Kennedy had before them the case of Smith v. the Dangerfield Printing Company.

Mr. Valetta said he desired leave to appeal against the decision of the Divisional Court affirming that of his Honour Judge Woodfall, sitting at the Westminster County Court. The plaintiff—Mrs. Smith—was professionally known as Miss Minni Letta. She was a lady professional walker, and held a record from London to Brighton, and she now appeared at music halls on a revolving platform. A poster was designed by the defendants, who were well-known colour-printers, containing a portrait of the plaintiff. At the top were the words "Miss Minni Letta's Sporting Girls," which the plaintiff used as an advertisement for some time. She then discovered that the same poster was used by other persons, a piece of yellow paper being pasted over the words at the top and the words "New York Walking Girls" substituted for them. She complained that this was a libel on her.

Lord Justice Buckley: I see Judge Woodfall held that it was not a libel, and so did the judges in the Divisional Court. I don't quite see how it could be a libel on the plaintiff. There is no evidence of damage to the plaintiff.

The Court refused the application.

NOVEMBER.

IRVING v. BODIE.—ALLEGED MISREPRESENTATION.

In the King's Bench Division before Mr. Justice Darling and a common jury.

1 Mr. Charles Henry Irving, son of a farmer residing near Keswick, brought an action against Mr. Samuel Murphy Bodie, professionally known as "Dr. Walford Bodie, hypnotist, mesmerist, bloodless surgeon, and medical electrician," to recover damages for alleged misrepresentation by which the plaintiff said he was induced to enter into an agreement with the defendant and to pay him £1,000. The defendant denied the misrepresentation.

Mr. F. Mellor appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. A. Powell, K.C., and Mr. D. Warde represented the defendant.

Mr. Mellor, in opening the case, said that the plaintiff entered into an agreement to join the defendant for three years, and paid a premium of £1,000. The defendant agreed to pay the plaintiff £2 a week, to teach him all the details and methods of his business and profession, and to divulge all the secrets. Plaintiff's case was that defendant had carried on for years the fraudulent business in which he had consistently, repeatedly, and deliberately deceived the public. The case was continued on November 2, 3 and 4.

Mr. Justice Darling, in summing up the case on November 4, said there were two legal causes of action. The first was based upon fraudulent representations, which it was alleged the defendant had made to the plaintiff, and induced the latter to enter into the agreement. If the jury were satisfied on the evidence that those representations were made, and that they induced the plaintiff to enter into the agreement, then they might find for the plaintiff for the return of the £1,000. The second cause for action was that the defendant undertook to teach the plaintiff various sciences—hypnotism and mesmerism, bloodless surgery, and medical electricity—and that he had failed to do so. The defendant admitted that he had not taught the plaintiff these sciences, and when asked why he had not done so he replied that it would not have done to cram the plaintiff's head with such a lot of knowledge at once. The plaintiff's case was that defendant had nothing to teach except a few tricks, and it was for the jury to say whether the plaintiff had any ground for making that statement. If the plaintiff was old enough to invest £1,000 with the defendant, surely he was old enough to be taught the business.

With regard to the question whether the defendant could impart the knowledge of any sciences to the plaintiff, he (the learned judge) said he would point out that there were persons who, though they had not been through hospitals, could break down adhesions. To some extent it required a man of strength. Many doctors might say, "I know it can be done, but look at the risk. It may make the case worse than before." A blacksmith, who had no position to lose, might attempt it. It would have been a strange thing if, after attending to thousands of cases, Dr. Bodie had not been able to bring forward a number of persons to say that they had been cured. One would like to know a little more definitely as to what was the matter with these individuals before they saw Dr. Bodie. One would like to be certain that they were not cases of hysteria, which a strong will might cure. He (Mr. Justice Darling) would like to know why the "death cage" had not been produced in court. The electrician who witnessed the demonstration on the previous day stated that Dr. Bodie could stand a stronger current than he could because he was accustomed to it. Apparently a person who accustomed himself to electric currents was in a similar position to a person who accustomed himself to drink gin. (Laughter.)

Continuing, his Lordship told the jury that, in considering the question of whether the defendant had made false and fraudulent representations to induce the plaintiff to sign the agreement of July 6, 1906, they should take into consideration not only the accounts of previous conversations given by the parties in the witness-box and their demeanour there, but their previous record. Turning to one of defendant's books, "Stage Stories," his Lordship read the following passage from the end of the book: "Another book which I am now engaged in writing, 'The Bodie Book,' is entirely concerned with the serious side of my public life." This reference disposed of the contention that "The Bodie Book" was not to be taken seriously. He read extracts from the "Bodie Book," and said things of that kind ought not to be regarded merely as "good stories." They were intended to show that the defendant had studied these things under exceptionally favourable circumstances, and that he could, in consequence of that, treat people with success who could not be successfully treated by other persons.

Summing up other quotations from the book, his Lordship said Bodie claimed nothing less than that, by simply passing through his body, electricity ceased to be what it was, and became endowed with intelligence and sympathy; that he could convey it into the patient from his body, and that, once there, it, of itself, probed and discovered what the complaint was, and then sympathetically and intelligently healed it. (Laughter.) If Bodie pretended to the possession of any skill or knowledge which he did not and could not possess, his Lordship continued, the jury would find that he was such a "pretender to skill and knowledge which he did not possess."

His Lordship left these two questions to the jury:

1. Did the defendant by false and fraudulent representations induce the plaintiff to enter into this agreement of July 6, 1906?
2. Did the defendant break his agreement to teach the plaintiff as in terms agreed?

The jury, after a short absence, answered both questions in the affirmative, a verdict for the plaintiff, and awarded him £1,000 damages.

Judgment was given accordingly.

On the application of Mr. Powell, a stay of execution was granted on condition of the money being brought into court within ten days.

QUESTION OF LICENSING AUTHORITY.

At Tenby Police Court, Mr. Egerton Allen, barrister-at-law, charged Mr. Max Kremple, manager of the Royal Gate House Hotel, Tenby, with unlawfully keeping the Royal Assembly Rooms, Tenby, for the public performance of stage plays without legal authority between October 18 and 23, 1909.

Until the year 1909 licenses for the performance of stage plays in Tenby were granted by the borough justices. In consequence of certain action which arose at Pembroke over a license it was ruled that such licenses could only be granted by the county justices, and on October 16, 1909, Mr. Kremple applied for, and was granted, a stage plays license by the justices of the Castlemartin Division sitting at Pembroke.

Mr. Allen said the County Councils Act, 1888, transferred the power to grant stage play licenses, formerly exercised by borough justices under the Theatres Act, 1843, to the County Councils, subject to powers of delegation. The Pembrokeshire County Council referred the power back to the justices of each petty sessions and their clerks. The powers, therefore, went back to the justices of the petty sessional division in which the building to be licensed was situated. Tenby was not in the Castlemartin division, and the justices had no power to grant a license for the Assembly Rooms, which were, therefore, not duly licensed.

Mr. Allen went into the box, and gave evidence that the license was granted by the Castlemartin magistrates, and that the Assembly Rooms were kept for the public performance of stage plays.

Replying to the Bench, Mr. Allen said he did not allege that stage plays were actually performed on the dates named in the summons. The offence was that of "keeping open" the house. A different section dealt with performances. It was not necessary for him to show that the rooms were physically "open," but that they were ready for stage play purposes.

The Bench held that Mr. Allen had failed in his case, as he had not proved that stage plays were performed on the dates named on the summons. The charge was dismissed, with costs against Mr. Allen.

STAGE PLAYS IN MUSIC HALLS.—LONDON HIPPODROME FINED.

At Bow Street the Moss Empires, Limited, were summoned before Mr. Marsham for keeping the London Hippodrome for the public performance of a stage play called The Motor Chase, without the authority of letters patent or the license of the Lord Chamberlain.

Mr. Hedderwick appeared in support of the summons on behalf of the Theatrical Managers' Association; Mr. Rundell appeared for the defendants.

Mr. Hedderwick reminded the magistrate that the summons had been adjourned from May 6 last pending the hearing of an appeal against a conviction of the management of the Coliseum for a similar offence.

The magistrate imposed fines amounting to £40, and it was stated that the complainants' costs would be paid out of that amount.

WIGAN ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LIMITED, v. BAINES.

At the Wigan County Court, an action was brought by the Wigan Entertainments Co., Limited, against Miss Florence Baines.

There was also a counter claim. The claim was for £64 4s. 10d. damages for breach of contract to perform the play Miss Lancashire, Limited, at the Royal Court, Wigan, in accordance with the terms expressed and implied in an agreement made between the parties on June 23, less £14 4s. 10d., balance of moneys in the hands of the plaintiffs in respect of the performance of the play on the five nights ending October 22. The plaintiffs claimed £50 damages.

The counter claim of Miss Baines was for £64 4s. 10d., moneys belonging to her in the hands of the plaintiffs, and £100 as liquidated damages for breach of contract as per the agreement between the parties. Mr. H. L. Riley (instructed by Mr. A. Smith) represented the plaintiffs, and Mr. Rigby Swift appeared for the defendant.

When the parties appeared in court Mr. Swift announced that a settlement had been arrived at.

Mr. Swift added that they had come to the conclusion that there should be judgment for the defendant on the claim and also on the counter claim for £64 4s. 10d.

DOYLE v. BAINES.

In the Oldham County Court, Mr. T. B. Leigh, barrister, applied on behalf of the 11 trustees in the bankruptcy of Mr. Brisbane Doyle for a declaration that the right of representing Miss Lancashire, Limited, belonged to Mr. Doyle.

The application, said Mr. Leigh, was supported by an affidavit by the trustee, in which it was set forth that the play was registered in 1905, and was declared to be the property of Brisbane Doyle.

Mr. Rigby Swift, barrister who appeared for Miss Florence Baines, said that Miss Baines claimed to be the owner of the rights of representation of Miss Lancashire, Limited, and had made a declaration to that effect before the Oldham Registrar. She declared that the play and the rights of production were her sole and absolute property.

She wrote the book of the play. Six or seven years ago, she continued, she met Brisbane Doyle. She (Miss Baines) was then a music-hall artist, and a great deal of the matter contained in Miss Lancashire, Limited, had been used by her on the variety stage. She appointed Doyle as her manager, and decided that, as he was acting in that capacity, it would be better if the play was registered as being his property.

His Honour, in giving judgment, said the whole of the surrounding circumstances convinced him that the registration of the play as Mr. Doyle's was simply done as a matter of business, and that it was never intended that it should become the property of Mr. Doyle. The claim, therefore failed, and the motion must be dismissed. He would not, however, allow Miss Baines costs.

STAGE PLAYS IN AN UNLICENSED BUILDING.

Before the County Bench at Sittingbourne Petty Sessions, John Alexander Morrison 22 son was summoned for "keeping a house of public resort, to wit, the Criterion Palace of Varieties," and for allowing therein the performance of stage plays without having a license to do so, on the night of November 9. The second case was a charge against Alfred Saibot of having caused to be produced a play called The Fishermid, the said place not being licensed, on the same date.

Mr. D. H. Blome-Jones appeared for the defendant in the first case, while Mr. Saibot was undefended. Mr. Morrison pleaded guilty, and Mr. Saibot not guilty.

The Bench fined Mr. Morrison £2 and 13s. 6d. costs. Mr. Saibot was fined £1 and 10s. costs.

WEBSTER v. HARRISON—AN UNDERSTUDY AND HER DRESSES.

Before Mr. Justice Channell and a common jury in the King's Bench Division, Miss 22 Ada Webster sued Mr. Frederick Harrison, of the Haymarket, for dresses which she had to wear in Dolly Reforming Herself. The sum claimed was £99 in all, and was for three dresses which the plaintiff provided and had to wear when she understudied Miss Ethel Irving. The defendant contended that according to the contract the plaintiff had to supply her own dresses.

Mr. Foote, K.C., and Mr. Maenaghten appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. F. E. Smith, K.C., and Mr. F. Dodd represented the defendant.

The case was adjourned until November 24, when the jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff, awarding £20 damages.

CLIFTON v. TIVOLI—QUESTION OF MATINÉES—TEST CASE.

In the Westminster County Court, the case of Clifton v. New Tivoli, Limited, came 24 before his Honour Judge Woodfall.

Mr. Doughty, counsel for the plaintiff, said he was suing for salary, tender of which was admitted, and he was claiming for payment for two matinées and for damages for not being allowed to perform at two matinées. The question was whether the Tivoli Music Hall had the right to leave artists out of their Saturday matinée performances, and the action was a test one of great importance to artists. Plaintiff entered into a contract to appear at the Tivoli at £8 10s. a week, and one-seventh of that sum when required to appear at a matinée. Before 1907 artists were engaged at an inclusive salary for evening and matinée performances. Some halls paid extra for matinées, but others did not, and it became a great abuse, to prevent which contracts were drawn up that matinées should be paid for. The Tivoli started leaving artists out of the Saturday matinée performance, giving them notice on the Friday night that they would not be required. Plaintiff was given notice on two Friday nights that he would not be required, and the matinée money was stopped. That had not been contemplated by plaintiff, who was engaged through Mr. Harry Masters for the defendants. He was getting £19 in suburban halls, and that was a small sum to get from the Tivoli, and very small compared with his present salary. Mr. Masters told him he could have £19 for nights and matinées, and he stated he could not agree to that as it was contrary to the agreement with the Variety Artists' Federation, and it was agreed that he should take £8 10s. and one-seventh for matinées.

Mr. Campbell-Johnston (counsel for the defendants) objected to that being gone into.

Mr. Doughty, continuing, said that there was an ambiguity in the contract. The artist, of course, had to appear at matinées when required to, at one-seventh of his salary, and the words of the Award of Mr. Askwith—

Mr. Campbell-Johnston objected to that being gone into.

Mr. Doughty said that the plaintiff took a small salary on the understanding that it would be made up a little by the matinée. He was left out of the matinée performance, but his name was left on the bills and in the advertisements. Defendants held out that plaintiff would appear at the matinée.

Mr. Campbell-Johnston: They did not.

Mr. Doughty stated that the only place in which plaintiff's name was left out was in the programme sold inside the hall.

Plaintiff gave evidence in support of his counsel's statement, and produced defendant's advertisement from the Times, in which his name was included and "Saturday matinée."

In cross-examination, he said that he understood "when required" to mean that he was to appear at the matinées when defendants required matinées, on a Bank Holiday or a Saturday.

Mr. Doughty contended that the Tivoli, or any other music hall engaging artists, engaged not only to pay but to play them, and he cited clauses in support.

Mr. Campbell-Johnston contended that the question was simply one of construction of the contract, which was dated November 21, 1907, under which the plaintiff contracted to perform every evening "and on Saturday afternoon when required by Clause 3." It was an agreement to perform at matinées when required to appear. Plaintiff was not required, did not appear, and was not paid. His money for the evening performances for two weeks had been tendered and refused.

His Honour drew attention to Clause 3 of the contract—that the artist was “to appear at all matinées required by the management.”

Mr. Campbell-Johnston submitted that the intention was to read the word “when” in.

His Honour: There would be no doubt about it if the word was there, but it is not.

Mr. Campbell-Johnston argued that some artists had to be cut out of the shorter matinée performance.

His Honour stated that he was not to consider that or anything else outside the contract. He held that, under Clause 3 of the contract, the performer was to appear at the matinées required by the management, and that meant judgment for the plaintiff for the two weeks' salary, which had been tendered, two matinées, and nominal damages, 20s., for not being allowed to perform. The total was £20 8s. 6d., less a sum it was admitted was to be deducted that the defendants had to pay to agents. He granted a stay, and hoped that there would be an appeal. He entered judgment for the plaintiff, with costs on Scale C.

UNITED COUNTY THEATRES v. DUPREZ.— AN APPEAL.

In the Court of Appeal, before Lords Justices Vaughan Williams, Buckley, and Kennedy, the defendant in this case, Miss 26 May Moore Duprez, appealed against a judgment entered for the United County Theatres, Limited, by Mr. Justice Pickford, awarding the United County Theatres £50 and costs.

Miss Duprez's case was that she entered into a contract in 1906 with the plaintiffs to appear for a week at Dundee, beginning July 27, 1908, and at Aberdeen for a week in the following month at a salary of £20 a week. Subsequently this contract was agreed to be varied by her appearing at Aberdeen in July, 1908, and at Sunderland in the August following. She signed a document which she believed was merely confirmatory of the old agreement, except so far as altered by mutual arrangement. When the time came to fulfil these two engagements she was unable to do so owing to throat trouble, and she considered that this ended the contract. It appeared, however, that the document she signed incorporated the clause suggested by Mr. G. R. Askwith in his Award in the music-hall dispute in 1907, which gives the proprietors the right in circumstances like the one under notice to treat the engagement of an artist not fulfilled on the date agreed by reason of illness as “postponed,” and therefore they wrote to the defendant asking on what future dates she could appear for them. The plaintiff replied she was booked up years ahead. This reply the plaintiffs treated as a repudiation of the contract, and brought the action.

Mr. Lush, K.C., and Mr. C. Doughty appeared for Miss Duprez, and submitted that the new contract was so different in terms as to be inconsistent and repugnant to the old. Further, that there was no consideration to support it, and that the Award clause did not bind the plaintiff, as she signed the new contract under a misapprehension.

Mr. Shearman, K.C., and Mr. Henn Collins supported the judgment appealed from.

Lord Justice Vaughan Williams said that, in his judgment, the appeal failed. He could not come to the conclusion that the new contract was impossible of construction. He thought Mr. Justice Pickford had rightly construed it: He did not quite see how Mr. Justice Pickford arrived at the sum of £50 as the measure of the damages. There had certainly been a breach of contract by the defendant, and the plaintiffs were entitled to some damages. A new trial ought not to be ordered merely because the Court thought £50 too much. He would have been better pleased if the damages had been put at half their present amount.

Lord Justice Buckley and Lord Justice Kennedy agreed, and the appeal was accordingly dismissed.

HALE v. HICKS.—MEANING OF AUTUMN TOUR.—A NEW TRIAL ORDERED.

Before the Master of the Rolls and Lords Justices Moulton and Farwell, sitting in 26 the Court of Appeal, an appeal was made by the defendant, Mr. Seymour Hicks, in the action which was tried before Mr. Justice Channell and a special jury in the King's Bench Division, in July, in which the plaintiff, Mr. John Robert Hale Munro (Robert Hale), was awarded £155 10s. damages.

In this case the plaintiff brought an action against the defendant, Mr. Seymour Hicks, claiming damages for alleged breach of contract. The plaintiff's case was that in 1907 he was engaged by the defendant to tour with My Darling. The contract in question was entered into on May 4, 1907. The contract was for the autumn tour, and it originally contained a stipulation that it could be terminated by a fortnight's notice, but on the plaintiff objecting to this, it was deleted. The plaintiff's case was that he was told at the interviews that the tour was one of twenty weeks, was supplied with a list of the towns which the company was to visit, and that he was engaged for the period at £30 a week. The tour was not successful, and on October 12 the defendant terminated all engagements by a fortnight's notice.

Mr. Hicks contended that the plaintiff's engagement was for the “tour,” and by the custom of the theatrical profession that meant that engagements terminated when the tour ended; that the tour ended; and that the tour could be terminated if unsuccessful by a fortnight's notice.

The three following questions were left by Mr. Justice Channell at the trial to the jury:

1. Is there any special meaning long known and understood in the theatrical profession of the words “tour” or “autumn tour,” or any custom long known and understood in the profession by which the tour may be terminated if a loss is sustained?—Answer: No.

2. If such custom does exist, was there any special contract outside the written contract by which such special meaning was excluded? Answer: Yes.

3. Is there any special understanding in the profession that an autumn tour lasts until December unless it is otherwise specified in the contract?—Answer: Yes.

On those findings the judge entered judgment for the plaintiff for £155 10s., and Mr. Hicks now appealed.

Mr. Duke, K.C., and Mr. J. D. Crawford appeared for the appellant; and Mr. Lush, K.C., and Mr. B. A. Cohen for the plaintiff.

Mr. Duke, for the appellant, said that the question was whether by some usage terms had become incorporated in a contract, indefinite as to time, which gave it a hard and fast meaning as to time. The effect of what was done in the Court below was to lay down that if an autumn tour was not successful the salaries of the artists must be kept up until Christmas or at any rate, until the artists began their pantomime engagements. Counsel read the summing-up of Mr. Justice Channell, and said there was no allegation of a verbal contract collateral with the legal contract.

Mr. Lush: I do not quite agree.

Lord Justice Moulton: Mr. Justice Channell seemed to have led the jury to believe that the contract was not contained wholly in writing.

Mr. Duke submitted that there had been misdirection, and that the verdict and judgment should be set aside.

Mr. Lush contended that there had been no misdirection and no miscarriage of justice. In the Court below, he said, Mr. Hicks' whole case was that there was a custom which entitled him to determine the plaintiff's engagement, on giving, as soon as he found that the tour was a failure, a fortnight's notice. Mr. Lush said his case was that, assuming that the interpretation of the terms used in the contract was for the jury to decide, the verdict was right.

Lord Justice Moulton said he thought the interpretation of the terms of the contract was in no sense a matter for the jury.

Mr. Lush: It was not the plaintiff who relied upon any custom, but the defendant.

Lord Justice Moulton: As I read the contract it meant the engagement of the plaintiff was for as long as the tour lasted.

The Master of the Rolls said there must be a new trial. There was a written contract between the parties, and it was for the Court to construe that contract. Evidence might be permissible as to the meaning of a technical term, or there might be a custom so well known that it might be treated as part of the contract, though not set out in it. In this case both sides had endeavoured to prove custom. Dealing with the questions left to the jury, his Lordship said he did not understand the propriety or the purport of the third, as the first question had been negatived. He thought the case had not been properly tried, and that the proper questions had not been put to the jury. There must be a new trial.

Lord Justice Moulton said if it was intended to prove custom, not only was the evidence in this case insufficient, but, in his opinion, no amount of evidence of the same kind would justify the jury in finding custom. A custom was really a private law, and it must be proved that it was universally known in the market, so that for a witness to say he did not know it must be the exception. As a general rule, both the persons who engaged and the persons who were engaged must know the custom, otherwise it was not a custom. In his opinion, they would be doing a great unkindness to a profession like this if they allowed loose evidence of that sort to be regarded as determining the rights of the parties. It was better they should know all the terms of their contracts, and that the terms should be put in the written contract, and not left to this loose type of understanding.

Lord Justice Farwell delivered judgment to the same effect, and a new trial was ordered. The £155 10s. paid into court was ordered to be paid out.

FOSTER v. MARSDEN—CLAIM FOR COMMISSION.

The case of Foster v. Marsden was before Judge Woodfall in the Westminster 26 County Court. It was a claim by Mr. Geo. Foster, agent of Garrick Street, against Miss Amy Marsden, comedienne, for commission on engagements.

Mr. Hillberry, counsel for the plaintiff, said the amount claimed was a balance of £9 19s. Plaintiff secured for defendant Stoll tours of twenty-six weeks for 1907, 1909, and 1910. She had performed them so far and had paid commission for part of them. There was an engagement outside the contract, for the Hippodrome, Great Yarmouth, on which the charge was the usual 10 per cent. instead of the special terms of 5 per cent. under the contract for the tours.

Mr. W. Sanderson, counsel for the defendant, called Miss Marsden, who gave evidence that she obtained the Stoll tour herself.

His Honour found for the plaintiff. He took off £2 9s. for when she was ill, and gave plaintiff judgment for £s with costs.

JASON v. DALY.—BAGGAGE MANAGERS "SECURITY."

In the West London County Court, before Sir W. Lucius Selle, Walter Jason, of 29 Charing Cross Road, W.C., sued Charles Daly for £27 10s. Mr. L. Tyfield, counsel for the plaintiff, said, in answer to an advertisement in THE STAGE, plaintiff got into communication with the defendant about a situation as baggage manager for Machin's sketches, which were going on tour after working the London music halls. Plaintiff had never received the appointment, and had not seen his money after paying it down.—In answer to his Honour, plaintiff said that the money was paid as security. Daly asked him for £30, but as he had only £27 10s. that amount was accepted. His salary was to be 30s. a week, and 10s. a week was to be repaid in consideration of the £27 10s.—His Honour said that a letter had been received at the court in which the defendant (who did not appear) offered 7s. 6d. a week in payment of the claim. When were you to start?—Plaintiff: In February last, but I never started at all, and I have not had a farthing of my money.—His Honour: Judgment for the amount claimed, payment in fourteen days, with costs.

DECEMBER.

"F. NEVILLE" CHARGED.—PREMIUMS FOR PANTOMIME ENGAGEMENTS.

At the West Bromwich Police Court, Mary Ann Sutcliffe (27), pantomime artist, 2 was charged with obtaining 5s. by false pretences from Gladys Anderson, of West Bromwich, on November 22.

Gladys Anderson, of Queen Street, West Bromwich, said she wrote in answer to an advertisement in THE STAGE:—

Wanted, chorus ladies for pantomime. Few beginners may write. Photos and stamped envelopes to Neville, 51, Marcellus Road, Holloway, London. No callers.

She asked for an engagement and received a reply, signed "F. Neville," offering her an engagement at a salary of £1 per week upon payment of a fee of 5s. Witness wrote to F. Neville on November 22, enclosing a postal order for 5s., and received a letter and a contract engaging her to appear at a forthcoming pantomime at Darlington.

Elsie May Wyers, of Seagar Street, West Bromwich, stated that she wrote asking for an engagement. Three days later she received a reply to the effect that defendant would arrange for her to join the pantomime company at West Bromwich, at a salary of 22s. 6d. per week on receipt of a fee of 7s. 6d. The pantomime, it was stated in the letter, would commence on December 27. Later she wrote to "Neville," who was the advertiser, on October 17, and enclosed a postal order for 7s. 6d. In reply she received a letter and a contract. Subsequently the witness made inquiries at the West Bromwich Theatre, and found that she had not been engaged.

Evidence was given by Mr. Richard Nightingale and Mr. E. C. Jazon to the effect that they had not authorised prisoner to engage artists.

Detective-sergeant Mollart deposed that on November 24 he received a warrant for the arrest of "F. Neville," which he forwarded to Chichester. Five days later he received the prisoner into custody from the police there. Among her possessions there was a book containing a number of names, addresses, and amounts of money received. There were altogether fifty-one names the amount of money being £19 5s. 6d. Included in the list were the names of G. Anderson 5s. and E. M. Wyers 7s. 6d. At the time of her arrest defendant was living in apartments with another girl.

Prisoner now pleaded "Not guilty." She had no intention to defraud, she said, but meant to get Miss Anderson and Miss Wyers bookings at pantomimes.

The Bench said there was nothing against prisoner in the past. They wished to deal leniently with her, and she would be fined 21s., including costs, or fourteen days.

GOODSON v. ROSEN AND BLISS.—DISPUTE BETWEEN AGENTS.

In the Westminster County Court, his Honour Judge Woodfall had before him the case of Goodson v. Rosen and Bliss, in which the plaintiff, Mr. Jack Goodson, a music hall agent of Cranbourne Street, sued the defendants, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss, agents, to recover the sum of £35 11s. 3d., as half-share of commission on engagements procured for an artist named Samuels.

Mr. Doughty was counsel for the plaintiff, and Mr. E. S. Lever appeared for the defence.

Mr. Bliss flatly denied ever having agreed to share commission with the plaintiff on all contracts signed by Samuels.

His Honour, in giving judgment, said he must find for the plaintiff. He had to deal with the probabilities of the case, and had come to the conclusion that the plaintiff did introduce Samuels to the defendants, and that there was a verbal agreement to share the commission on all contracts. Judgment, therefore, would be for the plaintiff for the amount claimed, with costs.

TIVOLI, MANCHESTER, LIMITED, v. "DAILY NEWS."

In the King's Bench Division, before Mr. Justice Grantham and a special jury, 3 was heard an action by the Tivoli, Manchester, Ltd., against the Daily News, Limited, for damages for libel. The defendants admitted that they published the libel, and the only question was one of damages.

Mr. Gill, K.C., and Mr. S. Lynch appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mr. Shearman, K.C., and Mr. Hugh Fraser for the defendants.

Mr. Gill said on February 11, 1909, the defendants in their paper published the following:—"Watch Committee Veto.—Parisienne's Turn at City Music Hall.—At the instance of the Manchester Watch Committee, in an intimation from the chief constable, Mr. R. Peacock, the star turn of which has been given at the Tivoli Music Hall, Manchester, by Mlle. Liane D'Eve, the Parisienne chanteuse, has in some of its details been modified. There is no suggestion that Mlle. Liane D'Eve's representation is one which ought not to be given. She sings, in costume, a selection of popular ditties in French, some of them witty and some of them serious, each accompanied by clever acting. At the beginning of the turn she is revealed making a living portrait in an immense gold frame. Stepping out of the frame, she goes first through a programme of songs, then steps back, and in the frame undergoes a quick change of the outer costume. It was to the cinematographic effect in colour that the authorities had taken exception. At their suggestion the quick changes now take place behind a screen."

Mr. Gill said this was an entire fabrication in so far as the allegation that the Watch Committee had intervened was concerned. The defendants had published what they purported to be an apology.

Mr. Peacock, the chief constable, said there was no truth in the statement that the Watch Committee vetoed any part of the entertainment.

Mr. Justice Grantham, in summing up, said that the statement was not a mistake but an invention. The apology was put away in a corner of the paper, where it might not attract much attention.

The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiffs, and assessed the damages at £200.

KARNO AND EDWARDS v. SPRATT.—AN ACTION FOR SLANDER.

In the Court of Appeal, the case of Karno and Edwards v. Spratt came before the 4 Master of the Rolls and Lords Justices Moulton and Farwell. It was an appeal of the plaintiffs from a judgment of Mr. Justice Channell, at the Exeter Assizes, dismissing their action against the defendant for alleged slander before a common jury.

The plaintiffs, Mr. Fred Karno and Mr. Alfred Henry Edwards, brought the action to recover damages for alleged slander from the defendant, Mr. James Spratt, and also for an injunction to restrain him from repeating the alleged slanders. It appeared that the plaintiffs owned the Hippodrome at Exeter, the defendant being the occupier of the adjoining premises. On December 12, 1908, the defendant, it was alleged, complained to the superintendent of the Exeter Fire Brigade before the door porter of the Hippodrome, a police-constable, and the manager of the hall and others, that a fire had been caused in his premises by reason of defective lighting arrangements in the Hippodrome, and also stated that the Hippodrome was not safe for the public, and ought to be shut up. It was also alleged that he made other statements which bore the innuendo that the plaintiffs had been guilty of negligence in the conduct of the music-hall. The defence was a general denial. At the trial, upon the direction of the judge, the jury returned a verdict for the defendant, his lordship ruling that the words complained of were not actionable without proof of special damage. Hence the present appeal.

Mr. Clavell Salter, K.C., and Mr. G. H. Head (instructed by Messrs. Freeman, Haynes, and Co.) appeared for the appellants; Mr. Hawke (instructed by Messrs. Kenneth Brown, Baker, and Co.) represented the respondent.

In the result, their Lordships dismissed the appeal with costs, holding that it was out of time.

CARLTON v. WATSON—BREACH OF CONTRACT—THEATRE NOT READY TO OPEN.

This action was brought in the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice in Ireland. The plaintiff claimed £200 damages for breach of contract dated March 29, 1909, between the defendant, Mr. F. Wentworth Marriott Watson, who was described in the agreement as the sole proprietor and patentee of the Queen's Theatre, Dublin, and Mr. Stanley Carlton, a touring manager. The agreement was that Mr. Carlton should provide for the appearance of his company in the Queen's, Dublin, for six nights and one matinée, commencing September 20, and terminating September 25, 1909, and that the piece which should be performed was to be Her Life in London. Mr. Watson was unable to open the theatre, which had been recently rebuilt, until September 27, 1909, and consequently was unable to fulfil his agreement with Mr. Stanley Carlton.

The case was heard before Mr. Justice Gibson without a jury, and the following counsel appeared:—Mr. S. L. Brown, K.C., and Mr. A. V. Matheson (instructed by Messrs. Hamilton and Craig, solicitors, Dublin, as agents for the plaintiff, and Mr. R. F. Hennessy, K.C., and Mr. W. Q. Murphy (instructed by Mr. David Dunne, solicitor, Dublin) for the defendant.

There was a clause in the agreement which provided that in the event of the theatre being unable to open through fire, death in Royal Family, or from any other cause whatsoever, that the agreement should be null and void, and the judge, after considering his judgment, decided that the cause which prevented the theatre from being opened was that the Letters Patent were not obtained until September 25 or 27, 1909, and that that was not a cause contemplated by the parties when signing the agreement, and that consequently Mr. Stanley Carlton was entitled to judgment against Mr. Watson for £75 damages and costs.

STROHBACH v. MACNAGHTEN.—A NEW TRIAL ORDERED.

In the Divisional Court, before Mr. Justice Darling and Mr. Justice Phillimore, the case of Strohbach v. Macnaghten came before the Court on the defendant's appeal from a decision of Judge Bacon at Bloomsbury County Court.

The plaintiffs, Carl Strohbach and Franz Wiedman, sued Mr. Frank Macnaghten to recover £60, being four weeks' salary, contending that they were not permitted to perform at the halls for which they were engaged. The defence was that they were offered the option of playing at other halls on each of the four weeks at the same salary.

Judge Bacon found for the plaintiffs for the amount claimed on the ground that although in Mr. Askwith's Award there was a provision that artists might be transferred from one hall to another, it was expressly stipulated that that could be done only with their consent, which in this case had not been obtained.

Mr. Montague Lish, K.C., and Mr. Martin O'Connor appeared for the appellant, and Mr. C. Doughty appeared for the respondents.

Their Lordships upheld the decision of Judge Bacon in favour of the plaintiffs, but sent the case back for a new trial on the question of damages only, expressing the opinion that the plaintiffs were entitled to more than merely nominal damages, but not to the full four weeks' salary. They threw out the suggestion that the parties should come to terms instead of having the case tried over again.

No costs in the appeal were allowed. [See report, May 17.]

HART v. MIGNON—CLAIM FOR COMMISSION.—INFANTS AND BENEFICIAL CONTRACTS.

Before His Honour Judge Emden, at the Lambeth County Court, David Hart, 9 Brixton Road, variety agent, sued Miss Mabel Mignon to recover £4 14s alleged to be due for commission upon engagements.

Counsel said in the early part of 1909 defendant was engaged at the Engraves, Brixton, at a nominal salary of £2 a week by Mr. Grimes, who gave her the chance of showing her ability. Defendant signed a contract with plaintiff, making the latter her agent, and plaintiff found her engagements covering three years at salaries from £4 to £8 a week. Apparently all went well until subsequently defendant met Mr. Day, a rival agent. Defendant wrote on July 13 that she had placed her business into the hands of Mr. Day.

With regard to a statement by the defence the defendant was an infant at the time of the signing of the contract, counsel contended that the contract was beneficial to the defendant.

In the defence it was urged that defendant could now command better engagements than those for which plaintiff had contracted, and that she was not bound by an agreement that was not to her advantage.

His Honour dismissed the action, with costs.

THE OXFORD, LIMITED, v. WADE (ROBEY).

In the Chancery Division, before Mr. Justice Joyce, an application was made by the Oxford, Limited, for an injunction to restrain Mr. George Robey from performing at the Empire, Leicester Square, or any other places of entertainment within one mile of the Oxford, except the Tavol, in alleged contravention of an agreement.

Under the contract in question Mr. Robey was to perform at three halls a night at a salary of £120 a week.

The defence was that the agreement was a personal contract with the late Mr. Adney Payne, and that it terminated on the death of that gentleman.

Mr. Younger, K.C., and Mr. Maughan appeared for the company, and Mr. Simon, K.C., M.P., and Mr. McCardie for Mr. Robey.

His lordship said that in form the document was a most extraordinary one. Nothing would induce him to stop Mr. Robey exercising his profession unless it was clear beyond all reasonable doubt that he had contracted not to do what it was now sought to restrain him from doing. Not only did he not find any such clear contract, but in his lordship's opinion on the death of Mr. Payne the agreement was no longer workable. The application was accordingly dismissed.

FRANCIS AND THORNE v. MACNAGHTEN.

In the King's Bench Division, before Mr. Justice Coleridge, an action was brought by Miss Ada Francis, of 58, Lyndhurst Road, Peckham, and Mr. George Tyrrell Thorne, of 11, Cavendish Mansions, against the Surrey Vaudeville Theatre, Ltd., to recover damages for breach of a contract. The claim amounted to £15 artists' salary, and damages. Mr. J. M. Doherty and Mr. Woolf appeared for plaintiffs, and Mr. McCall and Mr. Martin O'Connor were for the defence.

Miss Ada Francis was first called, and in answer to Mr. A. H. Woolf said some two and a-half years ago she was singing a song called "The Suffragette," and this was subsequently elaborated by Mr. Thorne into a sketch. The sketch was booked by Mr. Claxton, an agent, for the Surrey. The performance at the matinée at the Surrey was undeniably successful. Later, Mr. Frank Baugh told them they were not to appear that night. Witness said she "could not accept" this, and Mr. Baugh replied he would have no man on his stage who used the expression "Gawd blimey." Witness was on the stage during the whole time, and was absolutely sure that expression was not used. What Mr. Thorne did say was: "Oh, blimey, ain't I goin' it?" His part was that of a low comedy policeman, and such an expression was therefore justifiable.

Mr. McCall at this stage said if plaintiff were entitled to damages at all, the sum was strictly limited to one week's salary, £15.

Mr. Woolf: In assessing damages it is competent for the jury to take into consideration all surrounding circumstances. My submission is that over and above the £15 we are entitled to nominal damages for breach of contract.

The Judge: What are your special damages?

Counsel: £15 for salary and costs of rehearsals.

The Judge: Rehearsals for what?

Counsel: For the sketch.

The Judge: You produce at the theatre for one week; you are going to get £15. You are not permitted to perform. Your damage is £15.

Counsel: That is only loss irrespective of the breach for which we are intended to get nominal damages.

The Judge: Nominal damages are a farthing.

Counsel: They may be a farthing or they may be £50. We have lost reputation and the chance of getting further engagements. We have been prejudiced by this breach of contract.

The Judge: Too remote. You may have a farthing damages.

Counsel: Does your lordship hold we can only be entitled to £15?

The Judge: On these facts.

Mr. George Tyrrell Thorne, of 11, Cavendish Mansions, stated that he wrote the sketch in question. He played the part of the policeman at the Surrey on January 18. The allegation that he then used a blasphemous expression was untrue.

Other evidence was given to the effect that the words were not used.

This concluded the case for the plaintiffs.

Mr. McCall reminded counsel for plaintiffs that they had undertaken to call Mr. Claxton, a variety agent.

Mr. Thomas Claxton, a music hall variety agent, was accordingly called, and said he obtained for plaintiff the engagement at the Surrey. After the first performance he was approached with complaints with regard to the management's refusal to allow them to perform. Witness drafted out a letter, but did not send it. There was no necessity after a conversation he had with Mr. Baugh over the telephone before posting it.

In cross-examination, witness said the licensing authorities were extremely particular with regard to vulgar or blasphemous words on the stage, and so were managers. He told Mr. Baugh, when arranging the engagement, there was nothing objectionable in the sketch, but Mr. Baugh had satisfied him the words complained of were used. The manager also assured him that the words, "Gawd blimey" were used.

For the defence, Mr. Frederick Baugh, general manager to the defendant company, was first called. He stated that directly Mr. Thorne came upon the stage he looked at the group of ladies, and then at the audience, and then, exclaimed: "Oh, Gawd blimey. A nice lot!" He must have been heard all over the house.

Mr. D. C. Cockran, manager of the Surrey Theatre, corroborated as to the use of the phrase objected to. In cross-examination, he said the sketch created a good deal of applause, but it was all ironical. He himself assisted to eject twenty people. Never in all his experience had he heard such a pandemonium. It started on Mr. Thorne exclaiming, "Oh, Gawd blimey," and continued at intervals throughout the performance. When the curtain fell it "burst out." Witness never had such an experience in his life, and did not want another. If the County Council inspector had called in at the time it would have been a serious matter for him (witness).

P.C. 200 L—on duty in the gallery—said there was an uproar in the gallery immediately Mr. Thorne used the words, "Gawd blimey, what a nice lot!" Everybody shouted, "Gawd blimey," and witness assisted to eject several people as the disturbance was being quelled. Witness admitted that in his employment as a constable he certainly did hear much stronger language.

Mr. John Johnson, another variety agent, said the words used by Mr. Thorne "produced commotion and tumult."

The stage manager and an attendant corroborated the evidence that the words complained of were used, and agreed that a great noise ensued.

The judge, in summing up, said the only question for the jury to decide was with regard to the claim for £15. That would depend upon their decision as to whether the words objected to were in fact used or not. If they were used, admittedly defendant was justified in refusing any further dealing with plaintiffs.

Without leaving the box, the jury found for the defendant, and judgment with costs was entered accordingly.

O'GORMAN v. HIBBERT LIBEL ACTION.—
VERDICT FOR PLAINTIFF.—DAMAGES
£100.

In the Lord Chief Justice's Court, before the Lord Chief Justice and a special jury.

15 The case of O'Gorman v. Hibbert and others came on for hearing. This case was an action for alleged libel, and the plaintiff was represented by Mr. Marshall Hall, K.C., and Mr. Charles Doughty, and the defendants by Mr. C. F. Gill, K.C., and Mr. Walter Payne.

Mr. Hall, in opening, said the plaintiff, Mr. Joe O'Gorman, was a well-known music hall artist. The defendants were Mr. Henry Geo. Hibbert, of The Music Hall and Theatre

Review, and Messrs. Harris and Sons, printers of the paper. On January 8 of 1909 an issue of the Music Hall came out, and on page 22, in the most prominent type and in the most prominent form, appeared this:—"Agents and Artists.—The Executive Committee of the V.A.E. object to the following clause being submitted to arbitration: "No person shall be an agent and artist at the same time." Why?" This advertisement was inserted by the agents and paid for by the Variety Agents' Association. In another part of the paper there appeared the libel complained of. The article said: "The Federation decline to allow this question to be considered by the arbitrator at all. It is impossible to be under a misapprehension on this point—the intention is to exclude a particular person from the risk of impairing handsome emoluments." That person referred to, said counsel, was Mr. O'Gorman. "An artist becomes an agent, we should say, because he sees the prospect of earning more money than falls to his lot as an artist. Allowing the agents to habitually earn even the most princely sums that the imaginative writer has accredited them with of late, they still fall short of the incomes of first-class artists. Therefore it is not likely that any first-class artist should desire to become an agent. It is the man who has wholly or half failed as an artist, and who desires to pick up another trade. . . . And, surely to goodness, if rumour be true, the gentleman involved is so monstrously rewarded for his exertions in agency that he should never have the effrontery to attempt his always mediocre performances again. When you have made sure of a case of champagne, why hold out your hand for an additional two-penn'orth of Irish? As an agent we are assured he is excellent; as an artist, we assure him he never will be missed."

The Lord Chief Justice, in summing up, said the question the jury had to consider was: Was the article fair comment or had the limits of fair comment been exceeded? Was it fair comment or could malice be read between the lines? The plaintiff had used strong language, therefore he must not complain of strong language on the part of others. Due allowance must be made for irritating speeches by the plaintiff, and, on the other hand, they must ask themselves the question, was the comment fair? The speeches referred to the agents generally, and the article did not go for artists generally, but for one particular artist.

The jury, after a short absence, returned a verdict for plaintiff for £100 damages and costs.

NEILSON v. HORNIMAN AND OTHERS.— QUESTION OF LICENSE OR ASSIGNMENT.

In the Court of Appeal, before the Master of the Rolls and Lords Justices Moulton and Farwell, the case of Neilson v. Horniman and others, which was the appeal of the plaintiff, Mr. Harold Neilson, from a judgment of Mr. Justice Ridley, was heard.

The plaintiff's case was that Messrs. Heinemann were the owners of the copyright in question, and in June, 1908, he had granted to him as sole licensee the sole right of representation of the play, except in London and the suburbs, for twelve months. The plaintiff alleged that the defendant, Miss Horniman, had produced the play at the Gaiety, Manchester, on December 17, 1908, without his license, Mr. Leigh Level (another defendant) being manager and proprietor of the company which gave the representation.

Mr. Morton-Smith appeared for the appellant, and Mr. Arthur Powell, K.C., and Mr. Dehn for the respondents.

Mr. Morton-Smith, on behalf of the appellant, said that the learned judge had held that the plaintiff could not sue in his own name without joining Messrs. Heinemann, through whom the plaintiff derived his title.

The Master of the Rolls said it was not open to the Court to decide the case differently from Mr. Justice Ridley. The case of Heap v. Hartley had decided that there was a difference between a license and an assignment. It had also been held that this principle applied to copyright. This decision was perfectly right.

In the result their lordships dismissed the appeal with costs, holding that the plaintiff as licensee could not sue in his own name.

CATTANEO v. HIPPODROME, NOTTINGHAM, AND OTHERS.—PERSONALITY OF A TROUPE.

In the Westminster County Court, his Honour Judge Woodfall had before him the case of Cattaneo v. The Hippodrome, Nottingham; the Hippodrome, Sheffield, and the Pavilion, Newcastle, in which the plaintiff, Mr. Max Cattaneo, sued the defendants for damages for breach of contract to allow his troupe to appear at the respective houses in pursuance of a contract entered into with Messrs. Barrasford.

Mr. Doughty, instructed by Messrs. Jenop and Priestly, was counsel for the plaintiff, and Mr. Turner appeared for the defence.

Mr. Doughty said the dispute arose in connection with six contracts which the plaintiff entered into through Messrs. Barrasford to play his troupe at the Hippodrome, Nottingham; the Hippodrome, Sheffield; and the Pavilion, Newcastle, at a salary of £30 a week in each case. The contracts were signed by Thos. Barrasford, and were for 1909 and 1910. Early in 1909, however, three members of the plaintiff's troupe left him, but he filled their places with others who were at any rate as good, and possibly better, because he had to pay them a higher salary. On September 20 last the bill matter was sent in to the theatres in question, but it was returned by Mr. W. Collins, the manager of the Sheffield Hippodrome, together with a letter to the effect that, owing to the changes which had been made in the plaintiff's troupe, all contracts which had been made through Messrs. Barrasford were to be considered as at an end. The result of that was that the plaintiff had up to now lost the sum of £60, and had not been able to fill in his vacant dates for the next year. He (counsel) did not dispute that there had been changes in the plaintiff's troupe, but he submitted that the defendants were not entitled to put an end to his contracts without giving him the opportunity of showing that the troupe in question was quite as good, if not better, than the one which he agreed to supply.

Mr. Max Cattaneo gave evidence bearing out his counsel's statements.

For the defence Mr. Maroney was called, and said he was the stage manager at the Hippodrome, Keighley, where the plaintiff's troupe was engaged. In his opinion Summers, who was one of those discharged, was the life and soul of the show. From his point of view he would not have employed the troupe without Summers.

Mr. Cartwright and Mr. Summers also gave evidence.

His Honour said he thought the plaintiff was entitled to judgment. The defendant's case was that the plaintiff had taken out the best artist, and that therefore they were not liable. He (the judge) had no evidence before him to show that the troupe which the plaintiff tendered was not as good as that which existed when the contract was made—in fact, there was evidence to the contrary. He had come to the conclusion that the defendants were not justified in putting an end to the contracts, and that the show which the plaintiff tendered to them was quite as good as he had agreed to give. He therefore found for the plaintiff, and awarded him £22 10s. in respect of the Nottingham contract, £22 10s. in respect of Newcastle, and £7 7s. in respect of Sheffield. Judgment therefore would be for that amount, with costs.

COLLES v. MAUGHAM—CLAIM FOR COMMISSION FOR PLACING "THE EXPLORER."

In the King's Bench Division, before Mr. Justice Channell and a special jury, Mr. W. M. Colles, literary and dramatic adviser and agent, carrying on business as "The Authors' Syndicate," sued Mr. W. Somerset Maugham for commission with respect to the "placing" of The Explorer.

Mr. Eldon Bankes, K.C., and Mr. Hugh Fraser appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. M. Lush, K.C., and Mr. G. Wallace represented the defendant.

Mr. Bankes said the play was accepted by Mr. Lewis Waller. The plaintiff put his case in two ways—(1) If he placed the play it should be upon the terms that he received 10 per cent. of the returns and out-of-pocket expenses; and (2) he said that in April, 1904, after he had made considerable way with Mr. Waller, Mr. Maugham took the play out of his hands. He claimed a reasonable sum up to the time it was withdrawn from his agency.

The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff finding that his commission should be 5 per cent. on past and future transactions in connection with The Explorer on behalf of Mr. Maugham.

His lordship gave judgment for the plaintiff for £21 10s., and granted a declaration that the plaintiff was entitled to commission in the future.

ROBINS v. ANGLESS.—CLAIM FOR SALARY.

At the Southend County Court, on Thursday, before his Honour Judge Tindal Atkin-

21 son, George Robins, public entertainer, Salisbury Road, Wimbledon, sued Mr. H. E. Angless, lessee of the Pier Pavilion and Pier Hill bandstand, Southend, for £33 16s. wages alleged to be due under a contract. There was a counter-claim for £45 for damages for alleged breach of contract.

Mr. A. A. Whitehouse was for plaintiff; Mr. W. G. Schwab for defendant.

The claims had reference to an engagement made by the defendant of the plaintiff's concert party, known as the "Pick-Me-Ups," at the Pier Hill bandstand for six months, and its subsequent cancelling after the party had played for some time.

Judgment was given for the plaintiff on claim and counter-claim.

FIONI v. LUCAS.—CLAIM FOR COMMISSION.

In the Liverpool County Court, James Fioni, agent, of 21, Norton Street, Liverpool, 21 sued Edward H. Lucas and Mary E. Lucas, music hall artists, to recover £5 10s. commission.

Mr. Pemberton (Messrs. Nicholson and Pemberton) appeared for plaintiff, whose case was that the money was owing to him in respect of his commission at 10 per cent. on engagements he had obtained for defendants in 1907 at the York Empire, and at the Gloucester and Porth Palaces in March and April of 1908. The salaries were £15 for the York engagement and £20 for each of the two others.

The male defendant contended that he had booked the York engagement himself.

His Honour Judge Thomas gave judgment in favour of plaintiff for £4.

ARNOLD v. JOSEPH.—CLAIM FOR COMMISSION.

In the Liverpool County Court, John Arnold, an agent, sued Harry Joseph, proprietor 21 of a pantomime company, on a claim for £6 13s. commission.

Plaintiff, for whom Mr. W. Madden (instructed by Mr. R. Barrow Siree) appeared, claimed that he had effected on Joseph's behalf the booking of a pantomime called Robinson Crusoe at the Muncaster, Bootle, last season, and at the ordinary rates of commission was entitled to £6 13s. from Joseph.

For the defendant, on whose behalf Mr. Pemberton appeared, it was contended that it was through Mr. Fioni he had secured the engagement at the Muncaster, and that he had paid Mr. Fioni the commission.

His Honour said he was of opinion there had been a contract with Mr. Arnold and a promise to pay him his commission, and there would be judgment for plaintiff for the amount.

R. B. JARVIS SENTENCED.—FALSE PRETENCES.

At the Leicester Borough Police Court, Reginald Basil Jarvis (23), described as a 24 music hall artist, of 43, Evington Park Road, was charged on a warrant with obtaining by false pretences, from Henry Turland, two bills of the value of 6d., the property of William Catlin, with intent to cheat and defraud, on or about December 6.

Prisoner chose to be dealt with summarily, and pleaded guilty.

Mr. J. T. Hincks, who appeared for Mr. Catlin, explained that prisoner, under the heading of Catlin's Pierrots, advertised for artists. It was stated that he had had fifty or sixty replies to the advertisement, and had been engaging artists from all over the country in Mr. Catlin's name. They also found that he had been round to the places where Mr. Catlin's bills were shown, including Mr. Catlin's own photograph, collecting them, saying he was authorised to do so. He actually took a hall at Ashby, and used the bills he had stolen for advertising his show. Steps were taken to stop him, and then Mr. Catlin got a wire saying that the artists at Ashby were stranded there with no money, and could not get back again. Prisoner was not quite the innocent person he had represented himself to be, for he was brought up at Liverpool Police Court on July 31, 1906, on three charges of obtaining things by false pretences, and sentenced to a day's imprisonment on each; in September of the same year he was found guilty of false pretences at Clerkenwell Police Court, and sentenced to three months' hard labour, while on March 3, 1908, he was convicted of forgery at the Central Criminal Court and sentenced to fifteen months.

The Chairman said it was about as barefaced and impudent and cruel a fraud as could well be perpetrated. He would be sentenced to three months' hard labour.

IN THE BANKRUPTCY COURTS.

JANUARY.

MR. RALPH LE BUTT.

Ralph le Butt, of 98, Biddulph Mansions, Elgin Avenue, W., appeared at the London 22 Bankruptcy Court, before Mr. Registrar Brougham for his public examination. The gross liabilities amounted to £640 6s. 6d., of which £632 7s. 6d. was expected to rank for dividend. Among his liabilities was one for printing in connection with his theatrical ventures, and which, he declared, was one of the chief causes of his bankruptcy. The assets were estimated at £317 1s., the deficiency being £315 6s. 6d. His examination was concluded.

FEBRUARY.

MR. C. R. COLLINS.

At Warwick Bankruptcy Court C. R. Collins came up for public examination. The estimated deficiency was £338 14s. 5d. Debtor commenced business as a grocer in Brighton. In 1907 he became a theatrical manager in Altrincham, Cheshire. He was now working as a hawker of hardware. The examination was closed.

MARCH.

THE CAMBERWELL PALACE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.

Mr. Justice Swinfen Eady, in the Companies Winding-up Court, made an order for 16 the winding-up of the Camberwell Palace of Varieties, Limited, which was formed to carry on a music hall and licensed premises at Camberwell.

His Lordship, in making the order, directed the petition to be amended to make it appear that the petitioners were shareholders of the company.

MR. G. KING MORGAN.

The public examination of Geo. King Morgan, theatrical agent, residing at Olympia 19 Mansions, Kensington, came before the Registrar at the London Bankruptcy Court. The debtor's liabilities amounted to £1,331, and he had no assets.—The examination was concluded.

MR. CHAS. BIGNELL.

The first meeting of creditors in the case of Charles Bignell, comedian, was called at 30 the London Bankruptcy Court. The liabilities were put down at £34 16s. 7d., and the assets nil. There were no creditors present, and only two proofs for small amounts had been sworn. He had no proposition to make, and his affairs were left in the hands of the Official Receiver.

APRIL.

WALDORF PRODUCTIONS, LIMITED.

The first meeting of creditors and shareholders in the matter of the Waldorf 16 Productions, Limited, of the Waldorf Theatre, Aldwych, W.C., was held at 33, Carey Street, W.C. There was not a quorum present at either meeting, and the matter was therefore adjourned. The observations of the Official Receiver showed sixty-three unsecured creditors for £4,257, and preferential creditors for £1,439, while the assets were put at £408 16s. 11d. Of these assets £323 was cash at the bank, while the scenery was estimated to produce £50 and the furniture £35. The estimated deficiency, subject to the cost of liquidation, was £5,278, and the total deficiency in the case of shareholders was £14,528. The unsecured creditors included claims by Mr. Dance for £2,260, rent paid in advance, and by Mr. H. R. Smith for £526, payments made on behalf of the company. The preferential creditors were for rates, water rate, and income-tax. The salaries of all the artists engaged were paid in full, £1,000 having been subscribed for the purpose by Mr. H. Smith, who agreed to take in exchange preferential shares of the company.

MR. A. AUSTIN LEIGH.

At the London Bankruptcy Court, Anthony 19 Leigh Austin, of 67, Denbigh Street, Pimlico, actor and theatrical manager, appeared for his public examination. In reply to the Official Receiver, debtor said his insolvency was due to loss in connection with the touring companies, and also in preparing for the production of a number of plays which it was his intention to take round the world. This latter scheme had failed. His loss in the production of touring plays in the provinces between November 5, 1906 (when he had about £200 more than he owed), and December, 1907, had been £598. His loss on the proposed tour of the world, which never started, was £620. He first realised he was insolvent in February, 1908. Debtor denied he was insolvent in August, 1907. Eventually the examination was adjourned.

MR. FRED ZOLA.

At the London Bankruptcy Court, Fred W. 19 Briant, of 83, Hackford Road, Brixton, music hall artist, professionally known as Fred Zola, appeared for his public examination. The statement of affairs showed gross liabilities amounting to £23 15s. 2d., and there were seventeen un-secured creditors for £190, while the assets were nil.—The examination was closed.

MR. BILLY MCCLANE.

The examination in bankruptcy of Billy McClane was held. The debtor, a music hall artist, came to England in July, 1904. He filed his own petition, attributing his insolvency to the break up, in December, 1907, of a troupe of comedians of which he was a member and a manager, to his inability to obtain other engagements since, and to other causes.

The examination was closed, the debts being stated at £342 12s., and assets nil.

JUNE.

THE PLYMOUTH THEATRES.

The first meeting of creditors of the Royal and Grand Theatres, Plymouth, Limited, was held at Plymouth the concerns being in liquidation under the Companies (Winding-Up) Acts. The debts to unsecured creditors were roughly estimated to amount to £3,200, and there were no assets apart from those held by the Law Guarantee Society. This society was now carrying on the theatre. There were only four creditors present, and without discussion the matter was left in the hands of the Official Receiver. At the subsequent meeting of shareholders there was not a quorum present, and the matter was formally adjourned for a fortnight.

MR. A. W. COTTON.

The first meeting of creditors of Albert Wilfred Cotton, theatrical manager, was held at the London Bankruptcy Court.—The Official Receiver remarked that he had not surrendered, and was believed to be in South Africa. Consequently there was no statement of affairs, but proofs had been lodged representing debts amounting to £1,036, and there were apparently no assets. A claim had been made by the debtor's brother to all the effects at a residence called Frieswood, Dorset, where the debtor had lived. The Official Receiver had taken possession there, but on the brother's claim he went out. Mrs. Mary Cotton, professionally known as Ada Reeve, held the leasehold of the premises. The matter was adjourned sine die.

MR. C. E. HAMILTON.

In the Bankruptcy Court, before Mr. Registrar Hope, at a sitting held for the public examination of Charles Edward Hamilton, accounts had been filed showing liabilities £2,944, and no available assets. The examination was concluded.

JULY.

MR. HENRY FORD.

In the Court of Bankruptcy an application for discharge was made, before Mr. Registrar Hope, by Henry Ford, who, it was reported, in 1905 bought land at Clacton-on-Sea, and thereon erected a place of entertainment, which he styled the Palace by the Sea. The cost from first to last was about £35,000, of which about £20,000 was borrowed on security, and the debtor estimated his direct loss at £17,000 and his indirect loss at £5,000 in connection with the palace. He filed his petition in November, 1908, estimating his liabilities at £1,650, and it appears that the assets have realised £10.

A charge of rash and hazardous speculation was preferred by the Official Receiver, but

Mr. Hannaway, who attended on the debtor's behalf, stated that he had a very considerable sum at his command when he embarked on the Clacton Palace venture.

In the circumstances, his Honour granted the discharge subject to a judgment for £200, it being stated that £100 of the amount would be paid within a fortnight.

MRS. WHYTAL.

At the London Bankruptcy Court, before Mr. Registrar Hope, the public examination was appointed to be held under the failure re Mary Adelaide Whytal, of 7, Craven Mansions, Craven Terrace, Lancaster Gate, late of 25, Loxham Gardens, Kensington, W., actress and theatrical manageress. The statement of affairs filed by the debtor disclosed gross liabilities to unsecured creditors amounting to £367 19s. 5d., and assets nil.—The examination was ordered to be closed.

MR. HUBERT CARTER.

The public examination of Hubert Edward Carter, theatrical manager, took place at the London Bankruptcy Court. The liabilities were £1,536, and the assets amounted to £110.—The examination was concluded.

MR. MURRAY CARSON.

Mr. Samuel Murray Carson was before the Registrar at the Croydon Bankruptcy Court for adjourned public examination. Witness said he had been an actor for twenty-five years. He had written a good many plays, the one considerable success of which was Rosemary. He attributed his failure to an action brought by Mr. Sprague, the architect, in connection with plans for a theatre on the site where the Aldwych now stands. The action was compromised for £2,000, and it was for that sum that Mr. Sprague made him bankrupt. The liabilities were estimated at £3,273, and his assets were stated to be a gold ring and a sovereign. The examination was formally adjourned.

MR. R. A. P. WILLIAMS.

Sheriff Campbell Smith issued at Dundee his judgment in an action by the Coatbridge Theatre Company, Limited, Glasgow, against R. A. P. Williams for £100 damages for the failure of defender to produce the pantomime Robinson Crusoe at the Royal, Coatbridge, during the last week of 1908. Defender maintained that the alleged agreement was not a probative document, and that defender's interest in the pantomime was taken over from him by his wife in the beginning of November, 1908. The Sheriff, in dismissing the action, and decreeing against pursuer for three guineas of modified expenses, holds the contract founded on was too vague to be actually carried out or too unintelligible to justify an action of damages for failure to carry it out.

MR. LAWRENCE BROUGH.

The public examination was held at the London Bankruptcy Court of Mr. Lawrence Brough, who had failed with a deficiency 31 of £929.

The debtor stated that he had been an actor for many years, and that during the past ten years he had had theatrical companies touring in Great Britain and Ireland. The failure was caused by loss on the production of plays and by law costs and expenses incurred in connection with an action brought against him by Mr. Charles Frohman to recover the balance of the purchase price of theatrical scenery, etc., for a play called The Dictator.

AUGUST.

MR. JOHN WELLESLEY LYNN.

At the offices of the Official Receiver for the Brentford district the first meeting of creditors was held under the failure 19 re John Wellesley Lynn, of 119, Fielding Road, Bedford Park, W., actor and entertainer. The total liabilities expected to rank against the estate for dividend amounted to £730 4s., against estimated assets amounting to £105, thus leaving a deficiency of £625 4s. The estate was left in the hands of the Official Receiver.

SEPTEMBER.

MR. LESLIE HIBBERD.

At Exeter the first meeting was held of the creditors of Leslie Hibberd (lately trading as Leslie Herbert), formerly concert agent, of 36A, New Cavendish Street, London. The statement of affairs showed liabilities £1,554 and assets £260. The examination was adjourned. 16

MR. STANLEY HOPE.

The public examination of Ernest Claude Tynms, theatrical manager, professionally known as Stanley Hope, and now resident in Jersey, was held at the London Bankruptcy Court. The statement of affairs showed that the liabilities were £768 19s. 10d., the whole of which was due to two firms for printing in connection with theatrical enterprises. There were no assets. The examination was concluded. 28

OCTOBER.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN BARKER.

First meetings of creditors were held in Norwich in the cases of John Barker, and 6 of his wife, Annie Barker, showman and show proprietress, of the Fair Ground, Harwich, Essex, and late of King's Lynn, Norfolk. The statement of affairs of John Barker showed liabilities £2,227 18s., with no assets. In the case of Mrs. Barker, the gross liabilities were put at £547 13s., of which £537 13s. is expected to rank for dividend, with assets estimated to produce £30. The Official Receiver was to wind up the estate in each case.

THE CRYSTAL PALACE.—WINDING-UP ORDER GRANTED.

In the Chancery Division, Mr. Justice Swinfen Eady, on the application of the 14 Prudential Assurance Company, granted an order for the compulsory winding-up of the Crystal Palace Company. The Prudential Assurance Company are holders of £20,000 Crystal Palace First Debenture stock, £600 being due to them in respect of interest.

MR. WILFRED COTTON.

The adjourned public examination of Albert Wilfred Cotton, theatrical manager, 29 was held at the London Bankruptcy Court. The original public examination on July 7 had to be adjourned as debtor was then in South Africa. The statement of affairs now produced showed liabilities to four unsecured creditors amounting to £1,136 6s. 10d. and no assets. The examination was concluded.

MR. STEPHEN PHILLIPS.

In the London Bankruptcy Court, before Mr. Registrar Brougham, Mr. Stephen 29 Phillips attended for his public examination. The liabilities were filed at £614 5s. 2d. and the assets nil.—The examination was concluded.

NOVEMBER.

MR. W. G. GWENNET.

At the London Bankruptcy Court, William Herman Scholz, a dramatic author, 23 professionally known as William Gunn Gwennet, of 196, The Grove, Hammer-smith, appeared for his public examination. The debtor's deficiency was given as £71 13s. 6d., but there was also due £774 to two unsecured creditors in connection with legal proceedings. Debtor is the author of a musical play called Son of the Sun, which was not produced, and he subsequently brought an action against Amasis, Limited, in 1907, alleging that the play Amasis was copied from his own. Mr. Justice Jelf awarded debtor £200 damages, but on appeal the judgment was reversed, and debtor now put as an asset £700, which he alleged the defendants in the appeal would owe him should the judgment be upset by the final tribunal. The examination was concluded.

SKATING.—ROLLER SKATING RINK (Hollmote Road).—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Alderton.

GOLF.—Several golf links in the neighbourhood, available for daily or weekly membership.

There are one or two pitches where circuses and fairs are held, but no portable theatrical companies visit here. If they did no opposition or difficulty in getting licenses, etc., is expected.

Aldershot relies principally on the military camps, which are very extensive—the largest in the world—with about 20,000 troops permanently quartered there, and there are several large military colleges in the close vicinity where officers are trained. These and the military generally are large patrons of amusement at the local playhouse.

Within easy distance of Aldershot there are several towns and villages. It might be mentioned that new camps are now formed around Aldershot, and every opportunity is given by the railway companies and motor-bus company in joining up with a theatre train service.

The district of Altrincham and Bowdon is generally estimated for theatrical purposes as containing a population of 35,000.

The population of Altrincham is trading and industrial; of Hale and Bowdon, residential. Altrincham and Bowdon have separate urban district councils. Hale is also independently governed.

Portables rarely frequent the town. No visit from a portable for some years. Show day is generally the last Wednesday in September. A fair circus pitch is obtainable. Alfresco concerts are not given here.

Sale is a separate district as regards local government, but geographically is part of Altrincham, to which it is connected by tram (fare 1d., five to seven minutes' service) and train. Sale and Altrincham mutually rely on each other for audiences at dramatic performances. Sale is a good residential district for Manchester business men.

Broadheath Station (L.N.W. Railway) is almost as convenient as Altrincham for touring companies.

Early closing day, Wednesday.

ALVA, Clackmannanshire, N.B.

AMPTHILL, Beds.

Population, 2,177. Miles from London, 41.

There are in Ampthill three small rooms available for concerts, etc.—viz., the Court Room, the Wesleyan School, and the Church room. All these rooms are unlicensed, and in none of them is there a proper stage; all are lighted with gas. For any travelling company the Court Room is practically the only room which would be serviceable, unless the hirer was prepared to make all arrangements down to the last detail, including the provision of seating accommodation, and the Court Room would not hold more than about 250 people. The proprietors are H.M. Office of Works, and the charge is £1 1s. a night.

There are no local pleasure fairs, but cattle fairs are held on May 4 and November 30 in each year.

There is a field available for circuses, etc., known as "Canal Close"; applications to Messrs. H. and C. Stanbridge, Ampthill.

There is no fixed date for local fair. The town is not visited by portables. Licenses for these are not granted.

There is a good site for alfresco concerts called "The Paddock," where a permanent stage and dressing-rooms are erected. Circus pitches are obtainable in a large field adjoining the Victoria Hotel; or in "The Paddock." Early closing day, Wednesday; market day, Tuesday.

ASHINGTON, Northumberland.

Population, 24,000. Miles from London, 290.

MINERS' THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Gould. Holds 2,500. Electric light. Direct current, 230 volts; also gas.

There is a little difficulty in reaching the town by train (ordinary), because there are so many junctions. The chief industry is mining, and miners receive their pay fortnightly. Blyth is the nearest town where there is a theatre. Ashington is 18½ miles from Newcastle-on-Tyne. (Manors North Station.)

There are two picture halls; one managed by the Empire Picture Co., and the other by the Wallow Picture Co. The latter has taken over the LINTON MINERS' HALL, and renamed it the PALACE OF VARIETIES, LTD. A SKATING RINK is in course of erection close to the Grand Hotel. THE CO-OPERATIVE HALLS (TWO), Secretary, Mr. J. Magin, are the only halls available now for travelling variety and concert companies.

GOLF.—There is an up-to-date golf course at Newbiggen-by-the-Sea, which is only two miles away. At Newbiggen boating and fishing may be had also.

ROMILLY HALL.—Lessee and Director, Mr. Sidney Bacon. Permanent picture entertainment.

The playgoing population of the Barry district is drawn from four neighbourhoods—viz., Cadoxton, Barry Dock, Barry, and Barry Island—and is an industrial population. Barry possesses two magnificent docks, and the shipping industry is of importance, the export of coal comparing favourably with that of other sea ports, whilst there is also a big import of pitwood for the South Wales Collieries, also timber for building purposes, and an import of foreign meat, etc. There are also ship-repairing yards. The average arrivals and sailings of steamers weekly are about fifty, and these bring and take away about 1,250 officers and seamen. Portables visit the town. The Gasworks grounds, Barry Dock, which is in the centre of the town, is a site where travelling living picture shows visit, also various other kinds of shows. The big circus owners usually pitch at the Witchill Grounds, Cadoxton, a ground of considerable size. The Romilly Hall, Barry, is always available for fit-up touring, dramatic, and variety companies; whilst the Masonic Hall, Barry, is occasionally utilised for Pierrot entertainments. Barry Island is an important watering-place, the sands, Whitmore Bay, being about a mile in length. In the summer months this place is daily visited by from 5,000 to 15,000 excursionists. Pleasure steamers ply from Barry to Bristol, Weston-super-Mare, and Ilfracombe, and other important pleasure resorts in the Bristol Channel.

There is only one fair (the Onion Fair) held near the centre of the city. The site is the Old Pleck, Aston. The ground available now is very small, owing to the neighbourhood being constantly built up. There are several available spaces for fairs in the adjoining districts of Erdington, Sutton, Aston, Olton, Solihull, etc., and no difficulty is experienced with the licensing authorities by the managers of portables and circuses who appear from time to time.

The population of the adjoining borough of Aston is 77,310. The chief industries of Birmingham are gunmaking, jewellery, saddlery, brassfoundry, electric fittings, ironfoundry, glass-blowing, brewing, coach and motor-making, buttons, toys, electroplate goods, and electroplating.

NEW ROYAL PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Morris; Manager, Mr. A. Blacker.

GOLF.—There are two excellent golf clubs in the town, one at North Shore, the other at South Shore. There is no reduction in the charge for temporary membership to actors, but as the management and principal heads of staff at the various theatres and music halls are members of both clubs, there is no difficulty in obtaining an introduction. There are also golf clubs at Fleetwood, St. Annes, and Lytham, all within easy reach of Blackpool.

Blackpool, the popular northern seaside resort, enjoys a world-wide reputation for its lavish entertainment all the year round, but more particularly in the summer season, when it is the Mecca of holiday-makers from all parts of the kingdom. The pleasure beach at South Shore has been aptly styled the English Coney Island. A huge open-air combination of shows. Place no good for portables. Plenty of sites and good prospects for alfresco entertainers and circuses. There are no local fairs or holidays that are calculated seriously to affect theatres, except Tradesmen's Holiday, one day, usually in June. During winter months Wednesday afternoon is recognised by tradespeople as half-holiday, but usually this benefits theatres.

Early closing day, Tuesday; market day Thursday.

This city has fairs on first Monday (and following days of that week) in January and first Monday in July, besides which various districts within the city boundaries have local feasts. Portables frequently visit the outlying parishes, and a license is readily obtained. With regard to alfresco shows, at the meeting of the Bradford City Council, July 14, 1908, the Chairman of the Licensing Committee said: "The Committee are virtually agreed that no more such licenses shall be granted." There are numerous small towns and boroughs round about with a trade similar to that of the city—viz., the worsted industry, of which Bradford is the world's centre.

GOLF.—Numerous golf clubs in city and surrounding country, principal being Bradford at Hawksworth. Baildon at Baildon Moor, and Ravenscliffe at Eccleshill. Special fees to actors by arrangement.

IMPERIAL ROLLER SKATING RINK, Bedminster.—Three sessions held daily. Popular prices. Military band and competent instructors.

There are no local fairs, and the city is not visited by portables. No alfresco concert parties visit the town, but at the local Zoological Gardens there are band concerts two or three times a week. The Volunteer Drill Hall forms an excellent place for any circus that may pay an occasional visit. A tent circus may find an excellent pitch either at Eastville or Horfield, two of the suburbs of the city, to both of which there is a good connection of trams from all parts. The population of the city is both residential and industrial. The former principally reside in Clifton, Westbury and Rodland (all these suburbs are well served by electric trams)—three charming districts—the two first mentioned adjoining the well-known Clifton Downs, which possess much picturesque scenery, and on which many theatricals enjoy the game of golf, with an occasional cricket match in the summer.

Burton is a county borough, with a fairly substantial residential population and a large industrial population, engaged principally in the brewing trade.

The Opera House and Town Hall are easily accessible by tramcar and railway from the neighbouring populous districts of Swadlincote, Gresley, and Newhall. Musical comedy, high-class drama, and first-class concerts are always successful attractions. There is an annual pleasure fair held in the centre of the town on the Monday after September 29. This lasts one day only, and the entertainments are of the usual mixed variety. Fairs are also held on Holy Thursday, and two days on October 28 and 29, or one day on the 30th, according to how Sunday falls. Portable theatres do not visit the town, but pitches can be obtained either for circuses or menageries. Alfresco concerts are held during the summer months on the banks of the river, either in a meadow or one of the gardens, and in the Recreation Ground of the Corporation (which is also on the side of the river). Band concerts are given during the summer months.

Early closing day, Wednesday; market days, Thursday and Saturday.

The Liberal Club, which is situated immediately opposite the main entrance to the Theatre and Opera House, is the rendezvous of the profession. There are also three golf clubs within easy distance of the centre of the town. The Burton Golf Club has a splendid 18-hole course at Bretty, about a couple of miles out, a 2d. ride by the light railway being all that is required. The Branstone Golf Club and the Stapenhill Golf Club, both 9-hole courses, are also easy to get at. At the former club membership is allowable at the rate of 1s. per day, or 4s. per week for visitors, and at the two latter clubs at 2s. 6d. per week.

There is no local fair. The Abbey Gardens, etc., are available for circuses, and Angel Hill and Market Hill for menageries, etc. No portable theatres have been here for years. Licenses are difficult to obtain. Animated picture shows have done well.

The chief drawback to every class of professional entertainment is the increasing competition of local amateur performances, which are much more extensively patronised. There are local operatic and musical societies, which secure a great share of public support. At the theatre musical plays draw best. This house is also sometimes used for two-night variety entertainments at cheap prices.

Early closing day, Thursday; market day, Wednesday and Saturday.

COALVILLE, Leicestershire.

Population, 20,000. Miles from London, 113.

PUBLIC HALL.—Proprietors, Exors. of the late Mr. Chas. Tyler.

OLYMPIA.—Proprietors, Olympia Company, Limited. Communications or telegrams: Manager, Olympia, Coalville.

Coalville is a populous colliery centre, five miles from Ashby de la Zouch, nine from Loughborough, and twelve from Leicester. It is an urban centre of three wards, Coalville (centre), Whiturck and Hug Glescote, each of the latter being a mile or so distant from Coalville. The 20,000 population given above refers to the urban area, Coalville's population being, roughly, 7,000.

The Public Hall has room for between three and four hundred.

The Olympia Company, Limited, at the close of 1909, were building a skating rink in Marlborough Square and investing £3,000 in the venture. They contemplated providing a portable stage, giving a space of 50ft. wide if necessary, and 30ft. from back to front, and accommodation will be afforded for 1,200. The building will be of brick and tile, in the heart of Coalville, and it will be heated by hot water. The rink will be the largest covered-in space in the urban area, and application will be made for a dramatic license. The first consideration of the company will be an experiment with the structure as a rinking resort. Portable theatres have little chance in Coalville proper, but there have been long stays at Whiturck with success. There are good pitches for circuses, and a crowd is generally assured. Alfresco concerts are unknown in the area, but the small picturesque enclosure known as The Park, controlled by the urban authority, lends itself admirably for such a venture by a good party. One fair is held about the middle of May, but the great occasion for show people is in the first week in August, when the Annual Week's Wake is being celebrated by the colliery community.

GOLF LINKS are situate at Swannington, a mile distant by train, and others are at Ashby de la Zouch.

Early closing day, Wednesday; market day, Friday.

A town of nearly 40,000 inhabitants (exclusive of the military, which number another 5,000), largely industrial, and comprised of artisans engaged in the engineering, boot, and clothing industries, and a fair sprinkling of retired military officers, who, with the regular military population, enter largely into all classes of amusements. No portables visit the town. Sites for alfresco concerts and circus pitches are available. As regards alfresco concerts, it would be necessary to arrange with the municipal authorities to hold them in one or the other of their enclosed spaces. St. Denis Cattle Fair is proclaimed by the mayor and corporation in state on October 20.

Early closing day, Thursday; market day, Saturday.

Medical Officer.—A.A.: Dr. J. Becker, Bays House, Trinity Street.

Early closing, Thursday; market, Tuesday.

COLERAINE, Londonderry.

Population, 6,845. Miles from Dublin, 173.

TOWN HALL.—Proprietors, The Coleraine Council; Manager, The Town Clerk. Permanent proscenium, head and footlights. Dressing-rooms. Seats 650. Terms of hiring: one night, £2; two nights, £3 10s.; three nights, £4 10s.; and £1 10s. for subsequent nights.

GOLF.—Courses at Portrush and Portstewart, within five miles.

Early closing day, Thursday; market day, Saturday.

Coleraine is visited by portables, and there is no difficulty in securing a license. Sites for alfresco concerts and circus pitches are easily obtainable. Coleraine's population is much larger during summer months. The town is on the line between Belfast and Londonderry, in the centre of a large, rich agricultural district. Local trades are the manufacture of whisky and linen.

OLYMPIA SKATING RINK.—This roller skating rink, erected in Knitsley Lane, was opened early in December. The skating surface measures 144ft. long by 54ft. wide. Two corridors for spectators, each 100ft. long and 10ft. wide, and rooms for skaters. The building, which is composed of wood on concrete foundations and pillars, has a corrugated iron roof, the whole being lighted by electricity.

In connection with this scheme, it is intended to erect two large halls, one being 58ft. by 39ft., and the other 66ft. by 39ft. Both will be adapted for concerts, cinematograph entertainments, etc. Swimming and Turkish baths will be provided, and pleasure grounds laid out besides a large space reserved for athletic festivals. The whole undertaking is expected to be completed during the coming summer.

GOLF.—There are courses at Blue House (Sholley Bridge) and Armfield Plain, both situated about $\frac{3}{4}$ miles from Consett.

Population of places immediately surrounding is estimated at over 30,000. The people are almost entirely engaged in iron and steel manufacture and coal mining industry. No portable theatres have visited this district for very many years—in fact, ever since the New Theatre was opened. There is no difficulty, however, in getting dramatic licenses from local justices in Petty Sessions. There are sites for circuses, shows, and amusements, which are almost continually visiting the town. Principal sites, Number One field, apply Mr. N. Elsdon; Barr House Field, apply Mr. S. Rowe; and the Public Recreation Ground apply to Mr. T. W. Welford. Clerk to the Urban District Council. No fair is held in Consett, but open-air market held in main street every Saturday. Wages at the works and mines are paid fortnightly, and the town is very busy on "pay" Fridays and Saturdays.

Early closing day, Wednesday; market day, Saturday.

An interesting old Warwickshire city, the centre of the English cycle and motor industry. The population, which is mainly industrial, has increased rapidly in late years, the total at the census taken in 1891 being 53,004, which had increased to 70,296 in 1901, 83,792 in 1906, and nearly 100,000 at the present time, the last figures being based upon a Corporation census. This rate of increase is still maintained, and in connection with the motor trade, several extensive new works have been recently constructed, while others have been considerably enlarged. Other industries include general engineering and aeroplane construction, the new Ordnance and gun works, watch making, silk weaving, ribbon making, etc., in connection with which large numbers of hands are engaged. As regards stage amusements, the Opera House is well supported. In addition there are two new halls as set out above. As regards other entertainments, open-air concerts, etc., are given during the summer at the cricket and football grounds, the Butts, and during the winter months the following halls, which are equipped with electric light, 200 volts, alternating, are available: Baths Assembly Hall, Priory Street, Corn Exchange, and St. Mary's Hall (all three belonging to the Corporation), Priory Assembly Rooms; Assembly Rooms, Union Street; Drill Hall, Queen Victoria Road; Masonic Hall, Little Park Street; Skating Rink, Lower Ford Street; and the Co-operative Assembly Rooms, West Orchard. The city is occasionally visited by portables, and circus proprietors will find an excellent pitch on the Pool Meadow, a large open space in the heart of the city, belonging to the Corporation, from which body courteous and considerate treatment may always be relied upon. The Pool Meadow is also the venue of the large pleasure fair, which opens on Whit Monday.

DRILL HALL.—Apply Manager.

ASSEMBLY HALL.—Apply Manager.

The town has the reputation of being an excellent stand for cinematograph shows, the Central Hall, the Drill Hall, and Assembly Hall being largely requisitioned for the purpose. Portables occasionally visit the town and take up their stand in Market Place, where also a fair takes place twice a year on the occasion of the annual hirings. The hirings extend over three Mondays in May; the second, by statute, must be the Monday before the 13th, and on that day the fair is held. They also extend over three Mondays in November, the second to be the Monday before the 21st, and that also is the fair day. Thousands of people from the country throng the Market Place the whole day and up to long after midnight, no difficulty being experienced in securing sites for shows of any description. The population has a strong residential element, but the industrial preponderates. The nature of the works is varied; North-Eastern Railway engine shops, Darlington Forge, Cleveland Bridge and Engineering works, Messrs. Robert Stephenson's Engine Works, Rice Carr Rolling Mills, etc.

Early closing day, Wednesday; market days, Monday and Friday.

Agent.—M.H.A.R.A.: Albert Dean, Bay Horse Hotel; V.A.F.: The same.

CO-OPERATIVE HALL AND INDUSTRIAL HALL.—Mr. J. T. Duckworth, hall-keeper. Music and dancing license. Holding capacity: Number of persons, 1,125 and 645 persons respectively. Small stage in both halls. Electric light. Amount of printing required: 500 sheets. Terms for hiring: One night from £1 15s.; six nights, £8 10s. Industrial Hall: One night, £1; six nights, £4 15s. Amount of deposit required on booking, 10s.

A fair is held every year on the occasion of the annual holidays. This fair generally begins on the Saturday before the third Monday in July, but it is not as important as it was at one time, owing to the fact that the bulk of the townspeople go away from home, as it is also the general holiday for the year. Portables do not visit the town. Cinematograph shows do. The population is of a strictly industrial character, cotton weaving and paper making being the staple industries.

Early closing day, Tuesday; market days, Monday and Saturday.

Agent.—M.H.A.R.A. and V.A.F.: James Lord, Black Bull Hotel.

Glossop is a corporate town in the extreme north of Derbyshire, and in importance the second in the county. Its population is entirely industrial. The chief industries are cotton, calico-printing, paper-bleaching, and iron works. It has been wittily but truly said that "the town is geographically in Derbyshire but commercially in Lancashire." Hadfield, about 1½ mile distant from Glossop, though connected with it by rail and electric tram, forms one of the wards of the council. Any important matter in Glossop invariably taps Hadfield for support, but not vice versa.

Hadfield has three places suitable for concerts and entertainments and a SKATING RINK.

LIBERAL HALL, Bank Street.—This is an excellent hall for a large meeting. Its seating capacity is between 450 and 500. Charges vary according to the object. For entertainments or lectures the charge is 10s. 6d. per night, plus 2s. for gas. There is a graduated scale of charges for a number of days. Apply to Mr. Hodgkinson, Liberal Club, Bank-street Hadfield.

FREE LIBRARY or HADFIELD PUBLIC HALL, Station Road, Hadfield. — Seating capacity, 350. Charges per night, 10s., plus 1s. for gas. A graduated scale if engaged for more than one night.—Address, Mr. John Battye, on the premises.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS, Conservative Club, Hadfield.—This is a very good room in the form of the letter T. Its seating capacity is:—Body of room, 450; splendid gallery, 100. Charges for entertainments or lectures, 10s. 6d. per night, with a graduated scale for a number of days. Address, Mr. James Bamforth, at the Club.

The population of Hawick at the last census was given at 17,303, but since that time Stobs, a large estate near the town, has been bought by the Government and converted into a camping ground. From the beginning of June until the end of August large numbers of Regulars and Territorials receive their annual training at Stobs, and during these months frequent trains are run to and from the camping ground. The larger portion of the population is industrial, the manufacture of tweeds and hosiery being the principal industries.

The only fair of any importance is the Common Riding, held in the Upper Haugh (the property of the town) on Friday and Saturday, June 4 and 5. Showmen, etc., generally come to the town on the Tuesday or Wednesday preceding the fair, and stay until the following Tuesday. Good business is done during this time, especially with Kinematograph exhibitions. Dates of other fairs: March 6, May 15. Portable theatres, circuses, etc., are also accommodated on the above-mentioned ground during the year. To obtain the license from the Town Council, portables must be well constructed. Licenses have been refused, owing to the unsightly structure. No applications have been made during the past two years.

Hull has a residential and industrial population. Towns and villages in the neighbourhood, to which convenient train services are in operation after the close of the performances. The industrial community is chiefly engaged in shipping, deep sea fishing, and manufactures, viz.:—oil, paint, chemicals, oil cake, flourmilling, cement, etc.

There is no demand for sites for portables or concert and circus pitches, the permanent buildings meeting all requirements. In the past, however, such attractions as Barnum and Bailey's and Buffalo Bill's Wild West shows have been accommodated on the fair ground. Hull Fair, probably the largest pleasure fair in the country, is held annually on October 11 and following days (the usual duration being five or six days). No difficulty is experienced with the local authorities, who accept the fair as an old-established institution, and prepare their spacious ground in Walton Street for the purpose.

There are a number of other halls in Hull, viz.:—The Public Rooms and the Salisbury, St. George's, Cobden, Friendly Societies', Central, St. James's, Ripon, and Wilson, which are available for concerts, dances, etc., but these are usually made use of for local entertainments.

GOLF.—THE JARROW AND HEBBURN CLUB.—Links situated between the two towns. Secretary, Mr. Brown, Bede Burn Road, Jarrow. At present there is no provision in the rules for reduction of fees in case of actors, but as a matter of courtesy it is done. The subject is under consideration by the officials with a view to altering the rules in this direction.

This town is admirably situated for touring companies, there being an excellent train service. There are other large places in close proximity which have no places of amusement, and consequently the inhabitants flock into the central place. The chief industry is the shipbuilding. Jarrow is only six miles from Newcastle.

Early closing day, Wednesday

KEIGHLEY GOLF CLUB.—Howden Park, Utley (Tel. 0279). About two miles from station. Links form 18-hole course. Total length about 3½ miles. Reduction in fees allowed to the profession.

Keighley is an industrial town, with a population as noted above in the borough, the rural population bringing it to about 80,000. Its chief industries are textile machinery (one firm employing something like 3,000 hands), washing machine works, laundry engineering companies, spinning, leather works, iron works, and manufacture of textile goods. There are two pleasure fairs—one in May and the other in November—each one ruled by the Cattle Fair, generally held the first Saturday in each month, and run for about ten days. It is very seldom portable theatres visit the town, most of them making for places in the rural districts. Difficulty is not experienced in obtaining license from Corporation. No sites for alfresco concerts. Now and then a circus visits the town, and there is no difficulty in getting a site nor any difficulty in getting a license from the Council.

Early closing day, Tuesday; market day, Wednesday.

Fairs 1916: May 8 and 9; November 7 and 8.

Agent.—M.H.A.R.A.: J. Maughan, Cavendish Hotel.

Licenses are not difficult to get for portables. There has not been a case of refusal recently. There are sites for alfresco concerts and circus pitches. The alfrescos are held every summer, and a circus usually visits yearly.

The fair was an old institution, but of late years has been done away with. Trams now run to London. A music hall is in course of erection, and a license was applied for in 1909, but the structure not being sufficiently advanced the license was not granted, and application cannot now be made until July, 1910.

GOLF.—There are eight or nine golf clubs within a radius of six miles.

KINGHORN GOLF CLUB.—18-hole course. 3 miles from town.

No temporary membership, but visitors are allowed to play on any of the above at 6d. per round.

A fair is held annually on the third Friday and Saturday in April; this is held along the shore, where there is a stretch of about two miles. This is reckoned one of the largest fairs in Scotland, and great numbers of all sorts of roundabouts, shows, and circus entertainments visit. Occasionally portable theatres visit the town, and difficulty is not experienced in gaining a license for same. Drama does not appeal much to Kirkcaldy audiences. There are plenty of sites that would suit alfresco shows; these have been tried on several occasions, but do not as a rule do well.

The town has been visited by some of the largest travelling circuses, such as Barnum and Bailey's and Buffalo Bill's. Most of the sites suitable are being built on now.

The population is chiefly industrial; the principal industries are linen, pottery, and linoleum manufacture. There is also a large surrounding mining district, connected by rail and electric car.

Early closing day, Wednesday; market day, Saturday.

Agency.—M.H.A.R.A.: W. C. Ritchie, Commercial Hotel. V.A.F.: The same.

Lowestoft, England's eastern look-out, as it is commonly called, is a rising seaside resort with extensive fisheries. As a fishing centre Lowestoft is only eclipsed by Grimsby, and is therefore the second fishing port in the kingdom. The summer season lasts from June to the end of September, when there are thousands of visitors. From September to December, during which time the home fishing is carried on, there is a huge Scotch invasion, in addition to an extra fleet of Scotch fishing craft and continental steamers. There are numerous convenient sites suitable for alfresco concerts, circuses, fairs, and amusements and exhibitions of all kinds. In the summer there is a very comprehensive programme of amusements, fêtes, regattas, and aquatic carnivals carried out by the local Amusements Committee. The annual marine regatta and swimming festival—one of the most popular events along the East Coast—is held in the last week in August. Fêtes, galas, confetti carnivals are held about every ten days during the season, when the yacht basin is crowded with yachts of every description from the adjacent rivers and broads and other yachting centres. Both the G.E.R. and M.R. and G.N.R. run direct into Lowestoft, which is less than ten miles from Yarmouth and thirty from Norwich. Alfresco concerts are also held on the Sparrow's Nest Park (bands and concert parties). This park has a large stage fully fitted with covered seating accommodation for 700. OLYMPIAN GARDENS (Paul Mill), SOUTH BEACH PAVILION (Will Edwards), and CLAREMONT PIER (band and concert parties). This is the only local pier where concerts and music are given on Sundays.

GOLF.—There is a new golf course at South Lowestoft, and there are golf links on Gunton Dunes.

Lowestoft as a sea angling place has few equals, and the adjacent rivers and broads are well stocked with fresh-water fish.

The population of Market Harborough is mostly industrial, but there are also many wealthy residents. Generally speaking, they are a theatre-going public, and are glad of the opportunity to support good dramatic entertainments. Pitches can always be obtained for circuses or menageries, which are well patronised. There would be no difficulty in obtaining sites for al fresco or concert parties. The local fairs are held on April 29 and October 19, when there are many visitors in the town. Drama of the heavy type is almost the sole attraction in the theatrical line to be found in the town. This draws well among a certain class, but for plays of a lighter kind and good concert parties Market Harborough presents a field well worth exploiting.

Local pleasure fairs for 1910, April 29 and 30 and October 19 and succeeding days.

The local Goose Fair, one of the oldest in the country and one of the very few permitted to be held in the Great Market Place, is held the first Thursday in October and the two following days.

Portable theatres are permitted in the city on pieces of waste ground in the suburbs of the Market Place and in Bulwell Market Place, also situated in the borough, and there is no difficulty as to licenses. As a rule, they only visit the town a few days at a time, Alfresco concerts are given by pierrot troupes at Colwick Park, a favourite resort a mile down the Trent, and there is no difficulty in obtaining circus pitches within a mile of the centre of the town; in fact, Buffalo Bill and Sanger's Circus pay regular visits when touring. The local population is both residential and industrial, the latter consisting of lace-makers, hosiery hands, miners, ironworkers, and railway employees.

The Great Market Place is always occupied a couple of days at Easter and Whitsuntide by cinematograph shows, swings, shooting galleries, roundabouts, etc., on a scale that almost equals the carnival week Goose Fair. The surrounding places near Nottingham, varying from 10,000 to 5,000 inhabitants, hold their local feasts or wakes in the period four or five weeks preceding and following Goose Fair, and these are well patronised, especially at Arnold, Basford, and Sulwell, the two latter being in the borough.

Oldham is 6½ miles from Manchester. The local population is purely industrial, principally iron workers and cotton operatives. The operatives distribute amongst themselves about £200,000 every annual holiday. The principal local fair is Oldham Wake, which is held on the last Saturday in August. A monster fair is held, which is visited by all the principal shows in the kingdom. No difficulty is experienced in getting space, which is the property of the Corporation, although there is great demand for same. The town itself is not generally visited by portables, and probably a difficulty would be experienced in getting a license. Some of the outskirts of the town might, however, be visited with advantage, such as Shaw, Royton, and Uppermill.

Dates of local fairs: Easter, Whit Friday, Saturday, and Trinity Monday; also last Saturday in August and seven days following.

Early closing day, Tuesday; market days, Monday and Saturday.

SKATING.—A rink is shortly to be opened.

GOLF.—Nearest links at Llanyrnech, on the Cambrian Rhys, six miles by rail.

There are two annual local pleasure fairs, one held on the first Wednesday in March and the other on the first Wednesday in May; both are well patronised by the townspeople and the country districts around. These would be fatal nights for a company to come here, as the fairs are kept up to a late hour. The town is visited by portables, but at long intervals. There is no difficulty in obtaining a license from the local authorities if the company are respectable. There are three sites for circus pitches, the one most used being the Public Recreation Ground. The local population is partly residential and partly industrial and agricultural. The chief industry is the Cambrian Railway Works, the line and head offices and the Great Western Railway employing together about 800 men. There are also a fairly big brewery, two tanneries, and several builders' yards.

Fairs: Gloucester Green, May 3rd. For ground apply to Mr. John Beckwith, Town Hall. St. Giles' Great Pleasure Fair, Sept. 5th and 6th. Applications for ground should be made early in the season to the bailiff, Walter Beeson, Esq., The Bursary, St. John's College. This is now the second largest street pleasure fair in this country. It is a very ancient festival and is held under ideal conditions in the shade of large trees which stand in a very spacious and beautiful boulevard. For this reason it is the nearest approach to a continental fair we possess. The attendance is very select and excursions run from all parts. Half-day trips from Paddington both days, 3s. 6d. return.

Every form of amusement in the University city of Oxford, including shows, circuses, roundabouts, &c., requires the Mayor's license and, if in term time, also the Vice-Chancellor's written permission. The University Marshal, Henry Stephens, Clarendon Buildings, Broad Street, will obtain the Vice-Chancellor's permit if waited upon. All plays must have the Vice-Chancellor's permission, if to be performed in term time. PORTH, Glam.

Population, 19,500. Miles from London, 187.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Bynorth. Holds 2,000. Electric light, 80 amps., 230 volts direct; own supply. Towns barred, Pontypridd, Tonypany, Ynisher, and Ferndale, as per award.

This town is situated at the apex of two valleys, known as the Big Rhondda and Little Rhondda. The town itself is in the centre of district of 200,000 inhabitants. The train service between Porth and the various towns in the valleys is plentiful, and an electric tramway is also available. Mining is the principal industry. A pleasure fair is held annually in the month of July, at which numerous side shows prominently figure. This, however, is on the decline, owing to the growing scarcity of suitable ground. Portable theatres rarely visit here since Messrs. Poole opened the Palace as a permanent place of amusement. Circus pitches are obtainable, and this class of entertainment usually does well. Travelling electric theatres and cinematograph entertainments also are well patronised, but only for short periods.

GOLF.—Links at Puffs Well, about eight miles distant.

Early closing day, Thursday.

AMERICAN ROLLER SKATING RINK, Clarendon Road, Southsea.

Other important places of entertainment here are the following concert halls, viz.:—The Portland Hall, in Kent Road; the Victoria Hall, Commercial Road.

To the population of Portsmouth for entertainment purposes may be added Gosport on the other side of the harbour, with population only little under 30,000, and containing no regular place of amusement.

The bulk of inhabitants are concerned directly or indirectly with the Royal Navy, Dockyard, Garrison, and Government establishments generally. Southsea is also the residential locality for many retired officers and others lately belonging to His Majesty's services, and during the summer thousands of visitors make it their headquarters, owing to its varied water excursions, proximity to Isle of Wight, &c.

This town is not visited by portables, but little if any difficulty would be experienced in obtaining license from Town Council. A part of the Common in neighbourhood of South Parade Pier is hired to concert parties, pierrots and others during summer, and hitherto on vacant ground near Clarence Pier Messrs. Sanger have annually pitched their circus tent.

There are no large industries. Trade in the city mostly dependent upon agriculture and the many visitors to the city on account of the Cathedral and vicinity of Stonehenge and Bulford Camp.

The local fair is held here the third Tuesday and Wednesday in October, almost entirely devoted to pleasure. No portable theatre here for many years, and now there might be some difficulty in obtaining licenses. One or two circuses visit the city every year, and do good business. A pitch is always obtainable in "The Butts." Alfresco concerts have been held during the past two summers in the Victoria Park, by permission of the Town Council, and these have been very popular. Mr. F. D'Alton Tebby has had these entertainments under his control.

Early closing day, Wednesday; market days, Tuesday and Saturday.

500. Level floor. Suitable for concerts, lectures, balls, bioscopic entertainments, etc. Has been used on several occasions by travelling companies — musical comedy — such as "San Toy," and others.

CO-OPERATIVE HALL.—Sited in High Street, Sheerness. Proprietors, The Sheerness Co-operative Society, Limited; Managing Secretary, Mr. Collins. Seating capacity: about 500 to 600. Suitable for concerts, lectures, balls, bioscopic entertainments, etc. Has been used on several occasions by travelling companies, chiefly with musical comedy. At present it is occupied by "The Bioscope Company" (Manager, Mr. F. R. Griffiths), who have been in occupation for over eighteen months.

HIPPODROME ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—adjoining Hippodrome.—Proprietors as above. Terms apply Manager.

The town possesses two exceptionally fine clubs, which are perhaps as good as, if not better than, any working men's clubs in the South of England. Both clubs boast a membership of from 1,500 to 2,500 each. Each club has a spacious concert hall capable of seating about 400 to 600 people, in which weekly concerts (Saturday night) are held, and for which artists are engaged. The names of the clubs are as follows:—

The Sheerness Conservative and Unionist Club. Secretary, Mr. Victor Stuart.

The Sheerness Working Men's Club and Institute. Secretary, Mr. Milford Lifton.

Portables.—The town is occasionally visited by portables. Their pitch is the Recreation Ground, which adjoins the Esplanade or Sea Front. Transfield's Hippodrome was the biggest of its kind to make any lengthy stay here (about eight months). In the summer time when the town is filled with visitors these shows take well, and are also well patronised by the local population. During the summer there are always steam roundabouts, switchbacks, and their usual accompaniment on the Recreation Ground. No difficulty is encountered in obtaining a permit from the local Urban District Council, neither are their charges exorbitant. Sanger's circus makes an annual visit, and is quartered on the Recreation Ground. Proprietors of Recreation Ground, The Sheerness Urban District Council; Clerk to Council, Mr. V. H. Stallon; Offices, Trinity Road, Sheerness.

Alfresco Concerts.—One part of the Recreation Ground is devoted to alfresco concerts. In this portion the Council have a bandstand within an enclosure. The band performs twice weekly, usually Wednesday and Saturday evenings. On the other evenings the alfresco entertainment obtains, and also when the band has finished on the Wednesdays and Saturdays.

The bandstand enclosure is furnished with chairs, and admission to the enclosure is obtained on payment for a seat within. Applications for the hire of the bandstand should be made to the Sec. to the Recreation Ground Committee, Mr. W. A. Baskett, Council Offices, Trinity Road, Sheerness. The bandstand and enclosure are immediately adjacent to the Esplanade. There is also a piece of land alongside the sea front, which has been used for two years by a troupe of pierrots. It is in the possession of the Admiralty. There are no conveniences, such as seats, except on the Esplanade at this point. There are the sands, on which minstrels, pierrots, etc., could perform the same as at any other seaside resort.

The population consists of the following:—Employees of the Government Dockyard, naval, military, and shopkeepers. The Dockyard employs somewhere about 2,000 men, who reside in the town. Sheerness is the headquarters of the Nore Division of the Home Fleet, so that the naval population is very considerable, inasmuch that the blue-jackets are frequently ashore when the ships are in port. The strength of the Fleet is some thousands, but this is not taken into consideration in stating the actual population. Several companies of Artillery and Royal Engineers are stationed here. The town is a growing place. There is room for enterprise. The naval population wants catering for in the entertainment line.

Early closing day, Wednesday; market day, Saturday

Swindon's population is essentially an industrial population, the Great Western Railway Works here employing some 11,000 hands.

Prior to the advent of the G.W.R. Works and the mushroom growth of the town in the last decade, there were three fairs held in the Market Square and High Street, but these have now dwindled down to one, which is held annually on the second Monday after September 11. This is a pleasure fair, and also hiring fair, and is usually largely attended by agriculturists from the surrounding districts, and also by the resident population in the evening after the G.W.R. Works are closed. It should be added that there is a small Lady Day fair, which is held on the Monday before April 5, but this is only a small one. The town is not now visited by portables, and circuses have within the last three or four years become a thing of the past.

The places available for entertainment, and which are visited at frequent intervals, are:

G.W.R. SWIMMING BATHS.—Secretary, Mr. W. Spruce. This large building is used for entertainments in the winter months, and is capable of accommodating from 1,800 to 2,000. Poole's and other popular entertainers visit here every year. THE SMALL HALL seats about 500.

CORN EXCHANGE.—Size, 110ft. by 50ft. Now used as a skating rink.

Early closing day, Wednesday; market days, Monday and Friday.

Agent.—M.H.A.R.A.: C. G. Kent, Rifleman's Hotel, Regent Street. V.A.F.: The same.

Within easy access of Manchester and Liverpool, Warrington—described as the town of many industries—has many advantages, for it can boast of a steady period of good trade extending over many years. The population may be described mainly as an industrial one, and the chief staple industries are iron, wire drawing, tanning, gas stove engineers, and cotton. There are several good residential districts, including Padgate, Stockton Heath, and Walton. Regarding the catering for admirers of the Thespian art, the Town Council has ever been ready to acquiesce for the welfare of the community, and little difficulty has ever been experienced in securing full dramatic licenses. Circus pitches can be obtained at Wilderspool Causeway and a more central position in Arpley.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS THEATRE.—Manager Mr. Robt. B. Reeves. Double license. Holding capacity: Number of persons, 450; amount, £15 to £25, according to prices charged. Stage measurements: 30ft. wide; 17ft. deep; proscenium, 17ft. 6in. wide; 12ft. high. Lighted by gas. Terms for hiring: One night, £2 2s.; longer by arrangement. Amount of deposit required on booking: £1. Has scenery: One act drop and street scene, garden scene, landscape scene, interior scene.

SEASALTER PARISH HALL, Oxford Street.—A modern building, frequently used for concerts.

Whitstable has a very fair share of visitors during its season, but these in fine weather seem mainly to patronise alfresco entertainments. There is ample scope for two alfresco parties. During the winter months the hall does well during short engagements. Wednesday is the closing day for the shopkeepers, and that evening and Saturday form the most likely for a full house. Variety entertainments are as a rule much better patronised than dramatic. A good circus or collection of side shows always secures success.

GOLF.—THE TANKERTON AND WHITSTABLE GOLF COURSE (18 holes) is about a mile and a half out of the town. There is a convenient club house. Visitors pay 2s. 6d. per day (2s. if accompanied by a member) or 5s. for three days.
